AURORA IS DISTURBER

Telegraph Service Prostrated.

re, Spectacular Display as the Sky Here Glows With "Northern Lights."

First Disturbance of Sort in Five Years; Comet is Not to Blame.

The aurora borealis, or northern lights, in phenomenal brilliancy and extent, was visible last night from Los Angeles and more clearly from points to the east. So far as is known it is the first time that the electrical illumination of the heavens was seen generally from this side of the Pacific Coast. Telegraph wires were affected [illegible] an extent that transcontinental lines ceased operation altogether. The trouble extended as far east as Chicago.

Sun spots were noted yesterday [illegible] the Mt. Wilson Observatory. Sun spots usually precede aurora borealis. In theory, [illegible] currents shoot out from [illegible] causing the aerial disturbance on the earth. The spots yesterday were near [illegible] of the sun and were well [illegible]. SQUATTERS KICK AT RENT ORDER.

"Bylerville" Settlement on Terminal Island is All Wrought Up.

"Bylerville," the settlement of "squatters" on Terminal Island, seethed with indignation yesterday.

The 200 residents of that most formal of Los Angeles suburbs threatened to secede from the union unless the Board of Harbor Commissioners rescinded its order instructing Capt. Inar Pedersen, traffic manager of Los Angeles Harbor, to collect $5 each as monthly rental from the citizens of "Bylerville," who for many years lived rentless in cottages, shacks and houseboats built on city land.

When the news of the action taken at the City Hall reached "Col." Byler, the "Mayor" of "Bylerville," he was reported to be boiling with wrath and threatening fifty-seven kinds of reprisals against the city.

Up to a late hour last night "Bylerville" had not seceded, but feeling ran high.

FOOD RATIONS IN PETROGRAD BRING STRIKE.

Tramway Workers Quit and Railway Trouble Threatened; Promises Unkept.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

RIGA (Letvia) May 14.—A tramway strike has broken out in Petrograd and a railway strike is threatened the Reval newspapers declare, because of the reported inability of the Bolshevik government to fulfill the promise of increased food rations made at the time of the Kronstadt revolt.

One report says that for the last week only one-eighth of a pound of bread has been doled out daily to the population.

A series of congresses which may prove decisive in connection with future Russian soviet policies, or on the other hand, may be so strictly controlled as to have little real meaning, will begin in Moscow Sunday with the opening of the joint session of the all-Russian trades unions and economic councils. The new program of Nikolai Lenine, Bolshevik Premier, together with a report on the program made to date, will be laid before them.

BRIAND ON RAMPAGE.

Lloyd George Has Started Battle.

Address of British Premier in Commons Pro-German, is Allegation.

To Allow Teuton Troops in Upper Silesia Would Mean a New War.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, May 14.—The entry of German troops into Upper Silesia would provoke intervention by regular Polish troops, which would mean war, and in such a war France could not remain neutral, according to expressions in official circles here today.

The utmost amazement was expressed in these circles at the speech yesterday of Mr. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, on the Upper Silesian situation, containing what is regarded here as extraordinarily friendly references to Germany and judgments hostile toward Poland and unsympathetic toward France.

Premier Briand himself took the unusual course of receiving all the foreign newspaper correspondents in a group this afternoon to recount to them what the French government had done and intended to do.

BRIAND IS FIRM.

"Never, never, could the French government consent to German troops entering Upper Silesia," the Premier told the correspondents.

"German bands are operating in Upper Silesia, maltreating and arresting Poles," continued M. Briand. "Not all the disorders in that province are produced by the Poles. The French government could not permit German military forces to intervene in such a situation.

"I protest with all my energy against the false impressions being spread throughout the world. The French government has fulfilled to the utmost of its power its duty in Upper Silesia. We have 12,000 troops there who have had to deal with 100,000 insurgents and a rising of several hundred thousand persons.

CITIES ARE HELD.

"The French troops could do no more than hold the cities, the towns and the strategic points. If the British government would send 50,000 troops there to help us, the disorders could be put down more quickly.

"The news received by the Foreign Office from Upper Silesia today is that the insurgents are going to their homes and returning to work.

"The French government's solution is that the Allies should, in the first place, assume a calm attitude and instruct their commissioners in Upper Silesia to try to reach a unanimous agreement.

"Such an agreement would not be difficult if all considerations except the results of the plebiscite were excluded. The French government's only instructions to its commissioner were to determine, according to the majority of the ballots in the various communes, which should go to Poland and which to Germany."

At the close of his statement Premier Briand was asked regarding possible mediation by the United States.

"The United States," he replied, "has returned without reserve to the Supreme Council. Her voice may be heard and her ideas will be received with the greatest favor."

TELLS OF OUTBREAK.

Premier Briand recounted the circumstances under which the disturbances broke out among the Polish miners in Upper Silesia upon the rapid spread of reports that the Allies had decided to award all the mining and industrial areas to Germany regardless of the plebiscite result, the disturbances being followed by a strike which soon involved the entire industrial basin in much violence.

"The French government," continued M. Briand, "protests with the greatest energy against all misleading or false statements tending to represent it as having failed in its duty.

"When the documents are made public it will be seen that it accomplished its task in the best possible way."

Turning to the question of the disposition of Upper Silesian territory under the Treaty of Versailles, Premier Briand said:

"The treaty does not say that different treatment should be applied to any given region, according as it has or has not coal deposits. The treaty does not say that the votes of the workmen are worth less than those of the great German industrialists. If there is a Polish majority in the mining regions, those regions ought not to be taken from Poland because the majority is made up of workmen. The commission must trace the frontier according to the vote, taking into consideration ethnic and economic circumstances."

HASTE TOO GREAT.

Too much haste in the work of the commission in order to have the report ready for the London conference was largely responsible for the difficulty, in the Premier's opinion.

"If the high commissioners had had time they would have reconciled the different viewpoints," went on M. Briand, "and would have reached a common decision in con-

WINS FIGHT FOR TIJUANA RACE TRACK.

Zaragoza Company Held to be Entitled to Possession; Winter Resort Planned.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICALI, May 14.—Magistrate Palacio of the Appellate Court of Lower California has handed down a decision in the suit for the Tijuana race track, in which he has ruled that the Zaragosa Investment Company is entitled to possession of the property. The Lower California Jockey Club and the Empresa del Hipodromo de Tijuana, holders of the racing concession for several years, are defendants in the action.

The ruling of the court, which is an irrevocable one, is said to have been compulsory because of a technicality of the Mexican law with which the defendants failed to comply. Copies of the decision of Magistrate Palacio have been given to the interested litigants and on Monday the order for the execution of the court decision will be issued and sent to Tijuana. In this suit the question of damages, costs and back rentals, asserted to have accrued subsequent to Sept. 27, 1920, and amounting to $30,000, has not been decided, but an early decision on this point is anticipated. Another suit is pending in the Supreme Court of Mexico at Mexico City, in which damages of $250,000 are asked by the Zaragosa company. It is stated in the complaint that this amount of damage and costs has accrued subsequent to Sept. 27, 1920.

F. E. Monteverde, Jr., local legal representative of the Zaragosa Investment Company, and Jerome Bassity of San Francisco, stated today that Bassity and his associates plan extensive improvements of the race track property, which will include a number of residences, a hotel, stores and other buildings, which will be necessary in making the place a winter resort second to none on the West Coast. Plans and specifications for the project have been completed for some time, the attorney stated, but because of the litigation they were held in abeyance. The winter racing season will also be under the auspices of the Zaragosa company, he said.

Commissioner Forbes Looking Over Former Stamping Grounds; Hurt at Polo.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BAGUIO (P. I.) May 14.—Maj.-Gen. Wood and W. Cameron Forbes, comprising President Harding's special mission to investigate conditions in the Philippines, arrived here today, completing the journey from Manila to Baguio, the former summer capital of the Philippines, 143 miles, in a little more than a day. They will remain here until Monday.

Commissioner Forbes spent part of the journey from Manila inspecting the roads in Pangasinan Province, south of here, in which he is specially interested, having started the good roads campaign fifteen years ago when he was secretary in the Philippines.

Maj.-Gen. Wood, who came by a different route, continued informal conferences with residents, preferring this method to prearranged official meetings. He said that one of the most hopeful signs of progress was the formation of women's clubs in the small towns, devoting work to child welfare.

Maj. Alexander L. P. Johnson of the Forty-third Infantry, has been appointed attache of the mission for the purpose of examining into the administration of justice and investigating the judicial system in the Philippines.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Martial law in the area of disturbance on the West Virginia-Kentucky border is to be declared immediately by President Harding, Senator Sutherland of West Virginia said late today after a conference with the President at the White House.

After it had been decided to issue a proclamation declaring martial law in Kentucky and West Virginia late today, the War Department received a message from Gov. Morrow of Kentucky saying that State troops had been sent into the strike district. The proclamation then was withheld.

NEW FIGHT BY JAPAN.

Alien Land Laws Still Worry.

Harding Administration Will Sidestep Question Until Yap Problem Ends.

Gentlemen's Agreement Not a Success, Belief of West Coast Residents.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, Chicago Tribune.]

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Japan, it was learned today, is preparing to renew at an early date its protest against the laws of California and other States prohibiting aliens ineligible to citizenship from owning land unless such right is expressly conferred by treaty.

The treaty with Japan confers no property-holding right expressly, except that to lease property for commercial purposes.

Japan wants a new treaty agreement vitiating the California and similar land laws, and permitting aliens ineligible to American citizenship, like the Japanese, to own land. To obtain such concession Japan is willing to tighten up the "gentlemen's agreement," preventing the emigration of Japanese to this country.

ADMINISTRATION WAITS.

The Harding administration is not disposed to discuss this matter with Japan prior to a satisfactory settlement of the Yap controversy. Whenever the land-holding issue is revived, however, it is assumed that the administration will proceed in line with President Harding's campaign utterance that California and States in which similar conditions prevail should be allowed to adopt measures of protection from the inroads of immiscible races.

The Californians regard the gentlemen's agreement a failure, and favor the direct exclusion of Japanese immigrants by statute.

They also are furthering a movement for a constitutional amendment denying citizenship to the children of aliens ineligible to citizenship. That would prevent the American-born children of Japanese, Chinese and others ineligible to naturalization, from acquiring land-holding rights by virtue of the citizenship conferred by birth.

LEAGUE'S LETTER.

With a view to meeting the issue whenever it may be revived by Japan, V. S. McClatchy, on behalf of the Japanese Exclusion League of California, has filed with the State

BETTER LOSE TWO CAPITAL SHIPS THAN PACIFIC NAVAL BASES, SAYS ADMIRAL.

Commander-in-Chief of Western Fleet and Head of America's War Navy Unqualifiedly Indorses Move to Urge Congress to Approve Appropriations for Coast.

Admiral Rodman, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, yesterday gave his unqualified indorsement to the move to enlist the swift and full co-operation of all the people of the Pacific Coast in a nonsectional campaign to secure the immediate approval by Congress of the naval-base appropriations recommended by the Navy and the joint Congressional committee for the Pacific Coast.

If it should become a question of economy, Admiral Rodman said, he would prefer to eliminate two capital ships from the Navy program if thereby adequate shore facilities for the fleet on this Coast may be assured.

"There is no greater guarantee against war than to be ready for it," said Admiral Rodman, who commanded our overseas fleet attached to the British Grand Fleet during the war and who has forty years of naval experience behind him.

The admiral sees an era, already at hand, when the trans-Pacific commerce of the United States will assume an economic significance of vast importance to the welfare of the whole United States.

"That commerce must be protected by an adequate Navy for the same reason that we have built up a great Navy in the Atlantic to protect and support our trans-Atlantic commerce," he said.

"A fleet is good insurance at sea, and it is just as wise to have such insurance as it is to have fire insurance, life insurance or accident insurance.

"A man doesn't take out fire insurance in order to start a fire, and neither do we build a navy in order to start a war. It is protection we are after.

ESSENTIAL TO FLEET.

"The one great need for the Pacific Coast now is the establishment of the bases and repair stations recommended to Congress by the Navy Department. Until we get these shore stations—and get them we must—the fleet on this Coast cannot be maintained satisfactorily.

"The establishment of necessary shore stations and the maintenance of a fleet on the Pacific Coast are a national proposition and should receive the interest and support of all sections alike."

Admiral Rodman, aboard his flagship, the U.S.S. New Mexico, now in Los Angeles Harbor, did not hesitate yesterday to give his hearty and unqualified support to the plan for coastwise co-operation in a demand that Congress appropriate the necessary funds for adequate naval bases and stations on this Coast.

"Unqualified" was the admiral's own word. He used it frequently and with considerable emphasis. His entire viewpoint was dictated by real patriotism and by an expert's knowledge of conditions. He has the interests of but one coast at heart where his country is concerned—and that coast is the coast of the United States, regardless of the salt water—Atlantic or Pacific—that breaks upon its sands.

The admiral did not deal in figurative speech.

He discussed the actual presence of the fleet in these waters, the actual need for better shore equipment and the probability that the fleet will be expanded unless the nation's naval policy is radically interfered with. Also, he talked freely of the actual handicaps under which his command is at present being maintained.

NATION-WIDE ISSUE.

Admiral Rodman does not believe that the problem of maintaining a modern fighting fleet in Pacific waters is purely a Pacific Coast problem, but that the matter is of equal importance to the Atlantic Coast, the North, the South, the East and the West.

Moreover, as regards his opinion of the imperative necessity for immediate construction of certain bases and repair stations on the Pacific Coast, he did not mince words yesterday in saying that, if the question be a matter of economizing either afloat or ashore, he would prefer to eliminate a couple of capital ships from our naval program, and, [illegible] build an adequate naval base at Alameda on San Francisco Bay.

A landsman, perhaps, would not easily catch the full significance of such a statement, for it should be understood that a "capital ship" is the biggest ship any navy has, and, despite the success of the submarine, naval battles still are to be won or lost by capital ships.

The commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet is known as a man who never fires at random, whether he be using words or bullets, and when he says, by inference, that he would prefer to go into a battle minus two of his greatest fighting ships in order to have the assurance that his fleet could be satisfactorily repaired or overhauled ashore, he means just what he says.

TO PREVENT WAR.

Although a fighting man, and regarded as one of the best seamen ever developed in the American Navy, Admiral Rodman prefers peace to war and more than once in his career has been called upon for missions calling for considerable diplomacy and vision, and, again therefore, his words may be taken at their exact face value when he says, somewhat epigrammatically:

"There is no greater guarantee against war than to be ready for it."

The admiral, who will leave within a few days for Washington to sit as a memberr of the Navy Board, charged with the duty of selecting officers for advance to higher rank, is not at present in touch with the exact situation in Congress. He was not in position yesterday, therefore, to discuss the details of the movement in and out of Congress to defeat proposed appropriations for adequate naval bases on this Coast, a movement which is believed to have as its real purpose the recall of the main portion of the Pacific Fleet to the Atlantic.

But Admiral Rodman is thoroughly in touch with the situation on the Coast and demonstrated an intimate knowledge of the Navy's needs, big and little, from San Diego to Seattle.

"Certain recommendations concerning needed bases and yards already established have been made by the Navy Department," he said. "Such recommendations were made by men who thought in the general terms of the general needs of the Navy. Their recommendations were non-political and non-sectional.

"When we started out to survey the Pacific Coast, so as to reach our conclusions as to where the best locations were to be found, we did not give a thought to local prejudices or pride—and I must say for the people of the Coast that the Navy has uniformly received the heartiest welcome and co-operation ashore.

THE NAVY PROGRAM.

"Eventually we made our recommendations. We found that San Diego is an ideal location as a destroyer base and an aircraft base. We can use those bases for training purposes in peace time and in time of war we could use them as war bases.

"As for our selection of Los Angeles Harbor as the main submarine base for the Pacific Coast—there is no spot on either Coast of the United States more ideally fitted to accommodate a base for submarines. All that has been set forth in our reports—the ease with which we can get to sea, the smooth, sandy bottom, free of rocks and seaweed, the unexcelled climatic conditions.

"For many reasons it is necessary that our main base be located on San Francisco Bay.

"Now, Mare Island won't do. We

The following telegram was sent yesterday by Frank Wiggins, secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, to the chambers of commerce of Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Santa Barbara, Oakland, Astoria and San Diego:

"Withdrawal of Pacific Fleet threatened if Congress fails to approve naval-base program this Coast. Will you not join Los Angeles chamber in wiring representatives in Congress to lay aside sectionalism and wage vigorous battle to retain Pacific Fleet in these waters and provide adequate facilities for maintenance. Best authorities agree on necessity of having adequate fleet in Pacific at this time."

The co-operation of every city, newspaper, organization and individual in the West is urgently needed at once to impress upon Congress the immediate necessity of promptly approving the recommended naval-base appropriations for the Pacific Coast, now gravely imperiled by the Coast's own factional differences. From this vicinity individuals should immediately write or wire Congressmen H. Z. Osborne or Walter F. Lineberger, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., and Senators Hiram Johnson and Samuel M. Shortridge. Organizations should meet quickly, pass strong resolutions on the subject and without delay mail or wire copies to Congressmen and Senators.

There is no time to lose.

NAVY CRISIS STIRS COAST.

San Diego and Orange County Cities Send Wires to Washington.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA ANA, May 14.—The Times' appeal today for united Pacific Coast efforts to keep the Pacific Fleet in the Pacific brought forth an immediate and hearty response in Orange county, and a telegraphic bombardment of our representatives at Washington was started, led by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, appealing for a continued program of adequate Pacific Coast defense. Telegrams were sent from Santa Ana, Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton and Newport Beach, urging Senators Johnson and Shortridge and Congressman Swing to stand solidly with other Coast representatives in holding the fleet on the West Coast.

"Without a great fleet in the Pacific, the entire nation would be open to attack from the west," said the Newport Beach telegram, signed by President J. J. Schnitger and Secretary A. J. Twist of the Chamber of Commerce. "With every Pacific harbor properly equipped and a Pacific fleet ever ready to repel attack, the whole nation will be secure."

The Fullerton Board of Trade wire was signed by F. C. Krause, president and W. M. Irwin, secretary. Charles F. Smith, president and J. C. Metzgar, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce sent the following message:

"This Chamber is unanimously agreed on the subject of the proposed naval appropriations recommended by government experts in behalf of the Pacific Coast. You are earnestly requested to support this program and we urge you to do your utmost in interest of the protection needed on account of our growth and shipping on this coast. Orange county has assumed large responsibilities in contributing to port improvements at Newport Bay and offers this port as a base in connection with the navy needs of this district." A similar telegram on behalf of the Orange County Harbor Association is signed by President D. Eyman Huff of El Modena.

AUTO INDUSTRY GETTING BACK.

Detroit Factories Running on 60 Per Cent Normalcy.

Large Army of Unemployed Ranks Reduced.

City Preparing Now for Next Winter's Hardships.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, Chicago Tribune.]

DETROIT, May 14.—In its home town the automobile industry, which was blown higher than a kite by the industrial depression, is now back to about 60 or 65 per cent of normal work Detroit, which of all the great manufacturing centers, was struck hardest by the "slump," is now trotting along with the rest of the big industrial communities. In employment it is a lap ahead of the steel and iron centers, which now have blue skies over smokeless stacks and it is behind the cities, which have widely diversified industries.

JOBLESS ARMY CUT.

Last winter it had 200,000 unemployed. It has now cut down the army of the jobless to less than 75,000. Last week the total number employed in industry was 62 per cent of those employed one year ago. Factories have been putting men back to work at the rate of 25,000 a month. The increase in employment has been steady since New Year's, but as the Employers' Association points out "it has taken four months to re-employ the men who were laid off during the last week in December." At present there are about as many men with jobs in the city as there were on Dec. 21, 1920, and at that time the slide had been in precipitate progress ever since October 1.

Employment dropped to 18 per cent of normal and is now back to 62 per cent. So far the advance is almost confined to the automobile industry and how long it will last is the big question in Detroit. Employers point out that one industry alone cannot stage a general business revival. It cannot race too far ahead of the procession, for the reason that depression and unemployment in other industries mean diminished buying power and a reduced market. Shipping in the Detroit River tells the story of the dullness in basic lines, like steel and iron.

WHISTLES SILENT.

"Three boats a minute sailing by Detroit," used to be the old boast in normal times with the season in full blast. But nowadays hardly a whistle hoots on the river and, with the season starting, one can watch for hours without seeing a ship steam by while freighters are tied up idle at docks from Detroit to Buffalo.

Meanwhile rumors that Detroit is experiencing something little short of an old-time boom has turned many unemployed hither from outside cities and civic leaders are putting the snuffer on exaggerations. Everybody is optimistic.

BANK SAVINGS REDUCED.

For the last two months savings have been reduced in the banks. For relief work the municipality has used nearly $1,000,000, distributed in the form of loans to the hard-pressed. Some are already paying back. Some former soldiers, who were not in on the high wages during the war, were hit the hardest and relief agencies arranged for cots and meals for 1200 ex-service men. About 1000 are being taken care of now in this way.

Meanwhile the city is taking forethought against possible unemployment next winter by preparing for extensive public improvements. At present many large municipal jobs are going on in full swing, in particular the construction of a street railway and of large bore sewers. The program is such that about $40,000,000 worth of work on public improvements will be ready for next winter.

JAPS TO RENEW FIGHT ON LAWS.

Department a letter which says in part:

"California asks in this matter that the State Department and all departments of the Federal government act not only in harmony with what she understands to be the intent of the Federal Constitution as to not interference with States in matters within their exclusive jurisdiction, but also in harmony with the Federal statutes when they clearly outline established national policy and in harmony with corollaries that flow from such statutes.

"For many years the Federal statutes have provided (naturalization laws Section 2169) that individuals of the yellow and brown races are ineligible for American citizenship. That bar was raised for excellent reasons and has successfully withstood assault in and out of court. The Japanese belong to the yellow races.

"It would manifestly be unwise to encourage or permit conditions under which members of a race unfitted by law for American citizenship may secure ownership or control of the rich agricultural land of the country and thereby control markets and eventually economic development.

BAR AGAINST ALL.

"The alleged discrimination against the Japanese created by California's alien land law is not a discrimination against the Japanese, but is a bar against all nations of the yellow and brown races. That bar was raised really and wisely by the Federal government, and California has done only that which any wise executive would do in support of a principle already adopted.

"As to the wisdom and necessity for action by the various States under their constitutional prerogative along the lines already adopted by California, the official record of peaceful penetration by the Japanese in that State furnishes sufficient proof.

"Permit me to direct your attention to the fact that the treaty making power itself officially recognized the principle since carried out in California's laws when, in the treaty made with Japan, it deliberately omitted to confer on Japanese in this country the privilege of owning any land whatsoever or of leasing land for agricultural purposes. The treaty confines the privilege of lease of land to that which may be required for residence or commercial occupation.

"So I submit with deference, on behalf of the Japanese Exclusion League of California and the State of California, whose sentiments it represents and as part of the record, that whatever may be the official or personal views of the State Department as to the course suggested by courtesy to a friendly nation in this matter, the action followed by California and by other States in forbidding ownership and control of land to aliens ineligible to citizenship was taken under the exclusive State authority conferred by the Federal Constitution, and is in strict harmony with the naturalization policy established by Federal law and maintined for years."

HAWAII ASKS RELIEF FROM LABOR SHORTAGE

RESOLUTION REQUESTING CONGRESS TO PERMIT IMMIGRATION GOES TO COMMITTEE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Resolutions of the Hawaiian Legislature requesting legislation by Congress to permit immigration of sufficient persons to remedy an "acute labor shortage" in the islands were presented to the Senate today and referred to the Territories Committee. They proposed that alien immigrants admitted should not exceed 25 per cent of the total insular population, a restriction designed, it was understood, to exclude Japanese.

WOOD MISSION NOW AT BAGUIO

layed.)—Maj.-Gen. Wood and Commissioner Forbes left this morning for a twenty-day tour of the provinces in the northern section of Luzon Island, the main island of the Philippines group. At Baguio it was planed for Prof. H. Atley Beyer, of the University of the Philippines, who specialized in the study of wild tribes, to join the party and aid in its work.

Maj.-Gen. Wood will board a coast guard cutter at Aparri and inspect the Batanes Islands, which are midway between Luzon and Formosa.

Commissioner Forbes was thrown from his horse here yesterday during a polo game after winning the first goal for the "mission" team against a team from Camp Stotzenburg. He fell upon his hand and shoulders, and was considerably bruised, forcing discontinuance of the game. The accident did not interfere with plans for the trip northward.

BLAMES DEMOCRATS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TARLAC (Tarlac Province, P. I.) May 12.—Former President Wilson made little effort to grant independence to the Philippines, it was declared here today by former Gov.-Gen. Forbes of the islands and a member of the special mission sent here by President Harding to investigate conditions. Forbes, replying to a strong plea for independence made here in a speech, declared that although Democrats were in control of Congress for six years during the Wilson administration, little action was taken to provide self-government for the island.

The Forbes party was welcomed after the sixty-nine-mile trip from Manila, and escorted by a large crowd to the provincial capital. Before leaving northward, Forbes held private interviews with a number of residents. The party continued to Bautista, in Pangasinan Province, where it expected to rejoin Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood's party, which, leaving Manila at the same time as the Forbes party, held hearings today at Cabanatuan, Nueva Ejica Province.

TROOPS ARE TO FIGHT MINERS.

Pike county, Kentucky, along the Tug River, which has raged for several days, fierce as it has been, is merely a phase of a greater struggle in which this rich coal district is locked—the industrial struggle over the question of unionizing or keeping "open" the mines.

Union miners on "lockout strike," as the leaders describe it, were evicted from homes owned by the coal companies, to settle near by on leased land in tent colonies. No longer able to trade at the company commissaries at the various mining towns, they subsist on rations shipped in by the union.

Deprived of funds as a result of being out of work, they draw benefits from the union.

Propaganda is being circulated by both sides, each blaming the other for disorders.

An unconfirmed report was received at State police headquarters this afternoon that four men had been killed in fighting at Lynn, W. Va.

LONG BEACH IS GIVEN IDENTIFICATION MEET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALINAS CRUZ, May 14.—Long Beach was chosen as the place for the 1922 convention of the California division, International Association for Criminal Identification, at the closing session today of the 1921 convention. C. S. Morrill of Sacramento was elected president.

formity with the views of the population.

"My keenest desire is that the trouble shall be settled amicably, that violence shall cease and work be resumed. But there are German bands who have insulted, molested and arrested French officers. Order must be imposed upon the Germans as well as upon the Poles.

"The Germans are trying to force developments. It is possible that Germany may intervene in her turn in Upper Silesia. It would be an error upon her part. She would provoke the most formidable eventualities.

"France could not remain disinterested, and not an ally would authorize the entry of German troops into Upper Silesia."

TALK FACE TO FACE.

"Mr. Lloyd George has interpreted the situation from his viewpoint, but we are free countries, great countries, which can talk to each other face to face. It belongs to give orders to another. The British Premier cannot alone take the initiative of authorizing German troops to penetrate Upper Silesia. Besides, these is nothing of the sort in his speech."

This reference to Mr. Lloyd George was M. Biand's reply to an inquiry as to what he thought of the speech of the British Premier yesterday.

"Mr. Lloyd George's thesis," he continued, "is that Poland must not render judgment herself. It is a just thesis, and I approve it absolutely, but it must be applicable to Germany as well as to Poland. France has made too great efforts toward an assured peace to let herself be troubled by the claims of a few great German mine owners. Independent of these selfish interests, the Allies must accomplish their duty in rendering justice.

"There have been imprudences that Germany has been too much given to understand that if she yielded to the Allies' ultimatum she would gain some advantages out of it. Upper Silesia, however, has nothing to do with reparations."

ADDRESS REGRETTED.

Newspapers today expressed deep regret and considerable surprise over the address here by Prime Minister Lloyd George during which he severely arraigned Poland.

The Petit Parisien declared Mr. Lloyd George was "playing the game of Germany," and denied the truth of the assertion that the indigenous population of Upper Silesia was German.

"France does not permit her hand to be forced," declared the Echo de Paris, "and will not permit the industrial district which has come to her eastern ally to be taken away from her."

VIEWS DIVERGENT.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, May 14.—Premier Lloyd George's denunciation of the Polish revolt in Silesia in the House of Commons yesterday failed of unanimous support from London newspapers today. The Daily Express commended the Prime Minister's honesty, courage and statesmanship, and insisted Poland "must be taught she cannot be allowed to become a disturbing element in Europe."

The Daily News held that Poland was "fatally and irretrievably in the wrong."

The Daily Chronicle, usually a staunch supporter of Mr. Lloyd George, said it "would take the situation more tragically but for the defiance of the Allies by Mustapha Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalists; Gabriele d'Annunzio, who occupied Fiume for more than a year, and Gen. Zeligouski, whose Polish irregulars are still holding Vilna."

Mr. Lloyd George was charged with "bitter partisanship, intense dislike of Poland, pusillanimous fear of Germany, and ignorance of European politics," by the Morning Post.

TREASON CHARGED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, May 14.—Allegations of high treason are made in proceedings instituted by the Ministry of Defense against the radical newspaper Rote Fahne (Red Flag) as the result of publication by that paper of a series of documents bearing on the situation in Silesia. These documents are alleged to prove that the German military administration had planned an invasion of the Upper Silesian plebiscite area last October, and had plotted the assassination of Adalbert Korfanty.

Collapse of the Polish revolt in Upper Silesia is expected in authoritative quarters here, according to a special dispatch from Breslau. Important conferences are now in progress and it is believed that Korfanty, leader of the Poles, has lost his fight to secure Upper Silesia for Poland.

AURORA MAKES WIRE TROUBLE.

be seen except from some great height. The demonstration last night was as clear as those seen in Northern Canada.

William H. Knight, an astronomer long resident in California, said last night he had never known of the northern lights being seen this far south. He said in 1859 he saw them from Sacramento. There was an aurora borealis visible in Northern States in 1910. It was accompanied by a sun spot.

NOT DUE TO COMET.

Pons-Winnecke, the comet with a tail 2,000,000 miles long, is due to pass the earth so it may be seen late this month. But astronomers think the display of last night had no connection with this noted comet.

The aurora is seldom seen in low latitudes. In the southern hemisphere there is very little inhabited land in high latitude and observational data are few. Little, therefore, is known as to how frequency varies with the latitude and longitude.

A chart by H. Fritz shows curves that connect places at which the aurora recurs with equal frequency. On this graph Los Angeles is linked with New Orleans, northern Florida, the north of Spain, northern Saghalien Island, southern Kamchatka and the Aleutian Islands, at the western end of the chain.

There were many housetop and front porch astronomers last night, particularly in the suburbs. The lights of the city interfered with the visibility, but the Aurora Borealis could be seen clearly from the roof of The Times Building.

SPLENDID FROM DESERT.

A dispatch from San Bernardino said the lights were very clear from points on the Mojave Desert, and that it was the first time they had been seen there.

WIRES DEAD.

Western Union and Postal Telegraph officials stated last night that the Aurora Borealis had caused a greater crippling of service than any similar static condition in the history of their local offices.

"Its effect was first felt about 2:30 p.m., Friday," said one of the officials. "The tie-up at that time was not of very great length and the trans-continental and all other wires were opened up soon afterward.

"The currents again appeared early this afternoon. As they usually vanish when darkness approaches, the phenomena of today, which remained in evidence during the hours after darkness, has been the most baffling ever experienced here."

The Postal Telegraph Company reported that after 2:30 p.m., practically all their wire business was at a standstill, including the three wires to Chicago and other eastern cities. This condition existed, not only in Los Angeles, but practically all territory west of Chicago was affected. The difficulty first appeared in the vicinity of Chicago last Friday and rapidly spread eastward and westward. On dead wires, with no "juice" at all passing over them, the meters at the local office showed that the dead wires were receiving from seventy-five to 100 volts of electricity.

The Western Union stated that it was able to operate wires to points as far east as Denver and Dallas, but with numerous interruptions. Dead wires operated by the Western Union were receiving from ten to 100 volts out of the air.

Though local and Southern California wires of the Southern California Telephone Company had not been hampered by the Aurora Borealis, the chief operator of the long distance lines stated that no connections between San Francisco and eastern points could be made during the night. Electricians doubt, however, that this was due to the aurora.

SEEN ON BORDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, May 14.—The Aurora Borealis was visible from several points in the country surrounding San Diego tonight. At Boulevard, a small town in the mountains between San Diego and Imperial Valley, near the Mexican line, it was reported as a brilliant spectacle. Another point at which it was visible is Escondido, about thirty-five miles north of this city. Old residents declared that they had never seen a similar spectacle.

KINGSBURG, May 14.—Reports that the air "was filled with smoke and ashes" were circulated here tonight as the result of the display of the Aurora Borealis. Many theories were advanced to account for the brightness in the sky. Residents turned out by the hundreds to watch the manifestation.

SACRAMENTO, May 14.—The Aurora Borealis was visible here tonight shortly after 9 o'clock.

STOCKTON, May 14.—The Aurora Borealis became visible here at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

Calexico's "Dry" Law Proposition Winner at Polls.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALEXICO, May 14.—The plan of the City Trustees to adopt a prohibition enforcement ordinance was yesterday given the stamp of approval of the voters of the city, 141 votes having been cast for the proposition and 115 against it.

The election was very quiet and little interest was manifested, no one appearing to work either for or against until late in the afternoon, when a few persons who favored the enactment of the ordinance were out with automobiles to carry voters to the polls, but no organized effort was made during the day.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Three men were beaten here today on the water front in a fight arising from the marine strike. The men told police they had been followed by a crowd of men when they were seen coming from the office of the Shipping Board here.

Union crews employed aboard four tugs owned by H. C. Peterson walked out late today, declaring that the company was handling business "unfair to union labor."

Company officials said they were handling business necessary in the conduct of the port's activities and that the places of the strikers will be filled with nonunion men.

The other tugboat companies reported the strike had not affected them.

TO RELIEVE ALASKA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) May 14.—R. S. Semmes, head of the Shipping Board's division of operations here, announced this afternoon that the board had chartered the steamer Northwestern to carry freight, passengers and mail to points in Southeastern and Southwestern Alaska, isolated since May 1, when the marine tie-up became effective. The Northwestern is scheduled to sail from Seattle next Tuesday.

The crew for the Northwestern will be furnished by the board at the new wage scale, according to Mr. Semmes, who said he expected no difficulty in signing men. The Northwestern has been chartered from the Alaska Steamship Company for one trip.

If the Northwestern sails it will be the first vessel to leave Seattle for Southwestern Alaska since May 1. Possibility of a serious food shortage has been reported by Gov. Riggs, Jr., of Alaska.

GALVESTON (Tex.) May 14.—Refusal of tugboat engineers to move the United States Shipping Board steamer Lackawanna today precipitated a strike of tugboat crews in Galveston. All tugboats in port were tied up shortly before noon and operators began paying the men off. C. H. Marshall, district agent of the Shipping Board, said efforts would be made to get nonunion men to man the tugboats.

HEARING ON BAY CITY WATER-FRONT BILL.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, May 14.—Gov. Stephens today heard arguments on Assembly Bill 98, which would prevent the construction of a $2,300,000 warehouse on the San Francisco water front planned by the State Harbor Commission.

Assemblyman Manning of Marin county, author of the bill, made charges against the members of the Harbor Commission during consideration of the measure in the Assembly, but later retracted them. Manning was at the hearing today.

TO SAVE PACIFIC FLEET

are not interested in Mare Island's claims as against Alameda's claims, nor in Alameda's claims as against Mare Island's claims; what we are interested in is a base, properly situated and equipped, that will accommodate our needs.

"Mare Island was selected many years ago. At the time it was selected, Mare Island was the logical selection. Now the Navy has outgrown Mare Island. There is not enough water at Mare Island; there is not enough depth at Mare Island."

Here the admiral paused to explain that he has at present under his command in the Pacific Fleet more than 175 ships, great and small. In time of an emergency it is probable that upwards of 400 ships might from time to time be mobilized in the Bay of San Francisco.

Should such an emergency arise, necessitating rush repairs on scores of shops simultaneously, a large portion of the fleet would be forced to anchor miles away from the Mare Island docks and shops.

Admiral Rodman resumed:

"We knew we no longer could look to Mare Island and, in addition, we knew that we must have a bigger base on the bay. Alameda—Hunter's Point—one or the other, would answer the purpose. I am in favor of Alameda, now that the department has selected it.

"We need the bases at San Diego and Los Angeles, and we need to expand the excellent base at Bremerton, near Seattle, but our greatest need right now is the Alameda base.

MUST ACT NOW.

"In time of war or of threatened danger is not the time to build ships or shore stations. Neither can ships or docking and repair bases be built overnight.

"I would say, if it is a matter of choosing between the construction of one or two capital ships and the construction of a base at Alameda, that I, as commander of a fleet, would prefer the building of the base at Alameda.

"In addition to the needed construction at San Diego, Los Angeles Harbor, San Francisco and Puget Sound that I have mentioned, there are certain other stations located along the Coast absolutely necessary for training in time of peace and for use in time of war.

"We have experienced the greatest difficulty in maintaining the fleet on this Coast up to the standard of efficiency and excellence established in the Atlantic, due, of course, to absence of adequate docking and repair facilities.

"The Navy has four first-class naval bases on the Atlantic and two bases of the second class. Any one of the four can do whatever work our ships need.

"On this Coast we have one fairly efficient base—Bremerton—but we must expand that and construct at least one other—now provided in the proposed base at Alameda.

"The arguments advanced and the tactics adopted by the member of Congress from the Vallejo district (Congressman Curry of Sacramento) give me the impression that he is ignorant of the true situation when he argues for Mare Island.

"Maintaining a fleet on this Coast is a national problem—not one to be regarded as a sort of political prize to be held onto or fought for. It should not influence a Congressman or a Senator that a naval base is to be located or is not to be located in his particular district."

The admiral refrained from joining in the bitter personal criticism of Curry stirred up in the Navy since the Sacramento Congressman began his attack on the Al

Take Advantage of The Present Price of Fine Platinum

Six or eight months ago fine platinum, that is to say, platinum that is toughened with 10 per cent of pure iridium, was quoted at $185 per ounce. Today the price is $105—but that isn't all. Here's the point we wish to emphasize: Without a doubt just as soon as the industries that use platinum start up at full speed again the price will go up to the old high level.

You who have been waiting for lower prices before having your old-fashioned jewelry remodeled should take advantage of this situation. The Geo. D. Davidson Company's reputation for this type of work is Statewide, and the prices we make represent every possible economy.

Bring your old jewels in any time and let our artists show you just what can be done with them. There is no charge for this service.

HERE'S GEORGE, GET THE ETHER.

It's Midnight, Where Were You, Where Were You?

No Use Lying While I Have This Concoction.

Now, Where Were You? I Knew It, This Never Fails.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, May 14.—Dr. James Cotton of Toronto, Can., has invented a truth-compelling ether. Persons under its influence cannot tell a lie. He says he will not allow anyone to use it, but if he should change his mind, might we not expect its administration would elicit statements similar to the following:

President Harding: Woodrow Wilson wasn't so far wrong.

Thomas A. Edison: The questions I submit to men applying for employment were compiled for me by a freshman of a correspondence school. I have read them over and I could not answer one-tenth of them.

Senator Lodge: It is beginning to look as though President Harding will make a boob out of me.

Postmaster-General Hays: It is my intention to treat the employees of the Postoffice Department like human beings in the hope that I may make the department a part of the Republican machine.

George Herman "Babe" Ruth: Most of the time when I knock a home run I am as much surprised as the pitcher.

W. H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League: We don't care if it takes fifty years to enforce prohibition.

William J. Bryan: I have not yet lost hope of being elected President of the United States. The country is going dry and blue.

Henry Ford: The reason I did not take the money offered me by the Wall-street bankers was because I was afraid that if they ever got their hooks into the organization they would take it away from me.

Secretary of State Hughes: You can never tell what a job is by looking at it from the outside.

Charlie Chaplin: Certainly I upset the acetylene lamp and set my pants on fire on purpose. The idea was sugested by my press agent. He is thinking up another one.

Edward L. Roberts, for about ten years connected with the local internal revenue service, and recently a prohibition enforcement agent, died at the Angelus Hospital Friday night, following an operation for the removal of gallstones. He was 43 years of age.

The deceased leaves a wife and mother at the family home, 261 East Forty-second street. Mr. Roberts in the local Federal service was popularly known as "Lucky" Roberts.

EXTRADITION TO WASHINGTON DENIED BY SUPERIOR COURT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—An order denying the extradition of Jafet Lindeberg, Tacoma and San Francisco capitalist, to Tacoma for trial on an indictment charging the illegal diversion of funds from the defunct Scandinavian-American Bank, was issued today by the Superior Court.

The order marks the successful conclusion of habeas corpus proceedings brought by Lindeberg to obtain his release.

The court held that the indictment did not state a specific extraditable offense. Recently another Tacoma indictment charging the specific illegal borrowing of $27,505 from the bank by Lindeberg was introduced by the District Attorney here, but the court held that this could not be considered in the proceeding as it was not the charge on which the extradition application to Gov. Stephens was based.

Lindeberg made a fortune in Alaska and later became a director in the Tacoma bank. Following the failure of the bank indictments were returned against a number of its officers charging the withdrawal of large sums without proper sanction.

A supplementary charge that Lindeberg was a fugitive from justice was dismissed by the court when it was shown that he had never made an effort to evade the proceedings against him.

Y.W.C.A. CAMPAIGN STARTS WEDNESDAY.

GOAL SET AT $100,000 THIS YEAR; MONEY TO GO FOR NEW BUILDINGS.

With a goal of $100,000 to be raised in a period of ten days, the Y.W.C.A. will launch its annual campaign next Wednesday. The drive will be directed by Miss Ethelwyn Mills, representing the national board, and there has been enlisted in the cause a large force of girls and women who will compose the various campaign teams during the garnering of the association's maintenance budgets and a fund to be used in the building of a gymnasium and plunge.

The 1921 budget will cover a great number of activities in which the Y.W.C.A. is engaged, such as the Blue Triangle Club, the girls' work, educational department; International Institute, metropolitan student work, library, colored center, city service department, employment bureau, travelers' aid, room registry and protective work; national and foreign work and the association's administration and maintenance.

From the $100,000, $60,000 will go toward the association's maintenance, and $40,000 will be asked for a building fund, this sum augmenting $50,000 which the directors have in hand from the sale of the former building at Third and Hill streets. There was received from the sale, $175,000 cash. Of this sum, $80,000 was used in the purchase of the association's present site, at 941 South Figueroa street. A mortgage of $25,000 on the Hill street property was cleared; $2500 was paid out in commission, for the bringing down of title, and other expenses.

Later the sum of $17,500 was expended in the leasing and furnishing of the Y.W.C.A. hotel for the temporary accommodation of girls who come to the city as strangers, or who are otherwise placed in need of an emergency lodging. This hotel, located at 1007½ South Figueroa street, is gradually refunding its initial cost to the association. With these expenditures, the Y.W.C.A. has a reserve of $50,000, which is designed as the nucleus for its building fund.

The plans of the future include the erection of three units, the first of which will be the health and activities unit, providing a spacious and well equipped gymnasium and a fine swimming pool for the girls and women of the city.

It is purposed at a future time to supplement the health and activities unit with a second building devised as a hotel for women and still later an administration building. The latter will form the permanent front structure, facing South Figueroa street.

The campaign executive committee includes Mrs. Nichols Milbank, chairman; Mrs. Jay Spense, Mrs. E. S. Pauly, Mrs. S. W. Crabill and Mrs. James A. Nelson. Other committees, team captains and workers will be announced later.

MAY RETURN FOR FILMS.

The Sylvester family, who have been playing the Orpheum during the past week in a novelty act, are planning to return to the Coast next season to engage in film work. They are an exceedingly talented group of players, and it is understood that arrangements will probably be made to present the entire family, including Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester and four children, in a series of pictures.

STEINWAY
THE INSTRUMENT OF THE IMMORTALS

"ADELINA PATTI joins me in a mutual ecstasy and admiration for your piano," wrote Charles Gounod to William Steinway in 1888. Here at Steinway Hall there is a cherished collection of inspiring tributes from the greatest artists in every field of music. The Steinway is the piano of Kreisler as well as of Paderewski. Sir Edward Elgar esteems it as highly as did Franz Liszt. And when Leopold Stokcowski writes, "the Steinway stands unequalled," he epitomizes the opinion of Richard Wagner no less than his own. Truly the Steinway is the chosen instrument of the creators and the interpreters of great music. Is there any wonder, then, that it is also the chosen instrument of those who delight in hearing the music of these great masters?

WAR LUST NOW WANDERER ALIBI

Attorneys Striving to Save Triple Slayer's Neck.

Cite Recent Case of Canadian Veteran Freed.

Say Chicago Murderer Insane; Mentally Exhausted.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, Chicago Tribune.]

CHICAGO, May 14.—Attorneys for Carl Wanderer, sentenced to hang June 16, for the killing of his wife, her unborn child, and a ragged stranger, are to make a new appeal for his life. They want him sent to an insane asylum, instead of the death noose, on the theory that the "war lust" was responsible for the crime.

The family attorneys yesterday cited the case of Philip Kanow of Ottawa, Can., as a precedent. Kanow enlisted early in the war and served with great daring for four years. After the war he was decorated with the Victory Cross, England's highest war honor. Shortly after his return home he killed a man. His defense was insanity and the court ruled, in effect, that the attention paid by him to the killing of men during the war was to a great extent responsible for his action.

Wanderer's father and attorneys are preparing the same plea for presentation to the Governor and the Supreme Court and will back up the plea with the statements of alienists.

"The war undoubtedly broke Carl Wanderer," said Dr. James Whitney Hale, an alienist, who has spent much time studying Wanderer. "He was a dementia praecox before he went to war, but he was not dangerous. Then came the war and the mental exhaustion induced by his war experience, by the successive daily shocks, broke down what restraint he had been endowed with. In addition there are a number of distinct cases in which he was knocked unconscious for several hours.

"We are learning something every day about the new conditions which have come up out of the war. In the case of those whose minds were not normal, almost anything may happen. Wanderer is insane. It would be barbarous to hang him."

Would Bar Negroes from Enlisting.

FIVE HURT WHEN CAR HITS TRUCK

Injured, Going to Dance, May Not Rally, Surgeons Say.

Army Machine Tried to Speed Ahead of P. E. Coach.

One Woman Loses Leg; Man Has Fracture of Skull.

Five persons were severely injured, two so severely that they may not recover, when an Army motor truck and a Pacific Electric car collided at the junction of the Alhambra Road and Huntington Drive last night.

Mrs. C. A. Tibbets of Sherman, whose leg was cut off, is in the Pasadena Hospital in a critical condition, due to shock and the loss of blood. Max White, 1426 East Twenty-second street, is at the County Hospital with a probable fracture of the skull, and is said to be in a critical condition.

An Army sergeant, named Nimm, taken to the Pasadena Hospital, is badly injured, as is Henry Stuchner of 1426 East Twenty-second street, who is at the County Hospital. Sylvia Lavine of Los Angeles, at the County Hospital, has several fractured ribs. Others in the truck were picked up in passing automobiles and returned to their homes. The truck is a total wreck.

The accident occurred when the driver of the truck attempted to cross at the four-track crossing between Sierra Vista and Oneonta ahead of outbound car No. 737, which was on its run to Oak Knoll in charge of Conductor A. Sandefur and Motorman F. H. Perkins.

The truck is thought to have contained a party consisting of four soldiers and twelve civilians, who were en route from Los Angeles to the Balloon School at Arcadia, where the men of the school were to be hosts at a dance later in the evening.

Arm Mail Men to Make Thefts Here Lost Art.

The long-delayed shipment of 45-caliber revolvers and shotguns from the Benecia arsenal, intended for the protection of the mails at the local postoffice and in transit to and from the railway stations, arrived yesterday and the weapons are being oiled up for immediate use. There are fifty of the revolvers and a half-dozen shotguns.

The latter will be placed in the hands of the night watchmen at the postoffice. The revolvers will be given to the drivers of the trucks carrying valuable mail to and from the postoffice. In addition the postal clerks accompanying these vehicles will also be armed, affording a double protection from the mail looters. Other measures not to be spread broadcast to the world will be taken when any specially valuable load is to be taken to the railway stations.

A series of target practices will be at once inaugurated by Assistant Postmaster Foster, who has charge of the firing squad. There are a number of ex-service men in the employ of the government, who will have no need of such drill, but it is the intention to make every man proficient in the handling of firearms, so that they will be able to pick off a robber as he flees. It is believed that these precautions will make mail robbery a lost art in Los Angeles.

RICCARDI LEAVES THE PENITENTIARY.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN QUENTIN, May 15.—C. Vincent Riccardi, former San Francisco attorney, pardoned yesterday by Gov. Stephens because he had exposed corrupt practices he said existed in San Francisco courts, was released from the penitentiary today.

Riccardi's disclosures resulted in an indictment against Police Judge John J. Sullivan charging bribe taking, and the recall from office by vote of Judge Sullivan and Police Judge Morris Oppenheim. The indictment against Judge Sullivan was dismissed because of lack of evidence.

Riccardi was convicted of embezzling $1000 from a client.

PORT NOTES.

The Union Oil tanker Montebello arrived here yesterday from Point Lobos, Mexico, after a run of twenty-two days, and will tie up with the other six Union Oil tankers in port, awaiting a conclusion of the strike.

The steam schooners Carmel, Claremont, Shasta, Bandon and Oregon sailed for San Francisco yesterday, where they will be tied up. Two steam schooners arrived yesterday, and two more are en route here. After the arrival of these vessels it will be several weeks before another steamer enters Los Angeles Harbor with a cargo of lumber.

Five more deep-water vessels sailed from the local harbor yesterday, being the Eastern Guide, for the United Kingdom; Moerdijk, for Rotterdam; Steel Age, for San Francisco; Ohioan, for New York, and Lehigh, for San Francisco.

"Stub" Craig, former purser on the Harvard before that vessel was taken over by the navy during the war, and more recently purser on the Admiral Line steamer Queen, will sail as purser on the express-steamer Harvard when the speedy ship goes into service on the run to San Francisco in June.

MONTEBELLO MAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

"Dad" Malin, a retired business man, about 80 years of age, shot himself through the head in his home in Montebello yesterday afternoon, according to a report to the Coroner's office here. The body was taken to French & Sons' funeral parlor.

According to the Coroner's office, a note was found beside the dead man, reading: "I can't live long. Am going to end it all. Don't blame anyone else. I did it."

It was stated that despondency over ill health was the motive behind the suicide of Mr. Malin, whose first name could not be learned by the police. The dead man leaves a widow and several children, residents of Montebello.

"BILL" HAD GOOD REASON.

Haywood Took $35,000 of I.W.W. Funds to Russia With Him, Charged.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, May 14.—William D. (Big Bill) Haywood, former secretary of the defense committee of the I.W.W., jumped his $15,000 bail bonds and fled to Russia to escape punishment for a $35,000 shortage in the committee's funds, according to charges made at the convention of the organization yesterday.

The charges created a near riot in the convention hall. Several fist fights were averted only through intervention of other delegates.

SHORTAGE "COVERED."

According to Roy Martin, present secretary of the defense committee, Haywood, during his term in office, failed to use a system of bookkeeping that would allow a balance to be easily taken. Through this means, it is said, he succeeded in covering up a constantly growing shortage.

At the time of Haywood's expulsion from the organization, it was learned, the new secretary found the books in a "terrible state of confusion." Auditors were called into action, but it has been only recently that they have made any headway into the almost undecipherable accounts.

Haywood was expelled last October. At that time he left Chicago for New York, where he is said to have rented a costly apartment, living there until the latter part of March.

FORGETS HIS CRONIES.

He never visited any of his former I.W.W. cronies, it is said, and refused to answer numerous requests for explanations sent from the Chicago offices.

It was shortly after Haywood heard of the auditing of his books that he sailed for Russia, ostensibly to take part in an international trades-union conference to be held in Moscow.

"We don't look for Haywood ever to return," Secretary Martin said last night. "The organization is busy trying to raise enough money to make good on the bonds which he jumped. Those will cost us another $15,000."

Boy Kills His Stepfather to Protect Mother.

To protect his mother, Jesus Rocha, an 18-year-old Mexican youth, shot and killed his stepfather, Elilocio Barriencos last night in their home in the Standard Brick Company's yard on Soto street in Boyle Heights, according to the report of Detectives Thompson and Clester, of Boyle Heights Police Station, who investigated the shooting.

Young Rocha was arrested by the officers on a charge of murder. He is held in Juvenile Hall.

The detectives said that the stepfather had just been released from jail, where he had been imprisoned for firing three shots at his wife three months ago. Last night, he came to their home, apparently seeking revenge, the police declared. He threatened his wife, Mrs. Serranda Barriencos, and the woman's son then shot his stepfather, according to the police report.

Money That Grows!

TEN Thousand Dollars invested in Good Bonds today will earn more money than most men with an income of $5000 can save—and it is what you save, not what you earn, that makes your money grow.

Plant money right and it will grow, the same as any other seed. Today Good Bonds present a wonderful investment field. Take Public Service Bonds of the leading California Public Utility Companies, for example, and for comparison:

They can be bought in amounts as low as $500 and $1000. The moral security behind them is the growth of the great State of California. They are issued under rigid but wise Statutes; they are drawn with the utmost care as regards their legal and protective features, by the ablest Lawyers. The Companies which issue them and the service they render the Community, are as fundamental, as necessary, as impossible to do without, as Governments and Banks are fundamental, necessary, impossible to get along without.

The Interest return to the Investor is, under present conditions, exceptionally inviting on these Public Service Company Bonds: seven to eight per cent.

And these Bonds are marketable. The experienced Investor knows that if he himself should need money later on he can borrow on these Bonds at his Bank; or he can sell them readily, for they are widely distributed and well known both to Banks and private Investors. And he knows, too, that present conditions are exceptional, that money will be cheaper after a little while.

It is a good time to buy Good Bonds.

Blyth, Witter & Co. offer to discriminating Investors, large and small, a variety of Good Bonds of various descriptions and maturities suitable to the requirements of the small or the large Investor. Descriptive circulars, containing the facts in plain words and figures, mailed on request.

Have you studied our "Principles of Safe Investment?" It is a Booklet well worth getting acquainted with. And its Principles are the principles Blyth, Witter & Co., and every prudent Investor, are guided by. The Booklet is yours for the asking.

Attempt to Rescue Griffith Proves Failure.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

DUBLIN, May 14.—The elections today were the quietest ever known in Ireland. No polling was necessary, as, according to the British custom, when only one candidate is nominated the polling is dispensed with. In this way the 128 seats in the southern Parliament were filled, as the four Imperialist nominees, who were named for Dublin University, also were unopposed.

Two of them, Thrift and Alton, are fellows of Trinity College, Dublin, while the other two are Sir James Craig, Kings professor of medicine, school of physics of Trinity College, and Gerald Fitzgibbon, eminent member of the Irish bar.

Those elected include Eamonn de Valera, for Clare; Michael Collins, commander-in-chief of the Irish Republican army, for County Cork; Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein; Alderman Cosgrave, and many other men prominently connected with the Sinn Fein movement.

MacSWINEYS NAMED.

Those elected in Cork city or county include Sean MacSwiney, brother of the late Lord Mayor of Cork, who recently escaped from Spike Island internment camp, and Mary MacSwiney, his sister, who is now in America. Other women elected are Countess Georgina Markievicz, who is in prison, and Mrs. O'Callahan, Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Pearse.

In Donegal also there was no contest, the single Unionist candidate, Maj. Moore, having at the last moment withdrawn, leaving six Sinn Feiners to be returned unopposed.

For the Northern Parliament seventy-seven canditates were nominated, and the Unionists expect a majority of twelve. It is noteworthy that in Monaghan and Castan, two Ulster counties, which are included in the Southern Parlianemt, the Sinn Feiners won overwhelmingly.

PRIESTS SIGN PAPERS.

In County Down, six Unionists, including Sir James Craig (Premier-designate of Ulster;) three Sinn Feiners, including Eamonn de Valera; two Nationalists, including Joseph Devlin, and one Labor candidate were nominated for the eight seats. De Valera had the remarkable number of 900 nomination papers, many of them signed by Catholic priests.

His chief Unionist opponent is Sir James Craig. Devlin is nominated also for Antrim and West Belfast.

Belfast furnished a surprise by the nomination of one unofficial Labor candidate in each of the four divisions.

For the twenty seats the Unionists nominated nineteen candidates, the Sinn Fein, six, the Nationalists, five and Labor, four.

No independence candidates were nominated for Belfast.

SEEK RESCUE.

An unsuccessful attempt was made this morning to rescue Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein organization, from his confinement in Mount Joy prison. An armored car was used by the republicans in the attempt to rescue Griffith.

A man in an officer's uniform alighted at the prison gates, which opened to admit the passage of the car, and he and his supposed soldier companions in the motor, drove straight to the Governor's office, where the Governor and his deputy were bound and gagged.

The visitors proceeded to release Griffith and other prisoners and were returning to their car as a party of auxiliaries approached.

A sentry at an elevated point in the prison became suspicious and fired a shot.

RAIDERS ESCAPE.

The raiders hastily decamped without the prisoners, but took the armored car, which later was found abandoned.

Arthur Griffith was arrested in Dublin on November 26, last, and lodged in Mount Joy prison. It was announced later the government desired to learn if he was responsible for the alleged employment of republican funds on ambuscades and other operations involving the lives of troops.

The car used in the attempted rescue is reported to have been captured by the Sinn Feiners this morning after a surprise attack in which two of the soldier occupants of the car were wounded. The Sinn Feiners then disguised themselves as members of the crown forces and proceded to Mount Joy prison.

SENTRY MURDERED.

A fight occurred inside the prison yard when the armored car was attempting to get out. A sentry was shot dead by the man in the uniform of an officer, and as the car passed through the gate a fusillade was fired from one of its machine guns.

No confirmation could be secured of reports that military forces followed the escaping car, which was abandoned in Howth Road. Before decamping its occupants stripped the car of two Hotchkiss guns and ammunition.

It is understood the Sinn Feiners had trouble in operating the car. They left a note which said: "This car is no good. We have better ones ourselves." So far as known only one Sinn Feiner was wounded slightly. A lorry filled with soldiers also was taken when the armored car was captured and nine rifles seized.

RIOTS IN BELFAST.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BELFAST, May 14.—Three riots between Nationalists and Unionists this morning, although quelled by police, have given rise to the fear here that with the rising tide of political feeling serious trouble may be brewing for the election period.

After withdrawal of the curfew this morning, a Nationalist crowd invaded the Unionist area in York street and threw stones. A fierce fight resulted. Two hours later the trouble was revived. Revolvers were used, but without serious result.

The third disturbance occurred afterwards as shipyard workers were proceeding to the yards on the Antrim side of the Lagan River. A gang of men attacked them with revolvers and stones.

Six Convicts Recaptured.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HUNTSVILLE (Tex.) May 14.—Capture of six men considered the ringleaders of the Huntsville mutiny and prison-break on Thursday was effected early this morning by three guards from the penitentiary.

—Rare Opportunity
To Get Into the Motor Car Business.

One of the old, well established and financed manufacturers of medium-priced motor cars is changing its Pacific Coast representation.

The factory representative is here. He wishes to get in touch with one or more men who have a sincere desire to enter the motor car business and who have the necessary capital to give this line proper representation.

While experience in merchandising motor cars is desirable, it is not essential because experienced men, of excellent standing in local automobile circles, familiar with this line, are immediately available, if desired, as a nucleus of the new organization. Furthermore, the manufacturer maintains a coast representative, whose active co-operation in organization, sales and finance is at the call of the distributor.

There are approximately two thousand of these cars in the hands of owners on the coast now. The parts business alone is attractive.

There is no "good will" or other intangible involved in the proposition. An exclusive contract possessing large profit possibilities will be offered to men whose ideas of merchandising and service are in harmony with those of the manufacturer.

All inquiries will be regarded in strictest confidence.

JAPS TO PLAN NEW POLICIES.

May Revamp Their Activities in the Far East.

High Officials to Attend the Colonial Meeting.

Complete Evacuation of Siberia to be Discussed.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, May 14.—Examination of Japan's position relative to the entire field of questions affecting the Far East is the object of a colonial conference to be held here soon, according to authoritative information.

This conference, which possibly may remodel Japan's policy in Siberia and in China, will be attended by the highest Japanese civil and military officials, holding positions in China, Siberia, Korea, Shantung, Kawangtung and Manchuria.

One of the principal subjects to be considered is said to be the complete military evacuation of Siberia.

Forecasts of the work of the conference also emphasize the importance placed upon the question of Shantung, in which China persists in declining to enter into negotiations for the restoration to her of that district. In an attempt to hasten a solution of the question, it is said, Japan may decide to withdraw her troops from the Tsinan-Fu Railroad, but reports that this country intends to release the entire peninsula of Shantung unconditionally, are authoritatively described as nonsensical as Japan probably will insist that Tsing-tau be made an international port.

RECOGNITION IMPOSSIBLE.

There is said to be no possibility of recognition being given the South Chinese government at Canton, of which Dr. Sun Yat Sen is President. There are indications also that Japan is seriously examining the possibility of a trade agreement with the Far Eastern republic, which has its seat of government at Chita.

America's attitude toward Japan's activities in the Far East is deeply occupying the Japanese, who apparently are trying to understand what significance lies behind the recent note sent to the powers by Secretary of States Hughes relative to the disposition of mandates over islands in the Pacific.

Endeavors will be made, it is declared, to determine America's exact intentions in the Far East and Japan is said to be disposed frankly to outline her own attitude. The Foreign Office declines to discuss the visit to America of Admiral Uriu, who is a close friend of Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of War Weeks.

The trend of public discussion here relative to relations between America and Japan is distinctly away from the immigration problem and toward the vaster field of Asia, it being believed that an understanding on Asiatic matters is urgently needed.

Emphasizing this view, Count Soyejima, a Liberal member of the House of Peers, has begun a series of articles on relations between Japan and America, with the avowed purpose of throwing such light on the situation as may lead to an adjustment. He dismissed the California question as a local difficulty, but insists that potential causes of trouble exist on Asiatic questions.

"If the United States, with her enormous wealth and astounding power," he says, "should oppress Japan, it would be impossible for Japan to maintain the peace, despite all her efforts to do so, because her security would be endangered."

EXPLAIN PORT SCHEME.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Establishment of an international port at Tsing-Tau is contemplated by the Japanese government as soon as it can induce the government of China to undertake negotiations for the relinquishment of Japanese control over the entire province of Shantung, it was explained today in Japanese quarters here.

Internationalization of the port is insisted upon by the Japanese because, it is explained, maintenance of a distinctive Japanese settlement at Tsing-Tau might invite demands from the other maritime powers for similar concessions. It was said it would be impossible to assign separate quarters in Tsing-Tau to the half-dozen maritime powers, corresponding to their holdings in such open ports as Shanghai, for instance, for the reason that the port of Tsing-tau is entirely too small to admit of such compounds.

The Japanese propose to settle the question of control over this mixed settlement by inviting the Chinese government to establish a gendarmerie with sufficient strength to insure their ability to keep off the bands of bandits which swarm in Shantung province.

GASOLINE WAR ON AT HARBOR.

Standard's Two Reductions Not Quite Down to Latest Price of Union Oil.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, May 14.—Indicating that a a gasoline war is under way in the harbor district, the Union Oil Company today announced a cut in the retail price of gasoline to 24½ cents per gallon, knocking one cent off the price announced by the Standard Oil Company yesterday.

The Standard Oil Company today announced a cut of one-half cent more, bringing its retail price to 25 cents, or one-half cent more than the price of the Union gas. In explaining the cut, one of the Union Oil officials made the following statement:

"We have reduced the price in San Pedro 1 cent and in Long Beach and Santa Monica one-half cent because of the difference in freight rates as a result of location of the refinery here."

EVOLUTION, OX CART TO AUTO, SHOWN

Two-Mile Parade in Honor of Automobile Day is Held on Downtown Streets.

The lumbering ox cart of 1721 and the purring limousine of 1921 were the striking contrasts in the two-mile parade of all types of vehicles and means of transportation which wound its way through the downtown section yesterday immediately after noon as a feature in the celebration of State Automobile Day, which had been set apart by Gov. Stephens in honor of the automobile industry.

More than 250 vehicles, illustrative of the advancement in transportation in this country over the last two centuries, participated. Three bands added zest to the parade and made it possible for the horses and oxen to put their best feet foremost in an effort to keep a safe distance ahead of the loafing automobiles.

Burt Roberts, secretary of the Automobile Dealers' Association, had charge of the pageant. Each local agent had two cars in the line of march.

MARNE MEMORIAL TENDERED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, May 14.—Hugh C. Wallace, the retiring American Ambassador, on behalf of the American committee having its erection in charge, formally tendered the Marne Memorial, the gift of America to France, to President Millerand in the Elysee Palace last evening.

It's Easy to Peel Off All Your Freckles

The contrast between the freckles and the clear skin usually is so great that no bleach can be more than partially successful in obliterating the disfigurements. Ordinary mercolized wax is far better; it literally peels off the freckles. Get an ounce of it at the nearest drug store and tonight spread on enough to completely cover your face; remove in the morning with warm water. Repeat daily until every freckle has disappeared.

Rough, blotchy, pimpled skin, common at this season, may be entirely gotten rid of by this method, without discomfort or inconvenience. The effort is decidedly worth while, the new complexion obtained being so clear, smooth and youthful.

If bothered with wrinkles, bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is the most effective and quickest-acting wrinkle treatment known. The men folks will find it splendid for use after shaving.—[Advertisement.

I got a bottle and it helped father at once. He was able to go back to work a month later, has regained his weight and strength and eats like a wood chopper. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. SOLONS AGAIN GET A DUSTING.

Angels Biff Out Victory in Loosely-Played Game.

Pitcher Reinhart Has a Field Day With the Stick.

Visitors Vainly Use Three Heavers During Contest.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Our backsliding but baffling Angels yesterday dusted the Solons so thoroughly that there should be a great saving of soap in the Sacramento bunk house for the next couple of days.

Los Angeles beat the tar out of the visitors, 7 to 5, and left them whiter than snow. Bring your ball teams here and get 'em cleaned while you wait.

It was a slat-slamming session from start to final shudder, at once punk, prolific and pleasing. For every boot there was an extra base knock, and the bugs are so fond of knocks that they produce them themselves when the players fail.

STAKES HIS ALL.

Red Killefer staked everything on Art Reinhart, and allowed nature to take its course. Bill Rogers sought to improve on nature, and fussed and fiddled with pitchers, pinch-hitters and substitute runners until the official scorer felt like tackling something easy and answering Thomas A. Edison's simple-minded questions.

Penner, Prough and Kunz were tackled and thumped in the order mentioned.

It was largely a personally conducted victory for Reinhart, who proved himself a young man who can give and take. He took everything that Sacramento had to offer in the way of wallops, and then won his game with four wallops of his own—three singles and a double.

POOR SUPPORT.

His support was egregious, or words to that effect, especially at third base, where Bert Niehoff hardly put a fingerprint on the ball. Bert didn't want to leave any telltale fingerprints on the pill, lest they find out who was playing third.

Sacramento kept pecking away, one run at a time, and was leading, 3 to 0, when the massive intellect of the Angels began to work, and they went in front never to be headed, although closely pursued. Five open and above board swats in this round produced four runs, retired Penner to the pension list and brought in Bill Prough, pronounced pro, and sometimes associated with con.

Oscar Stanage started the big stuff with a double, and Reinhart scored him with a safe rap to right, taking second over a mix-up on the throw-in at the plate. Killefer three-cushioned a single from his bat, to the third-base bag to the outfield, counting Reinhart. McAuley bunted, and Red beat Penner's peg to second, but Penner was more successful in his next attempt as a fielder, forcing Killefer at third on Carroll's grounder.

GRIGGS THERE.

Sandow Griggs shouldered a single to center, counting McAuley and moving Carroll to third. This rapid tieing of the score sobered the usually light-hearted and yipping Mr. Rodgers. Bill is normally full of pepper. That's one thing that makes him popular. If he was full of gum drops, clam chowder or rolled oats he wouldn't be so popular. But by this time all the cayenne had gone out of his life, and the chill of impending defeat alone prevented him from fermenting.

By swift thinking and a swifter kick, Bill removed Penner from the mound, and with a prayer called on Prough. The latter wasn't quite ready, and Rodgers stalled by instituting a precinct caucus in the center of the diamond. When the politicians had dispersed, Crawford forced Carroll at the plate. Los Angeles then went out in front, when Niehoff poked a single, scoring Griggs. Zeider grounded to McGaffigan.

PURSUE SOLONS.

By scoring three times in the succeeding innings, while Sacramento scored twice, the Angels were able to keep a skip and a twist ahead of the pursuing Solons.

Everything considered, the game was a fitting climax to the confusion caused by the parade downtown. Also, the game resembled the parade in that some of the oldest, as well as the newest, models in athletes were shown.

Umpire James Toman, unlike Bill Byron, umpired while wearing his chest protector outside. Mr. Toman formerly tended bar, and the professional instinct is still strong within him. He regards the chest protector as an apron, and unless watched will be swabbing off the home plate with a towel.

A FASHION PLATE.

Mr. Byron, on the other hand, is a fashion plate and does not like to appear as a working man. He wears his chest protector submerged inside his shirt, where nobody sees it. This gives him an unearned reputation of being a human shock absorber.

When hard foul tips drip off his chest without causing so much as a grunt people marvel at the strength of his wishbone, little knowing that he has a hair mattress tied to his shirt stud. Mr. Byron figures that it would be as incorrect for him to wear his protector over his coat, as for a lady to wear her corset outside her opera cloak. The score:

RALPHS TUCKS AWAY A TITLE.

Captures Golf Championship of the Athletic Club.

Nearest Competitor is Gus Henderson of U.S.C.

Everett Seaver Downed in the Spring Handicap Meet.

BY PAUL LOWRY.

Elmer Ralphs, food baron, tucked away the Los Angeles Athletic Club golf championship at Pasadena yesterday by scoring 81 for his third round of eighteen holes. This gave him a total of 230 for the fifty-four holes of medal play and put him out far in front of his nearest competitor.

This proved to be Elmer Henderson, U.S.C.'s funereal football coach, who, after a horrible time the first two days of the tourney, came back yesterday and rang up a 79. But "Gloomy's" 85 and 83 weren't much to stack up alongside of Ralphs's 73 and 76, and he finished second with a total of 247 strokes, seventeen behind the man he beat for the club title last year.

Until the Athletic Club affair Ralphs hadn't played in a tourney since last year, when he had such success that the handicapping committee (Edward B. Tufts) got busy with the meat ax and pruned his handicap from "2" to nothing flat. After diving down the elevator shaft of his store in pursuit of a stray doughnut, Ralphs took a trip to Honolulu and put in quite a bit of time frolicking around on the Hawaiian courses. When he returned a few weeks back he wasn't the easy meat that a lot of the boys thought he would be, and his play in the tourney concluded yesterday stamps him as a man who will bear watching in the San Gabriel invitation meet May 26-29.

P. J. Higgins tried his best to catch the leaders yesterday, but couldn't make enough birdies and finished in fifth position. He blamed it on the bull meadow larks which insisted on bellowing just as he was about to uncork a shot.

The downfall of Everett Seaver in the third round of the annual spring handicap tourney at the Los Angeles Country Club yesterday was the biggest surprise of the day. It was accomplished by W. P. Reid, who defeated the former Southern California champion by a score of 6 and 5. In part the victory is explained by the fact that Seaver had to start his opponent eight holes up, but Reid shot unusually well and deserved the honor.

Other matches resulted as follows: E. P. Scherer defeated D. C. MacWaters, 1 up; E. K. Brown defeated H. B. Gifford, 1 up; George C. Palmer, Jr., R. L. Burns, 4 and 2; D. M. Boyd defeated H. T. Wayne, 4 and 3; R. H. Moulton defeated F. H. Crawford, 1 up. In the second flight Dr. C. M. Benbrook defeated R. L. Rayner, 2 up, and J. V. Baldwin defeated W. T. Marshall, 4 and 3.

City Champion Fred Barber and Runner-up George Lance played the Pasadena course yesterday and turned in some very commendable scores. Barber led with a 76 and Lance had a 79. The performances are the more meritorious when one considers that these boys play the sand greens of Griffith Park regularly, and are almost totally unacquainted with grass greens and grass tees.

The ladies will put in their last practice round at Midwick today in preparation for the Southern California golf championship for women, which starts tomorrow with the qualifying round over eighteen holes. The competition will be doubly interesting this year because it will bring together two southern girls, Miss Margaret Cameron and Miss Doreen Kavanagh, both of whom have won northern titles.

ing that she had been forced marriage with a man she did and asserting that the un- brought about through a conspiracy formed by her mother and sisters, Mrs. Virginia I. Reed yesterday brought suit against Stanley B. Reed to annul the nuptials. The suit was prepared by Attorneys Kelby and Lawson.

Mrs. Reed states that for some weeks prior to the marriage she was weak and nervous and on the verge of a mental collapse. She was not betrothed to Mr. Reed, she says, and had repeatedly refused to marry him.

She was induced to go to Santa Ana with Mr. Reed and her sisters, she says, ostensibly to visit married friends for the benefit of her health. Instead, she asserts, se was taken to the apartments of Mr. Reed, who resided in Santa Ana. Completely exhausted, she says, she went to sleep on a lounge. Other persons entered the room while she was sleeping, and when she awoke, Mr. Reed invited her and the others to dinner, which he prepared.

Mrs. Reed declares that she was served from a coffee container different from the one from which the other guests received their beverage. She believes that her coffee was drugged, because she became dazed or was in a mental stupor and did not know that a marriage ceremony took place.

She says that Mr. Reed had already secured a license, a ring and a minister to perform the ceremony. After the marriage, which was performed on February 26, she repudiated it, declared she would not be a wife to Mr. Reed, and separated from him.

Another feature of the unusual case is the declaration of Mrs. Reed that Mr. Reed, a strong man, is versed in the art of hypnotizing through suggestion and exercised his power over her in her weakened mental state.

JACK DEMPSEY IS TO STUDY FRENCH.

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) May 14. Jack Dempsey is going to study French. The heavyweight champion is going to know what Georges Carpentier says in the ring on July 2, if he has to study his odd hours away from now until that time.

Jack Kearns said today that sparring partners were en route to the shore.

The first arrivals will include Martin Bourke, Jimmy Darcy, Leo Houck, Jeff Clarke, Martin Cross, Chuck Wiggins and Eddie O'Hara.

Sunday Games Barred Where Tickets Sold.

PIERRE (S. D.) May 14.—Sunday baseball cannot be played in South Dakota if an admission fee is charged, the State Supreme Court ruled today in handing down its case testing the "blue laws" of the State brought against Allen Goethal, Huron, S. D., moving-picture theater proprietor, who was charged with violation of the blue laws by operating his show on Sunday.

In the affirming by the court of the decision of the Beadle county court at Huron, which had sustained the demurrer by Goethal, Goethal technically won his case. Under the court's ruling he may show motion pictures, which do not come within the following classes: "Tragedy, comedy, farce, negro minstrelsy, sparring contests or trials of strength."

The clause which dealt with Sunday baseball, classed the sport under "trials of strength."

RAPS WOMEN'S UNION HAT PLEA

Local Merchant Lauds Open Shop in Refusal.

Workers Are Better Paid, He States in Letter.

Asserts Label League Demand Approaches Bolshevism.

R. Magee, the hatter, 327 South Spring street, has received a communication from the Women's Union Label League, Local Union No. 36, with offices in the Union Labor Temple, asking him to replace "some of the nonunion hats you handle with union-made hats," whereupon "the members of organized labor will still purchase their hats of you." Mr. Magee yesterday wrote this reply:

"Yours of 9th, last, just received. In reply beg to say that I am not now carrying hat stock. Were I doing so I could not comply with your uncalled-for solicitation for several reasons.

"Firstly, the finest hats made in this country are made by open-shop firms which are employers of labor to a much greater number than any closed shop, and wages to each employee is greater than to those in the closed shop as an average.

"Secondly, my experience has been, in cases I know of, where the individual closed-shop agitator, after becoming an employer, forgot all about his former affiliations.

"Thirdly, such requests as from you to me savor of Bolshevism. Also I do not approve of women going out in such work; leave such as that to the male sex.

"At present I conduct an open shop and I am safe in saying that our help receive more for their labor than others receive in other shops of like kind.

"Nonunion wage-earners have the same right of existence as you have, and I believe if you and yours could better your condition outside of the union you would grasp the opportunity. It is natural to do so."

CEREMONY FORGOTTEN.

Both Drunk or Drugged, Testify Man and Woman in Bigamy Case.

Mrs. Ethel Holt, who appeared in Justice Hanby's court yesterday on a charge of bigamy, and Robert McNat Godwin, whom she is said to have married, testified that they did not recall going through the wedding ceremony. Both of them asserted they had been drinking and had either been drugged or had too many drinks. As a result, they said, they knew nothing about being married to each other. Mrs. Holt was held to answer, bail being fixed at $500.

Several months ago Godwin was convicted of a statutory offense against Thelma Steinbrenner, who claimed she was placed under a spell cast by the hypnotic influence of Godwin, who had given stage exhibitions of hypnosis with her as his subject. Judge Craig placed Godwin on probation.

The case was prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Costello and Fletcher Bowron was defense counsel.

EXPENSE DATA FILED BY NINE CANDIDATES.

Others who had filed up to noon yesterday included: Board of Education candidates: C. J. McCormick, $11.34, M. C. Bettinger, $96.96, and C. E. Seaman, $30; and Councilmanic candidates: Edward J. TRUSTS WIFE IN BLUEBEARD CASE

Navy Man Clings to Accused Slayer of Husbands.

Denies He Sought to Insure Self in Her Favor.

Woman Remains in Detention of Own Volition.

Paul Vincent Southard, chief petty officer, U.S.N., yesterday stuck to his faith in his wife, Lyda Trueblood Southard, held in Honolulu on a charge of having murdered by poison one of her five former husbands. Mr. Southard, soon after the arrest, denied his wife had urged him to take out insurance, a procedure that preceded the deaths by poison, according to the post-mortem examinations, of each of Mrs. Southard's late spouses.

But, said dispatches from Honolulu yesterday, Mr. Southard had called several times at the Navy insurance office at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Two weeks ago he told officials there he wished to take out $10,000 in insurance in favor of his wife. Mrs. Southard's first husband insured his life for $2000, her second for $5000, the third for $5000 and husband No. 4, Edward Meyers, of whose murder she is accused, for $10,000 — in not always mounting, but never-diminishing amounts.

Mrs. Southard yesterday said she would remain in detention until the arrival of an escort from the States, although, she was informed, she could not be held legally for more than forty-eight hours unless formal charge was made. She has refused to see an attorney, but asked that her husband be permitted to see her. He has visited her every day. Mr. Southard has applied for leave from the Navy so he might go ahead of his wife to prepare her defense.

Lieut.-Gov. Charles C. Moore of Idaho yesterday signed the extradition papers that Deputy Sheriff Ormaby of Twin Falls and his wife will bring to Honolulu on the next steamer from San Francisco.

WOUNDS SPOUSE, KILLS HIMSELF.

Man Shoots Wife who Refused Reconciliation Offers.

Goes to Pasadena Home; Says Their Son Had Died.

Couple Separated More Than Eighteen Months Ago.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PASADENA, May 14. — Grover Lawyer, aged 35, recently from Mineral Springs, attempted to kill his estranged wife, Mrs. Sarah Lawyer, by shooting her and then shot and killed himself here late today.

The tragedy occurred at the home of Mrs. Lawyer's father, Andrew Smith, 112 Robert street, with whom she has made her home since she and her husband separated a year and a half ago. Mrs. Lawyer came West at that time.

Although painfully wounded in the hip Mrs. Lawyer will probably recover. She is at the Pasadena Hospital. Her husband fired one shot at her from his revolver, and then turned the weapon on himself, dying instantly.

Mrs. Lawyer's aged father rushed into the room after the shooting. According to Mr. Smith, Mr. Lawyer had been threatening his wife because she refused a reconciliation.

He called at her home today and on the plea that he wanted to tell her of the death of their son, gained admittance. The child is said to be in the East.

SURE STRIKE OF PRESSMEN WILL FIZZLE.

Master Printers Think It Will Have No More Effect Than Linotype Walkout.

The promised strike of union pressmen and press-feeders, said to have been planned to take effect tomorrow, will meet with as little success as the strike of union job printers and linotype operators, according to a statement made last night by Seneca C. Beach, manager for the Master Printers' Association here. While the association has nothing official before it to confirm that the pressmen and press-feeders will not return to work tomorrow, the word has been passed in the industry that these men were ordered to begin their strike Monday, the 16th inst.

"We have received assurances that many men will not recognize any orders to quit," Mr. Beach said. "In many of our largest shops, our information says, none of the pressmen or press-feeders will leave their places. In other shops only a few men were reported planning to follow the strike orders. In all cases the vacancies will be filled with nonunion men. The industry feels that the situation is well in hand."

The full extent of the strike will be known some time tomorrow, Mr. Beach said, when questionnaires sent out by his association and the affiliated organizations, for the purpose of learning just how many men fail to rturn to work, are received from the shops addressed. Only a few men were reported to have given any indication yesterday that they did not plan to be at their places tomorrow morning.

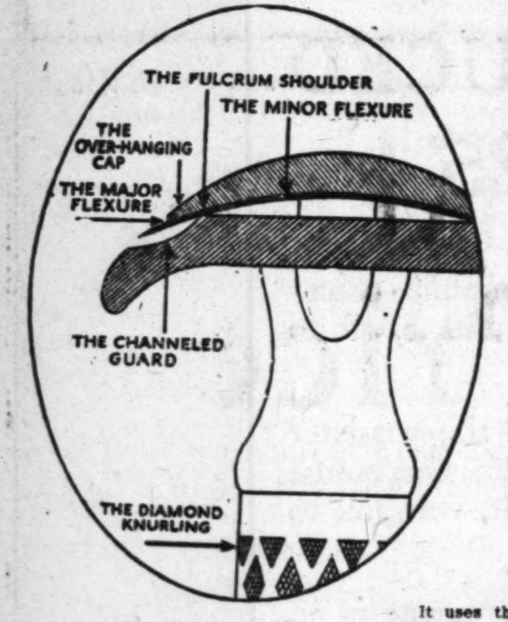
THE SUN DRUG CO. is gratified to be able to offer its customers the NEW IMPROVED GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR in many new styles.

It took some 45,000 calculations, proved up by more than 19,000 actual shaving tests, to make the new Gillette an accomplished fact!



Your wonderful Gillette Blades now can give you 100% shaving luxury. Better shave—longer service—more shaves from your blades.

Here is an invention of intense interest to every man who shaves; a unique principle in Razors—not merely a new style.

The FULCRUM SHOULDER and OVERHANGING CAP provides straight edges acting on the blade to produce an ADJUSTABLE SHORT FLEXURE, which results in a straight and extremely rigid shaving edge in all positions of adjustment.

The CHANNELED GUARD underlying the adjustable blade edge enables the adjustment to be changed without sensibly altering the angle at which the razor is held in shaving, and also leaves the entire edge free to the beard while guarded from the face.

All parts are made with MICROMETRIC PRECISION in strict conformity with measurements determined by Gillette technical experts after exhaustive research and thousands of shaving tests.

LIFT VEIL FROM LAND OF FAIRIES

Tots Enact Hans Andersen's Tales at Festival.

Elfs and Witches of Mystic Realm Depicted.

Pilgrims' Pageant Presented by School Pupils.

Had Hans Christian Andersen become a tailor as his father, the village cobbler of Odense, Denmark, so desired, Elysian Park would have been visited yesterday only by the usual number of romping children.

But since the immortal Dane disregarded his parent's wishes, the terraced hills of the big park throbbed with the exultant shouts and the dancing feet of thousands of school children at the eighth annual Hans Christian Andersen festival, memorializing the name of the man, who, though his own people had dubbed him a lunatic when he appeared as an opera singer in a Copenhagen theater, had thrilled the hearts of millions of kiddies with his famed fairy tales.

Each year the school children of the city, under the direction of the park, playground, library and school departments, participate in a merry festival in honor of their beloved author. Yesterday's festival was conducted on a larger scale than ever before, and was witnessed by many more thousand proud parents than during the previous years.

TALES PRESENTED.

Enshrined in a cool dell, shrouded with aged trees and surrounded by hill slopes carpeted with multitudes, the quaint little elfs and witches, tiny fairies and princes and princesses, horrid ogres and naughty kings and queens, stepped from the pages of the books of Hans Andersen and presented in tableau the simple tales that they contain.

Long before the processional of many hundreds of brilliantly garbed children wended its way toward the rustic amphitheater, the morning hours were consumed in story-telling and picnicking by the little actors. Following the lunch hour, enjoyed on the shaded hillsides, the Garvanza school presented the story of "The Snow Queen" and "The Little Match Girl."

The tale of "The Ugly Duckling" was enacted by the children of the Avenue 21 school; and "The Flying Trunk" was produced by the pupils of the Macy-street school. These story-tableaux were the prologue.

PILGIMS PAGEANT.

"The Pilgrims," a pageant offered by scores of children from many schools, constituted Part I of the afternoon program. Preceding the first scene of the landing of the Pilgrims, the Marengo Heights school children sang "O'er the Mountain Wave." Then, as a childish voice spoke clearly, "We feel that we are on the spot where the first scene of our history was laid," an attack by diminutive Indians descended upon the Liliputian Pilgrim Fathers. Scenes that followed portrayed the Treaty with Massasoit; the Pilgrims on their way to church; the mocking of the pious pilgrims by outlaws of Merry Mount, their capture by Miles Standish and their involuntary return to England; the Thanksgiving Feast and the gifts of the Indians; the vision of the loving tribute that Columbia's daughters have since paid to the wonderful faith and endurance of the Pilgrims.

FAIRY STORIES.

Part II was composed of a series of presentations by various groups of school children of stories from Andersen's Fairy Tales. Alta Loma school's offering was woodland dance; "The Princess and the Pea," a pantomine play, was given by the pupils of Los Feliz school, portraying the waif in tattered raiment, who, when confronted by the good king and queen proved she was a real princess, despite the taunts of fairy dancers, and was wedded to the handsome prince with the scarlet heart on his breast.

A Danish folk-dance by the Laurel school and a Rainbow dance by the children of Echo Park playground closed the festival.

EAGLES GIVE POOR "KIDS" RIOT OF FUN.

Pie-Smeared Faces, Howls of Pleasure Prove Young America Satisfied.

Did the poor "kids" have a good time at the Fraternal Order of Eagles' May festival at Lincoln Park yesterday? If pie-smeared, laughing faces and shrieks of glee were an indication, they did.

The festival, an annual occurrence, was not only a success, but from the "kids'" standpoint, was a "riot." Long before the big touring car loaded with the "eats" and other gifts arrived at the park, "kids" little and big, fat and skinny, dirty, and clean, in knickerbockers, overalls and calicoes, were lined up about the gates waiting for their big Eagle friends. And by the time the last of the 500 pies disappeared, more than 4000 kiddies had become the guests of the Eagles.

During the feasting, besides the pies, 5000 ice cream cones, 400 pounds of wienies, 10,000 sandwiches, and hundreds of gallons of lemonade went the way all things go with kids. After the "eats" thousands of squawkers and whistles were distributed and the youngsters were entertained on the merry-go-round. Then came the high jinks and the pie-eating contest for boys and girls, for which there was no lack of candidates. The contests that tickled the youngsters more than anything else were the "freaks." Prizes were given to the boy and girl with the reddest hair, with the most freckles, with the biggest feet, with the loudest voice, and with the funniest face. Then there were the racing events and the baby contest.

Before the sports parties of twenty-five youngsters were taken through the Ostrich and Alligator farms with a guide to explain the why of everything. Everything was free.

Lee Thompson, past president of the Order of Eagles, was in charge. He was assisted by Frederick Frank, Joseph Fitzpatrick, John W. Henley, Bernard Mullen, John W. Staley and F. S. Tompkins.

SHRINERS' CLUB.

Pasadena Members Submit Plan to Local Temple.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, May 14.—Proposal has been made to Al Malaikah Temple of the Mystic Shrine, Los Angeles, by the Pasadena Shriners' Club that the temple erect near Pasadena a new temple building, which will also serve as a country club and resort for the members of the order.

E. L. Pauley of the Pasadena Shriners' Club said today the proposal had been submitted to the building committee of Al Malaikah Temple and that the committee is much interested in the suggestion.

He adds that the Pasadena Shrine Club has taken an option on a tract of land in the foothills near Eaton Canyon, which, he says, would provide an admirable site for the temple building and also grounds for the golf course and other recreational features.

Shriners will be shown the site when they come here from all over Southern California for the Shriners' ceremonial, July 9.

The enamel cigarette sets, sweet meat sets, small boxes, ash trays and a few novelties just in from China now on sale at the old prices at Grace Nicholson's famous Pasadena shop, 46 North Los Robles avenue. Also plenty of new brocade silk—all colors, cords tassels and oriental ribbon—and a few fine Haori coats and Chinese suits have been added to Miss Nicholson's stock.—[Advertisement.

SORROWING GIRL TAKES OWN LIFE

Youthful Stenographer Sends Shot Through Brain.

Ill Health, Broken Betrothal Hinted as Cause.

Ending a life, said by her friends to have been full of sorrows, Miss Mary Elmhurst, 19 years of age, a stenographer, early yesterday morning killed herself by firing a bullet into her brain. The body was discovered by Mrs. A. W. Sibley, with whom the girl boarded at 1930 Norwood street. It was removed to the W. H. Sutch undertaking establishment.

Police who investigated the suicide found, on a stand in her bedroom, a letter drawn up in the form of a will and requesting that the dead girl's few belongings be given to friends. No motive for the suicide was given in the note, which was signed "Mary."

From what could be learned from Mrs. Sibley, Supt. Lon Butler of the State motor vehicle department, who employed the young woman, and other friends, Miss Elmhurst returned from a two weeks' leave of absence from her employment Friday evening. She had been in poor health and announced when she returned to the Sibley residence that she was feeling better. She went to her room, where her body was discovered yesterday morning.

A search of the dead girl's room made by the police resulted in the discovery of a bottle of ant paste and a box of cartridges. A new revolver was found by the body.

According to Mr. Butler, Miss Elmhurst first came to Los Angeles from Toronto, Can., about three years ago. Some time before Miss Elmhurst came to this city, her mother had died in Canada. Later the young woman's father came to Los Angeles and then returned some time later with his daughter. The father died after a long illness in Canada and the orphaned young woman returned to this city.

Mr. Butler and other friends stated yesterday that Miss Elmhurst was never in good health and seemed to fail after her father's death. A few months ago the young woman announced to her friends that her engagement to a missionary had been broken off and that she did not intend to marry.

About a month ago Miss Elmhurst was knocked down and seriously injured by a large dog and it is believed that despondent over her own condition and grief because of her broken engagement and the death of her father caused her to kill herself.

THOUSANDS HELP SWELL TWO FUNDS.

Assistance League, Smith College Heavy Gainers by Fete Champetre.

Thousands of people attended the fete champetre given in the Norchester gardens of the Chester W. Brown home, 919 West Adams street, yesterday afternoon and last night, with the result that about $2500 was raised for the Assistance League charity fund and for the Smith College endowment fund.

Although the entertainment was not to begin before 2 o'clock, throngs began to gather at the entrance to the gardens shortly after noon and, by the time the gates were opened, more than 2000 persons were waiting to be admitted. The crowds continued to stream through the various attractions until the entertainment came to a close shortly after 8 o'clock.

The affair was under the direction of Mrs. R. D. Shepherd, Mrs. Hansen Moore, Mrs. Lawrence Burk and Mrs. Brown. In addition to the booths and attractions which were available in the gardens, an indoor concert was presented under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Selby.

Mrs. Russell McD. Taylor, assisted by a number of prominent society girls, had charge of the tea dansant. The various forms of entertainment presented ranged from clown stunts by Monte Montague to the presentation of oriental dances by adepts trained in Burma. There was also an American bar, with a foot rail and a free lunch counter to emphasize the passing of a once respected and kickful institution.

FOR SALE—BY OWNER AND BUILDER—NINE BEAUTIFUL HOMES ON NORTH KENMORE AVENUE BETWEEN MELROSE AVENUE AND SANTA MONICA BLVD. PREWAR PRICES FROM $8250.
Prospective purchasers will do well to inspect these splendidly constructed homes. The owner and builder bought the land as raw acreage and has converted it into what is undoubtedly one of the finest residence streets in Los Angeles, reached by both red and yellow car lines, a stone's throw from new State University and immediately adjacent to and midway between Hollywood and Wilshire.
Some of the beautiful places are of brick construction, some of stucco, some hollow tile and others of frame and plaster. All were designed by skilled architects, specializing in fine residential work, and every detail of construction was executed by careful mechanics, who knew their work and are proud of a good job.
The houses are situated in the 800 and 900 blocks on North Kenmore, just west of the Branch State University, and are open for inspection every day to anyone interested in fine construction work.
The owner has deliberately reduced the prices in every case some as much as $2500, and the new prices are guaranteed against further reductions.

FOR SALE—HOME BUYERS
This will interest you.
If you are looking for a home and are tired of looking at places which do not stand up to representation, which are wrong in location, inflated in price, or have a dozen other features, which would prevent your buying; why not, without any obligation to yourself, explain your requirements to us and let us find the home or other property which you want? We are in a position to find what you are looking for if it exists and you are saved the bother and loss of time entailed in looking at a lot of properties in which you are not interested. If you know what location you prefer, about how much you wish to pay and how you wish to pay it, what kind of house you want, let us sift the chaff from the wheat before calling on you to spend your time. Others have given us this opportunity to represent them, and we have yet to have one who was not satisfied. Sounds reasonable and business-like, doesn't it? Remember there is no obligation attached, but don't call on us for this service unless you really want to buy. This service is absolutely free to real buyers, but it costs time and money and we don't want to waste either on triflers.

FOR SALE—
TWO GOOD BUYS IN
HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD FRONTAGE! WE ARE OFFERING FOR THE FIRST TIME EVER OFFERED, TWO CHOICE WELL-LOCATED PIECES OF HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD FRONTAGE AT LOW PRICES.

We positively believe Hollywood Boulevard frontage is the best investment in Los Angeles today and that at the fast rate of development and improvement both on Hollywood Boulevard and in Hollywood in general, the price of boulevard frontage will soon be out of the reach of the man of ordinary means. Both pieces are in districts where development and progress are rapid.

1.—THE FIRST PIECE, 40x150, SITUATED JUST 70 FEET EAST OF VINE STREET, ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE BOULEVARD, IS LOCATED IN A DISTRICT OF TREMENDOUS DEVELOPMENT, PRESENT AND CONTEMPLATED. With the Security Trust and Savings Bank Building, Citizen Building, Thibidou Building, W. P. Fuller Building, Dr. E. O. Palmer Building, Thomas P. Cooper Building, new Hollywood Theater, the new hotel, and numerous other improvements together with incoming large businesses, such as Sun Drug Company, Witzel Photographer, Western Union, Woolworth's, W. P. Fuller, Security Trust and Savings Bank and numerous other businesses, values positively must advance. The price is $1000 per foot. We firmly believe that this price will double within six months to one year.

2.—THE OTHER PIECE, A CORNER 150x150, SITUATED AT THE NORTHEAST CORNER OF HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD AND EL CERRITO PLACE, IS ALSO LOCATED IN A FAST DEVELOPING SECTION ON THE BOULEVARD. Thirteen stores including over 700 feet of frontage are now building within a block of this property at the S.E. corner of Hollywood Boulevard and Orange Drive. Also the new quarter-million-dollar Masonic Temple is in the same district. This property is within a block of the Garden Court Apartments. I don't know of a single piece of frontage that can be bought between Highland and La Brea on the boulevard. It is conservatively worth $500 a front foot, but for a quick deal, our sacrifice price is $400 per foot. We believe this will double in value in three years. Both are good investments.

INCOME Property For Sale.

FOR SALE—OR EXCHANGE—New and modern income property, high-class flats of 8 units, all under lease and bringing in $12,900 a year. The building was substantially constructed of the finest materials by the owner, as an investment. And it was built from cellar to roof—not just thrown together! There are tile baths, double thickness oak floors, the most expensive and durable plumbing, lighting fixtures and hardware that money could buy. And skilled workmen, under the personal supervision of the owner, were employed in putting these materials together. Consequently, the deterioration and expense of upkeep on this property will be practically nothing in the years to come. It is located in the exclusive Wilshire district, where values due to the high class of improvements that are constantly going on here must steadily increase. It is in the very heart of this favored section, close to Lafayette Park. A locality which is recognized as the "Cream of the Wilshire." The income is about one-half what it ought to be, according to the rental scale in effect in Los Angeles today. The building was erected about 3 years ago, when labor and material were both plentiful and cheap, and for this reason, I am able to offer this handsome income property for only $85,000.

WILL TAKE HIGH-CLASS RESIDENCE, WILSHIRE OR HOLLYWOOD WORTH FROM $20,000 TO $30,000 IN TRADE, BALANCE CASH AND MORTGAGE.

FOR SALE—
WESTERN AVENUE, BETWEEN
WILSHIRE BLVD. AND 6TH ST.

Two buildings, eight flats of five rooms each, finished in solid mahogany, hardwood floors, tiled baths and showers. Eight garages, eight maid's rooms with bath and showers. One building (four flats) completely and elegantly furnished, and this is included in the price. Each building is equal to any $40,000 flat in the Wilshire residential district.

HERE IS THE DIFFERENCE, GET IT!

The ground value of a $40,000 flat in the residence section will not exceed $10,000, with no hope of a large increase. The above has a 90-FOOT FRONTAGE ON WESTERN AVENUE, by 150 feet deep and is conservatively worth, at this time, $600 PER FRONT FOOT, or $54,000, and the general concensus of opinion of realtors is that the frontage in this block will go to $1000 PER FRONT FOOT by Jan 1st. Therefore:

To duplicate the present improvements would cost.	$50,000
The furniture of 1 bldg..	6,500
The ground, 90 ft. on Western at $600 per foot	54,000
Total	$110,500

THE PRESENT INCOME IS $13,000 PER YEAR and will pay you 47 per cent on the cash required. When the ground becomes too valuable for flats move them off. We guarantee the buildings can be moved to any lot within six blocks for $3000 each.

WE CAN DELIVER THIS PROPERTY TODAY FOR $80,000, with $27,500 cash, balance 5-year mortgage, 7 per cent.

QUICK ACTION REQUIRED.

WANTED—HOUSES

We haven't several hundreds of customers waiting for houses and we are not running blind advertisements claiming that we have just arrived from Iowa or Kamchatka and must have a house before sundown tomorrow night. We are real estate brokers, making a specialty of handling homes and we have a number of clients ready to buy, but whom our present listings do not satisfy. We make it a point to try to sell our customers just what they want and do not try to induce them to take something with which they will later be dissatisfied. Perhaps your house will suit one of our people. At any rate it will cost you nothing to list it with us. We believe, however, the general range of present prices to be too high and we are too busy and too conscientious to spend our time trying to sell at inflated prices. If you really want to sell and are willing to make the right price on your property, we are confident that we can get you results. At any rate we have been getting results for others—why not you?

OIL SHORTAGE IS INCREASING—

"No better investment can be made now than test holes in new territory. The country needs all the oil you can find, and you have a safe and sure market.

Don't resort to old-fashioned methods of drilling, with large and expensive machinery. Never forget the cost of a hole increases in the approximate proportion to the "square of its diameter."

GARAGE & MACHINE SHOP.

This is one of the most wonderful establishments in California. Located in exclusive district with average receipts of over $6000 monthly and with low rent on a long lease. This place can be purchased for $16,325, which can be handled $7500 cash, balance to be paid in three years. YOU CAN REALIZE FROM THE PRICE THAT THIS IS A VERY UNUSUAL BUSINESS. There are 7 repair pits, a fine stock room, a special wash-room for men, big store-room upstairs, complete equipment for battery work with a 24 battery capacity, 2 well equipped offices, 2 toilets, about 300 ft. of shelving, painted white, a live stock of accessories, storage capacity for 40 cars. Shop equipment includes everything you can possibly think of for a garage. Some of the other equipment including $970 cash register, check protector, Cincinnati time clock, typewriter, Burroughs adding machine, several desks, etc., $220 gas pump, portable gas wagon, 4 Bowser lubricating oil self-measuring tanks and other equipment too various to mention in this advertisement. We will not tell you any more about this place as you will have to see it in order to know the wonderful proposition it is. If you can swing this deal and are looking for a large garage we earnestly suggest that you allow us to take you out and show you this place. It is absolutely the best large garage buy in the city of L. A. today.

BROKERAGE INTEREST.

Located in business section downtown, and is an old established concern. Here is a chance for you to clear $200 monthly for yourself and remaining partner will teach you the business if you are inexperienced. If you are the right party and can give good references we can show you one of the best office interests that we have ever had. Price for this equal half interest is $750. See us at once if interested.

HOLLYWOOD CONFECTIONERY.

Here is a wonderful opportunity for anyone who wants to get into a strictly high-grade confectionery business located in the heart of exclusive Hollywood. There is a 3-yr. lease at $60 for the balance of 1921 and $75 for the remaining 2 years. FIXTURES ARE THE FINEST IMAGINABLE IN MAHOGANY and cost $9100 to install. This can be proven by receipted bills. Present owner has made himself independent out of this place. The price is $8000 and this is unusually low. Present owner anxious to make a quick sale and this is the only reason for the price being what it is. WE CAN'T OVERSTATE THIS BUSINESS AND YOU WILL REALIZE THIS WHEN YOU SEE THE PLACE. Terms can be arranged for if you wish. Be sure to let us show this to you if you are looking for a place of which you will be proud to be the owner.

½ INT. AUTO ACCESSORY & VULC. BUS.

This busy accessory, vulcanizing and battery service station business has been established 4 years and the average daily receipts are $75. If you can get along on from $75 to $80 a week for your share of the profits and have from $2500 to $3000 to invest we would like to give you the details on this business in which a half interest can be purchased for exactly ½ of inventory value on the day you go in. Rent $50 on a renewable lease. ½ of the inventory will run about $4600, but this can be handled on a cash payment of from $2500 to $3000, the balance being paid out of the business. This place sells auto accessories, new tires, used tires, storage batteries, and does vulcanizing. THE ONLY REASON THAT YOU CAN GET TERMS AS STATED ABOVE IS BECAUSE THE MAN IS NEEDED MORE THAN THE MONEY. Present owner is overworked and needs a partner quickly. Now employing vulcanizer and electrician and they are always busy. Shop includes complete new equipment for all sorts of auto electrical work, vulcanizing, battery work, etc. Stock very live and inventory will be taken on present market value. It is very unusual that an interest in a profit-making business like this can be purchased at inventory value. Be sure to look this up Monday.

This store handles light groceries and confectionery goods and is doing a daily cash business better than $30. Will always clear $200 monthly even through the cold weather and THE RIGHT PARTY SHOULD CLEAR AROUND $350 EACH MONTH during the summer. Price is only $2900 which is absolutely a bargain.

Unless you want to double your money and are prepared to believe absolute facts even though they sound too good to be true.

The public never gets an opportunity like this, but I am a stranger here, with best of reference.

I am going to build a large petroleum refinery and have a license to use a process which makes 20 per cent more gasoline at less cost, and it can be built for one-third less than the ordinary refinery.

Before organizing the company to sell stock to the public I am going to select a few good men as ground-floor promoters, who will invest enough to buy the ground to build a refinery on and pay expenses necessary to place the stock on the market.

The writer owns one-half of this process, and has introduced it in Texas and Louisiana, where it is getting better results than any other refinery in those States.

No chance to lose in this enterprise. Make appointment for interview. Address X, box 398, TIMES BRANCH.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

We Germans saw at once that there was rank irony in the names of President Ebert's ministers. And now some one has told our foreign friends that Wirth means "host" and Bauer "farmer," and they are passing the pun around. They point with the pride of veteran philologists to the fact that we have a Mueller, but no flour. They say we have a Bauer, but no grains or vegetables, a Wirth, but are not allowed to entertain. It is all true And we have a Koch, but nothing to cook; a Schmidt, but no iron, a Hermes, but no transportation. We have too a Blunk, at the sound of whose name we wonder whether some one has thrown a stone in the well. And then we have a David who has not yet brought down his Goliath, and a Gessler when we could make good use of a William Tell.—[Frankfurter Zeitung.

The Leather Profiteer.

At the Players' Club in Gramercy Park they were swapping profiteer stories. Butler Glaenzer, a critic and collector, said:

"I recently helped a leather profiteer—call him Peter Sweeney Johnson—to choose a library for his new Fifth-avenue house.

"Among our lucky finds was a famous old English dictionary. The book was in bad condition, so we sent it off to be rebound.

"Well, when it came back, gorgeously done in green morocco and gold, the leather profiteer flew into a rage. He pointed to the title 'Johnson's Dictionary,' on the back, and yelled;

"'Why didn't they use the full name—Peter Sweeney Johnson's Dictionary?'"—[Unidentified.

Where They Can't Lose Money.

Counting $18,000,000,000 in the government vaults at Washington, was the first job of Guy F. Allen, who has just succeeded John Burke, as Treasurer of the United States. The counting required several days and the retiring Treasurer now holds a receipt for this amount of wealth. Many persons make the mistake of considering the Secretary of the Treasury and the Treasurer of the United States as one and the same. They are two distinct officials. While Burke was Treasurer, the department handled $260,000,000,000 without the loss of a cent.—[Capper's Weekly.

Not Gallant.

Canada announces it is going to protect "fur-bearing animals during the summer season." This doesn't seem a gallant way to speak about women. We are surprised at the Canadians!—[New York Telegram.

A Puzzle.

"What makes a woman want to juggle the furniture around at least once a month?" inquires a correspondent. Sorry, my dear sir, we're not running a puzzle department—[Boston Transcript.

The Perfect Home.

WANTED—WHO ARE THE MEN?
A young, progressive, fast-growing manufacturing corporation, reaching a national business, with a noncompetitive fruit item in universal demand, selling and repeating at 10c or less, has an unusual opening in its organization for two men.

The men we want are of spotless reputation and no mediocrities. To fit into the organization well one must be capable to assist in sales promotion; the other one must be a master salesman.

The first knows advertising matter, illustration, can write human-interest letter and copy, prepare direct and indirect mail matter and execute it to bring desired results. But is by no means a routine advertising man. He is old enough to have had actual experience and young enough to be aggressive, enthusiastic and determined to succeed.

The other is a master salesman, has dignified appearance, a record of accomplishment and able to show example to others.

Both of these men probably hold on to jobs now which they would change for a real opportunity to start at a fair salary and bonus and eventually to work themselves into an interest in the concern, chiefly on their merits.

If you have real ability you will do well to communicate with F, box 52, TIMES OFFICE.

WANTED—MECHANICAL ENGINEER.
ARE YOU ONE?
CAN YOU PROVE IT?
Has your ability been such that it has enabled you to earn good money? To substantiate this can you show us that you have saved at least $5000 cash? Can you furnish A1 references? If you can check up to the above qualifications a manufacturing organization has an opening which will pay a good salary to start, with opportunity for rapid increase.

In Looking for Used and Bargain
PIANOS AND PLAYERS

price is not the only consideration. Used instruments, as they are ordinarily sold, simply mean passing a piano or player on to another owner in about the same condition in which it was traded in by the old owner. Truly some are very good—but most all with very few exceptions should be put in condition both as to action and case before being resold. By good shop work only can satisfaction be assured. Every instrument offered has been put in good playing condition—many are like new. We guarantee every one—will allow all the money you pay on any new piano or player you may wish from our stock within one year, should you decide to exchange.

1920 CHEVROLET TOURING— Has five cord tires, spotlight, side wings. Car just broken in good.

STUTZ SIX-PASSENGER, MODEL "R." One of those wonderful eight-valve Stutz cars that you hear so much about. We have spent lots of money on this car so that we could turn it over to you with a guarantee. It has been painted a beautiful Stutz Red, and all parts are renickeled—$1850.

STUTZ SPEEDSTER, MODEL "B." You will be surprised when you see this car, as it is all ready to go to the Yosemite on your summer vacation—$500.

STUDEBAKER FIVE-PASSENGER. This car is a man, and we shouldn't have to advertise it twice. It is repainted and has been thoroughly serviced. It looks good enough for anyone to drive—$800.

MERCER, MODEL 22-70. It is a shame to price a Mercer car so low. Other firms are asking....$2250. Our price is ......$1000.

ROME HOTELS ARE CROWDED.

American Tourists Rush to Italian Capital.

Must Secure Their Quarters in Advance of Visit.

Profiteers Reap Harvest of Yankee Dollars.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

ROME, April 25.—"Tenting on the old camp ground" will be the lot of the Americans rushing into Rome. Rome is full, full for months, so the hotel men say. American tourists have captured and occupy it so that others of their countrymen wishing to get in must be spoken for in advance or must pave a golden road for themselves in gratuities to hotel porters and clerks in order to get a place where to lay their heads.

"Sorry, but we are full. Did you write us? Did you telegraph?" is the constant cry of the functionaries at the hotels. If one cannot answer in the affirmative, sorry, indeed, is their lot for weary pilgrimages from one hotel to another is the only alternative.

SCALPERS REAP HARVEST.

A chance might bring a room "scalper" to one's assistance. This consists in offering a room in a private house for which the daily stipulation is enormous. There was one example where an American paid $10 a night for his room in a private family. The room was only scantily furnished and not modern in its appointments.

Aside from the scarcity of lodgings, Rome seems to have taken on its prewar tourist attitude. The same venders of cameos present themselves to the American on his appearance in Rome. The same old faces are seen in the antique shops and the art showrooms. The same beggars occupy their accustomed places, while the same old "blind band" with its full-sighted "drummer" of tourist shekels grinds out its unintelligible violin squeaks and clarionet groans. Cab drivers rule the highways, except for a new auto-bus line which has superseded the old horse-line on the Corso Umberto.

PRICES ARE HIGH.

Prices have mounted ten to twenty times what they were in the old days. All the souvenirs are a thousand per cent higher. The art works and antiques have taken a similar leap. "Itching palms" greet the American tourist at every angle. Hotel prices, even when transferred into American money, are two or three times their former level. A room and meals on the American plan costs at least $5 a person where it used to cost $2.

Woman Injured in Auto Crash; Driver Jailed.

Mrs. Frank Casey, wife of Frank Casey and daughter-in-law of Edward Casey, Harbor Commissioner and member of the firm of Cooper, Coate & Casey, was seriously injured last night at Eighth street and Western avenue, when the automobile in which she was riding, driven by A. R. Happy, of 1234 Santee street, collided with another machine, driven by Ben J. Drew, a real estate man, of 1535 Ingraham street. She was taken to the California Hospital, where the surgeons found that in addition to cuts on her head she had a badly wrenched back and possible internal injuries. She was thrown from the machine by the impact.

Mr. Drew was arrested in a friend's house at 3464 San Marino street by Detective Sergeant Hamilton. According to the detective, Mr. Drew was taken to his friend's home from the scene of the accident by Clarence S. Potter, of 820 South Manhattan Place, and upon his arrival there, he was given some black coffee and put to bed. He is being held in the City Jail on the charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Boy Found Dead, Hanging Victim of Lad's Prank.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, May 14.—Robert Davis, 12-year-old son of Izer Davis, a candy manufacturer of this city, was a victim today of a boyish attempt to imitate a hanging.

The little fellow had been left with two younger brothers on a ranch owned by their father at El Cajon, about fifteen miles from San Diego. While the hired man was at work the boys strung a rope over a beam in a tankhouse near the ranch-house. Robert was left alone in the tankhouse, and about twenty minutes later a rancher discovered him hanging, dead.

The boy had evidently put the noose of the rope around his neck and either had fallen or jumped off an oil can on which he had been standing.

TONOPAH'S SILVER MINES REOPENED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) May 14.—Forty-eight muckers and miners arrived here from San Francisco today to work in the silver mines which have been shut down since the reduction of wages a month ago. The new wage scale is $4.75 for muckers and $5.75 for miners and mechanics.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—An application for authority to sell $1,750,000 of its properties to the Fresno Irrigation District was made to the State Railroad Commission today by the Fresno Canal and Land Company, operating an irrigation system in Fresno and Kings county. Two company properties, known as the Laguna de Tache Grant system and the Lone Tree Channel system, are excluded from the application.

S.O.S. Call Followed by Report Vessel Afloat and in No Danger.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—The motor schooner W. F. Burrows, which left Seattle April 23 for Bristol Bay, Alaska, reported herself in distress in an "S.O.S." wireless message at 11 o'clock this morning and two hours later reported "Still afloat and not in danger," according to radio advices received by the Navy radio here tonight from the St. Paulist station in Alaska.

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Unalga was notified by the St. Paulist station to proceed to the Burrows' assistance, according to the message received here. The position of the Burrows was not given in the message, which said:

"At 11 a.m., San Francisco time, the steamer W. F. Burrows reported herself in distress and appealed for immediate assistance. Notified the Coast Guard cutter Unalga via Dutch Harbor radio station to proceed to her assistance. At 12:45 p.m., the Burrows reported herself afloat and not in danger."

The schooner sails between Seattle and Alaskan ports and carries a crew of fifteen men, according to the records of the marine exchange of the Chamber of Commerce here.

The Burrows is of 1560 gross tonnage and is owned by Libby, McNeil & Libby. She is 261 feet long, 44 feet wide and 21 feet deep. She was built in 1917 at Portland.

Bohemian Club, Shipping Board Tanker, Launched

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OAKLAND (Cal.) May 14.—The Bohemian Club, 10,000 ton tanker, named in honor of the San Francisco social organization in recognition of the courtesies extended by the club to naval officers during the war, was launched here this evening.

The vessel was constructed for the United States Shipping Board. She was christened by Mrs. Haig Patigian, wife of the president of the club.

The membership of the club attended in a body and was entertained at supper at the shipyard after the launching.

GOLD RUSH PIONEER CALLED OVER DIVIDE.

WILLIAM T. HEATON PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN LIFE OF WEST.

With the death a few days ago of William T. Heaton, one of the pioneers of early California days passed away.

Mr. Heaton came to California around the horn in 1851, taking part in the famous gold rush and settling in Virginia City, where he from time to time owned rich properties and did his full share in the development of the then new country. Making his stake in the mines, he purchased a freight teaming train between Virginia City and Red Bluff and many a time was known to pick up emigrants, fighting for their lives and for his own when attacked by bands of redskins. Summoned by the illness of his father in Illinois, he made a record trip over the old Santa Fe trail. Later returning to California, he settled in Shasta county and continued in the mining business until about thirty-five years ago, when he came to Los Angeles. He then pursued mining activities in the San Gabriel Canyon, where he spent the last years of his active life.

Mr. Heaton leaves three daughters—Mrs. Ralph M. Follows, Mrs. W. L. Peck and Mrs. L. L. Liversidge—and one son, Benjamin Heaton.

WOMEN HECKLERS AT NONPARTISAN DEBATE.

TOWNLEY CRIES MINNESOTA PROSECUTION WAS A FRAME-UP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HERINGTON (Kan.) May 14.—Women hecklers were numerous last night at the debate of former Atty.-Gen. Langer of North Dakota and A. C. Townley, president of the National Non-partisan League.

Townley, in presenting his version of his prosecution in Minnesota during the war, attributed in "to grain gamblers."

"The grain gamblers found a little two-by-four county attorney in Jackson county, Minn., who would work for them," said Townley. "He did not say I was disloyal. All he could charge me with was that I had conspired with a man whom I had never set eyes upon, to utter disloyal remarks and hinder enlistments.

"I did not take the stand in my own defense. I would have been a fool to face a frame-up, such as was set for me."

AUTOMOBILE DAY PLEASES POMONA

Dealers' Display Entertains Big Crowd.

Injunction Permits Theaters to Remain Open.

Edison Company Provides for Valley's Growth.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, May 14.—Pomona's observance of "Automobile Day" consisted of an outdoor automobile show put on by the local motor-car dealers. The show, the first of its kind to be held here, was opened this afternoon by Mayor Tom Ovington, who, in a brief address, paid tribute to the automobile industry and local dealers. The show was staged on Thomas street between First and Third streets. The thoroughfare was decorated for the occasion and was brightly illuminated tonight. Bands and other musical entertainers entertained the large crowds attending the exhibit.

THEATERS OPEN.

Pomona's three motion-picture theaters will continue to show tomorrow, operating under the injunction issued by Superior Court Judge Burnell on the second complaint of the attorneys for the theaters which attacks the constitutionality of the ordinance and asks for a recount of the ballots cast at the election April 4.

It is not expected that Judge Burnell will render a decision until late in June, according to City Attorney Joseph Allard.

In the meantime, the injunction will remain in force and the theaters continue to operate under it.

IMPROVED SERVICE.

That the Southern California Edison Company is providing for an increase of from 15,000 to 20,000 in the population of the Pomona Valley within the next few years and will increase the usual appropriations for this district by nearly $200,000 for the year 1921, was the statement made last night by R. H. Ballard, vice-president and general manager of the company, speaking to the clerical and field staff of the Pomona office.

With the regular appropriation, the total expenditure this year in the Pomona district will amount to $345,00.

The appropriation calls for many extensions and a general strengthening of lighting and power lines throughout this section.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS ELECT NEW OFFICERS.

DELEGATES TO CONVENTION ENJOY PICNIC SUPPER AT REDLANDS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, May 14.—This was a big day with the Epworth League delegates in their annual convention here. Tonight they were entertained with a big picnic supper at Sylvan Park, following an automobile ride over the city.

Officers elected for the coming year were: President, Joseph R. Jones, Monterey Park; first vice-president, Miss Alberta Higby, Redlands; second vice-president, Earl F. Gorton, Pasadena; third vice-president, Miss Miriam Seely, Yucaipa; fourth vice-president, Charles Newcomb, San Bernardino; secretary, J. B. Clarke, Glendale; treasurer, Henry O. Melone, Glendale; junior and intermediate superintendent, Miss Fredericka S. Southworth, Redlands.

More than eight hundred of the young people of Southern California are in attendance at sessions of the convention being held in the Methodist Church. The convention opened last night with Mayor A. E. Brock welcoming the delegates to the city, the Rev. C. F. Seitter to the church and William Holtz, the president, responding.

Last night the Rev. Merle N. Smith made a wonderful address on the subject "The Challenge of the New Day." He said that never was a challenge along clearer cut lines than that to the Christian boy and girl of today, the challenge of home and foreign service.

An interesting talk on the Latin-American missions was made by Rev. Vernon McCombs today, and this afternoon, Rev. Martindale Woods spoke on "Brickbats and Dreamers." Rev. G. I. Lawrence, Rev. Harry Shepherd, Rev. W. T. Gilliland also spoke this afternoon.

"Feeding the Hungry World" was the subject of a great mission address tonight by E. Guy Talbot.

AUTOMOBILE MEN HOLD STREET SHOW.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, May 14.—Something of an innovation in the way of an automobile display was staged here today in the automobile street show arranged under the auspices of the Riverside County Auto Trades Association.

From 3 o'clock this afternoon until 9 tonight Main street was kept clear of traffic for four blocks and the parking space on either side devoted to the display of practically every make of pleasure car, truck and tractor handled by local dealers. The decorations were confined to the pennants indicating the make of the vehicles.

The organization had the cooperation of city officials and business men. The street was swept as clean as a salesroom floor and high-powered lamps were substituted for the lamps regularly used on the ornamental electroliers.

It is believed the departure will be taken up by automobile associations in other cities.

RIVERSIDE, May 14.—The body of Sergt. Nye C. Oberg, who died in a French hospital Feb. 19, 1921, of pneumonia, resulting from a gas attack through which he passed prior to the signing of the armistice, is on its way from New York for burial here. Sergt. Oberg was a popular student of the Boys' High School and a son of Mrs. Hulda Oberg of 183 North Walnut street, who had two other sons in the service. The American Legion will have charge of the funeral services.

MISSOURIANS RALLY AT LONG BEACH PARK.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, May 14.—Former and visiting residents of Missouri to the number of nearly 10,000, gathered at Bixby Park for a picnic today under the auspices of the California-Missouri Centennial Association. The trees of Bixby Park were placarded with the names of the various counties of Missouri, and the day was devoted to an exchange of greetings and renewal of acquaintanceships. It was strictly a social gathering.

Speakers at the picnic were: Judge John W. Immell of Los Angeles; Dr. George P. Taubman of this city; Mayor W. T. Lisenby and Z. T. Davis. The new Missouri song was sung by the picnickers, who were led in the singing by Miss Ella Coffey. Readings were given by Miss Della Gibbons and violin and cornet selections were features of the program.

Mr. Stokes outlined the plans for a special train to carry all former residents of Missouri back to their home State for the centennial celebration next August. Twenty-one prizes were offered during the afternoon for persons who deserved honorable mention for their connection with Missouri.

Santa Monica Judge Assesses Heavy Fine.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, May 14.—S. L. Tipton, a Los Angeles pharmacist, wished to hurry the young women he was escorting home so he whizzed up Santa Monica Boulevard at the rate of fifty miles an hour a little before 1 o'clock this morning. He was stopped by Officers Charles Dice and William Bray, which not only delayed him, but also resulted in a fine imposed by Justice M. R. King of $500 or thirty days in the County Jail.

The limit on the boulevard for that hour of the morning is twenty miles an hour.

HEARST IS VICIOUS.

Well-Known Author Expresses Opinion of Publisher.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, May 14.—Declaring that William Randolph Hearst is "an extremely vicious person" and that in all his newspapers and magazines he is creating a taste for that which is "a little less than the best," Helen Christine Bennett, special writer for the American Magazine and a fiction contributor to the Pictorial Review, drew prolonged applause from members of Santa Monica Bay Woman's clubhouse today when she addressed the book and travel section there.

She declared that that quality of sex reading which he is at present exploiting panders to the lowest in men and women. Miss Bennett said that she believed that there is a growing tendency to treat sex questions frankly and cleanly which she favors. The tiresome, undesirable, unwholesome, triangle story is poison for the public mind, in her belief.

To Santa Monica residents: An unsigned letter addressed to H. L. Jackson, chemist, Blenheim, N. Z., has been received by the undersigned. It comes from Santa Monica and deals with the subject of ovoline egg preservative. Will the writer please communicate again with Mr. Jackson's successor—G. J. Penney, chemist, Blenheim, N. THE ROUT OF HEARSTISM IN LOS ANGELES.

mplete Story Here Told for the First Time of the Amazing Attempt by New York Publisher to Levy Blackmail on City's Business Interests in the Bullock Case and How He Was Overwhelmingly Defeated.

WHAT HEARST DEMANDED AND WHAT HE RECEIVED.

Through his local newspapers, the Examiner and the Evening Herald, Hearst demanded:

(1.) The passage by the voters at the city primaries of Proposition No. 1 to revoke the permit granted in 1919 to Bullock's to build and use at St. Vincent's Place a connecting structure between its two stores.

Result: The proposition failed to carry by nearly 2 to 1, the vote being: "No," 45,859; "Yes," 24,939.

(2.) The passage of Proposition No. 2 to revoke the permit granted in 1917 to Bullock's to build and use a connecting structure at St. Vincent's Place.

Result: The proposition failed to carry by over 20,000, the vote being: "No," 46,430; "Yes," 26,291.

These two propositions were at the beginning of the campaign heralded by Hearst's Los Angeles Examiner and Hearst's Los Angeles Evening Herald as the means whereby the city would tear down both of the Bullock's bridges unless some huge and fanciful rental were paid. Later, when the feeling of popular indignation against Hearst had risen to a point that warned him of the overwhelming defeat ahead, his papers completely reversed themselves on this and declared daily in large type that the passage of the ordinances would NOT mean tearing down the bridges.

(3.) That, if the store wished to save its buildings from being torn down, Bullock's be compelled to pay the city a rental of from $25,000 to $80,000 a year for the space over St. Vincent's Place.

Result: The City Attorney showed that the city could exact no rental, and the Los Angeles Realty Board reported that the utmost rental value of the space was $5370.. Bullock's voluntarily offered to donate $12,000 a year to the city and the offer was accepted by the voters by carrying Proposition No. 3 on the ballot by more than 5 to 1. The vote was 60,484 for the proposition and 10,758 against.

(4.) That Councilmen Criswell, Langdon and Sanborn be retired to private life because of their refusal to vote as Hearst dictated when he demanded that the Council revoke Bullock's permit granted in good faith by the City Council in 1919.

Result: All of the three Councilmen were renominated, Criswell being third among the forty-four candidates, Langdon fourth and Sanborn ninth. The re-election of these men on June 7 is assured.

(5.) That Mayor Snyder be re-elected at the primaries, partly because of the Mayor's stand with Hearst against Bullock's, although Snyder had signed the 1919 ordinance authorizing the construction of the second bridge.

Result: Mayor Snyder not only failed of election at the primaries, but despite extraordinary efforts on the part of his supporters, the Mayor led George E. Cryer by only 3054 votes, and Cryer's election as Mayor on June 7 is more than probable.

clang of hammers and the of riveting machines are heard at St. Vincent's Place, as work more progressing in that famous blind alley on the con- structure being built be- the Broadway and Hill-street of Bullock's store. The work, was halted on March 17, will, result of the action of the vot- the recent election, be rushed completion, President J. G. Bul- of Bullock's states. R. Hearst of York to use the governmental of the city of Los An- for his selfish purposes. of the immense impor- of the issues involved, affecting as they did the good name and integrity of the city in its business dealings with its great business interests, The Times presents herewith a summary of the entire Bullock episode, including various significant facts which have never hitherto been printed.

Hearst's animus against Bullock's had its origin in the fact that Bullock's refused to advertise in Hearst's local newspapers. The Examiner and the Herald reiterated daily throughout the campaign that their purpose in attacking Bullock's was to "fight the battle of the people, whose property Bullock's was grabbing." But the Examiner and Herald said not a word about the six or eight similar bridge structures in various parts of the city, all of them essentially parallel to those of Bullock's. Hearst personally directed the fight. In long statements printed over his signature in the Examiner, answering wired protests from the most substantial business interests in Los Angeles, he flouted these interests and declared he would carry on the war against Bullock's to the end.

BAD FAITH.

The first charge self-laid at Hearst's door in his campaign against Bullock's is that of bad faith. The first Bullock's bridge across St. Vincent's Place was built in 1917. Bullock's on Feb. 15, 1917, over the signature of J. G. Bullock and the Niles Pease Investment Company, owners of part of the land on which Bullock's store is built, applied to the City Council for permission to bridge the blind alley. The application was referred to then City Attorney, now Judge, Albert Lee Stephens, who prepared the necessary ordinance. The then City Engineer, the late Homer Hamlin, and Chief Inspector of Buildings Backus were called upon for statements, and neither entered objections. The City Council on March 12, 1917, by unanimous vote of those present, passed the measure, those voting being Councilman Brain, Conwell, Langdon, Roberts, Wheeler, Wright and President Betkouski.

Of these Councilmen, Dr. Langdon is a member of the present City Council, and at the recent primaries received, in the face of the Examiner's attacks on him, the fourth highest vote on the ballot, his total being 28,863. Fred Wheeler is a member of the present Council and is being warmly supported by the Examiner and Evening Herald because of his vote against the second bridge in 1919. But Wheeler saw no objection to the first one, as his vote shows. Mayor Woodman signed the ordinance March 13, 1917, and the structure was built and has been in operation ever since.

Now, Hearst made no protest of any kind against the first bridge and raised no cry about the people's rights, for he had not determined then to wage war on Bullock's, and bridges per se do not annoy Hearst. In fact, Hearst is rather partial to bridges, as is shown by the fact that he maintains his own private bridge from his Riverside Drive apartment-house in New York City to the adjoining property, and during the expose of Bolo Pasha, Hearst's friend and executed spy and traitor to the Allies, it was set forth in affidavits that the little iron bridge came in very handy during the period that Hearst was receiving the late Bolo and the former German Ambassador, Von Bernstorff, at his home when Federal secret service agents were in the neighborhood. It was known as the "Bridge of Spies."

SECOND STRUCTURE.

On Aug. 21, 1919, there was read to the City Council in open session a communication from Bullock's asking permission to build a second overhead structure and underground connection at St. Vincent's Place, facing Seventh street, and having a frontage of forty feet and a depth of sixty feet. The communication was referred to the Public Safety Committee and hearings were held.

At these hearings and to the Councilmen personally representatives of Bullock's voluntarily stated that they desired to pay the city rental for this privilege of building over St. Vincent's Place, and would prefer that a definite contract be entered into between the city and Bullock's instead of a revocable permit being issued. City Attorney, now Judge, Charles S. Burnell gave the Council the opinion that no rental could be charged or money accepted by the city as rental, because the space over St. Vincent's Place belonged to or was controlled by Bullock's, and he said that the sole concern of the city was to whether public safety or the rights of the city would in any way be jeopardized by the proposed building. Chief Inspector of Buildings Backus and Fire Chief Scott raising no objections on these grounds of public interest or safety, the safety committee recommended that the structure be permitted and the City Council on Sept. 22, 1919, enacted the necessary ordinance, Councilmen Mallard and Wheeler alone objecting. At this meeting a letter was read from the West Jefferson Improvement Association recommending that the permit be granted to Bullock's on condition "that a yearly rental be paid the city at a rate such loft space would bring as ground rent in that locality for the same ground area."

Bullock's was willing and had desired to pay a rental, but the minutes of the City Council show that the City Attorney stated the Council had not the authority to require the paying of money as suggested.

THE MAYOR'S PART.

Mayor Snyder signed the ordinance on Sept. 23, 1919. Attorney S. F. MacFarlane, representing Bullock's, has stated at meetings of the Municipal Art Commission and of the City Council that he (MacFarlane) had personally visited Mayor Snyder in his office and had told him of Bullock's application and of what the owners of the store desired and Mr. MacFarlane has stated THAT MAYOR SNYDER TOLD HIM THAT HE SAW NO OBJECTION TO THE PROPOSED PLAN. After the Los Angeles Examiner started its attacks on Bullock's, Mayor Snyder, who is being supported by the Hearst papers for re-election, said he did not know what was in the ordinance he had signed.

Bullock's at once let contracts for steel and other building materials and started to work. Up to the time Hearst began his campaign against Bullock's, the owners of the store had spent or contracted for materials amounting in all to over $200,000 under the permit granted by the City Council. Bullock's had proceeded in good faith, and although it had received only a revocable permit from the city it felt that the integrity of the city government could likewise be relied upon to continue the permit as long as conditions in the blind alley remained unchanged so far as the public safety and interest were concerned. Those conditions have not changed and will not be altered when the structure is completed and in operation.

HEARST CAMPAIGN STARTS.

The first article against Bullock's appeared in the Los Angeles Examiner of Jan. 29, 1921. In it figured as a champion of the people's rights John W. Mitchell, former paid attorney and friend of W. R. Hearst and now president of the Municipal Art Commission. In its first article the Examiner, after denouncing the Bullock's bridge against which it had not uttered a single objection during the previous sixteen months when the application was filed and granted and the structure started, set forth that Mr. Mitchell would attack the structures on the ground that the Municipal Art Commission had not been consulted about them.

"TEAR IT DOWN."

In the Evening Herald of the same day the expression was first used, "to compel Bullock's Department Store to pay the city of Los Angeles for the occupancy of municipal property, or tear down the eleven-story building, which is being erected in such a manner as to bottle up St. Vincent's Place, a piece of property owned by the people of Los Angeles."

St. Vincent's Place is not municipal property, the building over it will not bottle it up, and St. Vincent's Place, far from being owned by the people of Los Angeles, is owned by the abutting property owners and the city possesses only a right of way through there.

Further, the structure is not, never will be and never was intended to be an "eleven-story building." When present building operations are completed it will be six stories high.

THE APPRAISAL.

In the meantime, Councilman Farmer, who, from the very beginning, stood for fair play for Bullock's, suggested that a committee of appraisers of the Realty Board be asked to consider the matter and report to the Council just what the space was worth. In its issue of February 18, the Examiner said that "any appraisal of St. Vincent's Place is bound to give it an extremely high valuation" and "the Realty Board is a fine body of men." But when the Realty Board committee submitted its report showing that the actual rental value of the space was $5370 a year, the Examiner protested with great violence, and Bullock's, which had promptly offered to donate this sum yearly to the city, was roundly abused by the Hearst organs.

TO DESTROY BUILDINGS.

Hearts's agents here then organized the "Taxpayers' Protective Association of Los Angeles," and John Steele, now precinct manager for Mayor Snyder, sent out on the streets an army of youths, who secured at 3 cents each signatures to initiative ordinances revoking the permits granted in 1917 and in 1919

CROWDED JAIL FORCES PRISONERS INTO OPEN.

Sheriff's Barless Bastile Plan Proves Lifesaver as Hundreds Jam County Quarters to Suffocation.

BY JOHN N. BLACKBURN.

Los Angeles county has the Coast's first open-air jail, where there are no steel bars, no chafing handcuffs, no chains—in fact, nothing in the form of restraint to hold the prisoner save his own honor. It is a venture in altruism, prompted by overcrowded conditions in the County Jail.

Tucked away in the mouth of one of the most beautiful canyons in all California, where there is sunshine — with several dashes of rain—where clear, cold water ripples past, and one can hear the dash of the surf and the roar of the wind in the hills, is the county's detention camp — a chainless-chain gang. There, Sheriff Traeger, with the co-operation of the Board of Supervisors, is testing out the theory that in the breast of every person there is a spark of manhood and a spirit of honor, and the Sheriff is starting at the bottom, with prisoners who are building a portion of the county road through the Malibu ranch. In fact, the camp is based on the honor of the men in it, and they are now known as "honor" prisoners.

The detention camp is thirty-three miles from the County Jail in a part of the county little known to Angelenos for the reason it is in the center of the Malibu ranch, a private property, across which travel has been prohibited. Recently the county was granted permission by the courts to build a public road across the property as an important link in the coast highway, and the "honor" prisoners, now numbering twenty-eight, with two guards, make up one of several crews working on the road stretch of twenty-six miles.

Sheriff Traeger is a double-breasted chap, with lots of pep, and a few ideas of his own regarding prisoners, and he got some of them since he became Sheriff. The day he took office he was confronted with a problem—a riot and strike of prisoners, who kept up a continual din, pounded doors, smashed cots and were generally unruly. He went into the prisoners' tanks and talked to the men, and got a ducking by mistake.

Things went along smoothly thereafter, for a few days, and then the prisoners started trouble again. This set the Sheriff to thinking, for the prisoners had given their word of honor to be good.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

In olden days when prisoners were refractory, there was the whipping post and the rack, but not so now. So the Sheriff took a puff at his cigar and cut off the tobacco supply of all male prisoners—just to show the inmates that he still held the trump hand. As four out of every five male prisoners smoke, they soon came to time. But that did not solve the question. The County Jail was still crowded, and is yet, with an average of 415 behind its bars in a jail built to accommodate 200.

So he hit upon the honor system, which, of course, is not new, but it is to this county and the particular plan carried out proved to be so. Immediately a "skeptics' club" began to point out reasons why the plan would fail. Couldn't be done. Daily, in former days, when there was such a thing here, prisoners escaped from the chain gang! The Sheriff started with six prisoners and one guard, J. D. Wilmot, now chief guard at the camp. Two days went by, and then the "skeptics' club" came forward, for two "honor" prisoners had escaped. But the Sheriff's faith was not shaken and he took out twenty-six more "honor" men. A week went by, then another and now a month has passed and three more

DramaticDance Courses to End With Pantomime

Dramatic dancing courses, terminating in a festival of dance pantomimes will be offered at the University of California summer session here, June 20 to July 30. Miss Mary S. Shafter, former student at Columbia University, and instructor and pageant director at the university at Berkeley for the past four summers, will be the instructor.

Instruction in dramatic games and dances suitable for children of the kindergarten and elementary grades will be given in the course on dramatic games and folk dancing for playgrounds and elementary schools. Dramatic expression for grammar grades and high schools is a course arranged to aid elementary and high school teachers in planning school festivals and dance pantomimes.

Miss Shafter will also offer instruction in elementary and advanced dancing, demonstrating in the latter course the technique of dancing as taught in the Russian, French, and Italian opera schools. The work will include instruction in classic, interpretative, pantomimic and Russian ballet dancing.

Further information about the courses may be obtained at the summer session office, 831 Pacific Finance Building.

Ninety-first to Hold Reunion in September Here.

The Ninety-first Division, the "West's Own," which covered itself with glory in the fierce fighting in France and Belgium, is to hold its reunion convention in Los Angeles in September. The boys from Southern California have been fighting for their home city as the place of assembly and it is now officially announced that Los Angeles will be the place of the gathering.

The wild yells of the Wild West division of "Hook 'em, cow," and "Let 'er buck," which struck terror to the heart of the Hun, will again resound in the streets of Los Angeles. The emblem of the green pine tree will be everywhere displayed. Plans are being made for a parade of the men in uniform and marching with them will be members of the Legion posts as an escort of honor, with detachments of the National Guard and Army and Navy as well.

The general committee in charge of the convention is as follows: Roy Naftzger, chairman; Silsby Spalding, J. W. Sutphen, E. Gilliland, Col. E. W. Clark, Col. J. J. Mudgett, Walter Brinkop, G. F. Peterson, Nelson Douglas and Morris Cadwalader. This committee will have charge of the arrangements for the parade, for the billeting of the members, for general amusements and entertainment.

FATHER RICARD TO BE HONORED.

Golden Jubilee for "Padre of the Rains" Soon.

University of Santa Clara Puts Aside Whole Day.

Men in All Walks of Life to Share in Tributes.

Not only the Alumni Association of the University of Santa Clara, which is standing sponsor for the affair, but hundreds of citizens of California, representing all walks of life and all professions of faith, will join with the students of the university in celebrating the golden jubilee of Father Jerome S. Ricard on the 30th inst.

The "Padre of the Rains," as he is affectionately called, will on this date have completed fifty years of service as a priest of the Catholic church and forty-eight years as a teacher at Santa Clara. During all these years he has devoted himself to the task of attempting to devise and put into actual operation a scientific method of forecasting weather conditions and of supplying to the rancher and the orchardist information more valuable than any other gift which could come to them.

GENERALLY RIGHT.

For the last twenty years, by the use of great masses of accumulated data, the priest-professor has been able to accurately forecast rainfall thirty days in advance and records prove that he has been correct approximately 80 per cent of the time.

The University of Santa Clara occupies the site upon which stood the historic mission of the same name a century and a half ago. The old mission buildings have long since gone, but there still remain traces of garden paths and olive orchards. Out beyond the orchards in a great broad meadow, toward the town of San Jose, Father Ricard has established two telescopes under separate domes, and from these every day in the year he makes a reading of the spots on the sun, and carefully charts them for reference and comparison.

A SIDE LINE.

This task is an incident to his day's work as professor of mathematics and astronomy in the university, but the results here obtained have made him known up and down the Pacific Coast. Study of these charts has convinced him that the sun spots have much to do, or at least are a sure indication of weather conditions upon the earth. From this data all of his forecasts have been made.

NOT ACCEPTED.

These predictions have formed the basis of learned discussions in all parts of the world. The theory he advances is by no means universally accepted, and almost daily an argument against his theory from men high in scientific circles is received. Notwithstanding this, most of the people of California have learned to have faith in his forecasts, and watch with eagerness the publication of the articles.

BORN IN FRANCE.

Father Ricard came to Santa Clara a very young man. He was born near Plaisons, in the south of France, June 1, 1850. He attended school in his native village and mastered Latin and Greek under the venerable Abbe Espouiller. At the age of 21 he entered the Jesuit Order at Turin, Italy, whence came most of the early Jesuits who arrived in California after the Civil War. He has never engaged in active parish work, but has devoted all his time to teaching and the making of astronomical observations.

WIFE PREFERS TO WORK.

According to Harold Edward Ker, who was granted a divorce by Judge Walton J. Wood yesterday, his wife, Olive Ker, did not care to cook or keep house or perform the duties of a wife. She said she was going away. He asked her to stay, but she told him she would rather work and earn her own living.

CO-OPERATE FOR FIESTA.

All San Gabriel Valley cities are co-operating in preparations for the annual Foothill Fiesta to be staged at Monrovia next Saturday. The Fiesta will be an all-day affair, starting with a floral pageant at 10:30 a.m. and ending with a street dance in the evening. A city block is to be roped off for this and a twelve-piece orchestra will furnish music.

Afternoon attractions will include a Wild West rodeo, roping contests, a baseball game between the Arcadia Balloon School team and a nine representing the Monrovia Post of the American Legion, and a relay carnival in which squads from eight of the valley high schools will participate.

The floral parade in the morning will be attractive. The civic division will include entries from eighteen or twenty cities. Pasadena alone will have three flower-bedecked floats. The Rose Tournament Association, the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce and the Pasadena Elks will be represented. There will be eight divisions in the pageant. Prizes to the aggregate value of more than $1000 are being offered for the best floats. First in consideration with the judges will be the number of flowers used and their artistic arrangement.

A feature of both the parade and dance will be the queen of the fiesta, Mrs. Billie Crandall, and her eight maids of honor, all pretty girls from the foothill cities. They will reign in royal state over the open-air ball and will have a gorgeous float in the pageant.

NOT A BENEFICIARY.

John W. Weightman Received No Money from Mrs. Edna Murphy.

John W. Weightman, who was granted a divorce from Harriet Weightman by Judge Walton J. Wood on the 4th inst., was not a beneficiary under the will of the late Mrs. Edna Murphy, as stated. Mr. Weightman was named executor under the will because of Mrs. Murphy's trust in him, and received no funds whatever from the estate.

Mrs. Weightman contested the suit, charging desertion. Mr. Weightman was represented by Attorney George M. Harker.

MANY OBSTACLES BLOCK BRITISH-RUSS TRADING.

Americans Most Popular Nationality, Says Former Red Cross Head; Britons, French Disliked.

difficulties in the way of im- trade with Russia, as far as Britain goes, were made clear last week by Capt. L. M. Foster of the American Red Cross, passed through Los Angeles on way to his home in Chicago. Foster spent a year in Russia and was in charge of the Red in Odessa at the time of the Since the American Cross left Russia in November he has been in Europe and the and returns with a peculiarly intimate review of the situation.

Although the British have made a trade agreement they continue to be the most unpopular of any nationality in Russia, he declares. This is due to their policy of employing Britishers, instead of Russians, wherever possible in British-owned industries. Next in unpopularity are the French, because of their militant, anti-Russian policy. The most popular of all, he thinks, is the American, and next in favor the German. The American is popular because of the Red Cross and other relief work and because fortunately Americans of a good type were sent abroad. The German is popular because of the propaganda he conducted during the war.

LITTLE TO TRADE.

"It is true that while Russia has remarkable resources, there is little to trade as far as the British go," Capt. Foster explained. "To get it out the British must build railroads, and they cannot do this because of their unpopularity. British goods must be sold, not bartered, and here comes the difficulty.

"Russia is flooded with counterfeit British pound notes, made by the Germans. At Odessa I had fifty one-pound notes and only one of them was good. They are very clever counterfeits. You can only tell them by the Parliament Building. There is one window short in the second-story row on the right corner of the building. In addition the Armenians, Greeks and Turks have flooded Russia with American Confederate bills, which are accepted as United States currency.

"Now England will be forced to receive these bogus notes in exchange for goods. To refuse them would ruin British credit. You cannot convince the Russian that they are not good. A good many of these counterfeit notes are circulated in Egypt, but many more in Russia.

PROPAGANDA BAR.

"The trade agreement, according to the concensus, was nothing more nor less than a means of getting the soviet officials to stop their propaganda in India and Egypt, where conditions are very unsettled. The European population fears risings at any time. On Ceylon and other tea-growing islands millions have been thrown out of work because Russia, normally the greatest tea-consuming nation, is in chaos. It is a seething mass of penniless natives ready for anything. The nonco-operative movement in India is proving very effective.

"There is a strong feeling against the Jews in many countries, and I predict the biggest pogrom in the history of the world. It will be from Constantinople north.

"Europe is in little danger from a Russian invasion unless the Russians combine with the Garmans and pool Russia's resources with German industrial facilities and executive brains. The Russians already are officered by Germans but they need a direct junction with industrial Germany. Many know this in Europe, but the French seem to be the only ones acting to prevent it. I refer to the aid the French are giving Poland, which as a buffer state is all important to keep Germany and Russia separate."

MILLIONS STARVING.

Regarding the necessity of relief in Russia, Capt. Foster has this to say:

"In Russia, there are millions of all classes, creeds and nationalities that are starving. There is no relief from the outside, and there is little chance of any at present. Outside agencies think it unwise to go in because conditions are unsettled, unsettled chiefly because of the lack of intelligent Russians, who have been driven out and are refugees in other countries, have been killed or died of starvation or the typhus. Five per cent of the 180,000,000 inhabitants of Russia can read and write and I should say that only two per cent of the five are capable to direct public affairs. Hence, there is a little to work on toward a reorganization that would be acceptable to nations which might desire to send relief agencies.

"The principal thing needed in Russia is very simple education, not only of children, but of their parents.

FEAR CONSERVATIVES.

"The Allies might council their way into Russia, getting assurance of protection of the Russian refugees of the intelligent classes. But the Bolsheviki would not want the return of the refugees, although they need an intelligent class for direction of public affairs. The refugees now would be willing to go back if there was a modification of the political system; would be willing for some more equitable distribution of land and for political division of the various districts into a Federal republic something like ours. That is the one idea at present. But the Bolsheviki fear the return of the conservative class because it might interfere with their political plans.

"Unless the Allied governments take steps for the education, nourishment and particularly the medical care of the Russian people, it will take 200 years to bring Russia back where she was under the Czarist government.

"The Junior Red Cross, now particularly active in Europe, would be the best medium for aid in Russia. Now, the last thing thought of is the children. But aid to children alone, except orphans, would be worthless because the welfare of the child and the parents is one and the same thing. The relief must be the same for everybody, regardless of class. Now the Russian is thankful for anything, an old pair of shoes, a rag, and he forgets all about politics.

RED CROSS SUCCESSFUL.

"The American Red Cross was very successful in Russia. It had only a small territory, the Caucasus, Kuban and Crimea, but in those districts there were all classes and nationalities and all got equal treatment. Such work could be done now if the soviet government would permit it. It is my belief that they would not permit it. They would want recognition first."

Capt. Foster is the son of Jacob Foster of Chicago. He joined the Red Cross after serving as a first lieutenant with the United States Expeditionary Force. Capt. Foster is accompanied by his wife, a Russian of good family, whom he married in Russia. She had been serving as a nurse with the American Red Cross. Here, Capt. and Mrs. Foster were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Horton of Santa Monica.

HEARST BADLY ROUTED HERE.

the revoking ordinances were openly declared by the Herald on February 17, in an article stating that payment would be made for the space used by the buildings or the voters "will force the tearing down the illegal building, which they are erecting outside the law." The Examiner also said on February 15: "The voter can tell you what he thinks of this when he gets the initiative petition." The Evening Herald said on March 18: "The people of Los Angeles will determine May 3 whether Letts and Bullock shall tear down the illegal store building, which they have partially erected at St. Vincent's Place, where they have seized property belonging to the taxpayers of the city."

This last quotation is one of scores of knowingly-made misstatements, which featured the Hearst campaign, for Hearst's agents were thoroughly informed that the property at St. Vincent's Place did not belong to the taxpayers of the city and that on March 5 City Attorney Stephens had officially exposed the fallacy of the contention that the city could legally charge rental to Bullock's.

In the meantime the Municipal Art Commission had refused to join in President Mitchell's campaign against Bullock's. He took his case to the courts on injunction proceedings, where it fell by the wayside and was no more heard of.

Its repeated nad voluntary offers to pay rent being refused as legally impossible, Bullock's now availed itself of a section of the city charter, pointed out by City Attorney Stephens, which would permit the city to accept a donation. Bullock's, therefore, offered to donate $12,000 a year, an amount suggested by a committee of citizens, to the city as long as a connecting structure was maintained at St. Vincent's Place, and this offer was placed on the ballot, with the Hearst initiatives, as an alternative to them. Thus the issue was squarely up to the people.

HEARST QUITS.

The last ten days of the campaign before the primaries was featured by the attempted desertion of the initiative ordinances, and in fact the whole Bullock matter, by the Examiner and the Evening Herald. These papers, which had urged that Bullock's permits be revoked and its buildings torn down, now printed daily on the first pages of these newspapers statements that to vote "Yes" on Propositions Nos. 1 and 2, the Hearst initiatives, would not mean tearing down the two structures. In the editorials during the last week of the campaign both papers carefully refrained from advising the voters how to vote on any of the three Bullock's propositions.

The Hearst forces saw the storm was about to break, and were trying to run to cover. Hearst had demanded Bullock's pay from $60,000 to $80,000 a year rent when the fact was that the city could accept no rent at all. Hearst had called the use of St. Vincent's Place a "grab" and it was shown that the ownership of the space over the alley belonged to or was controlled by Bullock's. Hearst put fantastic valuations of the rental worth of the space at St. Vincent's Place, only to have his figures shown up by experts as grossly exaggerated. Hearst had put initiative petitions through, believing that a fear-stricken Council would revoke the ordinances in the face of the petitions, and the Councilmen showed their courage and put the two measures on the ballot. Hearst knew what that meant. The move now was to assume a very uninterested, neutral attitude. The Examiner, therefore, said, on May 5—this is the crowning piece of humor of its entire campaign—"the Examiner made no effort to influence the voters"—despite the printed argument sent to all voters by the Examiner's "Taxpayers' Protective Association of Los Angeles," with the sample ballots favoring the Hearst ordinances.

THUNDER OF PROTEST.

When these arguments began to reach the voters, the citizens did become really aroused to the necessity of giving Hearstism its death blow in Los Angeles. "Fair play for Bullock's" became the cry throughout the city. The Chamber of Commerce, the Municipal League, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the Retail Dry Goods Association, Wholesale Dry Goods Association, the One Hundred Per Cent Club and a score of other organizations, all of the leading civic and commercial bodies of the city, passed resolutions urging the voters to vote "No" on the two Hearst propositions, which Hearst was now trying to forget, and to vote "Yes" on Proposition No. 3. Hearst knew he was overwhelmed before the first vote was counted. When the returns came in showing the staggering defeat of their initiative ordinances, did the Examiner and Herald admit defeat? They did not. The Los Angeles Examiner said editorially on May 5: "The Examiner is proud of its share in the struggle for the people's rights." The Evening Herald in an editorial said: "The Evening Herald is VERY PROUD of the leading part taken by this newspaper," in the Bullock's episode.

While the Examiner and the Herald had tried to extinguish their ill-advised compaign against Bullock's when they saw the entire city was against Hearst's efforts to blackmail business men by using the city governmental machinery to harass them, the two papers never forgave Councilmen Ralph L. Criswell, W. J. Sanborn and F. C. Langdon for their refusal to accept dictation from the Hearst papers and to vote to revoke the Bullock's ordinance. Daily editorials in both Hearst organs urged the defeat of the three, as for example the editorial in the Examiner of April 11, which said: "The three who ought to be beaten and are going to be beaten if we care anything for the people's rights and honest government—are Ralph L. ('Cusser') Criswell, W. J. Sanborn and F. C. Langdon. "The people apparently did not care much for the Examiner's advice, for at the primaries Criswell was third highest man among the forty-odd Councilmanic candidates with 29,175 votes; Langdon was fourth with 28,863 votes, and Sanborn was ninth with 22,605 votes. The Examiner likewise denounced Boyle Workman, president of the City Council, for his stand for fair play for Bullock's, and yet in a three-cornered contest for Mayor with no campaign machinery or organized backing, running single-handed, Workman received 12,681 votes, which is just 12,681 more votes than Hearst hoped or anticipated Workman would receive.

The Councilman who was made the object of the Examiner's bitterest attacks was Criswell. Mr. Criswell was for years employed in a responsible position by the Examiner and his attitude in stoutly opposing the Examiner's scheme constituted a significant appraisal by a former "inside man" of the sincerity of a Hearst campaign. Mr. Criswell was dubbed "Cusser" Criswell by the Examiner. He showed his contempt for this by using it, with telling effect, on his campaign cards.

TYPICAL HEARSTISM.

The whole essence of the Hearst conspiracy against Bullock's and, by inference, against the entire business fabric of the city is summarized in the following editorial from the American Legion Weekly Bulletin, published by Los Angeles Post No. 8, and headed "Hearst, the Bruiser," as was a similar editorial in the Arrowhead, a disabled veterans' paper, published by Earl Harkens at Arrowhead Springs:

"The Hearst papers have an object in trying to disparage Mr. Letts of the Broadway Department Store and Bullock's. Their object is to try and force these people to do business with Hearst publications, not because they love the people more, but because they love Bullock's and Mr. Letts less. The tearing down of a bridgeway across a blind alley would not help Hearst in the least. No one in the city is at all injured, as the alley is just as wide, just as long and for all commercial purposes, is just as high, as it ever was. We do not believe that the City Council, or if it comes to a referendum, the people will annul an agreement legally entered into."

BACK IN FORM.

Caruso's voice has recovered sufficiently to permit him to sign a contract for next season at an advanced figure.

NO ROOM FOR CRABS.

Congress has been extensively petitioned to furnish protection for crabs. Most of the crabs we know have too much protection as it is. An open season and musketry at sunrise should be their portion. If Congress purposes to coddle and pet the crabs of America we want to know it. We want no crab government if we can help it.

EASY PHILOSOPHY.

While Dr. Einstein is here with his cosmogony of relativity it would be a good time for Prof. Wattles to elaborate his theory of ineffable relaxation as practiced by the scelidotherians. In that the elasticity of the ego is repressed to the point of obfuscation and the mind remains in a sublime and serene contemplation of infinite space. From that ecstatic solitude it cannot even be jarred by jazz. It might do the world a lot of good.

ITCH FOR QUARREL.

The Irish say that with Ireland a free republic they will have no need for an army or navy. At the same time, when England suggests that Ireland abandon the idea of having war vessels the Irish are all lined up to fight for the right to have a navy and army of her own. There are a lot of Sinn Feiners who want to quarrel more than anything else and they are not overly particular what the quarrel is about. Were Ireland peaceful and prosperous they would still be unhappy and unsatisfied.

RAINBOW OF PROMISE.

In maritime circles this port will be henceforth and forever known as Los Angeles Harbor. Some may make reference to San Pedro or Wilmington as ports, but it is all officially comprised in Los Angeles Harbor. It is also safe to say that Los Angeles Harbor will soon be recognized as one of the great shipping ports of the world and it will be surpassed in importance by but three or four in America. It may yet dominate the Pacific. The possibilities are almost beyond human imagination.

ENGLISH WOMEN JURORS.

It appears that the English women don't like jury service. The ladies of Ilford, a large town near London, have petitioned to have their names taken off the voting register rather than undertake the irksome job. However, Mr. Justice Darling declared that he was sorry, but it couldn't be done. He had found that women made excellent jurors and that, as they generally had more time than men, he declined to excuse them.

California is more fortunate in her feminine citizens. The ladies not only worked hard for the privilege of jury duty, but accept and perform it with gallantry. The English women did not demand jury duty, they only demanded the vote—and now they are considerably embarrassed to discover that the greater boon included the lesser and that privileges entail responsibilities. However, it is a sign of grace to learn that their suffrage sisters have condemned the ladies of Ilford for their shirkfulness.

WILD WOMEN.

It has been officially demanded in some county seats that in the impanelment of juries the names of just as many women as men be placed in the box and that the panels as drawn should be equally balanced as to sex. This, however, is not called for. With an equality of citizenship the sex disappears. A judge or prosecutor should have no more right to call for a jury of six men and six women than he would for six Germans and six prohibitionists. Of course, almost anything may be done by stipulation, but such is not the purpose and intent of the suffrage amendment. The names of men and women are drawn indiscriminately, and if the men and women can behave with discrimination, so much the better. The women, however, who are demanding further opportunities for jury service ought to be made to take them. Now that they have the vote they are not wild about using it. If women were forbidden to shave they would all carry razors.

"KEEPING POLAND GOING."

Raymond Radcliffe declares that "Polish women have been famous for centuries, it takes all their beauty to keep Poland going, for her men are somewhat unstable."

Well, something is certainly keeping Poland going, and it would be better of these beautiful Polish women had a more soporific influence. Poland has been going so long that it is high time she was gone—gone home to set her house in order and become rather better providers for those beautiful women. We have a few beautiful women ourselves, but usually find it necessary to keep down to work and be good providers or they'll know the reason why. Our beautiful women show a marked disposition to prefer things prosperous and comfortable and have us around for dance and dinner partners when wanted.

Our beautiful women have a "come-hither" look in their eye, but evidently the Polish ladies specialize in a "go-hence" optic. "It takes all their beauty to keep Poland going"—what an ironical use for beauty.

FOR A WORLD PACT.

REPRESENTATIVES of the United States are again sitting with the Supreme Council of the Allies. America was forced four years ago against her will, by a condition which diplomacy could not evade, to take part in the military conflict in Europe. A condition equally inescapable has obliged us to participate in the struggle to win an economic peace. America can no more separate herself from the nations of the world than the earth can withdraw from the solar system.

Interdependence has triumphed over isolation. The peoples of the world are being drawn by economic forces as powerful as the laws of gravitation into an association for mutual protection. The experience of the last seven years has proved that no people can enjoy the blessings of peace while the rest of the world is at war, that Europe cannot burn without us of this country being scorched by the flames and stifled by the smoke. It is an economic truth, now fully demonstrated, that when Europe starves there will be millions of empty stomachs in the United States, that when a government of Europe is overthrown by anarchy our own is rendered less secure.

Economic security cannot be assured in the United States until it is reconstituted overseas. So it is necessity rather than choice that has impelled the President and the Secretary of State to again make common cause with our late allies. The will to peace, both military and economic, is as strong in the United States as elsewhere in the world; and the progress of events has proved that it is to be found in association, not in isolation.

There are groups in every civilized society that live in the past, that read the lessons of history backwards—groups with limited vision, who condemn all that they cannot understand. Those groups will still be found crying that we must keep out of Europe. They would codify our traditions into a decalogue. They would apply the admonitions given to us in our childhood among the nations to our virile manhood. They forget that, while the infant must cling for refuge to his nurse, the fully developed man must boldly face the world and wrest from it his living.

II.

THE world cannot be made safe for the free peoples until the rights of industry are assured. Hunger and disease have claimed a vastly greater number of victims since 1914 than steel and powder. The war of natural forces upon the human race did not end with the signing of the armistice. Two years of the greatest misery the world has experienced since our present civilization began have furnished convincing proof that an association of nations is absolutely necessary to preserve the economic balance of the world.

The Times repeats that the League of Nations idea is imperishable. Such an association did not exist in 1914; but three years of frightful slaughter of human beings and colossal destruction of the agencies by which people exist forced the free nations of the world into a common union for mutual preservation.

All who are mentally honest with themselves must perceive that we can no more honorably escape membership in an association of nations to preserve the military peace and the economic stability of the world than we could avoid entrance into the World War. The logic of events is unanswerable. The spirit of the world is turning from war to industry and economic lines now draw the peoples into so close an association that industrial isolation is unthinkable.

Many have failed to understand that the Treaty of Versailles is an economic as well as military document. More than half its provisions deal with economic settlements. Upon the enforcement of those decrees depends the industrial stability of our own country, as well as of the European states. Yet the signature of our government is still withheld; and our government is now placed in the indefensible position of helping to enforce the terms of a treaty that it refuses to sign. There is no honor, no credit, no safety in such an attitude. Our friends in Europe can but marvel at our inconsistency. Persisted in, it will bring us no benefit in the present and will make us the laughing stock of future historians. Our lack of coherence will be cited as an example of the instability of representative government.

III.

THE very voices of those who died that free government might live unmenaced by military despotism are crying to us from eternal silences to finish the work for which they made the supreme sacrifice. They died the death of supermen that those who lived after might impel the nations in an era of universal peace to higher and nobler things. They wore the cross to secure to us the crown that some would have us now spurn as not worth the winning. For us to hold back longer is to betray those who died.

Gen. Otis, the great builder of The Times, served in two of his country's wars and saw his grandsons enlisted in the last great struggle. He knew the horrors as well as the glories of military conflict and, with the wisdom that experience and reflection bring, he devoted a part of the last years of his life to drafting a plan for an association of nations to remove the causes of war by guaranteeing justice to all peoples, irrespective of their military and economic strength.

Gen. Otis believed in a world government, whose decrees would be formulated by an international council, judged by an international court and supported by the combined force of all the associated nations. In epitomizing his plan he wrote:

> It provides for a Universal Peace Pact—"a government of governments," which shall be in name and in fact a world government.
> It preserves, and does not destroy, the national existence, the territorial integrity or the independent autonomy of any of the individual nations.
> The World Government is intended to be protective and benevolent, not oppressive, destructive, or a menace to the nations.
> Relief, succor and aid for the unfortunate, suffering or threatened nations or peoples are plainly provided for, thus making the World Government a great refuge in emergencies.

This epitome refers to the draft of a pact containing twenty-two articles. It is one of the earliest as well as the clearest of expressions of the aspiration of the free and peace-loving peoples of the world for an association which would make a war of aggression so plainly suicidal to any nation that wars would no longer be fought. It first established the general lines indorsed by President Harding for a new association of nations. It is easily understood by all Americans, for it is an internationalization of the Monroe Doctrine. No wars of note among nations have been fought on the Western Hemisphere since that notable policy was promulgated. It led to a peace that has endured for a hundred years. Why not give a trial to an internationalization of such a plan to embrace all the nations.

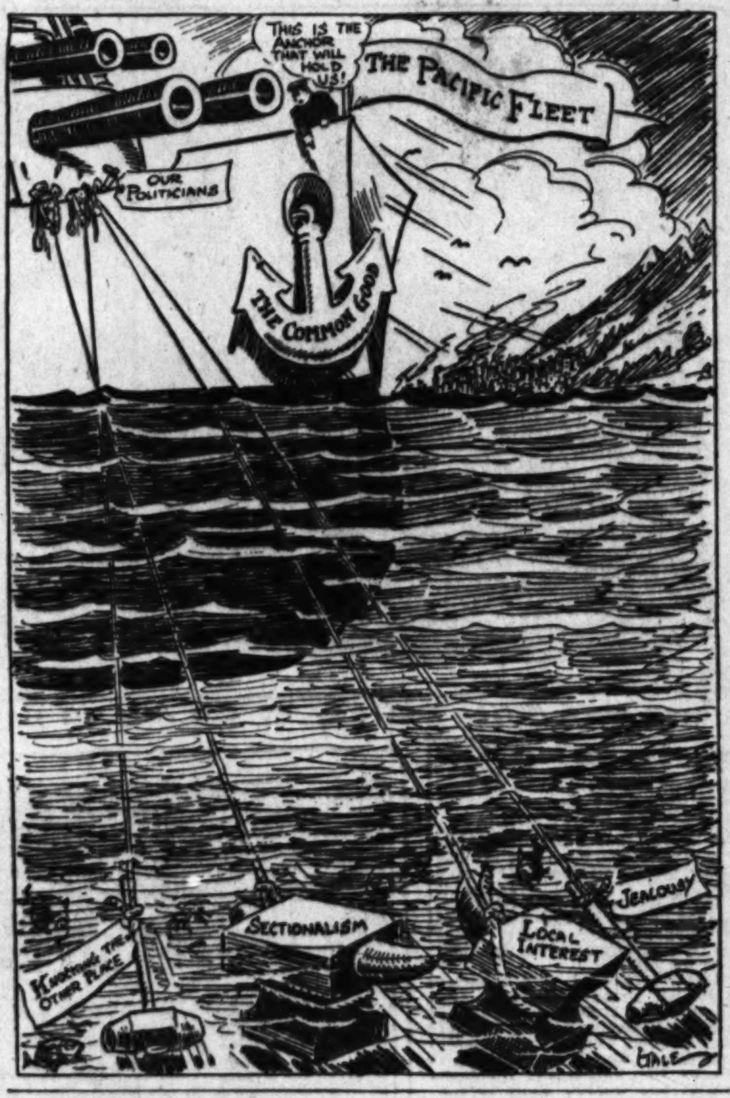
IV.

SUCH a conclusion is logical, it is humane, it is following a clearly defined line of world progress. The President and the Secretary of State are proceeding in the right direction. But the friends of universal peace must not leave them to march alone. The weight of public opinion must be again thrown in the balance. It is no longer a question of Article X, for it is generally conceded that no military pledge shall be given or exacted. No American boy will be sent to fight on the battlefields of Europe or Asia, unless the President and Congress shall have formally declared war. Each generation will be the sole judge of whether it wishes to send an expeditionary force outside its boundaries.

And The Times feels sanguine that we can safely trust to the manhood and the womanhood of the future to decide when an appeal to arms shall be desirable; fully convinced that when the international court shall decide against any nation or combination of nations on principles of justice and equity, the free people of the world will no more flinch from applying force to the support of justice than they did when Germany made its historic invasion of the soil of Belgium. Never have the American people held back when their President and Congress summoned them to war; and The Times believes that the generations of the future will be as patriotic and valorous as the present one and the generations that have passed.

It is the moral force, the will to peace, that counts. Once the peoples of the world are joined in an association to promote peace, centuries will pass in the same international security that has existed in the Western Hemisphere since the promulgation of the Monroe Doctrine.

Anvils Make Poor Anchors!



A FAMOUS WELCHER.

When it comes to welching on a contract by claiming that he was betrayed by his agents, W. R. Hearst is getting into a class all by himself. Hearst delegates his authority to his subordinates; if a trade proves advantageous he pockets the profits; but if it turns out badly he squeals, claiming his employees were in a league against him. Those who were interested in the opening of Broadway south of Tenth street have not forgotten how he pledged a payment of $60,000; but when the work was completed and the bills came in he declared that his local representative exceeded his instructions in making such a promise.

He is now attempting a similar coup on a larger scale in New York. A year ago he instructed C. F. Zittel, one of his business representatives, to secure for him a paper mill. Zittel recommended the purchase of the plant of the Dexter Sulphite and Paper Company at Watertown, N. Y. The stipulated price was $3,500,000. A first payment of $100,000 was made by Hearst, who secured possession of the property and has been operating it for a year. Business hasn't been good for Hearst during the last twelve months, however. He sought to capitalize radicalism in the United States at the close of the war; but the country remained conservative. A whole flock of pro-German vultures have been coming home to roost on the doorsill of his publications, with a resulting financial stringency.

Since making the first payment Hearst has continued to operate the paper mill, but has done nothing to reduce his indebtedness. Last month the former owners of the mill brought suit against him to force him to carry out his contract. And now he has filed in New York a counter-suit, setting up the claim that Zittel gave him the double-cross in the purchase of the property, paying more than it was worth and arranging on the side for a fat commission. When a betrayer fancies himself betrayed he generally makes more noise than a pig under a gate; and Hearst is true to the tradition. He wants to turn back the property to the original owners and get his hundred thousand back. He is reported to be spending much of his time dodging to prevent service of papers attaching some of his newspaper properties.

CRYING FOR CRYER.

The cry that goes up for Cryer seems to be the voice of the people. The impression prevails that he is excellent material for the Mayor's office. He has had experience in public life and is familiar with the city's business and yet is not of that selfish and self-assertive political type to which the people have become unhappily accustomed.

What a man is in national politics is not supposed to be material when running for Mayor under the election laws of California. Yet the fact that Mr. Cryer is a conscientious Republican should not harm him in a community which is overwhelmingly Republican to start with. Mayor Snyder is a Democrat and has been in eight campaigns for Mayor. The odds would seem to be against him.

Years ago when Gov. Dick Oglesby (Republican) was campaigning in Illinois the plea was made that the Democrats should be given a chance to run the country. "My God! No," exclaimed Uncle Dick in pious horror. "It's all we can do to run it ourselves."

In a city where the Republicans have a normal majority of three or four to one Democrat, it would be quite plausible that a Republican should occasionally be in command. Now that we are seeking national aid and co-operation in so many ways, it would do no harm were the city government in tune with the national administration.

PLAYING AT BIGAMY.

According to dispatches to The Times bigamy is now the favorite diversion of blase New Yorkers. It is perfectly proper to call bigamy a diversion, for it is all of that.

When the New York business man wearies of the way his wife wears her hair or chafes over the dreariness of her conversation he does not remonstrate or suggest. He puts on his plug hat and goes and gets him a new wife.

Possibly he starts another establishment, but more often he puts the fresh wife in the parlor and pushes the old one into the back end of the flat. She can do the cooking and wash the dishes, but she is not to sit in with the company.

If the husband chooses to start another home he may not tell the other skirt about it. In that way an alert man who is a ready and trained prevaricator may have three or four establishments in the same city. His occupations will adjust themselves accordingly. One wife will think he is a night watchman, while another will believe him a traveling salesman. Likewise, he may be a broker and an installment collector at the same time. A shrewd man will pick up a wife with some money. If he has a lady capitalist in each home and has three or four establishments he can have a very active and delightful time. He and his wives can play all kinds of guessing games and the husband will always have money for the poker party. It wouldn't be necessary for him to have any occupation at all. He would just be a professional husband and would divide his time between his wives, turning up on the days his allowance was due.

That would be fine!

New York and Connecticut lap over one another and their marriage and divorce laws are such that a smart guy can have a couple of perfectly legal wives—that is, if he keeps them passing over the border. With a couple of skirts in Harlem and another pair in Hartford a man could pass a summer with all the excitement of a trained animal show.

In the list of occupations the successful bigamist is almost to be envied. Since the Eighteenth Amendment went into force a New York father doesn't educate his son for the bar. He grooms him for a career of bigamy.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

HELPING THINGS ALONG.

We can all contribute daily to Old Normalcy's return, if we do our labors gayly at the anvil or the churn, if we quit ill-natured talking and put up a pepful spiel, if we cut out useless knocking and declare how good we feel. If you have a job be thankful, go about it with a grin, like a flivver with a tank full of the John D. brand of gin; put some vim in every motion, earn your pie in honest sweat, and discard the foolish notion that you earn more than you get. Once we said, "When Huns are beaten we'll begin to put up hay," but the locusts they have eaten golden months we've thrown away; we've been grumbling, talking, spieling, charging that our neighbors sinned, and the country hit the ceiling as a consequence of wind. Now we've had our costly shindy, handed out our bitter dope, let us work and be less windy, if we talk let's talk of hope. Statesmen all will do their stating in the ablest way they can, but the weary land is waiting for the busy working man. Normalcy will doubt and falter, she will loiter in her tracks, till we cease to fool and palter and get down to old brass tacks.

WALT MASON.

"XENIA" TO BE POPULAR NOW.

When President and Mrs. Cleveland named their daughter Ruth they started the Ruth fashion. When W. C. Whitney had the most gorgeous christening Washington had ever seen for Dorothy Whitney the name Dorothy became the vogue. Young Mr. Leeds proposes to bring his bride, Princess Xenia, to America to dazzle New York society, which may mean a generation of Xenias.—[Syracuse Post-Standard.

The chilly weather has made its quietus. For this our sincere thanks.

THE LANCER.

Premier Lloyd George, perhaps casting an envious eye on the publicity that President Harding acquired through "Laddie Boy," is not to be outdone. He has purchased the biggest St. Bernard he could find and promptly had his picture taken with him. Now that the vogue is fairly started we may expect to see Senator Johnson with his pet eagle, Senator Volstead with his pet camel, ex-President Wilson with his pet dove, Clara Smith Hamon with her pet cuckoo, Lord Reading with his pet tiger, and Madame President of the Ebell Club with her pet lion. Ah, yes, and William Randolph Hearst with his pet chameleon.

J. H. Thomas, labor-union leader and member of Parliament in Great Britain, is visiting New York. He was greeted by a large crowd of "Irish-Americans," that bunch who still honor the hyphen, with jeers of "Judas hanged himself—what is Thomas going to do?" Thomas, it will be remembered, used his influence to prevent the railway men joining the miners' strike and wrecking Great Britain. It was therefore less honorable to "betray" the few thousand striking miners than to betray his entire country into untold suffering and destruction, according to these "ourselves-alone" section of the Irish-Americans. There is an interesting distinction between the American Irish and the Irish-Americans, and perhaps it is just as well the latter prefer to retain that form of title that we may appreciate the distinction.

Dean Inge, Dr. William Bateman and Hillaire Belloc have all been excogitating mournfully on the future of democracy. Dean Inge prophesies that it will develop "through sectional anarchy to bankruptcy" and thence back to autocracy and militarism. Dr. Bateman, on the other hand, sees us getting ever more democratic and "nearing the final stage of democratic decay"—and utterly deplores the fact that "political equality and power have been bestowed upon the lowest elements of the population." He sees no hope but for government by the meanest intellects.

Hillaire Belloc yet again finds that the democracy as now practiced just isn't democracy or anything else and holds the smallest possible opinion of existing "democratic" rulers. He looks for new monarchies invested with greater powers—or immediate national decline.

This is really too bad, considering how hard we have been fighting to make the world safe for democracy. But it seems early days to condemn the poor thing. So far, democracy, like Christianity, has never been tried. For my part I have never yet met any collection of democratic people. Now and again one meets a lone solitary example, just as one meets a very occasional Christian, but they are most exceptional persons. But even they are capable of tipping the restaurant waiter—and there is no democracy where there are tips. So long as I can tip a man he isn't my equal. And so long as there are $5000-a-week movie queens I am not their equal.

However, Gilbert K. Chesterton believes in democracy, because he says he hates snobs. He defines the snob as one who considers a perfect lady one who can afford to take a taxi when she gets drunk.

Which, however, isn't quite fair. Snobs are a bit more discriminating than that. Snobs generally toady to people they consider better than themselves and like to claim spurious distinctions. And sometimes they try to live up to them—which isn't necessarily disadvantageous. And snobs are invariably careful of their own conduct—if they couldn't afford a taxi they probably would be careful not to get drunk. And snobs usually prefer to keep out of jail. I am a bit of a snob myself at times, and get into less trouble when I am.

We foresee a political career for Edward Roberts, candidate for the City Council. After all the other candidates had been questioned by the ladies of the Friday Morning Club as to their views on the Fifth-street cut, and it had become plain that the audience was against the measure, Mr. Roberts "roused the meeting to enthusiastic applause" by declaring that IF he had been on the Council he would have sent the whole matter back to the people, where it belonged.

"If ifs and ands were pots and pans, what would become of the tinkers?"

"It would be wiser for people not to come to close quarters with psychoanalysis unless they are prepared to grapple with the terrible," says Dr. Ernest Jones.

Oh, well, in that case psychoanalysis can hold no terrors for us, accustomed as we are to initiative petitions, prohibition, home brew and income-tax forms. You can't scare us that way, doctor. Try another.

An advertisement is offering corsets and "brassiers" to the fair sex on the recommendation that they will give them "that boyish form so essential to the modern smart woman."

Which is perhaps why the French call the "fair sex" "le beau sexe," thus using the masculine adjective against all their linguistic rules. But things have come to a pretty pass when the girls are reduced to aping the boy's contour in order to be "smart." And what is to become of the impassioned poet who wrote such fervid lines about "her firm, round, undulating bosom"? Now her chief object in life seems to be to give the impression that she hasn't got any and therefore can show it with impunity.

Solstice Canyon, where the camp is located, and formed a reservoir. This water is piped to the kitchen tent and there is heated for many purposes, one of them being the shower bath. That shower is in continual use in the evening, and the swimmin' hole is large enough for about five good strokes. Below the camp is the "laundry," which includes no electric washers, nor irons, but round tubs, pails and washboards.

The canyon sweeps northward to a wooded hill, around which the new road winds. Perhaps in Southern California, no spot surpasses this for beauty.

And behold! Below camp is a long meadow and past it the sea—so get in line, gentlemen, for the county's outdoor jail, for everybody in the Sheriff's party decided it would be a good place to spend a vacation. But the only way one can join that camp is to become an honor prisoner, for the big ranch, of which it is the center, which is probably the last large, intact cattle, stock and grain ranch, combining the old features of the open range with the new ideas of farming, in all Southern California, is forbidden to visitors.

Honor men crawl out of their blankets at 6:30 a.m., eat breakfast at 7 o'clock and start out to work at 8. They have an hour at noon and return to camp at 5 p.m. Several of the crew help the cook. The men then have a fine time with the shower and washtubs, and, while waiting for supper, play with "Billy Traeger;" this is not the Sheriff, but the camp mascot—a goat which is also an honor prisoner, along with a camp dog. On Sunday—well, they don't work.

DOES THEM GOOD.

The men in camp say they are satisfied; at least, most of them are, and whether they know it or not, the camp seems to be doing them good. They look more like men. One gray-haired, bewhiskered man, who was sentenced to jail for 100 days for a minor offense, has walked from coast to coast. Beside him stood a strapping young fellow, who had committed a more serious offense, but because of mitigating circumstances was given this chance to make good. Both of them said they entertained no idea of trying to leave the camp. Superior Court judges have found this detention camp a fine place to send men who are walking on the edge of a criminal future, who need punishment, but would not be bettered by being sent to State's prison. It is different in many ways from a county farm. Lately a number of defendants have been sentenced to work in this camp. It comes nearest to supplying corrective measures, say county authorities, for they feel that society must be protected, and yet many men will do better outdoors than behind prison walls, when they go on their honor.

After supper the men hike along the road into the hills, unaccompanied by any guard, and, returning later, sing and play their two musical instruments. And so they go to bed, for the next day means work and another 50 cents earned.

UNIVERSITY IS TO HELP ART COLONY.

State Institution Plans to Co-operate at Pasadena Through Summer Session.

Pasadena's annual sumer art colony, under Community Playhouse auspices, will be conducted this year in co-operation with the extension department of the University of California, it was announced yesterday. This means that all who take the work and qualify will receive university credits that can be used toward graduation. In effect, this will give the Crown City a summer branch of the State university.

The faculty will be headed by Dr. Richard Burton, noted educator, and former president of the Drama League of America, who will conduct the course in practical playwriting. Other teachers will be W. Frayne Williams, director of the Literary Theater of Hampstead, London; Mrs. Louise P. Sooy, authority on costume design, and Arthur Farwell, community music expert.

This activity is not to be confused with the usual dramatic school as its purpose is not to train actors, but to disseminate technical instruction in the allied arts of the theater among those who are interested in helping to elevate public amusement standards. There will be standardized courses in stage direction, action and speech, stage design and lighting, playwriting, dramatic dancing, costume design and other kindred subjects.

The Community Playhouse Association will grant one free scholarship in each course. Applications for the same may be made by candidates, who must file their credentials with Capt. Paul Perigord, secretary of the association. The committee having charge of the summer art colony consists of Capt. Paul Perigord, Miss Sybil E. Jones and Mrs. Myron Hunt.

Most of the classes will be held in the old Throop College Building, Pasadena. The course begins June 27 and lasts six weeks. The final week will be devoted to a dramatic production by the art colonists, giving them practical experience in applying the principles learned. A prospectus containing detailed information can be had by addressing the Community Playhouse Association.

HUSBAND DIVORCE WINNER.

Judge Walton J. Wood yesterday granted Luther B. Gastineau a divorce from Bertha Janet Gastineau, denying her a decree of separate maintenance. The case was heard several days ago. Both charged cruelty and the suit was hotly fought.

POPE CONFERS HIGH HONOR ON ANGELENO.

Attorney Joseph Scott will today be made a Knight of the Order of St. Gregory, the Great, an honor rated as the highest within the power of the Pope to confer upon a layman of the Catholic Church.

The full ceremony of investiture, said to be the second ever performed in the United States, will be conducted at St. Viviana's Cathedral by Bishop Cantwell of the diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles, at 11 o'clock this morning. Fourth-degree members of the Knights of Columbus will be the official escorts for Bishop Cantwell and Mr. Scott.

A distinguished assemblage of clergymen and laymen will witness the ceremony. In recognition of the honor for Mr. Scott a reception will be held next Tuesday evening at the Knights of Columbus clubhouse. Rev. Oliver Debescat, canon of the Basilica at Lourdes, France, will make the principal address at the reception.

FREE WHILE APPEAL PENDS.

E. N. Sanders, formerly head of the identification bureau of the Police Department, who was convicted for extortion of $500 from Thomas Quinlan on a threat of arrest, was released yesterday by Judge Willis on bail of $5000. The release was granted pending the appeal to the District Court.

DECLINES TO BOW TO AGITATORS.

Flying the Stars and Stripes at its masthead, with a banner line of wood type setting forth its "declaration of independence," the Coconino Sun, published at Flagstaff, Ariz., has arrived a little late, but full of news and ginger. Owing to the printers' strike, which went into effect on the 1st inst., the Sun appears all hand-set.

In a double-column editorial statement, wherein it set forth its views regarding the strike, the Sun says:

"Our printers walked out Saturday with expressions of regret, acknowledging that they did not believe in the justice of the demand made upon them by their union, for they were and had been getting all they had asked for in the way of wages and hours, and were, in effect, striking for what they already had."

The editor of the Sun explains that the union demanded that a forty-four-hour week be recognized and that the present scale be not changed. This would give the printers a forty-eight-hour week's pay for a forty-four-hour week's work, which, the employing printers say, is the equivalent of a 25 per cent increase in the cost of printing at a time when all prices are being revised downward.

According to the Sun editor, his printers would agree to accept the same rate of pay and work eight hours and arrange the overtime so that it would amount to exactly what they were getting, but that he would have to sign an agreement, which committed him to the theory that a forty-four-hour week was the right and proper thing.

MEN SATISFIED.

"This was the only way they could get around the arbitrary demand of the national union," says the editor. "They were satisfied as to existing conditions and treatment received, but the national union had to be satisfied. We denied the right of the national union or anyone else to tell us what church to belong to or what idols to worship.

"The time has come when the despicable yap, the soap-box howler and the whole bunch of nonproducers who live like cooties off the work of men who are honestly laboring should be given the treatment they deserve. They feast on trouble, and would actually have to work if they could not live off the assessments made upon men who think they are doing the right thing by blindly following the blatant lead of these despoilers."

WASHINGTON MAN TO GUIDE MORALS HERE.

JOHN H. PELLETIER CHOSEN TO FILL POSITION OF LATE DR. ROBERT BARTON.

John H. Pelletier was appointed executive secretary of the Morals Efficiency Association yesterday, by unanimous vote of the board of directors, to succeed the late Dr. Robert C. Barton, who for seven years was in charge of the work.

The appointment of Pelletier came after a visit to Los Angeles, two months ago. He met the men who are in charge of the detail work of the Morals Efficiency Association, and made such an impression that he was offered the position; but at almost the same time he was tendered a position by the Law Enforcement League of Alabama. He also was invited to go to New York and take up law enforcement work there. His desire to come to Los Angeles was so strong, however, that he accepted the work here, wiring Secretary W. L. Cleveland that he would take the position on June 1. He will be tendered a reception and banquet on his arrival.

C. A. De Coo, who was chairman of the meeting at which Pelletier was appointed, outlined some of the work he said the association expects the new secretary to preform. He declared that he is against any municipal position that would take away the work of the morals efficiency director. He said he had special reference to the statement of Mayor Snyder that a morals efficiency director should be paid out of the city treasury.

This statement made at a meeting of the Ministers Association has caused considerably comment. Those who are in charge of the work, which was left without a director when Dr. Barton died, say they favor a director who shall be paid out of a fund subscribed by the citizens of Los Angeles.

Alpaca Needs Irritating.

She had been visiting on a farm for a week and was letting the world know it. Her companion also, apparently, had seldom been off the brick streets.

"And how is the corn this year?" the companion asked.

"Doing just fine," was the reply, "but the alpaca needs irritating, Mr. Brown said."—[Unidentified.

CINEMA STARS HELP BENEFIT.

Details for Festival at the Speedway Perfected.

Cowpunchers Planning Many Popular Rodeo Stunts.

Night Flight by Aviators to be Spectacular.

Details of the Actors' Fund Festival to be held at the Beverly Speedway on Saturday, June 4, were announced yesterday by Daniel Frohman.

Hundreds of motion-picture actors, including producers and directors, have volunteered their services, and within a few days a stage 800 feet long, two mining towns, pleasure zones and six rodeo rings will arise in the inclosure of the saucer track.

The afternoon feature of Festival Day will be a six-ring rodeo exhibition by Douglas Fairbanks, William S. Hart, Dustin Farnum, Tom Mix, Hoot Gibson and Buck Jones. The rodeos will be presented simultaneously.

The closing feature of the rodeo will consist of cowpuncher stunts, in which the trick riders of the six camps will compete for the national championships. Following this will be a pageant depicting life of the frontier days.

During the evening a spectacular pageant depicting "The Adornment of Woman," with 700 photoplay actors participating, will be given.

Interwoven into the pageant several picture stars will enact independent scenes, taken from film productions. Douglas Fairbanks will produce a scene from his recent picture, "The Three Musketeers," while Mary Pickford will appear in a scene from her current picture play, "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

Ted Shawn, classic dancer, will produce dancing features with several score girls taking part.

While the afternoon and evening programs are in progress, the two mining camps and the two pleasure zones, erected at opposite ends of the Speedway, will be running full tilt. The mining camps, typifying the days of '49, are now in the course of construction.

Along the streets of the two pleasure zones will be located concessions, side shows and freaks.

Arrangements are being made for a night flight by an aviator who will perform hazardous stunts in an illuminated airplane.

Pasadena Man's Malice Case in Hands of Judge.

Judge Stephens has under submission the evidence in the trial of the $44,200 malicious prosecution suit of Maj. N. J. Shupe of Pasadena against Dr. Thomas Greene and C. Sumner Greene. A non-suit was granted as against the wives of the two men, also named as defendants.

Maj. Shupe declares that while he was absent in the East on business, his home in Pasadena was entered under a warrant issued by Justice Strang in September, 1919, and the house searched, the charge being that Maj. Shupe had in his possession portieres and curtains taken by him from the Greene residence.

When news of the entry of his home reached Maj. Shupe, he terminated his trip and hurried home to "protect his family." The search of his home created a scandal, he declared, and held him up to infamy and disgrace. Furthermore, he asserts, the warrant was returned wholly unsatisfied, and was issued without probable cause. He asks $12,200 actual and $15,000 exemplary damages.

The defendants Greene assert that they were told by Special Deputy Sheriff J. F. Laury that he knew where the curtains and portieres were and said he could get them for $25.

Odds in Favor of Cryer Are Two to One as Campaign Takes Form.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

Here are the thirty-four candidates whose names will appear on the ballot at the June 7 city election:

For Mayor—George E. Cryer, Meredith P. Snyder.

For Board of Education—Robert M. Anderson, Grace B. Ashley, M. C. Bettinger, D. Joseph Coyne, Elliott Craig, Melville Dozier, Mary Garbutt, Martha C. Harmon, C. J. McCormick, Mary C. Millspaugh, Robert A. Odell, C. E. Seaman, Egerton Shore, M. Jessie York.

For City Council—Robert M. Allan, Benjamin Bogardus, Frank L. Cleaveland, O. P. Conaway, Albert B. Conrad, Ralph L. Criswell, Ida Works Darling, Edward J. Delorey, F. C. Langdon, Walter Mallard, W. C. Mushet, Edward Roberts, W. A. Roberts, W. J. Sanborn, R. S. Sparks, W. C. Steele, Frank H. True, Fred C. Wheeler.

The names are given in the order in which they appear on the ballot. Voters will express their choice for seven members of the Board of Education and for nine of the candidates for the City Council.

Nineteen working days remain before the city election, and busy days they will be for the candidates who promise action every minute in their campaigns. Immensely pleased over the showing made by George E. Cryer at the primaries, Mr. Cryer's campaign managers declare that his election on June 7 is an assured fact, but they are leaving no stone unturned to bring out a large vote for him. The betting throughout the city last week was 2 to 1 that Mayor Snyder would be defeated on June 7, with few takers on the Snyder end.

"The election was a remarkable demonstration in many respects," admits a weekly organ which is supporting the Mayor, and it acknowledges the spending of large sums to elect Snyder at the primaries when it says: "Mayor Snyder's committee spent at least $40,000 in the fight. Cryer's committee spent $4200 and had no paid precinct organization. Managers St. John, Mary Smith and John Steele had a paid Snyder worker and a paid automobile in every city precinct. Yet the results show Cryer and Snyder running neck and neck. Much credit must be given the following managers of the Cryer candidacy: Kent K. Parrot, general manager; Owen McAleer, manager of finance; E. M. Daugherty, publicity director, and Fred Frank, precinct organization manager. Their campaign was clean and efficient and result producing."

Following the Union League's indorsement of George E. Cryer comes the following from Senator Harry A. Chamberlin:

"Los Angeles gave the fourth largest majority for a Republican President of any city in the United States. It is a travesty that such a Republican stronghold should have as its Chief Executive a Democratic Mayor, working at all times through the medium of the patronage which he has to build up a Democratic machine in this city.

"That is only one of the reasons why I most heartily indorse the candidacy of Georga Cryer, a Republican. His clean record, his acknowledged ability, his readiness at all times to serve the public regardless of any effect upon himself, also impel me to take this course.

"I think that Mr. Cryer's preeminent qualifications for this position will be recognized by the citizens of this community, and that he will be the next Mayor of the city of Los Angeles."

Are the campaign managers of Mayor Snyder downhearted over his small vote at the primaries? No, says Ivan St. John of the Snyder campaign committee. "Mayor Snyder will be re-elected on June 7," says Mr. St. John. "I look for a vote very little larger than was cast at the city primaries, certainly much less than 100,000 votes. The Bullock's issue brought out a large vote, and as this matter is not before the voters on June 7 the increased east side vote will just about balance the loss of those who came out solely to vote on the Bullock's propositions. Mayor Snyder would have received a larger vote than he did on May 3 if our precinct workers had not fallen down on the job. During the active campaign we shall conduct during the three weeks preceding the city election, as well as our work at the polls, we shall depend entirely on volunteer workers. Despite charges made of heavy campaign expenses for the Mayor previous to the primaries, we spent a very great deal less than the $40,000 or $50,000 which has been mentioned."

The actual number of persons who voted in the city at the May 3 primaries was, according to the official count, 82,666.

Councilmanic candidates resumed campaign activities last week, each and every one of the eighteen who were nominated at the primaries declaring that his or her election was assured on June 7. Mrs. Ida Works Darling has announced to all of her friends that rumors that she would withdraw from the race are incorrect and says that she is in the fight to a finish. She believes that the women of the city are desirous to have one of their sex in the City Council and she asks for the support of all who desire a representative who will serve all of the people all of the time and whose slogan is efficiency in city business.

No news from Washington about those pesky Federal appointments in Southern California. The mutual admirationists, and the outlanders are alike watchfully waiting with tehir ears to the ground, but not a peep is heard from the national capital. The delay is getting on the nerves of some of the candidates, but then President Harding has one or two other matters on his mind than plum distribution. Some of these delightful evenings over the wires will come the news that will be received joyfully by some and will alos dash many hopes to the ground—for four years, at least.

Now for the nominations for Governor. The name of Orra E. Monnette, president of the Citizens' Trust and Savings Bank for the past nine years, was put forward last week by George M. Babcock, managing director of the Business Men's Co-operative Association. Mr. Babcock said: "Mr. Monette wold make an excellent Governor and should be induced to permit his name to be put forward for the place. As president of the Board of Library Directors he has rendered the citizens of Los Angeles signal service. When the new Public Library is built, the citizens of Los Angeles can thank Mr. Monnette for his untiring efforts in bringing about this much needed public improvement. Mr. Monnette has taken an active interest in public affairs for the past many years and has done much for the upbuilding of Los Angeles, as many thousands of the citizens well know. He has great executive ability as well as vision and stands first, last and all of the time for the development of our great empire, the State of California. I say, Orra E. Monnette for Governor."

"As a matter of protection to the public," says Edward Roberts, candidate for the City Council, "and in justice to myself and Mr. W. A. Roberts could I ask that you kindly call the attention of your readers to the fact that there are two candidates on the Councilmanic ticket by the name of Roberts.

"To identify myself I might say that I have for the past two years been engaged in the publication of the motion picture magazine 'It' that I am a Spanish-American War veteran, that I am one of the authors of the antirent profiteering ordinance and with W. C. Steele, a leader in the fight to secure the passage of that law. I have the indorsements of the Affiliated Motion Picture Interests, the Tenants' Protective Association and all antiblue law organizations.

"W. A. Roberts served in the Council some years back, has been a member of the Legislature and I understand has a fine record, both in the Council and at Sacramento. He is indorsed by the United Church Brotherhood."

Additional indorsements last week for George E. Cryer for Mayor were reported from the Republican Study Club and the Northwest Improvement Association. At the meeting of the study club, which is composed of leading women voters, a "straw" vote taken resulted in nineteen for Cryer as against six for Mayor Snyder.

The following seven propositions will appear on the ballot at the June 7 city election:

Proposition No. 1—Shall the city of Los Angeles enact an ordinance providing for the enforcement by the municipality of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, as established by the Eighteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, the local measure to be similar to the Federal Volstead Act?

Proposition No. 2—Bond issue of $12,250,000 for the construction of a new outfall sewer.

Proposition No. 3—Bond issue of $2,500,000 for the purchase of sites and the construction of a main public library building and branches.

Proposition No. 4—Bond issue of $1,000,000 to pay for a portion of the city's part in the expense of building viaducts over the Los Angeles River and the railroad tracks, the steam and street railways to also bear a part of the cost of the improvements, which will eliminate dangerous grade crossings.

Proposition No. 5—Bond issue of $1,250,000 to provide for a police and fire alarm signal system and additional fire houses.

Proposition No. 6—Bond issue of $3,000,000 for the building of new reservoirs and the construction of trunk lines and water mains.

Proposition No. 7—Bond issue of $4,800,000 providing for additional docks and other development work at the harbor.

The proposed bond issues total $24,800,000.

Councilman Win J. Sanbonr's committee was selected yesterday and headquarters established at 303 Grant Building. Harry Reynolds is chairman, and twelve business men will help direct the campaign, which will be a vigorous one. The other members are: P. H. Halbriter, Charles J. Parrot, Frank E. Burger, M. A. Bresee, Robert J. Coyne, pastor of the Central-avenue Methodist Church, John Swanfeldt, P. P. Glenn, Harry A. Chamberlain, Luther Guy Reynolds, Henry G. Krohn and Frank Herron.

The Councilmen whose duty it is to canvass or verify the election returns are hoping that the clerks, judges and inspectors will do better work than they did at the city primaries. Scores of election officers were summond before the City Council following the primaries and called upon to add missing signatures and to correct errors in the precinct returns. The Councilmen say that more errors were found than in many years past and more than three times the number of election officials summoned to City Hall than ever before following an election. With the passing from the City Clerk's office of Charles L. Wilde a large number of experienced election officers made way for new appointees and their unfamiliarity with their duties, the Councilmen say, was responsible for the mistakes they made. As a result of their experience at the primaries it is expected that fewer errors will be found when the city election returns are canvassed. On the other hand, an improvement was noted in one phase of the handling of the vote at the city primaries and that was in the use of a new form of tally list which was adopted by the Efficiency Committee of the City Council at the suggestion of Asst. City Clerk Dominguez. The new form is said by election officers to be a great improvement over the one in former use, and its complete efficiency will be demonstrated at the June 7 election, when further improvements in the tally losts will be utilized toward the end of making the counting simpler and the work of the election officers more efficient.

Barker Bros. are the largest retail distributors of Simmons Metal Beds in the world.

Our assortment includes many exclusive patterns in period designs and the popular finishes.

Insomnia's Greatest Enemy Is Complete Relaxation

A Bed Which Fits the Body Is More Effective Than a Sleeping Potion

Insomnia is often the result of mental disturbances brought about by the discomforts of a poor bed.

If there are hummocks and hollows in the springs and mattress, the anatomy resents their presence, and the messages of distress are carried to the subconscious mind to torment the nervous and harrassed victim.

If the bed is as it should be, it will lend itself to the natural curves of the body. The tense muscles and nerves of the insomniac will gradually relax, finding no resistance, and sleep will come as if by magic.

Barker Bros.' Own-Make Mattresses and Box Springs and Simmons Metal Beds form the supreme partnership promoting sleep!

Our Mattresses are the essence of luxurious comfort. Soft and resilient, they yield to the slightest pressure.

The Box Springs, with their individually hand-tied coils, add infinitely to the elasticity and fitting qualities of the Mattress.

Simmons Metal Beds are so firmly built that there are no sounds to annoy the sleeper. They are practical in any climate, because they are absolutely unaffected by atmospheric conditions.

150 New Simmons Metal Beds at Remarkable Reductions —While They Last!

This unusual collection, which will go on sale Monday morning, comprises fourteen patterns of these famous beds, in full and twin sizes, finished in mahogany, American walnut, Circassian walnut, ivory, white, and Vernis Martin.

These beds are all chosen from the choicest patterns of our Simmons line, but only a few of each model are included.

The reduced prices range as low as $14 for massive two-inch continuous post beds.

If you insist upon seeing the contents of the mattress you expect to buy you will understand why Barker Bros. make their own mattresses.

LOS ANGELES TAILORS HIT AT STRIKERS.

Community Shop Opened to Combat Garment Workers; Contracts Being Rushed.

To combat the activities of the Garment Makers' Union, local merchant tailors have just opened, it became known yesterday, what they term the Community Shop at Eighth and Los Angeles streets, where they are having their contract work made up in record time, according to the Merchants Tailors' Association.

The shop was opened to correct a condition which was brought about when piece workers, employed in making coats, pants and vests, in what are known as contract shops, went on strike because the contracting tailors would not sign up for a forty-four-hour week and the elimination of the piece-work system.

Yesterday the Merchant Tailors' Association met and solidified its organization with eighty active members, who have all refused to adopt the forty-four-hour proposition. Many of the strikers, according to reports, have returned to work.

The Community Shop was fitted up as an emergency measure and it is now turning out contract work for the merchant tailors on a co-operative basis.

The June meeting will be a basket picnic in one of the city parks.

CLOSE MERRITT CASE.

Millionaire's Victory in Court of Last Resort Recorded Here.

The mandate of the United States Supreme Court, reversing the judgment of conviction secured in the local United States District Court and the United States Circuit Court of Appeal, in the case of Hulett C. Merritt, the Pasadena millionaire, convicted of a violation of the Lever law in hoarding 500 pounds of sugar, yesterday was spread on the records in U. S. District Judge Trippet's court.

The dismissal of the appeal followed the statement of Solicitor Frierson, of counsel for the government, that an error had been made by the respondent.

He was tried twice. The first time the jury disagreed, the second time he was convicted, and was sentenced by Judge Trippet to pay a fine of $5000, and to spend five months in the County Jail.

Following his conviction here, he took an appeal and the government was again the winner. Then he went to the court of last resort. The action of the government followed that of the United States Supreme Court finding unconstitutional certain portions of the Lever law, on which the prosecution was based.

ENTERTAIN "SCRIBES."

Pioneer Social Organization Has Round of Festivities.

The Scribes' Club, one of the oldest social organizations in the city, has been entertained recently by a number of dinners at which members of the club were hosts. The club meets regularly every Tuesday evening and holds a symposium of business and public affairs topics, interspersed with literary and other diversions.

Two weeks ago the club was entertained at the home of Orra E. Monnette, its president, 350 South Oxford avenue, and a week ago Tuesday by Louis Vetter at the California Club, at which William H. Crane and Frederick Warde were presented and gave addresses; also, James W. Foley of Pasadena, the poet, recited some of his own productions.

Last Tuesday evening, Secretary Wiggins of the Chamber of Commerce, member of the club, entertained the club in the blue room of the Athletic Club. The guests were Maynard McFie of the Chamber of Commerce, who addressed the club upon the Los Angeles Harbor, and Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin gave a forceful review of H. W. Wells's "Outline of History." Mr. Wiggins was forced to make a speech, against his usual modesty, and during the exercises Louis Vetter was presented with a fine tribute in the way of a memorial and appreciation of his hospitality at a previous meeting.

The officers of the club are: Orra E. Monnette, president; Justice Shaw, vice-president; Dr. John R. Haynes, vice-president; Charles V. Barton, secretary and treasurer, and Roger J. Sterrett, assistant secretary.

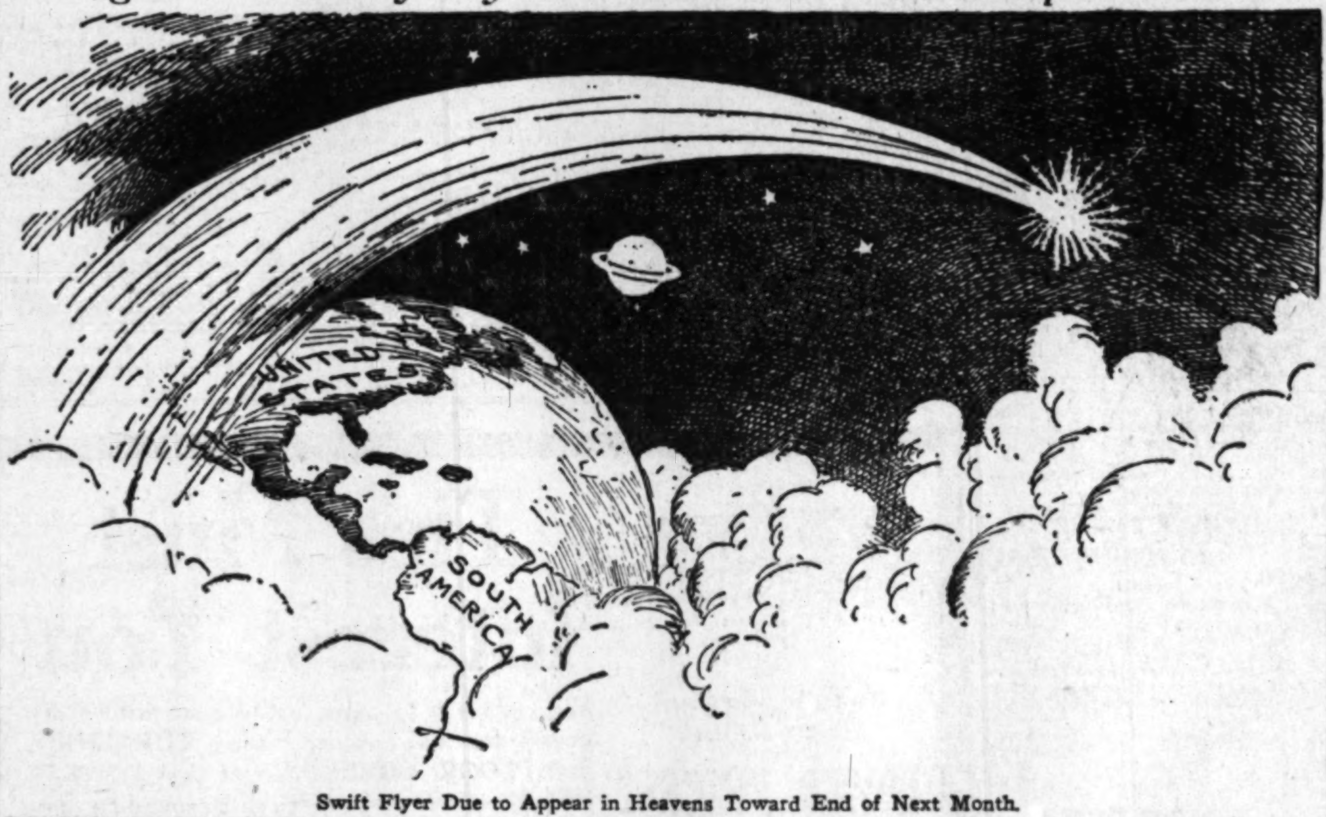
Elongated Train of Sky Wanderer Will Sideswipe the Earth.



Swift Flyer Due to Appear in Heavens Toward End of Next Month.

LONG-TAILED COMET TO GIVE DISPLAY IN JUNE.

Pons-Winnecke Star With Train Two Million Miles is Heading Toward Earth at Terrific Speed.

BY H. O. BISHOP.

Brides and poets, as a general rule, are permitted to monopolize the month of June. This year, however, the newlyweds and the verse-smiths will be obliged to share their fascinating June-time with a whizzing comet which drags a tail more than 2,000,000 miles in length.

This comet is known to astronomers as the Pons-Winnecke. The latter name is pronounced Vinnicke. It was named in honor of two celebrated astronomers. Pons was a Frenchman and Winnecke a German. The former, who was known in his day as the greater "comet hunter," discovered the Pons-Winnecke on June 12, 1819. From that time until 1858 it was not observed by any of the world's astronomers. During the latter year, Winnecke, the German, observed a comet and for a time thought that he had found an entirely new one. He was shortly convinced that it was merely a return of the Pons comet. Since that time it has always been referred to as the Pons-Winnecke.

This elongated bird of the distant heavens, shaped something like an eel or snake, is an amazingly swift flyer. It is traveling toward the United States at a speed of 72,000 miles per hour, or 1,728,000 miles per day. By June 27 it will reach a point in the skies about 2,000,000 miles from the earth. This will be sufficiently close for the tail to sideswipe old mother earth and show whether it is made of harmless material or damaging stuff. For several days prior to June 27, the brilliant tail will be observable from all parts of the country.

NOTHING SERIOUS.

It is rather difficult to conceive of anything 2,000,000 miles in length. If that 2,000,000-mile tail were attached to a live serpent of some kind, capable of controlling it in any desired fashion, it could easily be looped around the quatorial section of the earth eighty times. If the fair maid, who is supposed to inhabit the moon should happen to take a fancy to the Pons-Winnecke comet tail and want to decorate her country, she would have enough material to make eight blazing streamers reaching all the way to the earth and enough left over to make a big bow hair ribbon for herself.

When Asaph Hall, professor of mathematics of the United States Naval Observatory, Washington, was asked whether any serious consequences were liable to result from the swishing of the Pons-Winnecke's tail against the bosom of the earth, he laughed heartily and said: "No, nothing serious is going to happen. The result of the contact will merely be a spectacular shower of meteorites in the skies. They will travel so swiftly through space, that they will doubtless be entirely burned out before reaching this planet. This vivid meteor shower, as a matter of fact, will be as harmless as the 'sparklers' used by little boys and girls on the Fourth of July."

DISMISS DANGER IDEA.

This view of Prof. Hall is concurred in by that eminent English scientist, George F. Chambers, who says: "The idea of any danger happening to our planet, or to any other planet, from the advent of any of these wandering strangers may be dismissed once and for all, especially as we now know that the earth passed bodily through the tail of the great comet of 1861 during June of that year."

This calm and serene view of comets has not always prevailed. In past years the appearance of a comet in any section of the world was invariably looked upon as an omen of bad luck and possible destruction of the earth. The pessimistic joy-killers of the world have never overlooked an opportunity to link up any natural catastrophe with the coming or going of a comet. Here is their record of unfortunate occurrences covering a period from the year A. D. 14 down to the World War, which they attribute to comets:

A. D. 14—A comet preceded the death of Augustus, the first emperor of Rome. Earthquake in Italy.

55—Suicide of Pontius Pilate, the judge who condemned Christ.

68—Halley's comet. Suicide of Nero, persecutor of Christians. Siege of Jerusalem.

73—A comet shown 180 days over Cypress. Earthquake in Cypress, in which 10,000 persons perished.

79—Death of Emperor Vespasian, who began the siege of Jerusalem. The Roman historians, Dion Cassius and Suetonius, relate that Vespasian, when taken sick, heard his astrologers discussing in a low tone of voice the comet which was then visible, which, they said, predicted his death. The Emperor roused angrily and said: "This hairy star is not meant for me. It must be meant for my enemy, the King of the Parthians, for he is hairy, while I am bald." On the following night Vespasian died in great pain, and the comet was seen no more. Shortly after Vespasian's death followed the fierce eruption of Mt. Vesuvius, November 1, which destroyed the two flourishing cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii.

MASSACRE FOLLOWED.

1002—A comet over England and Scandinavia. Massacre of all Danes in England by King Ethelred.

1066—Halley's comet. It appeared in May at Easter time and shone for forty nights, waxing and waning with the moon. William the Conqueror haled it as an omen of destruction to Harold of England just before the battle of Hastings.

1148-9—Second crusade. Utter destruction of whole army of French and German crusaders.

1200—Comet recorded by Hal Ben Rodoan, an Arab astronomer, over North Africa. Bloody revolt of Arab warriors in Morocco.

1212—Lance-shaped comet shining over Western Europe for eighteen nights. The children's crusade. Thousands of German and French boy crusaders perished or were sold into slavery. Bloody invasion of Tartar hordes into Russia and Poland.

1223—Preaching of fifth crusade. Outbreak of "Guelph and Ghibelline" war between Emperor Frederick II of Germany and Pope Gregory the IX.

1264—Very bright comet observed shining all over Europe for three months. Pope Uurban IV died on the night of the comet's disappearance.

1298—Because of the appearance of a comet over middle Germany there were riots in Nuremberg and other neighboring cities, followed by a general massacre of the Jews in those cities.

POPULAR DREAD.

1300—A brilliant comet preceded the jubilee of Pope Boniface VIII. The Pope interpreted the comet as a happy omen, but because of the popular dread of the comet there were riots and bloodshed in Rome and elsewhere in Italy. The chroniclers of the times pointed out the significant fact that shortly after his jubilee Pope Boniface was made a prisoner by King Philip of France, causing him to die of rage.

1305—A comet "of horrible aspect" burning all through passion week preceded the outbreak of the terrible black plague which swept from the Orient all over Europe and Asia.

1333—Chinese and Arab astronomers recorded a bright comet over China, Turkestan and Persia. Birth of Tamerlane, the "scourge of the nations," at Samarkand, in Turkestan.

1347—A comet precedes the "black death," a terrible pestilence, followed by famine all over the world. One-fourth of all the people of Europe died. Fifteen million deaths in China—25,000,000 in Europe.

1363—A comet of immense size shone for three months over Northern Europe. Pestilence and famine in England, Poland and Russia.

HUGE COMET.

1811-12—This huge comet was one of the most famous of modern times. It was first seen in France on March 26, 1811, and was last observed over Southern Russia on Aug. 17, 1812—an appearance of seventeen months, the longest on record. For a while it had two tails, then only one. The length of this tail was estimated as 100,000,000 miles. It was called "Napoleon's comet." Under its luster Napoleon gathered his "grand armee," the greatest army assembled in Europe since Xerxes, and invaded Russia. Wars were fought at the same time in Portugal and Spain, where the British stormed Ciudad Rodrigo and Badajoz; and in America, where Harrison's victory over the Indians under Tecumseh at Tippecanoe, and the sea fight between the President and Little Belt ushered in the war of 1812. In Egypt the comet was taken as an omen of the bloody massacre of the Mamelukes perpetrated at Cairo.

1821—"Napoleon's comet." Seen one night only over France and over St. Helena the night before the death of Napoleon at St. Helena.

1835-6—Halley's comet. Immediately after the comet became generally visible in the old world the bubonic plague, known of old as the "black death," broke out in Egypt. In the city of Alexandria alone 9000 people died in one day. By the Moslems this calamity was generally attributed to the evil influence of the comet.

IN AMERICA.

In America the comet became visible to the naked eye only late in the year. Then, on its approach to the sun, it was lost to view and passed over to the southern hemisphere, where it was next observed by Sir John Herschel in South Africa.

Shortly after its brief blaze over North America the great "New York fire" laid waste the entire business section of the biggest city in the new world. All the commercial center of the city, including the richest firms and largest commercial warehouses, were laid in ashes. The fire raged through days and nights. In all, 530 houses burned down and $18,000,000 of property was consumed. Owing to the intense cold, the sufferings of the homeless were pitiable.

In Florida, at the same time, Osceola, the chieftain of the Seminole Indians, called the comet a signal for war against the whites. The Indians called the comet "Big knife in the sky."

The war began with a bloody massacre of American soldiers under Gen. Wiley Thompson at Fort King. All were slaughtered. Osceola scalped Gen. Thompson with his own hands. On the same day Maj. Dade of the United States Army, who was leading a relief expedition into Florida from Tampa Bay, was ambushed by the Indians near Wahoo swamp and massacred with his men. Of the whole expedition only four men escaped death.

With the passing of the comet to the southern hemisphere bloody wars broke out one after another in Mexico, Cuba, Central America, Ecuador, Bolivia, Peru and Argentina. All those countries were in a welter of blood.

At the same time the American settlers of Texas declared themselves independent and made open war on Mexico. The war began with the battle of Gonzales, in which 500 American frontiersmen fought and defeated over a thousand Mexican soldiers. This was followed by other fierce fights at Goliad and Bexar.

ALAMO MASSACRE.

Next came the bloody massacre of the Alamo, when all of Bowie's and Crockett's American followers were killed in an all-night fight. Out of 200 Americans every man fell at his post. This was the deed of blood on which Joaquin Miller wrote his stirring "Ballad of the Alamo."

One month before the final disappearance of the comet the Texas war came to an end with the bloody battle of San Jacinto, when Sam Houston, with 800 American frontiersmen, defeated 1500 Mexicans and made a prisoner of President Santa Ana of Mexico.

When the comet had passed to the southern hemisphere it was seen at its brightest in South Africa. The pious Boers of Cape Colony understood it to be a sign from heaven and forthwith set out on their great trek across the Orange and Vaal rivers, where they founded the Orange Free State and Transvaal Republic.

Thus the comet was the signal for the first blood drawn in the long fight between the British and Boers.

1843—Another famous comet seen all over the world during the spring of that year. Especially brilliant in the southern hemisphere and in India. War in India on the part of the British against Afghanistan, Baluchistan, Scinde and against the Sikhs.

1848—Encke's famous periodic comet. Bloody revolutionary risings and civil wars in France, Hungary, Bohemia, Austria, Germany, Italy and Poland.

1858-59—Donati's comet. This comet, which appeared to be charging straight down from the zenith and had a curved tail, was observed from June, 1858, to April, 1859. It was seen at its brightest in the South, in Italy, Mexico and in the Far East. While it shone over the Far East there were bloody wars between the British and the risen people of India; between the British and the Chinese, who objected to having opium thrust upon them; while Japan was in the throes of revolution and civil war. In Mexico the standard of revolt against the clericals was raised by Juarez, thus plunging Mexico into civil war, and war with France. Immediately after the disappearance of the comet war broke out in Italy between the French and Italians on one side and the Austrians on the other, ending in the bloody battle of Solferino.

CIVIL WAR COMET.

1861—"First civil war comet." The brightest comet of the nineteenth century. Sir John Herschel, the English astronomer, said of this comet: "It far exceeded in brightness any I have before observed, those of 1811 and the recent splendid one of 1858 not excepted."

The comet was first seen by a layman and appeared at its brightest during the summer months in North America. Its coming was heralded as meaning a great civil war.

1862—"Second civil war comet." Another comet of very peculiar appearance, with jets of flame flaring from its head, showed itself during the summer months in North America. The Civil War was then at its Exhibit of Wild Flowers to Open Here Tomorrow.

The annual exhibit of the Wild Flower Club of the Southwest Museum will open tomorrow in the juvenile room of the Public Library and will continue through Wednesday. The exhibition will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and each afternoon botanists will talk on the varieties on exhibition.

The object of the club is to encourage the study, conservation and cultivation of native plans. The members take excursions every two weeks for the purpose of studying flowers in their natural habitat. Theodore Payne is president; Miss. Harriet Spalding, vice-president; Mrs. L. B. Hicks, secretary; Mrs. S. W. Hutchinson, manager of the exhibit, and the committee that will name the specimens is composed of Dr. A. Davidson, George A. Moxley and Robert A. Hessler.

MONEY IS NO OBJECT.

Husband Who Paid Wife Seventy-five Dollars a Month is Divorced.

"Although your husband is paying you $75 a month, you want a divorce?" Judge Walton J. Wood asked Mrs. Rosa D. Lowe yesterday.

"Yes, I do," she replied, "because he says he does not care for me and refuses to live with me."

She got the decree.

The husband, Corneil D. Lowe, is a postoffice inspector.

LIKE most things of archeological origin, a strictly period room is inclined, often, to be stiff and chilling. Many a refinement-loving person has checked a natural impulse toward the beauty and repose of period decoration or fear that sense of cold aloofness might creep in.

So it is a very especial pleasure to be able—through a thoroughly informed experience with period art and furnishing, combined with a deep and sympathetic realization of what modern life requires of a dwelling-place—to produce interiors of perfect period purity, yet vibrant with vitality and charm.

SKY WANDERER DUE SOON.

Second Wayward Luminary May Provoke Marked Effects During June.

BY WILLIAM H. KNIGHT.

There are two comets wandering through the skies at the present time—both telescopic. One was discovered by Reid in South Africa on March 18 and will be known by his name. It came from distant space and reached its perihelion or nearest approach to the sun on May 9, and was then barely within the earth's orbit, but at a distance from our planet of about 50,000,000 miles. It is not conspicuous, and when at its brightest on May 3, was barely visible in a field glass.

The other comet was predicted and was first seen on April 10 by Barnard of the Yerkes Observatory, who was searching for it. It is known as the Pons-Winnecke Comet and has an interesting history. It is one of the short-period Jovian comets which belongs to Jupiter's family of comets, of which there are more than twenty, with periods ranging from three and a half years to seven or more.

LONG KNOWN.

The Pons-Winnecke comet was discovered at the Marseilles Observatory in 1819 by Jean Louis Pons, who computed a short orbit for it. As it does not approach much nearer the sun than the earth's orbit, it is not conspicuous and was not seen again until 1858, when it was rediscovered by Auguste Winnecke of the Strassburg Observatory, and has since been known as the Pons Winnecke comet. It has a period of about five and a half years, but that period is not uniform for it sometimes approaches so near to the giant planet Jupiter as to cause considerable perturbations in its orbit, so that while on some previous returns it has come at perihelion from 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 miles within the earth's orbit, on the present return it will not come nearer than about 1,000,000 miles outside the earth's orbit. That is, at perihelion on June 9, it will be about 94,000,000 miles from the sun, but, pursuing its eccentric orbit, it will not approach the earth nearer than 9,000,000 miles—a very good clearance.

CHANGES POSSIBLE.

Yet, it is possible that we may witness some of the spectacular effects of even that distant (or shall we say near) approach.

Comets are composed of meteoritic bodies, large and small, ranging from the size of a big meteorite down to finely ground dust, intermixed with hydrogen, carbon, nitrogen and helium gases, which are frozen solid when subjected to the cold of interstellar space while at great distances from the sun.

Now when a comet at perihelion descends below the orbit of Venus, like Halley's and the great comets of 1843, 1858 and 1882, these frozen gases are melted, become inflamed and create a great commotion within its head, and those material particles, which are reduced to the fineness of powder, are driven out into space by the impact of the sun's rays, producing the luminous tail, always turned away from the sun whether coming or going.

HOT-HEADED.

Now, it often happens that the internal gaseous commotion of the comet's head drives many of the finer meteoritic materials of the head far out into space, thus accounting for the coma of the comet always surrounding the brilliant nucleus. Consequently there may be many millions of outlying small meteoritic bodies, accompanying each comet, but invisible until they happen to enter the atmosphere with planetary velocity, from twenty-five to forty miles per second.

SHOOTING STARS.

Then these small meteoritic bodies are fiercely abraded by their swift passage through the oxygen and nitrogen molecules of our atmosphere, and become heated to luminosity, thus producing the bright streaks called shooting stars as they dart across the sky. Now, it is supposed that there are many of these outlying meteoritic bodies accompanying each comet in its course, and as the Pons-Winnecke comet will come about as near as 1,000,000 miles to the earth's orbit on the 15th of June, and the earth will reach that point about a week later, astronomers believe that some of those outlying meteoritic bodies will enter our atmosphere about that time, or from the 20th to the 25th of June. Thus these few streaks of light will furnish tangible evidence, so to speak, of the astronomical proximity of a great comet which makes periodical visits to our part of the universe.

TRAIL TO BRIGHTEN SKY.

height. The coming of the comet was taken to herald the bloody battles of Shiloh, Williamsburg, Seven Days, Seven Pines, Cedar Mountain and Antietam, all fought that year after the comet's disappearance.

1874—Coggia's comet. This comet was seen at its brightest over Southern France and Spain during the summer months of that year. Spain was then in the throes of the bloody Carlist War.

1881—Garfield's comet. The comet showed itself for a few nights only in March during the week following President Garfield's inauguration. It was observed also in Russia. On March 13, Emperor Alexander II of Russia was assassinated with a bomb. Three months later President Garfield was assassinated in Washington.

1882—Comet of Tel-el-Kebir. A comet with two tails was seen at its brightest over Egypt during the first two weeks of September. Egypt was then in the midst of Arabi Pasha's uprising against the British. On September 18, when the comet was last seen, Arabi Pasha was overthrown by Gen. Wolseley in the bloody battle of Tel-el-Kebir.

1906—San Francisco comet. A comet discovered by Ross on March 17, remaining visible for one month. Observed from the Lick Observatory in California. On April 17 came the California earthquake and burning of San Francisco.

1908—Morehouse's comet. Visible for more than a month, during the autumn. In Italy it was interpreted afterward as an omen foreboding the Messina earthquake late in the year.

1910—Halley's comet. Great wars prophesied. Pestilence and disease.

BAD-CHECK PASSER GETS PRISON TERM.

After testimony was presented to Judge Willis yesterday indicating that Fred D. Krull, who pleaded guilty to passing a check here for which he did not have money in the bank, had left a string of bad checks from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to Los Angeles, the court sentenced the defendant to San Quentin for from one to ten years. Reports were made of checks issued at Cedar Rapids, Denver and Salt Lake City.

Calls Meeting to Form State Highway Body.

A conference of importance to the builders of roads will be held at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, next Wednesday, called by Col. Ed Fletcher of San Diego. Chairman Dodge of the Board of Supervisors has been invited to attend the conference as a representative of Los Angeles county.

The purpose is to form a State highway association. Methods of road construction will be discussed.

There are organizations of similar import in other States. The delegates to the conference are men interested in highway work and legislation relating to highways.

MERCY SHIP SAILS JUNE 5.

A quarter of a million people, naked, starving, destitute, await the sailing from Los Angeles for Constantinople of the Dollar Line steamer Esther Dollar, otherwise termed Los Angeles' Ship of Succor. The 18,000-ton freighter will depart June 5.

That situation became known yesterday when F. L. Sims, executive secretary of the Near East Relief, announced that the Esther Dollar has been chartered to carry the Los Angeles quota of food, hospital and clothing supplies to the despairing people of Armenia and Syria.

Loading of the vessel will begin immediately after it docks June 4. Four million pounds of supplies will be lowered into the holds—supplies yet to be donated by a sympathetic public.

Excellent progress of the Near East Relief's campaign to fill this ship with first aid to suffering humanity was reported yesterday at the headquarters, 517 Wright and Callender Building. The quota which must be supplied and loaded into the freighter calls for 500 tons of clothing, 750 tons of beans, 500 tons of flour, 250 tons of sugar, dried fruit, canned fish and miscellaneous food, and large quantities of hospital equipment and supplies.

Confidence was expressed by Mr. Sims that the quota in each case would be subscribed, and perhaps oversubscribed, relying upon the sympathetic generosity, he said, he has seen expressed by Los Angeles in past missions of mercy.

Y. W. C. A. SOON TO START BUILDING.

Plans Completed for the First Six-Story Unit.

Structure to House Plunge and Gymnasium.

Construction to be Under Way Next Month.

Plans for the first unit of the group of structures to be erected by the Young Women's Christian Association on the west side of Figueroa street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, have been completed by Architect John J. Frauenfelder, and actual construction of the building, a six-story class A structure, will be started early next month, it is announced. The property, which extends through Figueroa to Cottage street, a distance of 347 feet, has already been cleared of buildings and trees, in preparation for the proposed building activities.

The first building to be erected will be known as the Health Unit, and will contain the athletic equipment, including one of the best equipped gymnasiums in the country. The plunge, adjoining the main building, will be covered over with a glass roof, making it almost as bright as an outdoor plunge. Dressing and locker rooms, showers, and drying rooms will be located on each floor of the building. The basement will contain a complete boiler room, with a capacity to supply not only the unit to be built now, but also the buildings to be erected in the future. In the engine room will be installed a complete electric light plant, a ventilating system, vacuum system, water heating system. The engine room will will also contain a water filtering, sterilizing and circulating system by which the water in the plunge can be changed and purified every twelve hours.

TURKISH BATH.

The first floor of the building is designed for a modern Turkish bath department, comprising a large lounge room, dressing and resting rooms, hot lounge, massage alcoves and electric, steam and hot water cabinets. This department will be so designed that patrons of the Turkish bath will have direct access to the plunge. This floor, also, will contain the reception and check rooms, the administration and general offices of the organization, and a hair-dressing department.

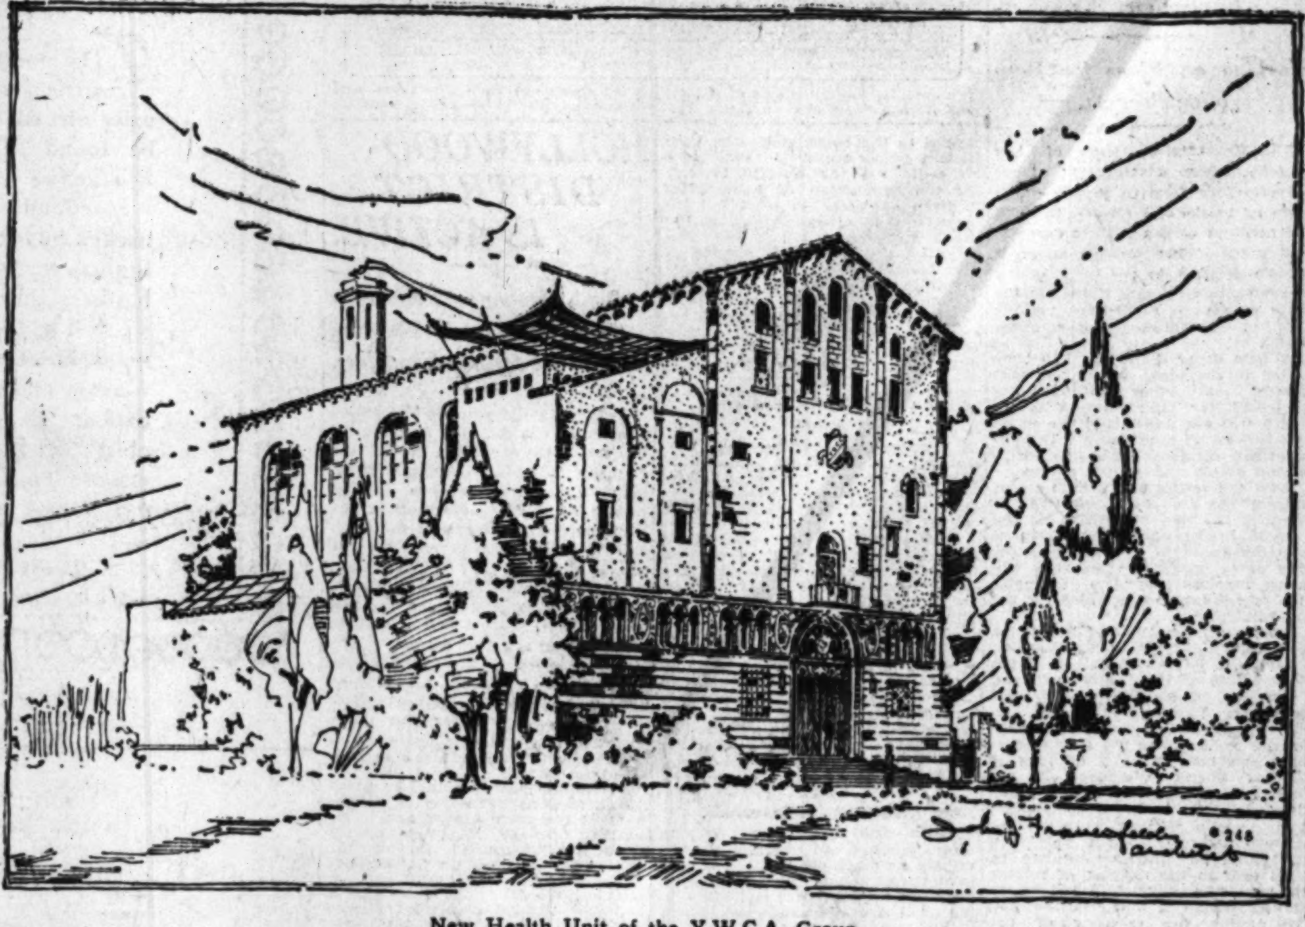
The second floor has been designed for a large cafeteria, with kitchens and a dining room large enough to accommodate 130 people. The spectators' gallery for the plunge will be accessible from this floor. The gymnasium instructor's room, examination room, showers and lockers will be situated on the third floor. According to the plans for the gymnasium, this room will have a clear height over the trusses of 25 feet, and will be 64x45 feet in dimensions, exclusive of the stage and the adjoining dressing rooms.

UPPER FLOORS.

The visitor's gallery, overlooking the gymnasium, will open from the fourth floor, which will also contain dressing rooms, private and public lockers, showers and social rooms. Basket ball, volley ball and tennis courts will be located on the two upper floors of the building, as well as rooms for other sports. Plans also provide for a large roof garden.

Fire protection has been provided through the construction of inclosed fireproof stairways and elevators of the most improved type. The exterior of the building has been designed in the Lombard-Romanesque type of architecture, which will also be employed in the additional units to be erected.

Fine Structure to House Women's Activities.



New Health Unit of the Y.W.C.A. Group.

Six-story Class A gymnasium building to be erected on Figueroa-street site by local organization; John J. Frauenfelder, architect.

EXPOSITION TO EDUCATE ON INDUSTRIAL FACTS.

Outside World Seems Most to Appreciate Los Angeles' Manufacturing Importance.

A. F. Osterloh, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of California, is also head of the Chamber of Commerce special committee on the industrial exposition to be held in Los Angeles this year, and is very enthusiastic over the advantages that will accrue to this city, if the exposition succeeds in giving even an approximate idea of the facts upon which the phenomenal development is based. The following statement of the case has his official indorsement and quotes Mr. Osterloh's expression of views to The Times on this project. He says:

"The industrial exposition to be thrown open to the world in Los Angeles, in August of this year, certainly for one week and possibly for two weeks, will be the first gun with national reverberations to be fired since the United States census, which showed that Los Angeles outstripped all the other Pacific Coast cities and ports in population, and which was the news sensation and headliner in the daily press and the economic magazines last fall.

"The other and even more surprising fact that Los Angeles has jumped from twenty-sixth place in manufactures in 1916 to tenth place in 1920 has not yet been brought home to our own people. It is no stretch of the truth to say that there is evident more appreciation in the eastern centers of production than right in our own official and unofficial citizenry of the place Los Angeles has already taken, and the still higher rank this city is destined to take, in manufactures, in wholesale distribution, in export and import commerce, and as the commercial headquarters for trade with the rehabilitated Mexico.

"It is to drive home this truth to our own manufacturers and distributors and broaden our own grasp of the facts, that the Chamber of Commerce has put its force behind the exposition project. It is to prove to this community the positive need of, and the tremendous advantages that will accrue from, the erection and maintenance of a central exposition hall in Los Angeles for frequent or continuous displays of our resources in raw materials and the products of our mills and factories and laboratories, that we propose to go ahead and make the bravest show we can with the best possible temporary resources in the way of buildings, instead of waiting for the perfect buildings whose erection the success of this year's exposition will inspire.

"The vision that spanned the continent with a network of steel rails; the vision that cut a waterway through the Isthmus of Panama; the vision that constructed an aqueduct across the Sierras to furnish water

Large Sum for Ground Lease in Hollywood.

An important realty transaction in Hollywood Boulevard frontage was announced yesterday by Strode & Gilbert, Vermont-avenue realty brokers. The transaction consisted of a ninety-nine-year lease on the southeast corner of Vermont avenue and Hollywood Boulevard, to Henry Laub and Frank L. Schaeffer for a total consideration of $600,000. Mr. Schaeffer was the former owner of the Theater de Luxe, recently taken over by the Turner and Dahnken interests. The property, owned by Ralph B. Lloyd, consists of two lots, with a total frontage of 171 feet on Vermont avenue, and 186 feet on Hollywood Boulevard. It is located in the center of a rapidly developing business district, opposite Olive Hill, where a large number of stores are to be erected by the owner, Miss Aline Barnsdall, and opposite the corner recently purchased by the Security Trust and Savings Bank as a site for a new branch bank building. No decision has been made by the lessees of the property as to the type of improvement, which will be made, and these plans will be deferred until the present leases on the property expire.

Extensive improvements are also being planned by Mr. Schaeffer on property owned by him adjoining the Theater de Luxe at Alvarado and Orange streets. Edwin Bergstrom, architect, is now drawing plans for a two-story structure to be erected on this property. The building will contain five stores on the first floor, while the second floor will be designed especially for small specialty shops.

MOVES TO SPRING STREET.

C. A. Peterson, local realty broker, formerly located at 222 South Broadway, has removed to larger quarters at 751 South Spring street. Associated with Mr. Peterson are W. F. Hostetter and F. G. Benzer.

BUILDING AGAIN SHOWS BIG GAIN.

Record of April, Largest in History of City, May be Exceeded This Month.

That the May building record of Los Angeles may exceed that of April, the record high month in the history of the city, is indicated in the figures compiled by the building department for the first two weeks of the present month. The number of permits issued shows a slight decrease, but the valuation exceeds that for the same period during April by almost $1,000,000. During the first two weeks of April 1275 permits, having a total valuation of $2,710,247, were taken out, while during the present month permits number 1186, with a valuation of $3,675,442.

The largest permit for the month, so far, was for the new University Club building, for which a permit for $425,000 was issued. The Security Trust and Savings Bank took out a permit for $310,000 for the new branch building now under construction at Hollywood Boulevard and Cahuenga avenue. Other permits for commercial structures ranged from $50,000 to $125,000. Residence construction continues at a normal rate, according to these figures, about 35 per cent of the number of permits being for this type of building.

Local Organization Now One of Largest in Country.

New Quarters Are Included in Present Year's Plans.

The Los Angeles Realty Board, as a result of the activity of the first four months of the present year, now takes its place among the largest organizations of this kind in the country. For several weeks an intensive membership drive has been under way, and through this drive 223 new applications for membership have been received. Final action in regard to the acceptance of these applications will be taken by the governing committee of the board early next week, and with the acceptance of these applications, the total membership of the board will exceed 600. This makes the local Realty Board the largest on the Pacific Coast, and among the largest in the country, being outranked only by New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Chicago. It is anticipated that this membership will be considerably augmented through a drive for associate members which is to be launched in the near future, and which will extend over a period of several weeks. Confidence is expressed by President Frank Ryan that this increase in membership, together with the active program which is to be launched and carried out this year, will make the local board one of the strongest in the country.

New members of the board will be received and welcomed into the organization at an informal smoker to be held on Thursday evening, May 26, at the Athletic Club. At this meeting, although of an informal nature, plans for the program for the remainder of the year will be explained by Frank Ryan and other officials of the board, and the new program will be officially launched.

NEW QUARTERS.

Among the plans on this program will be the acquisition by the Realty Board of larger and more adequate quarters. The present quarters of the organization in the Realty Board Building have been outgrown, and it is hoped to complete arrangements in the near future whereby more room can be obtained. For the present, it is understood, the board will lease other quarters, but it is hoped to erect its own building later. According to present plans, the new quarters will house the executive officers of the board, and will contain a large banquet room, with kitchens, director's rooms, map rooms, conference rooms and committee rooms.

It is planned also to inaugurate and maintain a complete map and address service, which will be available to all members of the board. Detailed index maps, with reference numbers showing the location of all properties in Los Angeles, will be compiled, and an address service, showing every property transfer in the city, will be made and kept up-to-date. New uniform legal forms, relating to all branches of the real estate business, are to be drawn up and generally adopted by local realtors, also.

Plans are now being laid for sending a large delegation of Los Angeles realtors to the national convention of Real Estate Boards, which is to be held in Chicago from July 12 to 15, inclusive. It is expected that Los Angeles will send a delegation of at least thirty men, and it is hoped that a delegation of fifty can be sent. Among those who will represent the local board at the national convention will be Frank Ryan, president of the board, S. Ross Fenner, secretary, and William May Garland, chairman of the committee which is making arrangement for the local delegation to the convention.

REFRACTORIES WIN WIDE FAME.

Development of the Electric Furnace Gives Lead.

Additions to Plant Are Continuous and Big.

Working on Plans for Doubling Product.

The Vitrefrax Company of Los Angeles, whose development of superrefractory furnace linings in the form of bricks and shapes, through the medium of the electric furnace, was noted a few months ago, is rapidly forging to the front in the per-refractory furnace linings in the geles product is more than making good in the furnace and smelting world.

A new dryer building has been added to the plant within the past month, and other buildings are projected for the near future which will put under roof the entire two-and-a-half-acre tract which the Vitrefrax company owns at Fifty-second street and Pacific avenue.

New tempering and grinding machinery has also been installed for treating the raw materials for the present bricks, shapes and furnace cements produced by this company. The new buildings projected will house machinery for an extensive line of refractory specialties for the steel industry.

Last week saw the first firing of a new kiln of 50,000 bricks capacity, insuring a daily output of about 6000 bricks of the "Vitrefrax" and "Pyrolon" grades produced by this company. This new kiln is of special design with down draft, with special reference to the electric-furnace products perfected by Thomas Stanley Curtis, president of the Vitrefrax company, and also president of the Curtis Engineering Company, which is now at work on designs and plans for a new type of tunnel or continous kiln to be used only in the making of refractories. This tunnel kiln will be installed within a few months and will double the capacity of the plant.

The Curtis Engineering Company has just secured the Pacific Coast agency for the Booth electric furnaces, for steel and brass melting, and will make Los Angeles the Coast headquarters, from which branch agencies will be administered at San Francisco and Seattle. The establishment of headquarters here is virtual recognition of this city's leadership in the steel and brass trades, and will have important bearing, says Mr. Curtis, on future development of these industries at this port.

TO ESTABLISH BRANCH.

Mr. Curtis left yesterday on a two-weeks' motor trip to San Francisco and Seattle, where he will establish agencies for the Vitrefrax Company's product and for the Booth furnaces. He also expects to negotiate a contract during this trip with one of the largest oil refiners of the State, for the use exclusively of Vitrefrax linings, which, if concluded, will absorb the entire present capacity of the plant and make necessary the hurried completion of the extensions already referred to.

The Vitrefrax Company is among the most important industrial enterprises of Los Angeles, by reason of the fact that it is the first and only maker in the United States of super-refractories by means of the electric furnace. The company and its product are the subject of interest to the furnace users of the country, in this way indirectly giving this city wide advertising that will be a spur to smelting and furnace developments in Southern California.

The formation and development of this important adjunct to the steel industry is a tribute to the broad and liberal spirit in which the local leaders are going about the business of bringing genius and capital to the Southland. Mr. Curtis is a young technician who knew he could use the electric furnace for the production of refractories if given a chance to work out his ideas. Other cities gave him the usual turn-dawn but in Los Angeles he was given his chance at the research laboratories of the Alberhill Coal and Clay Company, demnstrated his theories, and local capital lost no time in getting behind the enterprise. Now, he is busy establishing branch offices in the cities that turned him down.

FACT AND COMMENT.

structures built on the same principle, while the latest to enter the field in New York is an office building of thirty-six stories.

Unquestionably these apartments offer many advantages to people who do not wish to undertake the care and burden of a home. The wise investor, of course, will investigate any such proposition carefully, before he signs on the dotted line, but once satisfied that the promoters of the project are reliable, that he has been adequately safeguarded as to title and ownership, and that any possible financial loss to himself has been reduced to a minimum, there is no reason why the seeker after this type of home should not avail himself of the opportunity.

More Than Numbers Necessary.

While Los Angeles is forging ahead toward a population of a million or more people, its civic organizations which are striving so vigorously toward this end are taking on a size and proportion which places them far ahead, in point of numbers, of similar bodies in cities many times larger than Los Angeles. Although Los Angeles is officially conceded tenth place in population, it has for some time had a Chamber of Commerce larger and more active than those of the cities several times larger than our own.

The latest organization to forbe ahead into a commanding position is the Los Angeles Realty Board, which is now among the largest in the country, easily holding fifth place, according to a reliable estimate. The local board now has the weight and influence of numbers, and it needs only the adoption of an aggressive, constructive program to make it one of the leading factors in the development of the community. Mere numbers will accomplish little, but numbers plus ideas for the general betterment of conditions in the Southland, for civic advancement and improvement, and for advancing in all quarters of the country the advertising, propaganda, or whatever one may choose to call it, that Los Angeles' weadth is not represented solely by sunshine and climate, will do much toward carrying the city toward the million mark in population. Herein lies the key to the success of the big local organization, and it is encouraging to note that members and leading factors in the board are fully alive to the fact that a lively, forward-looking program must be adopted—and carried out.

HOME BUILDING ACTIVE IN PLYMOUTH SQUARE.

New homes to the value of more than $90,000 are now under construction in Plymouth Square, the attractive Wilshire subdivision recently opened by Peoples and Thomas, according to the subdividers of the tract. Among those who are now building new homes in this tract are the following: M. E. Burger, 920 Burck Place, $6200; J. L. McIlree, corner of Plymouth Boulevard and Tenth street, $8900; Charles Borgell, 1010 Plymouth Boulevard $8500; S. M. Cooper, 1043 Plymouth Boulevard, $12,500; Frank Heil, 1020 Burck Place, $5900; E. G. Palmer, 1024 Burck Place, $7700; B. P. Priwer, 926 Burck Place, $6800; R. B. Lawrence, 914 Plymouth Boulevard, $7600; C. Entenman, 1025 Burck Place, $10,000; H. M. Green, 901 Plymouth Boulevard, $7300. In addition, plans for ten other homes are now being prepared, and when these plans are completed, construction will be started. The majority of the lots in the new tract have been sold, according to the subdividers, and it is expected that the remaining lots will be sold in the near future.

EXCHANGE TO MAKE HEADQUARTERS HERE.

Through arrangements recently completed by the California Honey Producers' Co-operative Exchange, practically the entire honey output of California will be handled through Los Angeles. The exchange, which includes in its membership large producers on the Pacific Coast as far north as Oregon, had acquired under lease a warehouse containing 25,000 square feet of floor space at 1275-77 East Sixth street. The building, which is served by a spur track, has facilities for the manufacture, repacking and shipping of honey. Offices are now being built, and machinery and equipment installed. The leasing of the property was handled through the sales and leasing department of the W. Ross Campbell Company.

LARGE ACREAGE IN CHINO HILLS SOLD.

The Campbell-Joralmon Company reports the following recent sades, aggregating in value $499,000, in the Chino Hills: 2800 acres to F. F. Pellissier of Whittier; 40 acres to Dr. George F. McDermitt; 1600 acres to S. P. Kraemer and Edward Backs; 338 acres to S. Kraemer, and 138 acres to H. G. Witte. The same company also reports the sale of alfalfa ranches in the Chino valley as follows: 182 acres to Gilbert Kraemer; 40 acres to Gene Escalier; 40 acres to Harry Shekel. The total purchase price of these alfalfa properties was approximately $96,000.

HOLLYWOOD DISTRICT IS ACTIVE.

Bank Statement Shows a Sharp Increase in Building and in Property Transfers.

Building activity in the Hollywood district of Los Angeles, as analyzed by the Hollywood branch of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, shows a decided increase for the month of April, according to the monthly financial letter of the institution. "Building permits for the month of April," says this statement, "show an increase of seventy-two in number of permits issued, with a total of 181. Most of these again this month are for homes. The value as given in the permits for April totaled $902,731 which is an increase of approximately $100,000. Several large buildings and many new homes are being planned which will probably make May a record-breaking month.

"Building materials are reported to an average decrease of 25 per cent of the price a year ago. No marked change in price up or down has been noted during the past thirty days, but the demand has registered a decided stiffening, so that a gradual increase is in sight. It is interesting to notice that despite lower costs of labor and materials, the value of new buildings begun this month was greater for the month of April than any month except August and September of last year.

"Our escrow department shows an increase of approximately 30 per cent over last month's business. The demand in this locality has been for income property. An estimate of 75 per cent of the escrows handled through this department are on this kind of property, the balance being distributed on vacant residential property and homes already completed. There has been no decrease in the valuation of either residential or income property. Advancement has continued more on income property than residential.

"These facts point to a continued and increasing prosperity in this locality."

SHARP REDUCTION IN HOUSE PRICES MADE.

ALADDIN COMPANY, MAKERS OF READY CUT HOMES REVISE SCHEDULE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAY CITY (Mich.) May 14.—The Aladdin Company have announced a drastic cut in the price of ready-cut homes. According to O. E. Sovereign, general manager, the 1920 peak prices for Aladdin homes ranged from 40 per cent to 70 per cent higher than the prices in effect now.

"In making the sharp cut that we have in the price of Aladdin homes," states Mr. Sovereign, "we are taking a loss of $500,000 on high-priced lumber stocks alone which were purchased by our four mills, in Bay City, Mich., Portland, Or., Wilmington, N. C., and Hattiesburg Miss., when lumber was high last year. We are taking this loss to meet wholesale lumber market conditions today. It is possible to purchase lumber for $6 a thousand feet less than it actually costs to produce it. Lath which last year went as high as $18 a thousand, can now be purchased for $3.50 a thousand. This illustrates how some building materials have droped. These are some of the factors which have enabled us to greatly reduce the cost of building a home."

Mr. Sovereign recently completed a tour of the entire country studying the housing shortage. "In Los Angeles," he states, "I found real estate men, bankers and civic authorities deeply concerned with the housing problem. It is estimated that there is an existing shortage of nearly 2,000,000 homes and that between ten and twelve million people are living in discomfort as the result of it."

The Aladdin company is the originator of the readi-cut type of construction. During the past fifteen years their houses have been erected in nearly every county of every State in the Union.

AID PLEDGED TO CAMPAIGN.

Northern California Drive is Indorsed by Local Men.

Plan California Exhibit at the National Convention.

Large Delegation Will Go from Western States.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OAKLAND, May 14.—Hearty indorsement of the booster movement to advertise Northern and Central California to the world, was given this week by W. I. Hollingsworth, realtor of Los Angeles; Clif C. C. Tatum of Los Angeles, first vice-president, and Dr. Herman Janss, director, of the California Real Estate Association.

Declaring that two horses could pull together better than singly, Mr. Hollingsworth, who is past vice-president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said that the State-wide campaign of the San Francisco and Los Angeles sections would be the effective means of diverting tens of thousands of new immigration to the Golden State. Los Angeles joins hands with San Francisco in this grand work of selling California, Mr. Hollingsworth said.

Los Angeles will help San Francisco land the 1922 national convention of realtors, Mr. Hollingsworth stated. Plans were laid at a meeting of the Oakland real estate board of directors before whom Hollingsworth and Tatum spoke Wednesday, for a California exhibit at the national real estate convention in Chicago July 12-15. The cost of this exhibit would be borne by the counties participating. Los Angeles is ready to join with Alameda and San Francisco and other countaies in this work. More than 7500 realtors will go to Chicago, including a solid special train from California, which will leave from San Francisco about July 7 or 8, meeting the Northwest special train at Salt Lake City. The two trains will hook up and go into Chicago as a solid western wedge determined to bring the East's attention to the West and our problems of immigration, reclamation and irrigation.

The national convention for San Francisco next year seems certain, Mr. Hollingsworth said. Advices from the East indicate that Baltimore, the probable chief competitor, is not decided whether to bid for the convention. With it will come 10,000 realtors to spend their vacation in the State they have long desired to visit. It will be the most effective advertising unit that has ever visited California, Fred E. Reed, president of the California Real Estate Association, said.

Bergstrom Made Director of National Institute; Medal Awarded Reginald Johnson.

Word was received yesterday by H. F. Withey, vice-president of the Southern California Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, that Edwin Bergstrom, president of the local chapter, has been elected to the board of directors of the national organization of the American Institute of Architects. This action was taken at the convention of the organization now being held in Washington, D. C. Mr. Bergstrom will hold office in the national organization for a period of two years. In addition to his position as the executive head of the local chapter, Mr. Bergstrom is also the chairman of the joint committee of Technical Societies of Los Angeles and a member of the Los Angeles Art Commission.

H. H. Kendall of Boston, recently a visitor to Los Angeles, was reelected to the office of president of the national organization, while William B. Faville of San Francisco, was elected first vice-presidnt, and R. B. Pohn of New York, second vice-president.

The Southern California delegation to the convention at Washington included Edwin Bergstrom, R. Germain Hubby, Octavius Morgan, John Parkinson, Robert H. Orr and R. Requa of San Diego. A formal invitation was extended by the Southern California delegation to the organization to hold the 1922 convention in Los Angeles, and, according to advices received from Washington, the invitation was very favorably received. The decision as to where the next convention will be held, however, will not be made for several months.

The Los Angeles chapter also sent an exhibit of several hundred photographs and drawings to the convention at Washington. Reginald D. Johnson, Pasadena architect, was awarded the gold medal for the D. F. Paxton residence of Pasadena, designed by him. Awards of five medals were made. The Paxton residence was adjudged one of the ten most meritorious examples of architecture in Southern California at the exhibit held here by the Southern California chapter about a year ago.

One of Most Important Industrial Transactions of the Present Year.

An important industrial transaction was completed on Friday of last week, presaging further manufacturing development in the southern section, where activity is so vigorous that it becomes increasingly difficult to keep pace with the progress of production plans.

The property in question embraces about eighteen and one-half acres or a total of 808,170 square feet, located on the west side of Santa Fe avenue, at Fiftieth street, with a frontage of 330 feet on Santa Fe and running through to Alameda street, a distance of 2432 feet, where it is served by the tracks of the Southern Pacific Railroad, the Harbor Boulevard, and the 5-cent fare of the Los Angeles Traction Company on Santa Fe avenue. The consideration was $175,000.

The property was sold by the American Building Company, represented by the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, to Willis G. Hunt, president of the Pioneer Paper Company, which owns and operates a large paper plant only a short distance south of the new purchase. This is known as the company's plant No. 1 and is confined to the production of roofing papers. Two other plants for making paraffined papers and fruit wrappers are maintained in the downtown industrial section, and it is the growth of demand for the products of these plants, that makes the acquisition of the new property an anchor to windward, in view of the rapid rise in values of industrial acreage. The site is surrounded by such mammoth plants as the American Can Company, Union Iron Works, Globe Cottonseed Mills and others of similar caliber.

W. H. Daum, specialist in industrial sites and locations, represented both parties to this transaction. No announcement relating to the improvements of the property is authorized at the present time.

HOLLYRIDGE PARK
THE BEAUTIFUL

All boulevards lead to Hollywood, and

HOLLYRIDGE PARK is only three blocks north of Hollywood boulevard on Bronson avenue.

HOLLYRIDGE PARK may also be reached by Cheremoya Avenue and the northerly portion of HOLLYRIDGE PARK may be reached by Beachwood Drive to Virigina or Vienna Drives, then east a short distance.

Come to HOLLYRIDGE PARK, Sunday or any other time and see what we have and how easy of access these homesites are from the drives.

HOLLYRIDGE PARK restrictions are single residences only and the prices and terms are very reasonable, considering the fact that street improvements, water, gas, electricity and sewer will all be paid for by the tract owners. No assessments, any other statements notwithstanding.

HOLLYRIDGE PARK maps and price lists may be had at either office and you will not be disturbed if you wish to go over the tract alone, or take maps with you.

HOLLYRIDGE PARK lots all have wide frontage, therefore one will not be shut in. Most lots have eighty or more feet of street frontage. This feature alone is well worth your investigation.

Look HOLLYRIDGE PARK over and form a mental picture of how it will appear with its large lots with residences placed here and there.

Then imagine these residences surrounded with shrubbery and flowers. Make a study of some particular lot and note the transformation.

We will assist you in any way. Come any time and as often as you wish.

VITALIZE WATER WITH OXYGEN.

A California Industry in Liquid Ozone.

Establishes Method of Oxygen Saturation.

Is Planning for World-Wide Distribution.

A Los Angeles infant industry, of whose ultimate national and international importance local capitalists are sufficiently assured to impel them to invest a total of $350,000 in two local corporations for its development, is the supersaturation of water with free oxygen, to the extent of five-and-a-half times its normal oxygen content, and the world-wide distribution of this beverage under the trade name of "Aquazone," or "Oxygen-Water," on which names patents have been issued, while patents on the processes are pending.

The processes of oxidizing water were invented in 1917, and local capital to the extent of more than $25,000 has been spent since that time in laboratory research and proving efforts, through medical societies and health boards—city, State and national—until indorsement has been won from scientific men and preparations are now going forward to secure wide distribution of the vitalized water.

So many efforts to secure fluid saturation of oxygen have failed, that it had come to be regarded as impossible, and skepticism met this enterprise at every turn; but so sure was the inventor and so impressed were his backers with the value of the invention to the world, that patent work has been constantly aimed at demonstrating the facts to the satisfaction of food and medical scientists, for years; until recognition has come and at the present time no less than 350 physicians in Southern California indorse its value, a dozen or so of hospitals have adopted it, and national recognition is in sight.

The Aquazone Laboratories Company, Inc., has been formed, with a capital of $250,000, as a parent company to administer the patents and supervise the creation of State, zone and national organizations to produce and bottle the oxygen waters in limited territories, so as to avoid the freight costs for transportation from a single producing center; thus bringing it to the consumer at a uniform price.

FIRST COMPANY FORMED.

The first of the local or subsidiary companies has been formed here, under the name of the Southern California Aquazone Company, with a capital of $100,000. This company has established laboratories and a bottling plant at 3410 South Main street, with 3500 feet of floor space. Here they have installed the Barronite system of filtration in connection with the laboratory process for oxygenating the water, and a modern, continuous plant for sterilizing, filling, capping and labeling the bottles. This plant has a capacity of 500 cases per day of eight hours, and began operations May 1, being forced to secure these larger quarters after only six months' operation in a smaller plant on West Sixteenth street.

With the establishment of plants in other parts of the country, under the supervision of the parent company in this city, the output of the local plant will be restricted to Southern California, but the fame of the Oxygen Water has been carried abroad by the tourists who found it here, and orders are coming in from many distant points in the United States and Canada, which will be filled from here, pending construction of plants in nearer localities.

It is proposed to push the formation of subsidiary plants in every State and in foreign countries, all to operate under rights secured from the parent company in this city, and all to credit Los Angeles as the source of their production rights, so that this city will become widely advertised for another beverage product.

Officers of the Southern California Aquazone Company are: Ben O. L. Wright, president; E. E. Norton of the Long Beach Trust and Savings Bank, vice-president, and R. T. Williams, secretary-treasurer and general manager.

Austin Company Low Bidder on Harbor Plant.

Work on the new steel warehouse and wharfage structure at the harbor for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, will likely be started in a very short time. The piling and substructure is now being put in, under the supervision of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, and only unforeseen contingencies can delay completion of the superstructure, which is designed to be ready for the Pacific Mail steamers during next September.

The plans call for a steel building, 120 by 480 feet, with all modern installations for cargo handling, loading and discharge. Bids were publicly opened in the offices of the Harbor Commissioners on the eleventh of May, the lowest bid being made by the Austin Company ($48,990,) which company established Pacific Coast headquarters in Los Angeles in January of the present year.

The Austin Company has several other industrial building plans under way for erection in Los Angeles and Southern California.

PLANS FOR HOTEL.

Arrangements have been made with the Schofield Construction Company for the erection of the $2,500,000 hotel on the A. G. Bartlett property at Vista del Mar street and Hollywood Boulevard. Plans for the building are now being prepared by Dodd and Richards, architects.

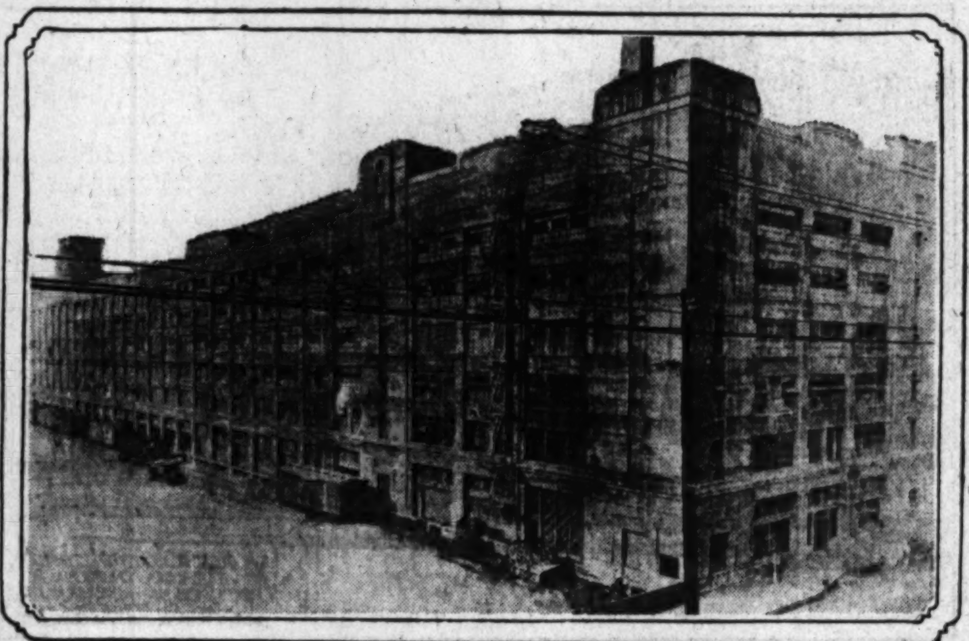
Scene of Coming Business Show.



New Million-Dollar Unit of Wholesale Union Terminal.
Now nearing completion, where the business show is to be held.

BUSINESS SHOW WILL EDUCATE.

for three millions of people; the vision that saw the harbor and has made a brave beginning on the future world port; the vision that is adding 50,000 horsepower a year to drive the machinery that is coming in at an even greater rate for factories and farms; all have been proved in what has already been accomplished, as shown by the census.

SHOW OUR PRODUCTS.

"This first trades exposition, to be staged next August, is to show the world what we are producing. It will show how far the visions have been worked out up to date. It will prove that the center of gravity for western trade extension is fixed in Southern California. It will illustrate the fact that industry is gravitating to this point. And it will stimulate this gravitation, in proportion to the support and enthusiasm with which we who are here show the world what we have.

"We are fortunate in having 350,000 square feet of floor space in the seven floors of the new Terminal Building, which is generously donated to the cause by the Union Terminal Building Company, at our disposal for this year's exposition. It is inadequate, but we will make the most of it. It is important that every industry shall be clearly represented and that space occupied shall be commensurate with the trade importance of the industry. The Chamber of Commerce as a whole and the exposition committee as its instrument is alive to the immediate effect this event will have on trade development and industrial expansion, and is giving time and effort that merits heartiest support of every industrial and commercial concern doing business in Los Angeles.

"Manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, buyers and shippers from all over the United States and from many foreign countries are to be invited—and urged, if necessary—to come and see with their own eyes what we have done and are doing; what we are making and our means of distribution; how nature has favored us and how we are taking advantage of our favored situation to supply the world with the things it needs and will need in the future years.

ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN.

"Advertising matter is ready for mailing, and from now until the date of the exposition every piece of commercial mail from this city can help, without cost, by inclosing invitations to visit Los Angeles during exposition week. It will be the privilege of every business concern in the city to supplement in this way the general advertising that will be done in newspapers and periodicals by the Chamber of Commerce.

"Commercial and industrial tourists are for the first time to be invited to come here for business reasons; to learn how they can help their business through the factories and manufactured products of the tenth industrial city, as well as through the agricultural products of America's richest county. No matter what the expenditure for advertising, the results—the quick returns—will prove it the best investment ever made for trade development.

"The census and the 'white spot' reports of the National Chamber of Commerce have set the country talking and wondering about Los Angeles. This is the 'psychological moment' to turn this talking and wondering into business visiting, and the industrial exposition is the instrument for making the turn. This is the time for every industrial and commercial institution in the city and in Southern California to come to the scratch, with every ounce of help it can give to the enterprise."

PROGRESS OF PLANS.

The general and subcommittees of the Chamber of Commerce are making very satisfactory progress, report enthusiasm increasing, and express confidence in a success much larger than the facilities would appear to warrant.

An elaborate advertising campaign is to begin at once in newspapers, magazines, trade papers and direct-by-mail letters and circulars under the direction of the publicity subcommittee, headed by Henry W. Louis. This committee has also prepared inclosures for general mailing purposes, which can be secured at the Chamber of Commerce, and which they urge all Los Angeles business concerns to use constantly in their correspondence for the next two months. Cuts are prepared for imprinting on envelopes and stationery, advertising the exposition. All local correspondents are urged to have their envelopes carry these announcements.

The display committee, headed by Frank S. Coates, finds its greatest handicap in the limited space available, most of it being already bespoken and allotted. It is hoped to find space for every form of local industry and it follows that in some cases it will be insufficient to meet the wishes of the industries.

METAL TRADES.

The great steel, machinery and metal trades, with their heavy installations, have been allotted the entire first floor, and will overflow to the sixth floor, sharing the latter floor with miscellaneous manufactures. The surprises which can be sprung by such concerns as the Union Tool Company, Baker Iron Works, Llewellyn Iron Works, Southern California Iron and Steel Company, Rich Steel Products Company, Fulton Engine Works, and the host of other manufacturers of light and heavy machinery, tools, auto parts and accessories, etc., will be as interesting to the people of Southern California as they will be eye-openers to the manufacturers of the East, of whom many still regard the Mississippi as the frontier of industrial civilization.

The textile trades, garment and clothing industries and wholesale dry goods interests have signed for the entire second floor, and so eager is the demand for space that many will be obliged to demonstrate the truth that the "best goods are shown in small spaces." The furniture manufacturers have contracted for the entire third floor, and, encouraged by the success of their own exhibition last fall, are making preparations on a scale that will make even Grand Rapids sit up and take notice that the Pacific Coast is a present competitor and potential successor of that city in furniture production and distribution.

Foods, beverages and their allied trades have been assigned the entire fifth floor, and here again the world is to be shown much with which it has not yet familiarized itself, in the way of food specialties and novelties produced in Southern California "from the soil to the table" without eastern intervention at any stage of the process.

The seventh floor is being held in reserve for overflow and emergency disposition, but here will be grouped rest rooms, entertainment features, lectures, and novelties in the way of thrills, on which specialists are at work to demonstrate that, at least in California, there are "many things new under the sun."

This exposition is to be as much of a liberal economic education for the entire commercial United States as the limited time and space can make it; and it is hoped that it will educate Los Angeles to the meaning of industrial expansion and the need of an exposition building worthy the present tenth industrial and commercial city of the American Continent. Such a building must be provided. Either private capital or the municipality could make it a profitable investment; and as soon as the lessons from this year's show can be assimilated, plans must be laid for the larger and more comprehensive expositions of future years.

ONTARIO ORGANIZING NEW COUNTRY CLUB.

NEGOTIATIONS UNDER WAY FOR LEASING LAND FROM WATER COMPANY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, May 14.—Establishment in the near future of the Red Hill Country Club in connection with the new Sycamore Hotel, now nearing completion between this city and Cucamonga, was declared practically assured today following the completion of preliminary arrangements for leasing land from the Cucamonga Water Company for an eighteen-hole golf course and the assurance of the hotel management that a portion of the hostelry would be fitted with lockers, showers and the like for the use of club members.

Albert L. Swift of Alta Loma Rancho, who is something of a golf enthusiast, is one of the prime movers in the new project and has already secured the services of an expert golf architect, who has declared the Red Hill section ideal for the establishment of a high-grade course, which it is said can be put in for between $20,000 and $30,000.

Among others who are taking an active interest in the new country club project are Glenn D. Smith, Gilbert Pearsall, H. E. Swan, Dr. Frank M. Taylor, Harold Latimer, J. S. Ingalls, Leonard B. Fowler, Ward Walker, Jesse W. Heinecke, John S. Armstrong, J. D. Howe and others.

The club will serve Ontario, Upland, Alta Loma, Cucamonga, Claremont, Etiwanda and other near-by communities, and it is believed that 200 members can be secured at once. It will undoubtedly prove a great asset to Ontario and will, it is believed, attract many wealthy tourists here for the winter season.

He has purchased a seven-room house at 922 East Chestnut street from C. E. Noble. Among other recent transactions here are the following: John J. Drake to Mrs. A. Caseman, residence at 710 South Van Ness; O. A. West to V. E. Maynard, residence at 1024 West Third; Mrs. Hobard to Jesse Smith, new six-room residence at 2129 North Broadway; V. E. Maynard to O. A. West, new bungalow at 439 South Garnsey.

PLANS ARE ACCEPTED FOR SCHOOL.

Bond Election to be Held on May 20 for Fine Structure for Porterville.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, May 14.—The board of trustees of the Porterville Union High School have accepted the plans of Coates & Traver of Fresno for a new high school building, for which bonds will be voted May 20, the issue being for the sum of $365,000.

The main building, to cost approximately $270,000, is designed to face north, with its principal elevation on the Olive-street highway. Ornamental driveway and approaches lead to the main entrance. The structure will follow the classic style of architecture, with a portico of Ionic columns thirty-five feet high as the main entrance feature, which will be flanked with a pilaster treatment, with a pavilion at each end. The frontage is 320 feet. In construction and appointment the building will be complete and modern in all respects. It will be two stories high, the frame work is to be of reinforced concrete columns and girders, with floor slabs and stairways of the same material, producing a fireproof building. The exterior walls will be of masonry finished with cement and case ornament.

The auditorium is designed to seat 1250, and will have a complete stage, moving-picture booth and balcony, modeled along the lines of an up-to-date theater. In addition to thirteen regular classrooms there is a library, two study halls, students' affairs rooms, dramatic rooms, rest rooms, printing and binding rooms, complete commercial department and administration offices.

In the home economics, music and arts wing there will be a model cooking-room, pantry, and a cafeteria. The science wing contains laboratories for physics, chemistry, biology, general science and agriculture, with large lecture halls on each floor, supply rooms, classrooms, etc. The corridors are designed so that the students' lockers will be distributed along the walls. To the rear of the main building will be a separate gymnasium and technical shops.

The athletic field will be arranged on the south portion of the twenty-five acres of land, and will contain a football field, and a baseball diamond, surrounded by a quarter-mile running track.

REPORT PROGRESS ON APARTMENT PROJECT.

Excellent progress is being made on the new Ambassador Court Apartments, to be erected at the corner of Fifth and Catalina streets by the Apartment-House Investment Company, according to officials of the company. The structure, to be four stories in height, and of Spanish architecture, will cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. The property on which it is to be erected was recently purchased from Mrs. Pauline Schmidt for a consideration of $50,000. Financing of the project will be accomplished through the sale of a limited amount of stock, totaling 1500 shares, at a par value of $100 per share. It is estimated that the annual rental on the building, based upon a rental of $25 per month per room, will amount to $61,680.

Officers of the company include Charles R. Desmond, president, builder and operator of apartment-houses for the past eleven years, and publisher of an apartment-house trade journal; Arthur C. Ebert, vice-president, owner and manager of the Waverley Apartments; Clarence W. Horn, secretary, public accountant and head of the Northwest Improvement Association; Otto H. Mueller, treasurer, owner and manager of the Paulsen Apartments, and Hon. Harry Lyons, attorney, member of the California State Legislature.

HOLLYWOOD-WILSHIRE SALES.

The Edwards and Wildey Company report the following recent sales of houses erected by their own construction department: To Harry A. Baker, bungalow at the northeast corner of Kenmore and Willowbrook, $15,000; J. E. Heber, ten-room colonial residence at 933 South Bronson, $15,000; Harry W. May Hold Own Your Own Home Exhibit Here.

Los Angeles may have its first annual own your home exposition this summer. Plans outlining such an exposition were proposed in a communication received yesterday by Victor Girard, subdivider of Walnut Park and West Adams Place, from Robert H. Sexton, managing director of a national association which has just held a successful exposition of this kind in New York City. Mr. Girard had at that exposition an exhibit of the modernized adobe homes which he has erected at Walnut Park and West Adams Place. According to Mr. Sexton, these unique homes attracted wide attention at the New York show because they represented distinctive types of Southern California small homes. They were given a conspicuous place, and were viewed by thousands of visitors.

"We had on exhibition," said Mr. Sexton, "some 1200 designs submitted in the national small home competition by architects from all parts of the United States. The exposition was visited by tens of thousands of people, who were taught the rudiments of home building."

Should the plans for the proposed Los Angeles exposition be successful, architects, builders, landscape architects, material dealers, house furnishing firms, decorators and manufacturers from all parts of Southern California will be asked to participate with exhibits. The object of the exposition is to give the public accurate information concerning the costs and details of home building.

"They told of the necessity for the government to act, or the necessity they would be under of starting their own steamship lines, if necessary, to ply to this port from Jacksonville.

CABBAGE, SPINACH DEALERS.

"There were present dealers in Charleston cabbage who have faced the tragedy this spring of selling cabbage for $1.50 per crate of thirty-six heads, when the freight rate alone on this cabbage came to $1.47. They saw in the unloading of this food ship, with its cargo in fine condition and its schedule up to that of the railroads, practically a new ray of light for food producers.

"There were present, also, dealers in Texas spinach, who had been forced to sell spinach for 75 cents per hamper on which the express rate alone was 90 cents per hamper.

"These people, who had been petitioning Washington and telling folks hereabouts that the end of cheap food was in sight for New York, since the bulk crops were being left on the farms for the hogs and chickens to eat, saw in the ship from Los Angeles something, too, of more than a promise of reform.

"There were anxious students of every phase of the packing and ventilating of this shipment. In the first food ship, the Liberator, which reached here three weeks ago, the cargo had partly spoiled for lack of ventilating.

VENTILATING IMPROVED.

"In this ship powerful suction fans kept the air moving, while cleats an inch wide separated each tier of boxes from its neighbors.

"This plan spelled complete success. Then, since the owners of the cargo were growers of the fruit, they had a keen interest in the unloading, which had never been the case with the unloading of previous cargoes.

"The result was a drastic revolution in methods. The age-old sailorman's sling, which came zooming up from the ship's hold with the contents of broken crates streaming back into the hold as the sling arose under the power of winch and tackle, was no more.

"In its place was a rigid cage with a solid bottom and sides which could not force any undue pressure against the bottom boxes.

NO UNLOADING BREAKAGE.

"A cargo unloaded practically without breakage, for the first time in the history of the unloading of fruit cargoes, was the result.

"The new unloading cage was 'invented' a very few hours after agents of the fruit growers and owners saw what the ancient sling method was doing to the first food ship's cargo.

"The 2000 boxes of oranges and the 11,500 boxes of lemons comprising this cargo will be auctioned to dealers next Monday afternoon.

"If they sell at the prevailing prices they should keep oranges plentiful at a retail price of not over 40 cents per dozen, and lemons plentiful to the point of a glutted market at from 15 to 25 cents per dozen.

"The heretofore neglected harbor of Los Angeles, which has been mostly known as the point where pleasure-seeking Californians took the boat for Catalina Island, has now a schedule of food ships for New York, which means that most of the railroad tonnage will be taken away from the railroads.

"News received here which cheered the food handlers almost as much as the arrival of the C. H. Cramp came by cable from London.

"It was that the first Los Angeles food ship for London had arrived in fine shape with a cargo of perishable food in perfect condition. It was food that always heretofore has gone by rail from Los Angeles to New York, to be transshipped here for England. Again this trade route was opened as a phase of the food growers' fight on impossible freights."

2000 Barrel Wells Common at Breckenridge

The completion of the new well producing 1000 to 4000 barrels creates only mild excitement at Breckenridge. It has been of so frequent occurrence the significance of it is accepted quietly. With more than 1000 producing wells statistics show that 96% of the wells drilled in this field have been good producers.

1000 Paying Wells

AVERAGE flush production, 1000 barrels; AVERAGE monthly dividends from fourteen representative Breckenridge Syndicates, 223%. There are wells at Breckenridge that have come in at ten, eleven and seventeen thousand barrels—many of them. There are syndicates that have paid $200, $260,$340 and $1000 per month to $100 unit holders.

Such production, such dividends, common at Breckenridge, which yields 14% of all the oil produced in the United States, is unknown in other districts.

You can share in Breckenridge oil wells without buying stock. H. & S. Units offer you an opportunity to actually share in the wealth Breckenridge is producing. H. & S. has 40 acres in the Breckenridge South Bend Extension. Each H. & S. Unit Holder will get one barrel out of every 1150 barrels the Syndicate receives from its entire 40-acre tract. Checks every month to each unit holder for his share of the oil produced.

We own and offer a limited number of H. & S. units at $100 each. Call, phone or write for Foster's Breckenridge Reporter with latest authentic news from the field.

Wanted Mechanical Engineer

To take full charge of manufacturing and assembling plant. Able to invest. Address F. box 242, TIMES OFFICE.

BIG HEATER CONCERN IS EXPANDING.

Bastian-Morley Company of La Porte, Ind., Establishes Assembling Unit.

The Bastian-Morley Company of La Porte, Ind., which has been operating a Coast sales office in Los Angeles for eight years, has just taken the first step toward extensive enlargement of its western operations, which will likely be followed by actual manufacturing at this point within a short time.

A lease has been taken of the factory building at 724-26 Clover street, just off North Main street, 60x150 feet, to be used as an assembling plant for the water heaters in which this company specializes, the parts to be shipped in carlots from the eastern plant for assembling here.

Los Angeles has been designated as Pacific Coast headquarters, and J. F. Dunn has been promoted to the post of western manager, having under his jurisdiction the entire district west of the Rocky Mountains, including Western Mexico. A branch sales office will be maintained in San Francisco, and another will shortly be established at the new assembling plant, but the present sales offices in the Metropolitan Building exhibit floor will be continued.

The Bastian-Morley Company operates a large plant at La Porte, turning out at present a line of domestic combination boilers and water heaters of various types used in connection with gas fuel, including also one number for gasoline, where fuel gas is not available. During recent years the Southern California sales have increased to the half-million point, and this fact has opened the eyes of the management to the importance of the western field, and the possibilities under intensive selling organization, resulting in the present move.

Specialties in the form of house heating systems, both with water and gas, are contemplated additions to the products of this company, and in the development of these, with special reference to their adaptability to the climatic conditions as an essential factor.

Labor conditions, the established open shop and freedom from strike disturbances were among the leading considerations on which choice of Los Angeles was based. Added to this was the conviction that iron smelters, blast furnaces and steel mills would soon be erected here, which would result in making this the center of the west coast metal trades.

Although only in partial operation, the new assembling plant is already feeling the need of more room, with over 3000 shells or water jackets in storage. Machinery and equipment now on the way will crowd the plant, so that further expansion will quickly follow the success of the larger selling campaign to be directed from Los Angeles.

Local Sculptor Models Fountain for Fine Home.

Carlton Gardelle, the sculptor, has just completed a clay model of a boy on a dolphin, which will be cast for a fountain, which he has designed and is executing in the studios of the Dohrmann-Walker Company for the home of H. C. Christians, near Eagle Rock.

The fountain, which is along classical lines with characteristically effective variations typical of the Gardelle work, will be set in a semi-circular basin with a background of dohrwalk Spanish tiles.

The Christians's home, which will be one of the handsome structures of the foothills, will be so constructed and located as to command a sweeping view of the mountains and at the same time to offer a delightful bit of small-scale landscaping, with the fountain furnishing the central note. H. B. Rust is the architect of the building, while Florence Yoch is doing the landscaping.

The public never gets an opportunity like this, but I am a stranger here, with best of reference.
I am going to build a large petroleum refinery and have a license to use a process which makes 20% more gasoline at less cost, and it can be built for one-third less than the ordinary refinery.
Before organizing the company to sell stock to the public I am going to select a few good men as ground-floor promoters, who will invest enough to buy the ground to build a refinery on and pay expenses necessary to place the stock on the market. The writer owns one-half of this process, and has introduced it in Texas and Louisiana, where it is getting better results than any other refinery in those States.
No chance to lose in this enterprise. Make appointment for interview.

ORANGES.

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—Shipments of navel oranges for the 1920-21 season may be considered finished although there are about 100 cars remaining in the Redlands, Uplands and Pomona districts that will not be cleaned up until June 1. There are also about 100 cars of miscellaneous varieties of oranges left for shipment.

The auction markets held up remarkably well on navels until Thursday of this week when prices dropped from 25 to 40 cents per box in New York and Boston. The lowering of prices is attributed to the heavy supply of navels offered.

It is estimated that there are in the neighborhood of 700 cars of navels out on track that are unsold.

The situation on Valencias shows no change. Shippers look for little improvement until navels are cleaned up.

F.o.b. quotations, usual terms, on Valencias continue on a basis of $3 to $3.25 on Orange county and $2.90 to $3 on other Southern California districts. On Central California fruit $2.75 to $2.90 is the range quoted.

The condition of oranges on May 1 in California was 92 per cent of a normal, based entirely on condition of the trees and abundant blossom, according to E. E. Kaufman, agricultural statician.

LEMONS.

The market on lemons is showing more life. The trade is ordering more freely and the general trend is upward.

F.o.b. quotations are on a basis of $2.50 to $3.25 for the best grades.

There are 37,000 boxes foreign lemons on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days.

ENTERING WEDGE FOR BIBLE INTO SCHOOLS.

SCRIPTURES SHOULD BE READ BUT NOT TAUGHT, PLEA OF METHODISTS.

That the Bible should be read but not taught in the public schools of Los Angeles was the burden of a resolution adopted by the Los Angeles Sunday School Superintendents' Association at a meeting held Thursday evening in the Trinity Methodist Church. Rev. Bob Shuler, pastor of the church, and E. J. Lickley, superintendent of compulsory education of the city schools, were the principal speakers.

It was determined to send a questionaire to each of the candidates for the Board of Education, asking each to state his or her stand on the question of the Bible in the public schools. Dr. Lickley declared that it is possible to read the Bible in the schools. He quoted State Superintendent of Schools Wood as authority for the statement that there is nothing to prevent a teacher from reading the Bible to her class each morning if she sees fit.

"The Attorney-General of the State did say the Bible is a sectarian book and therefore must not be read in our schools," said Dr. Lickley, "but a recent decision of our State Superintendent regarding a young woman who insists on reading the Bible in the school-room, was to the effect that if a teacher desires to read the Bible she has a perfect right to do so, unless the State Superintendent decides to withhold the funds for her district."

State Superintendent Wood has announced that he will not do this.

The names of the candidates for the Board of Education who are members of Protestant churches were then read to the meeting. The names mentioned were Jessie York, C. A. Seaman, Elliott Craig, Mr. Bettinger, Robert A. Odell, Melville Dozier, and Mrs. Mary Millspaugh. Every candidate however is to be given an opportunity to answer the quiry which will go out from Sunday School headquarters this week.

LOS ANGELES STOCKS.

No tears were shed over the week-end on the home exchange. It was a period of depressed prices and uncertainty which kept the traders in a constant state of suspense. The only sure thing during the last half seemed to be that still lower levels would be reached.

The short session yesterday was not productive of anything of a determinate character, and the trading generally was light. Tom Reed retained its place on the skids and lost two points during the hour it had a chance to demonstrate. The opening was at 67 cents; final sales were at 65 and the close was weak at 60 cents bid, a net loss of nine points over Friday's close, and, of course a new low mark for this widely held stock.

Several thousand shares of United Oil went over from 43½ down to 42 cents; Delaware Union was steady at 23.25, and General Petroleum advanced half a point from 115.50 to 116.00. Republic Petroleum was weak and in slight demand at 31 cents.

Only two transactions were recorded in the industrial list; twenty shares of Globe Grain and Milling, preferred, 1932 maturity at 85.00, and 1000 Los Angeles Investment at 79 cents.

WATER ROUTE NOW FAVORED FOR ORANGES.

Recent Tests Basis for Predicting New System for Citrus Growers.

Water competition has lost the transcontinental railroads of the West approximately $85,000 since the first of March on cargoes of citrus fruits, was the announcement made yesterday by S. J. Arundel, ocean transportation manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. The loss incurred by the railroads is resultant from the shipping of 100,000 boxes of citrus fruits to the Atlantic seaboard via the Panama Canal.

Excessive railroad freight rates have driven growers to seek an economical and practical remedy in all-water shipments, declares Mr. Arundel in a statement containing a general resume of the ocean transportation activities of the exchanges. The first commercial venture of the citrus men in this respect was the shipment of oranges and lemons which left Los Angeles Harbor on the steamer Eemdyjk March 3 for London. Trial trips to eastern markets had previously proved the practicability of water shipping.

"Since the first shipment aboard the Eemdyjk," he said, "more than 100,000 boxes of citrus fruits have been sent via the all-water route. This figure is infinitesimal, when compared to water shipments of the future. If the present strike does not seriously affect this port the mark will be doubled in a very short time. The problem now is to obtain ships suitable for carrying the perishable cargoes. Present plans, if they materialize, will provide for transporting a large percentage of the present Valencia crop to eastern markets by water."

Mr. Arundel declares that water shipping is fast increasing and will continue to do so as long as suitable boats are obtainable. The losses to the railroads will consequently be greater in proportion, he asserts.

A True Profit Aim

There are unlimited profits in the Huntington Beach Oil Field for the man with good aim. That aim is the RIGHT INVESTMENT. The right investment is

HUNTINGTON NATIONAL OIL COMPANY

We have seen manifold evidences of enormous profits in Huntington Beach. We have seen the wells that are making, and will continue to make those profits possible. We know the location of those profit-bringing wells, AND, we know OUR acreage is so situated that it should be a REPEATER.

TWO of our Huntington Beach leases are practically "jam up" against production. A derrick is already up on one of these. Twin boilers and drilling machinery are being moved to this location. Actual drilling will start just as soon as our best efforts can bring it about. Two others of our Huntington Beach properties are in a section of the field that oil men believe will prove BIGGEST PRODUCING district of that whole field.

ANOTHER lease, at Signal Hill, is but a short distance from the Shell well—reported in oil.

HUNTINGTON NATIONAL, therefore, is in the Big Play in two different fields. With active operations commencing on ONE well, and others to follow, as conditions warrant, this stock, at 10c a share—par value—should come into a big demand. In fact, we believe it will not be long until the demand for shares will cause a strong upward turn of the market, putting stockholders in a position to make a substantial profit.

We want you to know the conditions in Huntington Beach. We want you to know Huntington National. We want you to know the connection between Huntington National and Huntington Beach Oil Profits. Our booklet, giving this and much other interesting information, is just off the press. Send for your copy TODAY!

DAILY TRADE TALK.

Week in Review; Price Trends; Crops; Financing; Business News.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

For review purposes we must look beyond the confines of our own billiwick this week. Southern California is pretty well "sot." This corner of the world is doing quite well, thank you, minding our own business; increasing our output and population and squaring away for a busy summer season.

The trials and tribulations which have afflicted some sections of the country have passed us by rather lightly. Building strikes and printers' strikes failed to register, and the shipping strike is rapidly oozing away. Arizona is emerging from the doldrums under the inspiration of California capital, and the crop outlook, except for frost-damaged fruits, is excellent. Hotel men assert they have every reason to anticipate a good season, and the bankers are optimistic. When a banker is optimistic the silver lining is turned out.

At large, there are several factors showing tendencies toward improvement in general business and financial conditions. Frozen loans are beginning to thaw, and surplus goods are moving with greater freedom.

With the wheat harvest little more than a month away, the middle West sees hope of a solution of its economic problems in a reopening of foreign markets to American producers.

Crop estimates issued by the Kansas and Missouri agricultural departments show that the condition of the whole wheat crop May 1 indicated a larger production than last year. The Kansas report forecasts a harvest of 138,659,000 bushels, against 136,844,000 a year ago. The Missouri crop, based on present conditions, is estimated at 42,262,000 bushels.

The motor car business has been spotty during the week. Some of the companies announcing price cuts report increased sales. Others are waiting. Sharp reductions in tire costs were a feature of the week; some repair shops are getting back to a $1 an hour basis, and the 2-cent gasoline decline also had a stimulating effect. Accessories show tendencies downward. Altogether it was a satisfying period for the owner if not for the dealers.

Fruit and vegetable growers are still fighting for lower rates. In the Pacific Northwest the fight is to prevent increases which may cost the fruit industry $6,000,000 a year. Growers are hopefully planning a big export crop next fall, when they are promised refrigerator ships through the canal, affording an outlet superior to facilities heretofore enjoyed. Reduced cost of labor and materials is expected to bring the price of apples down to $1 a box as compared with $1.50 last year.

In financing the market for prime new issues has a firm undertone and investment bankers are of the opinion that the meny new and important issues in contemplation will find ready absorption. California is not only taking care of most of her own requirements, but is also digesting large blocks of eastern and foreign securities.

Business failures are nae exceeding the general average, and savings deposits are showing a steady increase, indicating that the public is storing up a reservoir of buying power, which, when released, will be a wonderful stimulus to industry and which, redeposited, will ease the credit strain.

A CURIOUS CORRESPONDENT.

The following letter from a curious correspondent is fairly representative of the interest and resentment aroused by some of the iniquities of the present price level:

"The item in Trade Talk headed 'Retailers on Defensive,' encourages one to call upon the retail meat dealers to explain why they should charge 45 and 50 cents a pound for pork chops, and 65 cents a pound for bacon, when hogs have come down on the Los Angeles market to $8.50 and $9 per hundredweight. Also why the dealers are charging 35 cents for round steak and 50 cents for sirloin when fat steers are selling for $8 and $8.50.

"Please note the following prices in Omaha, Sioux City and Chicago: Hogs $7.50 and $8.50. Pork chops, 21 cents per pound; pork loin roast, 22 cents; bacon, 40 cents; ham, 30 cents. Cattle, $7 and $8. Round steak, 20 and 25 cents; sirloins, 30 and 35 cents.

"Certain markets are used as a basis for Los Angeles prices and it is hard to believe there has not been shameful profiteering. There should be a way to stop the collection of such huge profits from poor people who need the sustenance of meat at least every other day."

CURRENT READING.

The week's best offerings in business reading includes the following selections which are collated for Trade Talk and are available in the sociological department of the Los Angeles Public Library at Fifth street and Broadway:

UNITED INSPIRATION.

Three Los Angeles men appear to have developed something new in the way of incorporations. J. A. Karlson, Severyn Fyan and L. I. Karlson are reported to have filed articles of incorporation at Safford, Ariz., establishing the "United Inspiration."

The objects and purposes of the company are declared to be: "To conduct a co-operative business association under the laws of the State of California; to aid in the cause of education; to inculcate co-operative principles among its members; to assist needy members, to aid in building good roads and to encourage patriotism."

There is specification that the corporation shall have no stock, and that the property rights and interest of all the members shall be equal, and the voting power the same. Authority is vested in a supreme council, which shall be called the board of directors, and Los Angeles is designated as the principal place of business.

TREND OF PRICES.

As the Straus Investor's Magazine sees it, wholesale prices have continued to decline, and retail prices have shown a greater tendency to move in sympathy with wholesale prices than has heretofore been observed.

However, retail prices are still too high in consideration of the level of wholesale prices and additional reductions are expected from retail merchants. The general decline in prices which began last year has continued. Wholesale prices dropped 2 per cent in February and 4 per cent in March—marking a total fall of more than 40 per cent from the high peak of 1920.

The fall in prices has been a world-wide phenomenon. Reductions from the high peak of prices in 1920 have occurred in all the great countries in the world, in the proportion shown in the following table:

	Per cent.
United States	41½
Canada	24
Great Britain	38
France	36

PERPETUAL POWER!

The enormous, ever-flowing power available in California's waterfalls, through hydro-electricity, is largely responsible for the unprecedented development of this State during the past decade.

Yet, this invaluable natural resource has barely been tapped—a fact which not only assures present development activities but opens up tremendous possibilities for the future.

Therefore, we believe the present offerings of the best California hydro-electric companies to be among the safest, long term, high yield investments on the market today.

We are prepared at all times to give quotations on the better known hydro-electric companies and are now offering, subject to prior sale, bonds of these various corporations with maturities ranging from 1924 to 1951.

What's Ahead? A Better Market

Prices of Automobile Securities have seen their lowest. THE MARKET is beginning to climb—there will be a big improvement in business during the coming Fall and Winter. IT IS NOW TIME TO BUY

Ford Motor of Canada

The capital of this company is $10,000,000, with $7,000,000 outstanding. When this company's statement was issued on August 1920, a surplus of $8,252,970.89 was shown. We believe that its business for this year—together with full time production at present—will show a substantial increase on last year's surplus account at the end of the fiscal year, JULY 31, 1921, and believe that part of this surplus will be distributed in the form of a 42 6-7% Stock dividend and a substantial cash payment. We advise the purchase of this stock at the present market price.

The Monthly Payment Plan

Do you know that under the terms of the Monthly Payment Plan any security paying 6% in dividends offsets our interest charge on unpaid balances and from the time of purchase?

Are you aware that many high-grade seasoned stocks and bonds offering an active market are selling at prices to yield from 8% to 10%, these yields showing quite a substantial surplus over and above interest charge?

Let us suggest by correspondence attractive market investments at the present time. Inquiries invited. Descriptive leaflet free upon request.

RESERVES IN EXCESS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, May 14.—The actual condition of clearinghouse banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $4,290,900 reserves in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $702,800 from last week.

TEXCAL

Stock is due for the most sensational advance. This stock will continue to advance because of developments that I believe will be nothing less than sensational. The bringing in of Well No. 1 will send TEXCAL 'way above $2.00 a share. It would not surprise me a bit to see TEXCAL selling at $3.00 a share on the bringing in of Well No. 1, and remember that this event should take place the latter part of the month.

THE TEXCAL OIL AND REFINING CO. is entering into an era of a big oil-producing company, and I reiterate the statement that I have made that you should be well proud of the fact that you are a TEXCAL stockholder. Don't part with your stock. Don't sell it because you have a good profit. Remember that the big oil companies of today were once little companies and that the big oil companies who are paying big dividends today and who were once infants, at the early stage of their careers offered stock to the public at a low figure. TEXCAL is but an infant, due for a rapid and remarkable growth.

My Price for TEXCAL Stock Today is

$1.30 A SHARE

And again I say I am going to let go just a small amount of the stock at that price. Phone or wire me, reserving your stock, following with your remittance, but if you are in a position to come in and see me, that is the better way. Then you are assured that you have bought TEXCAL, and I will make delivery of the stock in your own name.

"The largest producer of Platinum and Palladium in North America"

PLATINUM—PALLADIUM PRODUCING CORPORATION

Capital Stock, 150,000 Shares of $10 par value.

Properties at Kasaan Bay, Alaska, producing

PLATINUM, PALLADIUM GOLD, SILVER AND COPPER

President, J. E. CHILBERG,
Founder and Former President of the Scandinavian-American Bank of Seattle

PROPERTIES: 29 full mineral claims and 16 fractional claims; so far less than one-tenth of one claim developed to 150 feet has produced $400,000.00 of concentrates. Products are sold to the smelter at Irvington, New Jersey.

OVER 200,000 tons of ore now blocked out, having a net value of $1,000,000.00. A. G. Larson, M.E., estimates that on installation of new and larger mill (with Platinum selling at $70 per ounce) net profits will run $348,000.00 per annum from ore already blocked out being equivalent to 23% on entire capitalization.

SHOULD the price of Platinum and Palladium go to $150 per ounce, as is expected and it formerly was, these profits would run over 50% annually on the entire capitalization of the company. This does not cover all other profit possibilities of all the company properties.

OVER $300,000.00 has been spent in development and equipment of these properties, which are equipped with all necessary buildings, air compression plant, pipe lines, tram, hydro-electric plant, wireless station, tools, etc., etc.

MR. CHILBERG was formerly associated with and brought to the public the famous Pioneer Mining Company of Nome, Alaska, which paid millions of dollars in dividends to its owners and stockholders.

We regard the purchase of these shares as a most remarkable speculative opportunity

SUN OIL COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA

Announcement

During the coming week we will definitely announce the closing date on the present 50-cent issue of Sun Oil Stock. The demand for this stock has been phenomenal. When no more is available at this price, it is easy to foresee eager bidding to acquire an interest in the coming "big producer" company!

Closing Date of 50-Cent Issue

Our auditors are now working on the books. Our office force is working day and night to keep pace with the subscription lists. Brokers are rushing in orders which have been delayed for one reason or another and when we get all these factors together, it is possible we shall find the issue has been

OVERSUBSCRIBED

Today there will be another big crowd at the Huntington Beach field, where they will see Sun Oil activity on every hand—No. 1 well down to oil levels; No. 2 derrick up; No. 3 almost ready to spud in; No. 4 derrick being rushed up. Inevitably this office will be besieged again tomorrow with CASH orders!

NO. 1 WELL

We drilled through the cement on Friday night, May 6th, and prepared to bail for water test. Bailing was stopped by sand heaving up in the casing, making it impossible to say yet whether the water is perfectly shut off. In the meantime, since we are determined to go through to oil with standard equipment, we have been busy removing the Rotary equipment to No. 3, and are now ready to get the sand out of the hole and complete the test. Providing the water shut-off is O.K. this well should quickly be on a heavy production basis.

We Reserve the Right to Return

All subscriptions to the 50 cent issue after Wednesday, May 18th. Preference will be given to customers coming to this office and taking their certificate away with them. Next we will fill mail orders (Coupons and letters) and then we will endeavor to take care of phone inquiries.

CONFIDENCE!

No man can invest money in an enterprise in which he has not confidence.

Confidence is based on "Belief." And "belief" means that he has been "sold" on the merits of the proposition that has been put before him.

Our "Confidence" in the future of Golden State Oil is based on the absolute "Belief" that we have three of the choicest "leases" in the entire Huntington Beach Field. This "Belief" is founded on the "FACT" that "Oil" has "come-in" literally "all around us."

Another basic point for "Confidence" in us is the fact that GOLDEN STATE MANAGEMENT is composed of big-minded, capable, highly-trained and efficient business men. These men are each, individually, IN THE HABIT of MAKING THINGS GO once they take a hand in them. "COLLECTIVELY" they should do wonders for GOLDEN STATE OIL.

Write us at once for more detail, told in our literature put out for the information and "confidence" of investors. You will want to "invest" with us we feel sure.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE REVIEW.

promise of bumper crops of grapes and deciduous fruits.

Abundant rains up to the last of February and warm weather during March brought out the blossoms earlier than usual. Frost on April 4, 5 and 6, accompanied by strong north winds, caused more or less damage, and when followed by more killing frosts on the 13th and 14th, the damage became greater and more widespread so that hardly any county in the State entirely escaped, while in many it was quite serious.

The almond crop seems to be particularly spotted again this year, reports varying from almost a failure to nearly a normal crop in selected and favorable localities.

For the State, the condition is 55 per cent of a normal, as compared with 55 last year, and a ten-year average of 74.

Brown rot seriously affected the apricot crop in the bay counties. Frost damage is reported from all parts of the State, and the condition on May 1 was only 45 per cent of a normal, as compared with 61 last year, and a ten-year average of 70. Santa Clara district reports a condition of 40. The Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys are some better.

Southern California, where production is rapidly increasing, suffered most from frost and prospects are for about one-third of a crop.

RAISE CAPITAL STOCK.

The capital stock of the Miners' and Merchants' Bank of Bisbee, Ariz., has been ordered raised, by the stockholders, from $50,000 to $250,000. F. C. Fledsoe was elected a director in place of George Haninger.

NEW MAIL CAR.

A new mail car has been tried out on the New York Central, which, it is thought, will gradually find adoption throughout the country. The car carries nine big steel containers each holding three and one-half tons of mail. Each container is filled and locked at the postoffice of origin; loaded and unloaded by crane. Mail is handled only in the offices of origin and destination and robbery is said to be impossible.

ENGLISH PRICES.

The London Economist's "index number" of average English commodity prices as of May 1 is interesting in several respects. It shows a decline of a little more than 3 per cent in April and a total reaction of 40½ per cent from last year's high level. This is practically the same total decline as has occurred in American prices, and the English average is now, like our own, the lowest of any month since 1916. But, on the other hand, whereas the American average now stands only 40 per cent or thereabouts above the prewar level, the English average of May 1 is 92 per cent above that of July 31, 1914.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

There is somewhat less activity in the foreign exchange market on the part of Los Angeles investors than there was a few months ago. The market is so highly speculative that buyers must necessarily be on their guard. On the other hand the foreign exchange departments maintained by several local banks are so efficiently and carefully administered that the buyer is often enabled to form opinions and direct his investment so accurately that the turn is called with corresponding profit.

HYDROELECTRICS.

Because of the interest among industrial experts in the importance of the development of hydroelectric power in California the securities of concerns engaged in the development of hydroelectric power to supply light, heat and power to communities has attracted the attention of investors.

Among the issues now being offered in Southern California is the 7 per cent first preferred stock of the Great Western Power Company of California. This company has just completed its second big plant on the North Fork of the Feather River, with an installed capacity of 59,000 horsepower. This new supply of electrical energy added to the 87,000 horsepower of the plant at Big Bend, gives the Great Western an immediate capacity of 146,000 horsepower, to be increased, it is said, to 263,000 horsepower by the installing of new equipment in the Caribou plant.

The public in Southern California is being given an opportunity to participate in the purchase of the Great Western's preferred stock through Atterbury & Tuttle, Inc., of Los Angeles. The stock is offered at $93, which price yields 7½ per cent to the investor.

INYO MARBLE COMPANY.

Hydroelectric power from the Los Angeles Aqueduct was turned on at Lone Pine during Friday for the quarries of Inyo Marble Company, and that big industry set in motion. Special power lines were run from both the Independence and Olancha plants of the Los Angeles system.

President Louis Dapprich of the marble company, and E. F. Leahy of the Owens Valley Power and Light Company, a division of the Los Angeles municipal system, together swung the switch that started the hoists, compressors, gangsaws and other machinery.

The Pacific Coast uses $10,000,000 a year of marble that can now be supplied locally, it is said, at half the cost of eastern marbles.

Architects and contractors from many Coast cities were present when the big power plant was put in operation.

GARNER & CO. MOVE.

Garner & Co., brokers, announce removal from 625 South Spring street, to larger quarters at 215 Mercantile Place. Fred Garner said yesterday that the change was made necessary by growing business of the firm which was established in 1916 in the East and incorporated three years later for business in California. According to his statement the house has contributed to the distribution of capital to many new Southern California enterprises. It has a membership in the new curb exchange which opens this week.

BIG FINANCING.

Not only is a vast amount of municipal financing under way in all parts of the country, but contemplated or impending issues will add many millions to the already heavy total. On the New York market alone $75,000,000 in municipal securities is under negotiation.

HOTEL PROJECTORS.

K. V. Brynard and V. Fowler have filed incorporation papers in Arizona of the Central California Hotel Company. The capital stock is $2,025,000 and the object stated is the buying and selling of hotel property.

Active L. A. Curb Exchange Issues

Traders in the various Curb issues are being rewarded with a market activity approaching the greatest Bull market ever experienced in local securities.

Huntington Central has soared from 10c to 35c, Texcal from 46c to $1.15, while Huntington Pantages, Sun Oil, Bolsa Chica, Huntington Midway and others are about ready for their upward move. Watch the curb issues carefully. The exchange opens at 118 W. 4th Street tomorrow at 11 a.m. Place your orders with us early Monday.

Huntington Midway at 10c

This, we predict, will be the next sensation of the field. Go to the beach today, see its strategic location—its neighbors — Huntington Central, Hurst, Pantages—all successes—then realize that it is located on the edge of the restricted district, with its vast territory to drain from—its capital only $250,000. To what height will the stock soar with a well like its neighbors? Company officials advise us they anticipate an oversubscription presently. We can fill orders now at a net price to the purchaser of 10c per share, cash or payment plan.

Tex-Cal at $1.30 with a 3000-barrel well, the greatest in the field, No. 1 well cemented and to be brought in soon, and a third well reported about to start, this is a buy that the most careful trader cannot afford to overlook. If Huntington Central, with a par value of 10c and a 700-barrel well, is worth 20 cents (the present market) what is Texcal worth with its $1.00 par and a 3000-barrel well? We consider Texcal a real bargain and believe it is selling decidedly too cheap.

Stock is soaring and with other wells anticipated, sensational profits are likely. Go to Texcal's well today, see its 3000-barrel flow, figure its actual value to the company daily, the amount applicable to dividends is startling when present available prices are considered. Buy it early Monday morning — CASH ORDERS ONLY.

Sun Oil

A matter of hours may witness the passing of the opportunity to buy Sun Oil at 50 cents. No. 1 well may be in as you read this. If not in we will execute orders Monday at 50c (cash only) until sale is withdrawn. This is one of the most substantial issues of the field. The men back of it we regard highly, and it is our belief Sun Oil will reach a dividend class of a nature to make it one of California's leading independents.

Huntington Owners

This is another 10c issue in the Huntington Central, Hurst, Huntington Midway group. No royalty to pay. Well being drilled on deeded land. See its location today. Orders executed for cash or prepaid.

The Curb Exchange

which opens tomorrow, will afford traders in Huntington Beach, Richfield and other (heretofore) unlisted issues a staple market. It's open to the public. If you cannot be present during its daily calls, watch the papers for quotations and sales or call any Curb Member. See us for quick service on all Curb buying and selling orders.

The Last Ad from the Bolsa Chica Oil Company

DURING the last month I have given repeated warnings that the Bolsa Chica Oil Company's stock would be withdrawn from sale by the company without a word of warning. I have kept my word. When O. H. Borraidaile of Lasky Studio, Hollywood, bought an additional fifty shares, Saturday night at 8:10 o'clock, he became the last stockholder, in so far as the company is concerned.

Bolsa Chica Oil Company is over the top. It has set a record. It has kept every promise it has made. It will keep every promise it has made. Bolsa Chica Oil Company stock today is held by hundreds of persons who have never before in their lives purchased a dollar's worth of oil stock. They have bought this stock and have placed in it safe deposit boxes for the future. Conservatively, 90 per cent of all Bolsa Chica Oil Company stockholders have bought for investment and not for speculation.

The Bolsa Chica Oil Company's Augur No. 1 well will be drilled through the cement this week. It will come in a big well. It will be one of the big, steady producers of the field. This company is going on a steady production basis. It is not worrying about the spectacular things, but is devoting its time, energy and money in getting oil and building up a large producing oil company.

Work will commence immediately on the Augur No. 2 Well. The location of this well is plainly shown in the accompanying map. This drilling site comprises approximately three acres in Block 1203. It was selected by Irving V. Augur as being the next best bet in the Huntington Beach field. Mr. Augur's past record proves conclusively that he knows.

Plans are being rushed for the erection of the Augur No. 3 derrick. This location will not be announced until the actual work has been contracted for. The Bolsa Chica Oil Company is not talking—it is working and working every hour of the day and night.

Watch Bolsa Chica Stock Sales Tomorrow

Bolsa Chica Oil Company Stock is not a dead issue.

I predict it will be one of the most active stocks on the Los Angeles Curb Exchange. Watch the prices of sales on the Curb.

Bolsa Chica Oil Company stock will go to $3 to $5 a share on the strength of the bringing in of the first well. This will, in all probability, happen this week.

Bolsa Chica Oil Company stock will go to $10 a share in the near future. Fast development work and large oil production will mean ten for one to fortunate Bolsa Chica Oil Company stockholders.

I most earnestly advise that Bolsa Chica Oil stock be held by everyone who is fortunate enough to have secured this stock. The directors of this company are not going to throw their stock on the market when the first well comes in. They are not permitted to under the terms of a contract signed by each and every one of them.

Every Stockholder is Being Protected.

Stockholders who have made reservations, or have bought on the partial payment plan will be fully protected by the Bolsa Chica Oil Company. This is one company that will stake everything it has in the world on giving the stockholders a square deal.

Stockholders made our success possible. They will not be repaid by being frozen out of the company, or by having the directors unload their personal holdings and breaking the price to a few cents a share.

We are out to build up a large oil company in which the stock value will be a hundred-fold greater than any stockholder has paid to date.

Stock Brokers Had Exceptional Vision.

If you want to judge the future of an oil company, follow the lead of the brokers. It is a stock broker's business to know what is going to happen. A broker goes either long or short on a stock. If he is short, you may know that he believes the company will be a flivver.

Stock brokers are long on Bolsa Chica Oil stock. They have bought to hold for re-sales. They know that the company's No. 1 well will be the biggest event of the wonderful Huntington Beach Field. Brokers are holding Bolsa Chica Oil Company stock for $3 a share. They will get it in the immediate future. Watch the price soar when the Augur No. 1 is brought in.

"Not a Penny Under $1.50 a Share."

Not a broker, not a friend, not even the company employees knew that Bolsa Chica Oil stock was going off the market Saturday night. In fact, I didn't know it. A mark had been set. When that mark was reached, the stock automatically was withdrawn from sale by the company. If that mark had not been reached, it would have been withdrawn this week twenty-four hours before we began to drill through the cement.

Saturday I called up the leading brokers in Los Angeles and asked them what they were holding Bolsa Chica Oil stock for after the company withdrew it from the market. "Not a penny under $1.50 a share," was the unanimous reply.

Charlie Akin and Bill Lambert of Akin-Lambert Co., 519-520 Stock Exchange Building, summed the whole story up in a few words.

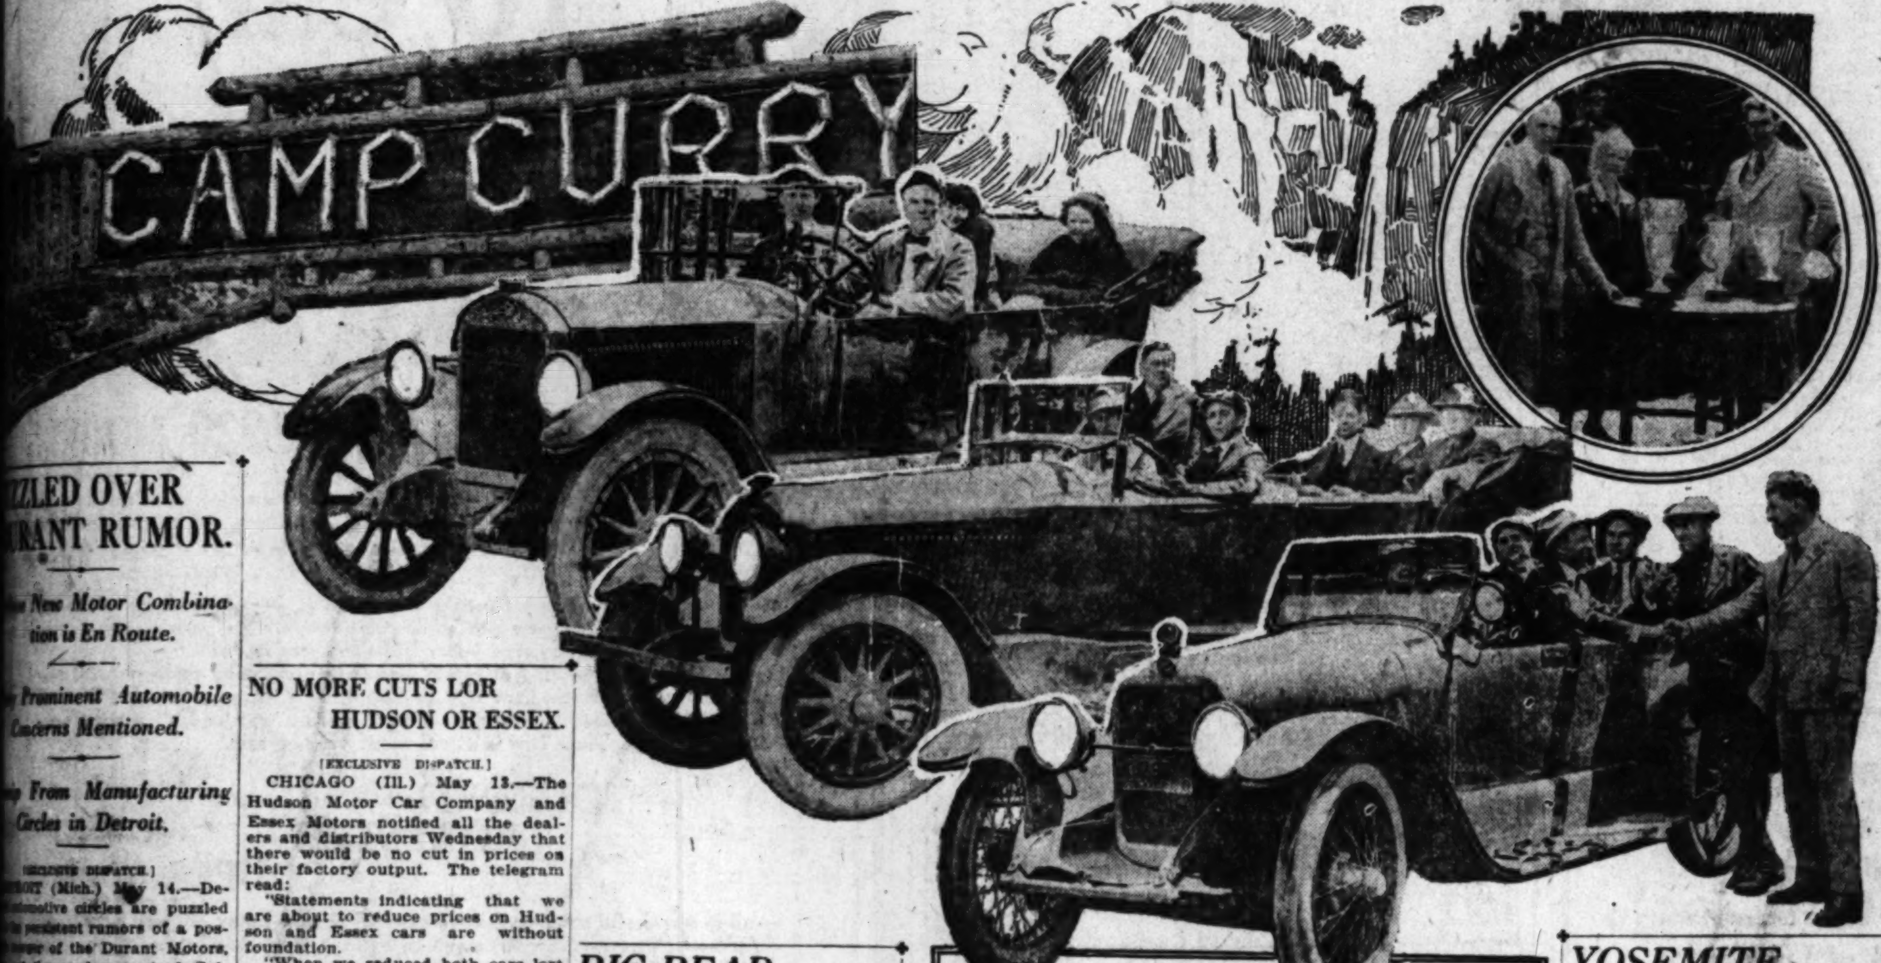
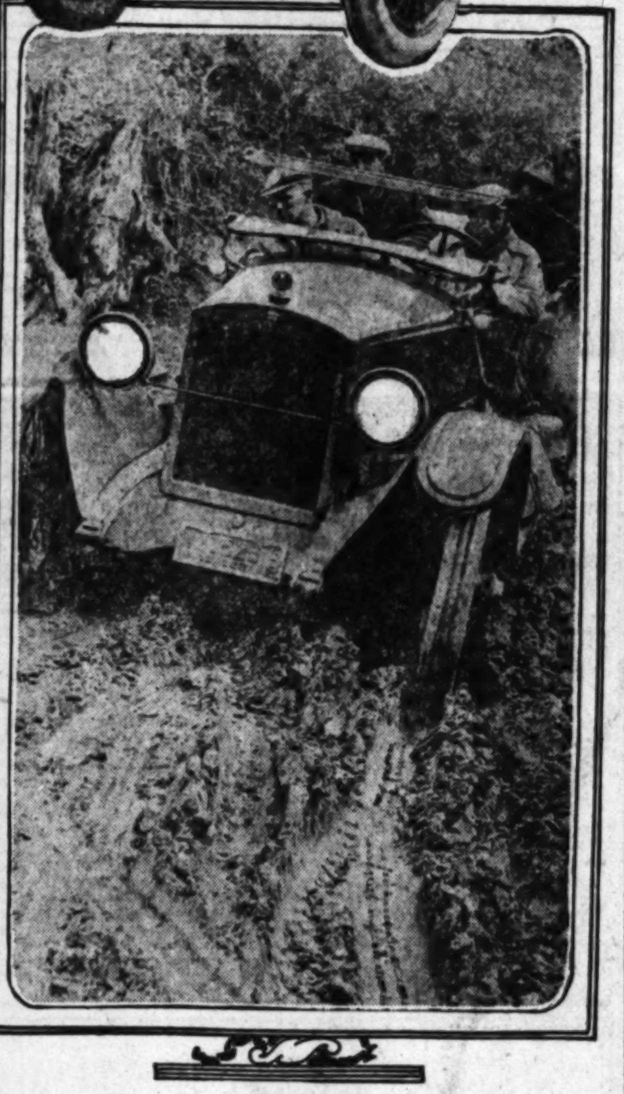
Winners in Annual Economy Run to the Yosemite Valley.





Champions in the Four Price Classes.

Fighting rain, mud, sleet and snow twenty-one motor cars fought their way to Camp Curry, Yosemite Valley, on the annual economy contest last week and practically all finished with remarkable scores. Here are the winners. Top, Gardner, winner in class one; center, Dorris which took first in class four; lower right, the Templar, winner of class three and the sweepstakes; below, the Saxon-Duplex, first in class two, showing some of the chopped up roads that the cars had to negotiate. Insert, top right, shows Foster Curry, Mrs. Curry and Wallace Curtis of Camp Curry presenting the cups to the various winners. All entries agreed that the run this year was one of the best and most strenuous that has ever been pulled off between Los Angeles and Camp Curry.

NO MORE CUTS LOR HUDSON OR ESSEX.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO (Ill.) May 13.—The Hudson Motor Car Company and Essex Motors notified all the dealers and distributors Wednesday that there would be no cut in prices on their factory output. The telegram read:

"Statements indicating that we are about to reduce prices on Hudson and Essex cars are without foundation.

"When we reduced both cars last fall from $200 to $450 we anticipated market changes that have since become effective. You can use this message with your trade, who we know purchased Hudson and Essex cars on their merits."

GOETHALS AGREEMENT IS NOW TERMINATED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, May 13.—The Pierce-Arrow Motor Company's working agreement with George W. Goethals & Co., Inc., has been terminated. George W. Mixter has severed his connection with the Goethals company to continue as president of Pierce-Arrow. Goethals & Co. was employed to assist in bringing the Pierce-Arrow plant back to a peace basis and to revise its line of cars and trucks. This work, it is stated, has been accomplished with the new line of cars placed in production.

CHEVROLET MOTORS INCREASES FORCE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FLINT (Mich.) May 13.—The local plant of the Chevrolet Motor Company Wednesday began increasing its force at a rate which will add from 1200 to 1500 men within the next two weeks, with all departments operating on full time. The increase in operations, General Manager C. F. Barth said, is due to greatly increased orders following the announcement several days ago of price reductions averaging 21 1-3 per cent.

BIG BEAR THE GOAL FOR TREK.

"Old-timers" and "Young Uns" to Compete in Reliability Contest.

The selection of the team captains in the reliability run of the Motor Car Dealers' Association to Bear Valley, May 28, 29 and 30, was made last week, according to Harris M. Hanshue, chairman of the committee in charge of the big event. They are: Frank Howard of the Howard Automobile Company, captain of the "old-timers," and Walter L. Murphy, head of the well-known concern that bears his name, captain of the young uns." Both have informed the committee that they will be "tickled to death" to serve, while each declares that what his outfit does to the other will be a plenty.

CUPS ARE HERE.

The cups offered by the Bear Valley Chamber of Commerce and ordered direct from a large New York jewelry house, have been received by Bert Roberts, manager of the dealers' organization, and for the present are to be seen at his office in the Automobile Club of Southern California. They are fine specimens of the silversmith's art and the most attractive trophies the dealers of the city have been asked to compete for in many years.

The entry blanks for the contest have been printed and last week were mailed to every dealer, stated Roberts. "From information received at this office, both from members and from the hard-working committee, every dealer will be in the run and the great majority are to pilot their own entries," he said.

TO POST ROADS.

Next week a sign-posting crew of the Auto Club in charge of "Doug" Rhoades will go over the entire route, putting up signs that will make it out of the question for anyone to go wrong. All roads into the well-known mountain resort are now reported in fine shape after the recent storm.

The annual outing committee of the Motor Car Dealers' organization, headed by "Andy" Baldwin, is working overtime to make the affair, to be held in Bear Valley coincident with the run, one that will outshine all preceding ones. That the boys have a lot of swell stuff under cover, and which will first be uncorked Saturday night, May 28, is admitted by these fast workers. Oh, boy, there is little doubt that the entire program will be a sizzler.

It has already been pried from the committee that there will be some new and attractive games of chance, a horseshoe-slinging contest with valuable prizes hung up, cups for the most successful angler, a three-ring barbecue with braised turtle as the piece de resistance and with a famed Mexican barbecuer in charge.

The elaborate banquet Saturday evening will be prepared in this city and will be escorted to the San Ber-

SCRIPPS-BOOTH WILL PRODUCE NEW MODEL.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO (Ill.) May 13.—Although the perfection of one small casting is delaying actual production, everything is in readiness for the announcement and display of a new medium-weight light six Scripps-Booth car, entirely different from the present models, with the exception of the body design, which itself is somewhat modified.

The new model is powered with a Continental motor with a four-and-one-half-inch stroke. This motor is equipped with a Stromberg carburetor and is rated at 25.35 horsepower, and is claimed to develop fully fifty horsepower at 2600 revolutions per minute.

The car is equipped with new standard axles, front and rear, with heavier front axles and larger braking surface than that now used on Scripps-Booth cars. The front springs are heavier than those now in use to care for the additional weight of the new motor.

HULBURT-METZGER TOGETHER.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT (Mich.) May 13.—William B. Hulburt is to be associated with William E. Metzger as Michigan distributor of the new Wills Sainte Claire automobile, it was announced yesterday.

The association of Hulburt and Metzger is an old one, the two having run the first motor-car salesroom in the world, they say, on Jefferson avenue. Their first stock in trade was a curve-dash Olds and one electric. When Metzger became active in the organization of the Cadillas, Hulburt undertook to popularize that car. In 1913 Metzger retired from the manufacture and sale of automobiles, and Hulburt took over the New York branch of the Packard. Recently he has been building the Hulburt truck in New York.

YOSEMITE ROADS ARE GOOD NOW.

Few Days of Sunshine Make Wonderful Change in Route Conditions.

Automobile men returning from the Yosemite Valley on Monday and Tuesday reported the road conditions to be excellent due to the bright sunshine of the two days following the run.

The contestants on the big economy event ran into rain which made the roads difficult and dangerous but a crew of men put on the roads Sunday, smoothed them over and the sun dried them out so that they are today in the best condition that they have been for many seasons.

Foster Curry wires from Camp Curry in the valley, that conditions now and for the next few weeks will be ideal for touring. This time of the year is really the most suitable of all times for vacationing in the valley.

The water pouring over the falls was a revelation to old-time Yosemite enthusiasts and the weather conditions are most delightful.

Those that have planned to take their vacations in the Yosemite should make their arrangements at once for accommodations for it is anticipated that this season will be the largest in the history of the valley resorts.

GOVERNOR PLANS TO HOIST SPEED LIMIT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LANSING (Mich.) May 13.—Gov. Groesbeck has announced that he will sign the act passed by the Legislature raising the speed limit for automobiles from twenty-five to thirty-five miles an hour, just as soon as it reaches him. For the accommodation of the thousands of summer tourists who drive through Michigan each year, letters will be sent to every sheriff, constable and chief of police in the State requesting that they permit the new speed limit. Numerous complaints have reached the Governor that many of the smaller resort towns are taking advantage of the twenty-five-mile limit to arrest and fine tourists. The Governor feels that tourists should be encouraged to visit the State and that all reasonable support should be extended to the resort business in Michigan.

NEW PLAN TO STOP HEAVY AUTO THEFTS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LANSING (Mich.) May 13.—Secretary of State Charles Deland, of Michigan, has announced that registration blanks for recording with his office the sale or transfer of automobiles would be ready for distribution to the automobile dealers of Michigan next week.

Under a law passed by the recent Legislature, designed to make theft of automobiles more difficult, certificates of title are required to be issued and recorded with the State Department, whenever a machine is sold or transferred. A fee of $1 is to be charged for each registration of a certificate of title.

Every car in the State must be so accounted for at the State Department on or before July 1, 1922.

STARTING CAMPAIGN ON MOTOR THIEVES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT (Mich.) May 13.—The report given out this week by Dist.-Atty. Kinnane shows conclusively that the Detroit district is leading the United States in convictions under the Dyer Act, which makes transportation of stolen automobiles between two States a government offense, according to Attorney Howard D. Brown, director of the Detroit Automobile Club's legal department.

RUN SHOWS THAT MOTOR CARS CAN "GET THERE."

Ability of Modern Automobile to Buck All Sorts of Roads and Weather Proved by Economy Trip.

BY WILLIAM HENRY.

The 1921 Camp Curry economy run will go down in the history of California automobile competition as not only the most successful and bitterly contested of these events, but as one of the finest demonstrations of the ability of the modern motor car to "get there" ever put on.

Columns of space and whole dictionaries of words have been used in describing the triumphs of single cars going through such road and weather conditions as thirty cars traversed in this gun. The stage drivers, case hardened veterans of the mountain trails, unanimously predicted that to make the run from Merced to Camp Curry in any kind of time was foolhardy and expressed the opinion that not half the cars would get through.

ON SCHEDULE TIME.

And yet of all the cars that started from Merced on Saturday morning, May 7, twenty-one contestants and nine press and official cars, only one failed to get in and that through a mechanical difficulty in the engine. More than that, half of the cars made the hair-raising trip on schedule time, catching the 3 o'clock control and only three of the cars, two of them San Francisco press cars, failed to get in on the 5 o'clock control for Inspiration Point.

The entire trip from Los Angeles was made against adverse conditions and yet the cars not only held very closely to schedule, but made extremely creditable economy records. The Ridge Route was crossed in the face of a chilling wind accompanied by rain, sleet and snow. The opportunity to make time down the long straightaway to Bakersfield was lost through the wetness of the highway, while the entire caravan was held up more than an hour at the only detour in this stretch when a huge truck carrying a donkey engine became stuck in the gumbo mud.

STEPPED ON IT.

The results of such conditions was that when the dry highway beyond Bakersfield was reached everybody had to "step on it" in order to reach Merced, the night control, before dark. High speed, as everyone knows, is not conducive to good economy and as a result those who were first into Merced as a general average were lower in the economy run averages than those who took it easy and floated in just before the one extra hour of grace was up.

It is safe to say that no caravan of automobiles ever faced and conquered such conditions as the economy cars did on Saturday, running from Merced into Camp Curry by way of Miami Lodge and Wawona. The first cars started at 7 o'clock in the morning and the rest pulled out at one-minute intervals.

MADE GOOD TIME.

The first stretch of about thirty miles was mostly new paved highway and good time was made, while the first mountain roads were not in bad condition, but when the going began to get sloppy as the cars got farther and farther into the mountains skid chains on all four wheels came into use and the condition of the roads was enough to put fear into the heart of anyone.

Near Miami Lodge great pools of water, deep slush-filled ruts and a narrow slippery roadbed with vertical walls on either side conspired to make the travel very slow and eight and ten miles an hour was as much speed as anybody could make. Things picked up a little near Wawona, but between Wawona and the valley not only were the roads just as bad as before, but the low hanging clouds through which the cars ran, made it impossible to see more than twenty feet ahead and only the most skillful kind of driving prevented serious accidents.

A GOOD IDEA.

Anyone desiring to get a good idea of the view from Inspiration Point as the cars rolled in can do so by holding up the morning milk bottle and trying to look through it. A heavy blanket of clouds obscured everything and the cold and dampness made things miserable for the contestants.

But the most remarkable feature of the run was the way in which the cars came through and everyone who got there deserves a lot of credit.

An unfortunate dispute regarding the rules held up the actual awarding of the cups on the day following the run. All arguments have been ironed out now, however, and the following cars have been ruled the winners by the officials of the run:

Class 1, Gardner; class 2, Saxon; class 3, Templar, class 4, Dorris.

All of these cars as well as all other contestants in the run made remarkable economy and reliability showings in the face of adverse conditions and richly deserve credit for their performance. To reach Camp Curry at all was a triumph and to do so with an economy performance was even more so.

RAH, FOR 'EM!

Aside from the prize winners in the economy run itself a whole lot of credit should be given to the press and officials' cars, which, sticking with the procession all the way in, in some cases did marvels. The little Scripps, which led the way into the valley on Saturday, deserves a lot of credit, although it didn't do anything much in the way of economy.

Four Buick press cars, donated by the Howard Automobile Company, were very prominent throughout the run. One of them was the first car into Merced after the pilot car and likewise the first car to Inspiration Point after the pilot car. Incidentally it averaged better than sixteen miles to the gallon of gasoline despite fast running all the way. Another car which attracted a lot of attention was the Buick which was first into the valley by way of Wawona, a few weeks ago, and which recently was the first car over the Sierras to Reno.

THE PILOT CAR.

The pilot car for the run, which carried the officials, was a Studebaker big six, and it stayed in front all the way and incidentally broke the trail through the muddy roads of the mountains for the rest of the

SAXON-DUPLEX GETS THE CAKE.

Sets Remarkable Record on Yosemite Jaunt.

More Than Twenty-five Miles the Gallon of Gas.

And This Despite Terrible Road Conditions.

Under the most strenuous driving conditions imaginable where rain, snow and mud vied with one another to make motoring difficult if not impossible, and in competition with four and six-cylinder cars, many of them selling at a much higher price, the new Saxon-Duplex four-cylinder, driven by Howard R. Gwynn, sales manager for the J. V. Baldwin Motor Company, rolled into Camp Curry in the Yosemite Valley with a record of more than twenty-five miles to the gallon of gasoline for the 400-mile trip, thereby winning first place in its class in the Los Angeles to Camp Curry economy run.

Gwynn had taken the car over the road but once before the start of the contest as far as Merced. From that point into the Yosemite Valley he was unfamiliar with the road. On his trial trip he experienced excellent driving conditions and made a much better economy record than on the run itself. For it was threatening rain on Saturday morning when the cars pulled away from in front of the Los Angeles City Hall en route to Merced, the night control, almost 300 miles away.

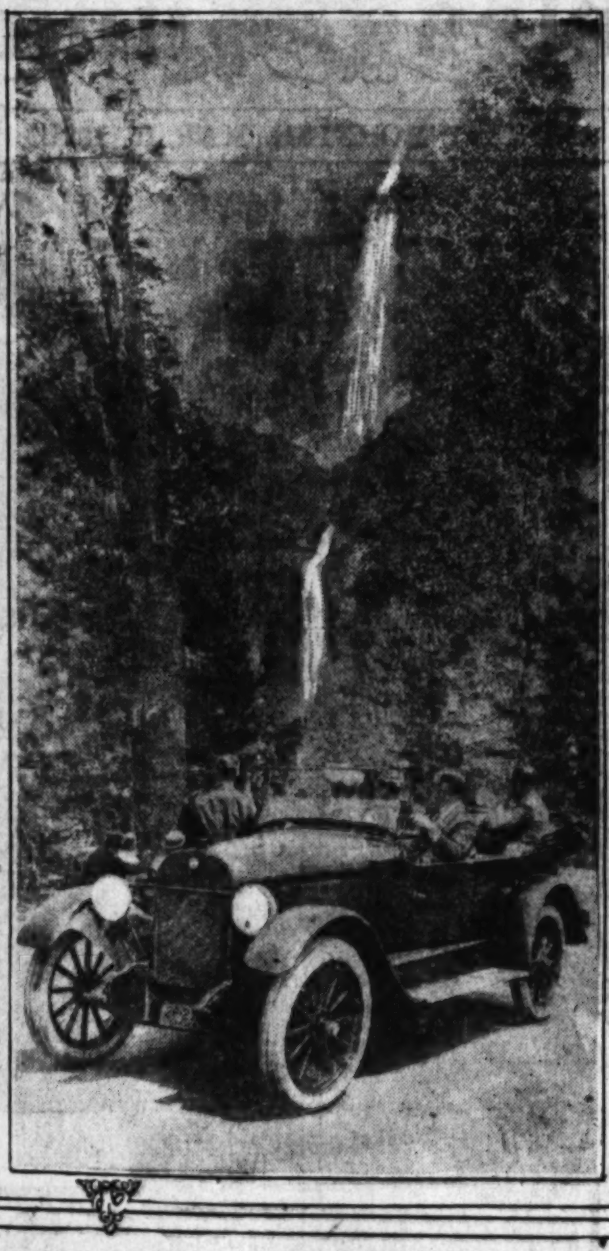
From Los Angeles to the start of the Ridge Route, the weather was chilly and threatening, but the roads were dry, but long before the southern summit of the ridge was reached it had begun to mist and this soon turned into a steady rain. Farther along clay had been washed down from the hillsides and the roadway was slippery. Traction was difficult and careful handling necessary to avoid dangerous skids. The Saxon pulled across the ridge just ahead of a snowstorm, but experienced some very cold weather on the northern side. Rain continued clear into Bakersfield and beyond, while several miles south of the Oil City a truck in the mire on a mile-long detour, held up the caravan for nearly an hour.

An average speed of about twenty-five miles an hour was necessary in order to make the Merced control on time. Such a speed is not altogether conducive to the greatest economy as every motorist knows that to make it the car must be driven a majority of the way at a speed considerably greater. On arrival at Merced it was found that the roads on into the valley had been badly soaked by rain and snow and were all but impassable.

The 104 miles from Merced to Camp Curry, by way of Wawona, however, were negotiated without a single mishap by the little Saxon and it came purring into camp just as merrily as it had at any time on the trip, only its crew showing the strain and wear of a hard drive. Only fifteen and seven-eighths gallons of gasoline, three pints of oil and a quart and a half of water were used on the long trip into the valley.

REMOVING PINION NUT.

The car owner who does his own work is sometimes puzzled in regard to removing the drive shaft pinion nut. The operation begins by taking out the cotter or locking wire. Next a special wrench is used, and this may be made from a quarter-inch steel plate, the length and nut size being made to fit the particular make of car. To remove the nut the gear is placed in reverse, the priming cups are opened and the engine turned over by hand. To put the nut on, the gear is put in low and the engine is cranked.



One More of the Machines that Made Good in the Economy Run.

The Chalmers entry in the annual Camp Curry affair photographed near one of the dozens falls which are now running full tilt. The Chalmers made a consistently good record for the entire trip.

CHALMERS SETS HIGH MARK

In compiling data on the Yosemite economy run, Ray O. Gould, manager of Chalmers sales for the Greer-Robbins company, takes particular pride in pointing to the record made by the Chalmers in the two-day battle with the elements and terrible road conditions.

"In the 400-mile grind, the Chalmers averaged 20.8 miles per gallon of gas, used one quart of oil and five pints of water," he said. "In the second day's battle in the mountains through mud and slush sometimes hub deep, the Chalmers showed its wonderful power. It might also be noted that while other cars in its class only carried four passengers, the Chalmers carried a full complement of five.

"In our class, the Chalmers had a higher score on miles per gallon and ton-mileage than four other six-cylinder cars, while it had a higher gas mileage than eight six-cylinder cars in all classes, and a higher ton-mileage than six six-cylinder cars of the total entered. The Chalmers also had a higher score in its class in gas and ton-mileage than three lighter cars, and better in all classes than five lighter cars.

"In the matter of cubic-inch displacement, the Chalmers excelled three in its class of equal or smaller displacement, in gas mileage and ton mileage and in all classes excelled five. It finished eleventh in ton mileage and eighth in the amount of gasoline consumed. The car never received any attention mechanically and an inspection made following its return to Los Angeles, showed that it was in perfect condition, and ready for another round trip of the same character."

TIRES RUN UNDER TERRIFIC STRAIN.

MUST BE WONDERFULLY BUILT TO WITHSTAND THE CONSTANT SHOCKS.

Do you understand the gaff an automobile tire must endure—the terrific forces operating to batter it to pieces? A light car weighing 1750 pounds and traveling twenty-five miles per hour, covers 2200 feet per minute and moves with a force of nearly 4,000,000 foot pounds. Imagine then, the force of the impact on the tire when you hit a rock or other obstruction in the road way.

A heavy car weighing 5300 pounds and going at forty miles per hour, travels 3520 feet per minute. This gives it moving force in excess of 18,500,000 pounds. Miller tire testing experts say the force of road shocks runs into the millions. Load the car with passengers or increase the speed and you increase these forces millions more.

To stand such strains, a standard make, five-inch cord tire has twenty to twenty-six cords per inch. Though each cord has a strength of fifteen pounds, there are eight plies or layers of these cords. This gives the five-inch tire a strength in fabric carcass alone of 2400 to 3000 pounds to the square inch, irrespective of strength given by other parts.

It takes an immense blow to bruise such a tire. However, forces almost impossible for the average mind to conceive are operative. Bruises do not necessarily prove a tire defective.

ON SMITH IN YOKOHOMA NOW

Chandlers Scattered All Over the Place.

into Frank Carroll in the Big City.

Facts on Motoring Across the Pond.

from Peking, China, has Mr. W. P. Herbert, of the W. P. Herbert Com- Los Angeles, from Don Smith, formerly connected with the Herbert company in Los Angeles.

Mr. Smith had just finished a trip through the Japanese Empire and gives some very interesting facts concerning the use of automobiles in Japan. One of the first people Mr. Smith met after arriving in Yokohoma was Frank Carroll, formerly manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company here, who is now vice-president of the Yokohoma Rubber Company. Of course Mr. Smith was delighted to find Mr. Carroll driving a Chandler car, and to learn that the car had given perfect service during the 8000 miles it had been driven. The original Coodrich Silvertown tires on the car are still in use.

Mr. Smith went into one garage in Yokohoma, which is run by a Chinese who spoke a little pidgin English. This garage man has seven Chandlers in service, and stated that he had practically no trouble with them. He especially liked the Chandler because it is very economical in the use of gasoline, which is expensive in Japan, costing 1 yen and 80 sen, or the equivalent to 90 cents.

Another feature about the Chandler which is popular in Japan is its large and comfortable seating capacity. Probably the thing, however, which makes the greatest hit of all with the Japanese, and in fact in all oriental countries, is that the Chandlers are magneto-equipped. Because battery stations are few and far between it is necessary to equip all cars with magnetos, and as the Chandler comes this way, without additional cost, it is naturally very popular.

Mr. Smith discovered another rent man, Japanese, who had twelve Chandlers and who had two cars which he had for more than five years, each of which had given over 100,000 miles of service. As the Jap expressed it, "Allee same jus so good now as when I ketchee long aglo."

To All Truck Users:—

It has been brought to our attention that reports are being circulated to the effect that MACK trucks, in the chain-drive models, are being discontinued.

Such reports are untrue.

Chain-drive MACK trucks have been built for twenty-two years and will continue to be built as long as MACK trucks are made by the International Motor Co.

Optional types of final drive (including the chain) are offered in the 1½, 2 and 2½-ton MACK models but the 3½, 5 and 7½-ton models are exclusively chain-drive.

CADILLAC
STANDARD OF THE WORLD

CADILLAC

Apparently in Perfect Shape After the Hard Run.
The only Knight motored car in the Yosemite Valley economy trip was a Stearns Knight entered by the Lynn C. Buxton Company. The car made an unusually creditable showing. It is here shown at one of the famous falls near Camp Curry.

RUBBER HOSE.

This is the time of year to renew the rubber hose connections of the cooling system. These connections deteriorate after a season's use and sometimes the inside layer of fabric separates from the rest and impedes circulation, without the defect being apparent from the outside. No kinks should be allowed in such connections and the clamp fasteners should be properly secured. Where rubber hose has bends in it a good plan is to reinforce it by a brass coil spring, which is a good fit inside. This prevents any flattening at the bend and cracking, resulting eventually in a leak.

FOR THE TOOL BOX.

A convenient addition to the tool box is a small packet of wire nails of different sizes. These nails may be used to replace lost cotter pins and for many other purposes.

THE SLEEVE-VALVE ENTRY.

Stearns-Knight Sets Interesting Marks on Curry Economy Dash.

Contestants, observers and those who accompanied the run for the sport in it have all been loud in their praise of the cars and their performance in the most difficult Camp Curry economy run of the five that have been held.

Traveling most of the 400 miles in rain, sleet, snow and, beyond Merced, mud hub-deep, the different cars and their drivers were under a strain that a few years ago would have made finishing impossible.

One of the outstanding records of the run was that of the Stearns-Knight, the only sleeve-valve motered car in the run. This car, an entry of Lynn C, Buxton, the Stearns distributor, was a stock seven-passenger job carrying five people, including driver, Arthur Larsen, and the official observer.

The car, carrying full fuel tank and passengers and baggage, weighed 4610 pounds, and made 39.23 ton miles per gallon of gas. This, in the face of conditions as they existed, is a remarkable showing. When one considers that the Stearns is a four-cylinder motor of the sleeve-valve type, the ton mileage made, through road and temperature conditions away below the usual, is truly wonderful.

The actual mileage record, however, is the one that is the most interesting, because that is what owner drivers are most concerned with. The Stearns made the 400-mile trip, ninety-one miles of the 400 in mud and slush, mostly hub deep, on twenty-three and one-half gallons of gas, an average of a little better than seventeen miles to the gallon.

Seventeen miles per gallon in rain and snow and mud, and in weather so cold that motors could not warm up enough for proper combustion, is real mileage.

The oil consumption for the trip was so low that no oil was added to that in the crank case between Los Angeles and Camp Curry. The Stearns car was placed last in the list of twenty-one cars leaving Los Angeles, and, by the rules of the contest, was compelled to take the same position the next morning on leaving Merced for the final run into the valley. This made the Stearns's going doubly hard because of the badly churned-up condition of the road. Ahead of the Stearns were twenty other contestants, five press cars and several nonofficial cars that accompanied them. One can easily imagine the sea of mud the last few cars had to plow through. There were, of course, numerous delays, due to stalled cars and trucks, yet the Stearns entered the valley sixth, passing fourteen constestants and a few other cars.

This was Mr. Larsen's first trip to Camp Curry. He had no opportunity to make a practice run, as did many of the contestants, and his record stands out on this account. He is positive he can better his showing next year and stand higher in his class.

COMFORT VS. CAMPING.

How to Make Life a Pleasure While on Your Annual Summer Tour.

BY HAL BAKER,
Sales Manager for the Western Auto Supply Agency.

To be "as happy as a tramp" has always signified a happy-go-lucky life that comes from contact with the great outdoors and from wandering along the open road wherever your desires may lead. Many people have never had the opportunity to experience it. They do not know the pleasure of the traveler who pitches his tent by night on any spot that suits his fancy. Now everyone who possesses a motor can have a moving caravan of his own and for as long as he is in the mood to be a carefree gypsy.

It is an easy matter to take along your own hotel and set it up by the roadside when night overtakes you. The motor car has become a gasoline caravan. Time and space are at your call, your freedom is absolute and the expense is less than living at home.

The motor-camping method of touring is the newest and lodest pastime in the world. Although people wonder at its miraculous growth during the past year or so, this growth is not surprising for the reason that the idea is based upon one of the oldest instincts of man—the gypsy call to the open road and the gypsy way of travelling.

In regard to expense, it is safe to state that any one who can afford a machine and a vacation trip, can likewise afford a motor-camping trip. There is no way of travelling whereby one can cover so great distance and see such a variety of country in so short a time and for so little money.

The equipment of the gasoline caravan is a real but a very definite problem. If possible it should be solved completely before the trip is commenced for the different articles cost more along the way and you will have no choice.

The need for articles overlooked, clumsy packing, unequal distribution of weight, these and a dozen other annoyances are continually cropping up but which, if planned at the start, will greatly enhance the joy of the trip. One goes camping to have fun, not to be annoyed. The average motor camper is not a backwoodsman, who, when night overtakes him, sometimes curls up under a tree and falls off to sleep. Roughing it is not at all necessary with all the new inventions for compact and convenient camping equipment is at the beck and call of the modern gypsy.

The motor camper can, by taking proper thought, make himself as comfortable as he would be in his own home. It is with the thought in mind of helping the motor-camper decide upon what he would actually need for his camping trip that Western Auto has established one of the most complete camping departments on the Pacific Coast. In this department can be seen the way the outfit will look after it has been loaded upon the car and when it is unrolled, exactly the things that are going to be taken.

PUTTING A BREEZE WHERE YOU WANT IT.

In hot weather, did you ever wish that you could get a breeze in the front end of your car? Well, this wish can now be satisfied, because the Robert Thompson Company, body builders, are installing little cowl ventilators, which in summer throws a stream of cool air down on your feet into the front end of the car, where it is needed the most. The practicability and the popularity of this device has been well demonstrated by the number of orders, installations and inquiries that have been received by the Robert Thompson Company since announcing that this little device can be placed on all motor cars.

RUST REMOVER.

Make a solution of one part sulphuric acid to ten parts water and dip in it the parts from which it is desired to remove rust. Next dip them in a bath of hot lime water and keep them in it until they have become so hot that they dry immediately on being taken out. Then rub the parts with dry bran or sawdust and they will be found to be perfectly clean and may be painted with fireproof paint, blued or nickeled.

Gentlemen:

We have just read with considerable interest the news contained in the morning paper, informing us that the Lincoln car, driven by Bill Bramlette, has broken the record from Los Angeles to Phoenix.

Being fully cognizant of the variety of temperatures, climatic conditions and altitudes, as well as the terrible road conditions existing between Los Angeles and Phoenix, we believe we are in a position to intelligently testify to the sturdiness of construction and consistency of performance of an automobile that could make this trip one hour faster than the record previously held by the Studebaker Light Six.

Permit us, therefore, to congratulate you on this demonstration of Lincoln quality and to wish you continued success.

Very truly yours,

LEAVITTS GET LOOK AT SNOW.

Six Native-Born Children Go to Strawberry.

Whole Family Rides Comfortably in Olds Eight.

Reach Sledding Country at Six Thousand Feet.

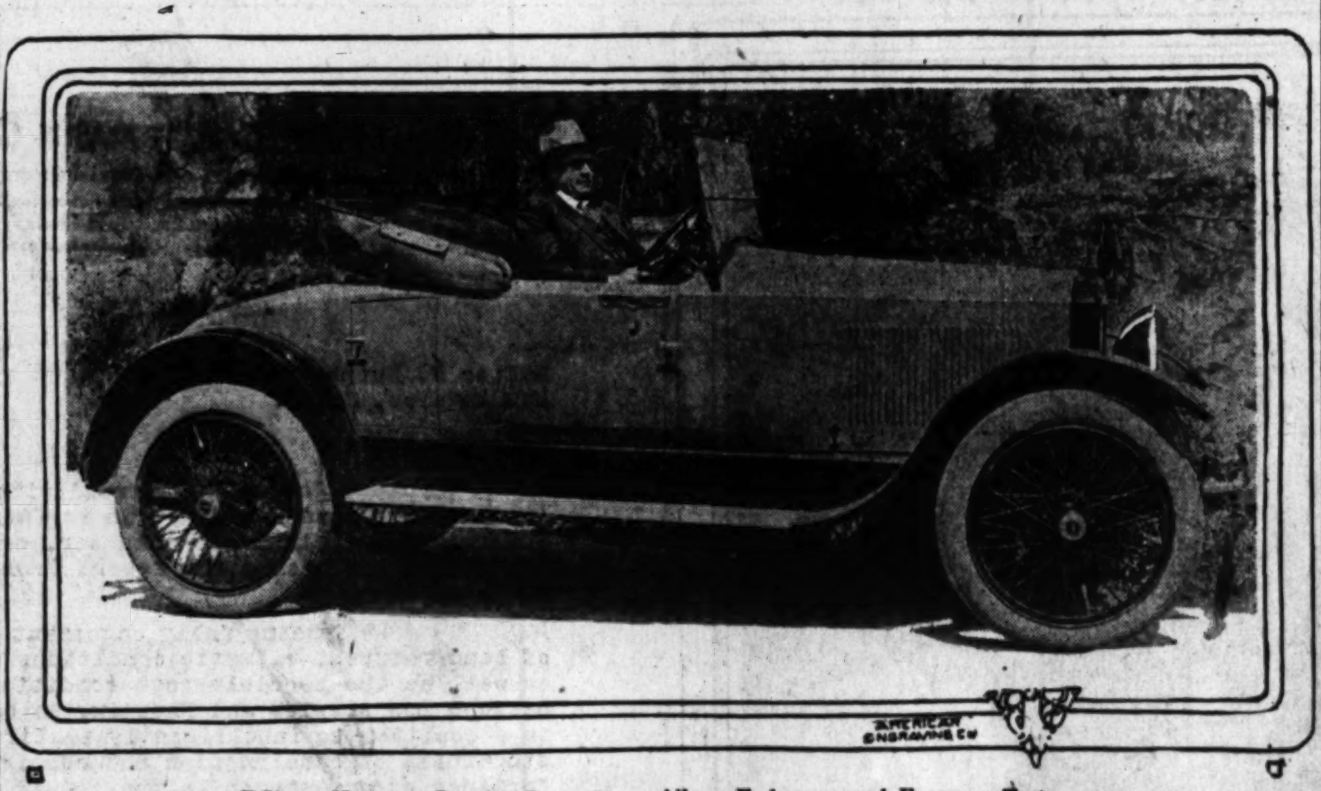
"An interesting motor trip to the snow in the Sierra Nevada Mountains out from San Francisco and up the Placerville road past Strawberry, where the snow is encountered at an altitude of 6000 feet," announced J. W. Leavitt of the J. W. Leavitt Company, distributors of the Oldsmobile lines.

"To give their first taste of snow to our six native-born sons and daughters, Mrs. Leavitt and I took this trip recently, leaving San Francisco on the 8:30 o'clock Oakland ferry in our Oldsmobile eight, with all seats full and one small passenger over, driving by way of Stockton, Sacramento and Placerville to Kyburz, 212 miles, where there are excellent accommodations. The next morning we continued to Strawberry, ten miles, then one mile up the Slippery Ford grade, where we bumped into snow. This is not the nice, fluffy snow as it falls, but is a hard, packed mass that is more nearly ice than snow. Progress through this sort of snow is practically impossible.

"Several attempts have been made by motorists recently to be the first to drive over this Placerville summit to Tallac, but without success, and now that the season is so far advanced and the snow is softening up and melting, it will be almost impossible to drive over this road until the snow is cleared away, which will probably not be before May 20 or 25. If cold weather should come on and this ice snow would freeze up, an automobile equipped with tractor-type wheels might be driven over the surface of the snow, provided anyone wished to go to the trouble to do so.

"I was told that the snow up at the summit (elevation 7400 feet) is twelve feet deep, and this will take a long time to melt away, so that this Placerville summit will probably be one of the last roads to Tahoe to open.

"This excursion up to the snow was very much enjoyed by the little Leavitts, who had a fine time snowballing and building snow men, all of which to the native-born was quite a novelty. The American River and the smaller mountain streams feeding it are at present roaring full of water, and present a very pretty and inspiring sight and sound. The roads to Kyburz are now in fine condition, so that this will make a very pretty two-day round trip, provided you care to drive the 212 miles in a day. There is a splendid highway all the way to Placerville, and then from Placerville to Kyburz, thirty-three miles of splendid mountain road. The distance from Kyburz to Strawberry is ten miles. I am told the Strawberry Hotel will open on May 15. Here is a nice, rather unusual trip, over good roads, and with beautiful scenery."



Believes He has a Car that Beats Them All on Endurance and Economy Tests.

George Renwick and his Auburn beauty six which he has driven 31,927 miles without even taking up a bearing or ever having the slightest excuse to drop into a repair shop. W. J. Burt, Auburn distributor for Southern California, claims that such reliability records are the ordinary thing with Auburn owners.

GENUINE ENDURANCE RUN.

Here is a real endurance, economy and reliability run in the hands of the owner. George Renwick, president of the Los Angeles Manufacturing Company, in an Auburn beauty-six roadster, has driven 31,927 miles, or one and one-third times around the world in eleven months, and has never had a bearing taken up and the valves ground only once.

Mr. Renwick said yesterday, when talking with W. J. Burt of the W. J. Burt Motor Car Company, distributors of the Auburn beauty-six, upon transportation: "Transportation today is the greatest problem that the business man has to deal with. It can be viewed from many angles, but when you are through it is all summed up in a few words—by continually getting there and back again on time.

"I have tried all ways of transportation, but none so satisfactory as the present-day automobile. I purchased my first Auburn—a two-cylinder car—in 1907 and have been the owner of one or more Auburn cars all the time since that date, having purchased twenty all told, and have several of the late models at this time. The original purchase price of an automobile doesn't mean very much when the end of the year's business is summed up. It is the time you have saved and the business you have been able to close from being there on time.

"I have tried all ways of transportation, and when there is anything more reliable from the steamboat to the airplane than the present-day automobile that will transport me the distance of one and one-third times around the world and be laid up less than one day you will have to show me."

Apperson Shows Splendid Mileage on Curry Jaunt.

Confronted by nearly every extreme weather condition known to motoring, the 1921 Camp Curry-Yosemite run, held a week ago, somewhat resembled a mud-scowing party. It was a real test of the stand-up ability of a motor car and, despite the prevailing conditions, an Apperson anniversary eight battled the elements to a standstill, completing the run with a commendable score and without a mishap checked against it.

Leaving Los Angeles, the paved boulevards assumed a glassy aspect and this handicap was prevalent throughout the first day's run to Merced. To obtain the most economy out of a car with this road condition found everywhere was an impossibility. But the fact that this car withstood the rigors of the trip without the slightest trouble is sufficiently noteworthy, declared Harris Hanshue, manager of the local Apperson factory branch.

After leaving Merced and entering the mountains on the last lap to Yosemite, the most trying touring conditions that have ever been found in this State caused the cars to demonstrate their serviceability rather than the amount of gasoline consumed. So gummy was the mud which was found on the mountain roads that it was necessary for drivers to exercise the greatest care in order to keep the cars in the road and to prevent a possible skid over an embankment.

For some time considerable comment has been made on the flexibility of the Apperson motor. It was while plowing the veritable sea of mud, with the gumbo up to the hubs and in deep ruts, that this feature of the car was plainly demonstrated. The flexibility of the motor avoided a constant shifting of gears and at the same time enabled the motor to show its extreme power.

The Apperson carried an extremely heavy load and, despite the rigid condition, the car finished the run with a high score. Also most sixteen miles to the gallon were made and this under conditions which could not be called ideal for touring. At no time during the entire run did the Apperson give the driver any trouble, while those who rode in the car were made comfortable by its easy-riding qualities.

DEMON SHORTSTOP PREFERS APPERSON.

"It is a mighty gratifying thing for us," said Mr. Edgar Apperson, president of the Apperson Brothers Automobile Company of Kokomo, Ind., "to see the great number of celebrities, well-known people, distinguished men and women, who continue to buy our product. Quite recently a fine, new, spick and span Apperson sedanette was sold to Hornsby, the world famous shortstop, on the St. Louis team. Hornsby, as everybody knows, led the league in hitting last year and now he plans to hit on all eight in the famous Apperson car, which is the peppiest thing on the road, but has in addition that gas thriftiness which is directly due to the simplicity of Apperson design."

TESTING VENT PIPES.

In filling the radiator of the car allow enough water to pass in to bring the level over the end of the vent pipe. If this pipe is clear, as it always should be, the fact will be indicated by the overflowing of the water through it. If it is not clear, the water will overflow through the filler cap and not through the vent pipe, which should be attended to at once.

GETTING TO BE A HABIT OF TEMPLAR.

Wins Economy Runs with Ease and Dispatch Twice in a Row.

The record made by the Templar in this year's economy run to the Yosemite, when it made the highest score of all cars entered, regardless of class, with a ton-mileage of 51.20 and an average of 26 2-3 miles per gallon throughout the gruelling journey, when compared with last year's record, shows the consistency of this car's performance, in the opinion of Leland S. Foulke, president of the Boulevard Motors Corporation, Templar distributors. Foulke, who so ably piloted the car, said he had never seen a car put through any harder or more dangerous trials than all were compelled to undergo on the last day of the run. It was the real acid test, he believes.

"Last year, the Templar entered a two-seated roadster, which won in its class with a score of 49.20 ton miles," he said. "Last year the lighter car went into the valley over good roads and in excellent weather on twelve gallons of gas. This year, a touring car with four passengers and through mud and slush and under the most trying weather conditions turned the trick on fifteen gallons.

The car used only 17 gallons of gasoline to propel it 400 miles from Los Angeles to Yosemite Valley, carrying four men and their baggage the entire distance.

This marvelous economy is obtained because—the Gardner uses a motor of approved design, perfected by competent engineers and high-grade workmanship and careful construction—the Gardner uses a Carter carburetor with two jets, one closing as less gasoline is needed—the Gardner uses a pre-heating gas system insuring perfect volatilization of the gasoline.

THREE MILLION SAVED YEARLY.

Pacific Coast Rates Case is Decided Favorably.

Will Mean Tremendous Saving in the Long Run.

Much Credit Due to Men Who Put Measure Over.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, May 13.—Three million dollars a year saving has been effected for the automobile dealers of the Pacific Coast as a result of the decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the new-famed Pacific Coast rate cases, according to a report given today by J. S. Marvin, general traffic manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce to C. A. Vane, general counsel of the National Automobile Dealers' Association. The I.C.C. has just handed down its decision upholding the industry's position.

The National Automobile Dealers' Association was drawn into the case through the representations of the Motor Car Dealers' associations of Los Angeles and of San Francisco, who are affiliated with the N.A.D.A. Acting on behalf of the N.A.D.A., the case from the standpoint of the Pacific Coast dealer was presented by Marvin as well as the case from the standpoint of the manufacturer of motor cars. In discussing the case with Vane today, Marvin said: "The Pacific Coast rate cases involve approximately $3,000,000 a year to Pacific Coast dealers. The carriers asked for a readjustment of transcontinental rates, which included the cancelation of the special (or so-called commodity rates) on passenger cars and trucks, which are lower than the first-class rates.

"Incidentally, in all other freight territories, the class rates are charged. The western lines made a great point of this fact in the latest hearings before the I.C.C."

"The increased charges on passenger automobiles from Ohio, Michigan, Indiana territory would have varied from $62.50 up to $264.50 a carload. The increase on trucks would have been from $133.75 a carload up to $387.30 per carload. From eastern points the increases would have been greater, in some instances as much as $450 a carload. These increases have no reference to the general increase in freight rates, which has been made on all lines and would have been in addition to those most recent increases to the carriers."

Evidence was offered to the Interstate Commerce Commission to show that 31,500 carloads of motor vehicles were shipped to the Pacific Coast in 1919 upon which $15,000,000 of freight was paid. The class rates average about 20 per cent higher than the special commodity rates.

"The industry and the automobile owning public owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. Marvin," said Harry G. Moock, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association when told of the Interstate Commerce Commission decision. "The victory is just another example of what these two great associations, dealers and manufacturers, are doing for the interest of the entire trade. The dealers would have been hard pressed to have found a traffic man so thoroughly conversant with their transportation problems as Marvin, yet it needed just a man of his type and equipment to successfully handle the case. Pacific Coast dealers have saved enough on freight rates to pay their membership dues in the National Automobile Dealers' Association from now until eternity, one might say. Yet this one thing is only one think of a hundred things that the N.A.D.A. is doing for the industry."

A. C. ROBBINS RETURNS FROM UP-STATE TRIP.

A. C. Robbins, head of Union Motors, Inc., distributors here for the Maxwell, returned yesterday after a rather extensive trip throughout the State and a visit to many of the Maxwell dealers.

Robbins finds conditions good and is much impressed with the demand for the Maxwell in the smaller cities and the rural districts of the State.

"Business conditions in general are very good," said Robbins. "In fact, I was really amazed to find business progressing so rapidly. I returned a decided optimist over conditions and look for increased prosperity in all lines of business during the coming months."

Upon his return to the city, Robbins took up sales matters with George Pearson, and the local organization is going after business with renewed efforts.

CLOGGED OIL PIPE.

It is possible to clear out a Ford oil pipe which has become clogged by taking off the front gear plate, which discloses the cam gear, and this is removed with a puller. Now the end of the pipe is exposed, and to this an air hose is connected, the air is turned on and the obstruction is blown out. Without this little trick it is necessary to tear down the engine to

MAXWELL IN WILD TESTS.

In recent strenuous tests around the city the Maxwell in the hands of some of the more enthusiastic of the salesmen of the Union Motors, Inc., has proved some amazing things about its power, speed and endurance.

George Pearson, the aggressive manager of sales of the local Maxwell distributing company, has so fired his sales organization with enthusiasm that each one of the men is anxious to pull some demonstration stunt that will surpass anything done by the others.

The result of this friendly contest has been the finding out of some really very interesting and instructive things about the Maxwell's smooth running motor and its performance over some of the city's most formidable hills.

It appears that the new Maxwell more than justifies its right to being classed as one of the greatest performing cars in its class. In fact, a man this week, who owns two expensive automobiles, placed an order for a Maxwell coupe for use about town.

"I only rode in the car because I happened to know one of the executives of the local company," said this man, "and when he offered to take me downtown, I jokinkly remarked about his car. Before we had gone six blocks, however, I was interested in the car because of its smooth running motor. I knew, of course, that it was economical, but I did not realize what a delightful riding car it really was.

"Doubtful about the power of the motor, I casually asked my friend to take me up over some of the hills, and after that performance, I was completely convinced that the good Maxwell offers one of the greatest values on the market today."

DEMAND INCREASING FOR OWEN MAGNETICS.

IT IS NOW GETTING TO BE A PRIVILEGE TO OWN THIS MACHINE.

One of the most enthusiastic motorists in this part of the State is J. W. Gaffney and it was with the keenest regret he declares that he was unable to arrange to be present at the annual run into the Yosemite Valley this year.

Gaffney, who is connected with the Gaffney Motor Sales Company, is a motor enthusiast and a touring fan. Every speedway event finds him in a front row box cheering on his favorite racer, and every automobile contest finds in him an interested follower.

Perhaps one of the reasons for Gaffney's enthusiasm over motors is the fact that the car distributed by his concern is one of the most delightful pieces of mechanism on the market. The Owen magnetic which Gaffney takes with him on his trips throughout the State, really gives a most remarkable performance of ease of riding combined with phenomenal power and absolute reliability.

As there are only a limited number of Owens manufactured, and the demand is yearly increasing, it is becoming a privilege to own one of these cars, and, generally speaking, one must place their orders far in advance.

MOTORS REQUIRE A LITTLE ATTENTION.

IT'S A GOOD IDEA TO LOOK THINGS OVER EVERY NOW AND THEN.

Modern automobiles do not need much attention, but they do need some little going over now and then. The average car will run whether you grease and oil it or not, but not nearly so long without a journey to the repair shop, or run nearly so sweetly.

You always envy the smooth-running machine that purrs along the road, with the driver sitting back as if in a rocking chair, and there is no reason why your own should not be one of these, if you will take the following advice.

"Motors need attention now and then, clean spark plugs and clean oil in the crank case, but not much more than that," points out M. O. King of the Case Motor Car Company, distributors for California.

"This motor cleaning ly needed after the running and lack of cars receive during the year. Then, too, choke button more and thus there is more raw gasoline getting case and cutting the value of the oil.

"The oil in the crank be cleaned at least every You will be surprised more power the car has motor has been cleaned oil used."

Pennzoil Handitank

The Right Way to Save Money on Oil—

THERE can be but one way to get economical lubrication—the right oil at the right price. Pennzoil Handitanks mean both.

Pennzoil Motor Oil—supreme Pennsylvania quality—long ago established a reliable guarantee of heat resistance, physical strength, uniformity—the ability to stand up under excessive engine heat or heavy overloads, and to keep a tenacious lubricating film between all working parts at all times.

Pennzoil in the 10-gallon Handitank costs less per gallon—permits bulk prices that mean a big savings over ordinary quart-at-a-time costs.

The new Handitank faucet opens instantly to full flow; closes automatically; cannot be operated without its removable handle—no spilling, dripping or leaking. An exclusive feature that saves time and prevents waste.

Best of all, there is the safety that comes with the exclusive use of Pennzoil—safe lubrication—in the grade your motor needs. The right oil in the right grade at the start of every trip.

Pennzoil Handitanks save money because they save repairs, save depreciation, and save on the purchase price per gallon. They give safe lubrication at all times and for less money.

Then, too, you use the choke button more in the winter and thus there is more likelihood of raw gasoline getting in the crank case and cutting the lubricating value of the oil.

"The oil in the crank case should be cleaned at least every 1000 miles. You will be surprised how much more power the car has when the motor has been cleaned and fresh oil used."

MAGNETO SPARK IS BY FAR THE HOTTEST.

According to tests made under Gen. Pershing's orders in the Army Transport Corps in France, a spark from the magneto is three to four times as hot as the battery spark, according to Mr. W. P. Herbert, president of W. P. Herbert Company. "This is one good reason why the Chandler and Cleveland cars are magneto equipped," said Mr. Herbert. "The spark uses every particle of gas in the cylinder, thus economizing in fuel, and at the same time giving excess power."

TO STRENGTHEN FRONT AXLE.

A method of straightening a front axle that has been bent in a vertical plane is to take a 4x4-inch joist long enough to reach from the upper side of the axle, just outside of the spring plate, to a cross timber of the ceiling or roof of the garage. Then it is placed beneath the axle at the bend and pressure may be applied by means of it to bring the axle back into shape.

PHOENIX FILM DRAWS THRONG.

Crowd in to See Pictures of Studebaker Run.

Director Thompson Turns Out Interesting Feature.

Hardships of Round Trip Are Clearly Depicted.

An audience that well filled the Trinity Auditorium last Wednesday evening viewed a pre-release showing of the new Studebaker film called the "Light Six Pony Express."

This picture is a story of the record runs of the Studebaker car which holds all road records between Los Angeles and San Francisco and broke a record recently between Los Angeles and Phoenix. It was produced by Paul G. Hoffman Company, the distributor for Studebaker lines in Los Angeles and vicinity and was directed by L. G. Thompson.

As scene after scene flashed on the screen the little car was seen scurrying around the many turns of the Ridge road, over the level floor of the San Joaquin Valley and finally arriving at the San Francisco postoffice four minutes and ten seconds ahead of the previous road record by way of the valley route.

Several novel examples of photography were shown. In one scene the car is timed by a stop watch as it flashes down the boulevard at better than a mile a minute, while in another scene the car appears to soar over the head of the audience. This worm's eye view of the car disclosed the lower part of the car and the rear axle vanishing a few inches above the top of the camera.

It was in the section devoted to the Phoenix trip that the real thrills were enjoyed by the audience. Splashing through a stream of water the crew was drenched and the car wholly concealed for a moment by the wide-flung spray. At other points the car plowed through seemingly endless ruts with rear wheels in one pair and front wheels fighting to get out of a parallel pair eighteen inches to one side.

Where the road twists like a snake track one of the crew was thrown out with the car traveling at thirty miles an hour.

This scene gave the director a real thrill at the time it was filmed as it was entirely unexpected but the mechanic was only slightly injured by the wheel running over his foot.

A great variety of desert scenery is shown, not only in the picturesque Box Canyon but in the hills where the cactii project their huge bulk or slender, graceful branches high into the air. One of the humorous scenes was where a team of little burros were passed by as the car skidded around them at sixty miles an hour and they, catching the spirit of speed, hurry to keep up but without success. Culverts that were leaped at high speed also furnished thrills as the wheels are shown clear off the ground for yards at a stretch.

At Phoenix the car was welcomed by a big crowd who entered into the spirit of the scene and played the parts of extras and were as much enthused as though they were witnessing the actual finish when the light six clipped more than two hours off the old record and set a new one of thirteen hours and sixteen minutes.

The auditorium has been secured for a second run of the film with another showing of a very interesting factory film which shows in detail the massive machinery and immense plants in which the light six is manufactured complete at South Bend, Ind.

Snapped Among Some High-grade Scenery.

The Nash six party after completing the economy run into the Yosemite Valley and making a most creditable showing, spent the following day in visiting the points of interest in the valley. The camera caught them under Yosemite Falls, which are most beautiful at this season of the year.

ONLY FIVE MOVING PARTS CAN BE SEEN.

FOUR WHEELS AND THE FAN MAKE UP THE COMPLETE LIST.

"Only five moving parts—the fan and the four wheels—can be seen in the LaFayette," says John J. Troy, president of the Troy Motor Sales Company, local distributer of the LaFayette. "In this is reflected the perfected simplicity of the entire car.

"Many automobiles were designed by mechanics—not engineers. And, because it is easier to make a part heavy than light, or to use a bent rod instead of a straight one, awkwardly-designed chassis are in the majority.

"In the LaFayette there is not a single bent rod. Of course, the engineering that permits of this advanced construction was skillful and painstaking. But the result has more than justified the effort.

"Only one universal joint and a torque tube drive, which eliminates lost motion and traction, are two features by which the LaFayette gains in comparison with other cars. This reduction of friction in the transmission is furthered by the method of transmitting the power in a straight line from the engine to rear axle."

NEW ROADSTER IS CENTER OF ATTRACTION.

"The most popular roadster the Chandler Company ever made." This is Mr. R. C. Manning's verdict in regard to the new battleship gray roadster, which is a recent addition to the Chandler line. The decidedly sporty lines of the car, the color, the convenient luggage compartment in the rear, with the attractive top and extra upholstered seat, go well with the marvelous Chandler motor. There is such an insistent demand for them that we cannot keep them on the floor."

DROP LIGHT ARRANGEMENT.

A convenient arrangement for taking up slack in drop light cords is to put the cord on two pulleys placed at convenient locations. The cord should be fastened at two places to pieces of heavy twine, clothes line will do, and then a weight is hung on each end of the line. The cord as suspended from these lines will be just long enough to hold the lamp off the floor.

SHOWS ECONOMY IN SPEEDY TRAVELING.

NASH MAKES FAST TIME AND IS EASY ON GASOLINE AT THAT.

Speed records, tests of power and stamina over desert and mountain roads, do not very often hook up very well with gasoline economy. Neither is it usually considered conducive to economy for a driver accustomed to fairly high speed and rapid travel over highway or desert to pilot a car on an economy test. However these factors entered more or less into the trip of the Nash six last week into the Yosemite Valley on the Camp Curry economy run.

Arthur Marshall handled the Nash six in its run from Los Angeles to Camp Curry, a distance of 400 miles. His time from Los Angeles to Merced, where the night control was established, was nine hours, or an average of slightly more than thirty-three miles an hour, more than half the way through a rain storm. The following day Marshall made the trip in from Merced to the floor of the Valley in but a little over six hours, and this despite midwinter road conditions from Mormon Bar to the bottom of the Inspiration Point grade.

It was traveling too fast for real economy, but it again proved that the Nash six is capable of standing up under heavy punishment without a murmur. Under these conditions the Nash made the distance of 400 miles with an average gas consumption of more than eighteen miles to the gallon.

"I had hoped that the Nash would show better than twenty miles to the gallon on the Camp Curry economy run," said Chase Garfield, sales manager for the Troy Motor Sales Company, Nash distributors, in commenting on the trip, "but our car really was not given a chance to do anything like its best. Of course, the bad road conditions were as fair to one as to another, but Marshall drove much too fast for reasonable economy. However, when you take into consideration the rain and mud experienced on the trip, together with the speed made, it does show that the Nash six has good economy despite its wonderful power and roadability."

JAPAN WILL SOON COPY OUR ROADS.

INVESTIGATOR LIKES THE TYPE THAT ARE IN COMMON USE HERE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, May 13.—That the bituminous type of roadway, as evolved and adopted in America, is admirably suited to the needs of Japan and that he will recommend the adoption of that type for Japan's big city improvement and road-building program, is the statement of Prof. T. Takakuwa of Kiriu University, Tokio, imperial commissioner of the Japanese government, sent abroad to investigate types of highways in Europe and the United States. Prof. Takakuwa left Japan over a year ago to begin his investigations. He is planning to sail for Tokio from Seattle in June.

Much of the commissioner's time has been spent in New York City, Washington, D. C., Chicago, Boston and cities of the East and Middle West, where streets were inspected, and in examining paved highway in the rural districts of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Illinois. On his way to Seattle he will visit several western cities and will pursue his inquiries among State and local highway officials. For the most part, however, his investigations are practically complete. Prof. Takakuwa spent several months in England, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Germany and other European countries.

Chandler has No "Mark Up" to Mark Off

CHANDLER built the first Light Six and the first Six to sell for less than $2,000. That was eight years ago. It's a bigger car today, more powerful, most highly refined. And it still sells for less than $2,000.

In this period of eight years more than 140 manufacturers making automobiles at the time Chandler entered the field, or who have gone into the business within this period, have discontinued for one reason or another. The Chandler lives and thrives.

Chandler price has never been marked up because of an oversold condition. And today Chandler has no mark up to mark off.

PUZZLED OVER DURANT RUMOR.

According to Mr. Collins and although Durant is financially interested in the Collins concern he does not hold a controlling interest, it is said.

R. H. Collins, whose resignation as president and general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Company becomes effective July 1, has purchased the Cass avenue plant of the Cadillac company, according to an announcement made by himself this week. Mr. Collins closed negotiations and took immediate possession of the plant.

Mr. Collins will not begin work at the Cass avenue plant until he finally severs his connection with Cadillac July 1. Until then he is to remain in full charge of the Cadillac company and the distribution of his product.

The announcement of Mr. Collins puts an end to reports that he had selected Cleveland as his base of manufacturing activity.

"In spite of contradictory rumors about my plans," said Mr. Collins, "those who know me never doubted for a minute that my high regard for Detroit as a city to live and manufacture automobiles in would permit me to locate my plant in any other city, no matter how attractive were the inducements offered me, and there have been many.

"Detroit is the greatest automobile manufacturing community in the world and I believe it will always retain that distinction.

"It will give me a pleasure that I cannot describe to return to the historic buildings where Cadillac cars have been manufactured from the first single-cylinder down to the latest eight-cylinder model, and where I directed operations of the Cadillac Motor Car Company during recent years."

Located on the Cadillac site, at Cass and Amsterdam avenues, it was one of Detroit's first motor-car factories. From this modest plant has grown the present structure in the heart of Detroit. While its value as a property has multiplied many times, Mr. Collins is convinced that the heavy investment necessary to gain possession of it is justified by the fact that the location and environments will provide a worthy setting for a high-grade automobile that he intends to produce.

PLANS NOT OUT.

When asked about the type of car he intends to manufacture, Mr. Collins said he was not ready to make his plans public.

The Maxwell Motor Company plant was purchased Thursday by Walter P. Chrysler and Harry Bronnon for $10,915,100, through a foreclosure sale ordered by Judge Arthur Tuttle of the Federal Court. The sale was preliminary to a reorganization and merger with the Chalmers company and was the result of a friendly suit brought by creditors to aid this merger.

The original Maxwell company was capitalized at $40,000,00 in Delaware. The new company is capitalized at an additional $15,000,000 from stock subscriptions by present stockholders or loans furnished by banking interests. The new organization is to be effected under the charter granted by West Virginia.

Mr. Chrysler is at present vice-president of the Willys interests and has been interested in the Maxwell company for some time. There will be no connection between the Willys and Maxwell interests, however, it is believed.

Bronnon was chairman of the board of directors of the old Maxwell organization and is expected to head the directorate in the new company.

Stockholders of the Willys-Overland at their annual meeting this week re-elected substantially all the old directors. Those elected were: John N. Willys, W. P. Chrysler, C. B. Wilson, J. E. Kepperley, J. R. Harbeck, E. R. Tinker, Elisha Walker, Edward F. Swift, Rathbun Fuller, C. B. Mertz, George R. Spencer and C. E. Killinger.

John N. Willys presided at the meeting. It was expected that the financial statement of the company for the past year would be submitted to the stockholders but Mr. Willys announced that it had not yet been completed, but that it would be ready for the stockholders in the near future.

Mr. Willys told the stockholders that in his opinion the worst is over in the automobile industry and that from now on he looked for a continual improvement.

Mr. Willys further announced that the company's financial outlook is exceedingly encouraging and that its operations would be increased from time to time as the sales conditions might warrant.

Sales of the Willys-Overland Company have increased 71 per cent in the last six weeks, it was announced. The record of the second week in March showed an increase in retail sales throughout the country of 17 per cent over the first week. The sales of the third week showed a jump of 41 per cent over the first week. The last week of the month brought a slump in sales due to the snow storms in eastern states. The sales were only 25 per cent of the first week. The next week, however, the sales showed a 60 per cent increase, and last week they mounted ta the 71 per cent mark. Factory officials believe that the sales will steadily maintain this rate of increase for the next six months.

cars. A Cleveland six and two Willys-Knight press cars were always up at the front of the parade, while a Lincoln and a Stephens came down from San Francisco as well as two Buicks carrying press representatives.

Once in the valley conditions changed for the better and the very best of weather prevailed while the well-known hospitality of Camp Curry was much in evidence. Most of the cars and drivers remained over in the valley for a couple of days. Frank Herman brought up a couple of very interesting reels of movies, one of them showing an old 1913 Buick, which was the first car into the valley in 1916, and the pictures made the economy run contestants think they hadn't had such a tough time after all.

BIG BEAR THE GOAL FOR TREK.

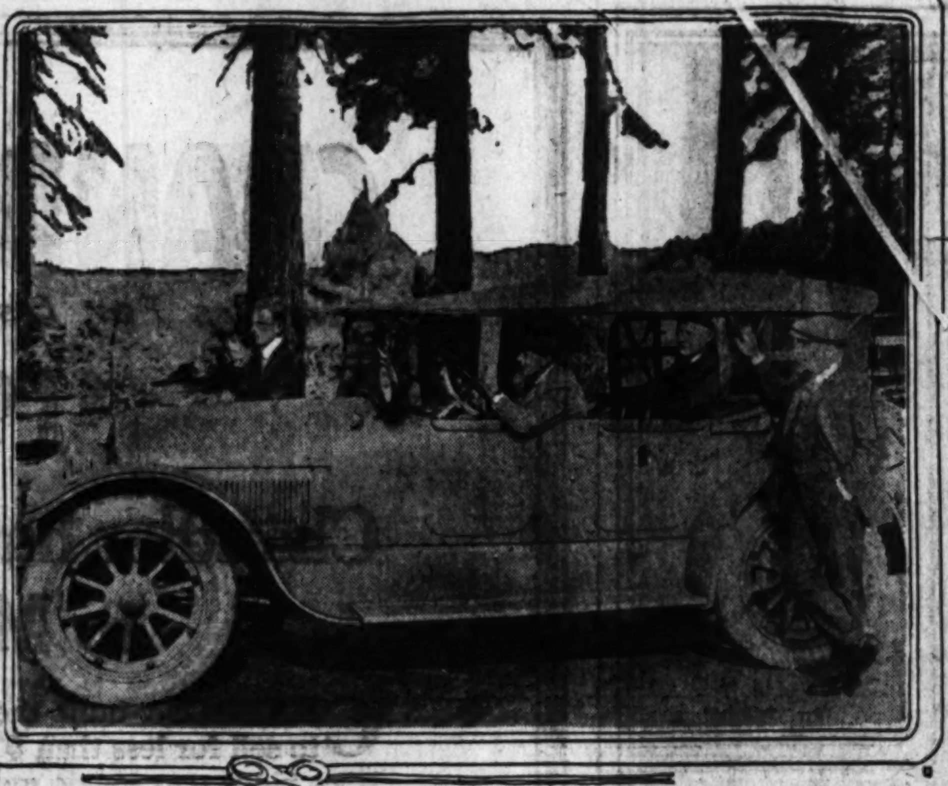
nardino Mountain retreat by the caterers and a corps of twenty waiters. This arrangement is to insure the finest "eats" that Sunny Southern Californians ever sat down to.

The outing, it is stated, is to be for members of the association and their invited guests. The cost per ticket is to be announced early next week. Only a limited number can be accommodated, according to Baldwin, which means that those waiting until too late will be left holding the proverbial sack.



Polishing Up the Details for Big Bear Reliability Run.

Here they are, in Bear Valley, arranging for the Motor Car Dealers' reliability run, May 28, 29 and 30. The members of the committee in charge of the affair are, left to right, L. M. Foulke, T. P. Tupman and H. M. Hanshue. They made the trip to the lake in an Auto Club Cadillac with Standish L. Mitchell, secretary of the club, doing the heavy driving. The Big Bear run promises to be a record-breaker from every conceivable standpoint.

TOURING IS IDEAL NOW.

Try a Trip to the Bay City, Advises Don Lee Who Now Commutes.

Don Lee, California distributor for the Cadillac, has become a motor-car commuter betwen Los Angeles and San Francisco. The veteran automobile dealer takes advantage of every opportunity to cover the State territory in a Cadillac and last week came from San Francisco to Los Angeles over the Coast road in company with William Gleason, general controller for the Don Lee interests.

The tour was made in a day and a half, with a night stop at Paso Robles.

ARE MISSING IT.

According to Lee, motorists who are not enjoying the springtime touring are missing one of the most delightful seasons for seeing California at its best. The coast road is paved practically all the way between San Francisco and Los Angeles, with an occasional stretch of unpaved road and only one bad detour. This is about a mile in Gaviota Pass and is soon out of the way and forgotten.

The usual reception committee of speed officers was on hand to greet Mr. Lee as he passed.

Cadillac sales throughout California remain steady and Mr. Lee predicts that 1921 will rank with any former years in the number of new cars purchased throughout the State.

NEW BODIES.

While in Los Angeles Mr. Lee inspected several new custom-built body types that are being turned out by the Don Lee Coach and Body Works. One is a new town car and another a four-passenger sedan. Inquiries from eastern dealers continue to come in increasing numbers. Lee expects to see his eastern business more than doubled during the next season.

During the past year the Don Lee Coach and Body Works has produced and sold over 100 custom-built bodies and there are now under construction twenty others. California has absorbed the majority of these bodies, but a goodly number have been shipped East. Kansas City has taken two bodies; Fort Worth, Tex., one; Dallas, Tex., three; Milwaukee, two; Chicago, one; New York, one; La Salle, Ill., one; Minneapolis, one, and Birmingham, Ala., one.

OWNERS' SERVICE DEPARTMENT.

Question: Is the Simplex valveless car still built in this country, and if so where?

Answer: The Simplex car is built in New Brunswick, N. J., but it is not a valveless job. Some years ago there was an Amplex car, which had a so-called valveless motor, but that is not made any more.

Q.: Is there any car made today that has a wooden frame? I used to own a car with that kind of a frame, and it was a bird. I can't see why wooden frames ever went out.

A.: The Franklin air cooler has a wooden frame. The relative expensiveness of the wooden frames and the difficulties of manufacture probably caused the predominance of the metal frame.

Q.: There is a grinding noise in the gearset of my car. I have cleaned out the old oil, bushed it with kerosene and refilled it. I didn't find anything, but the noise continues. Can you suggest the real reason?

A.: Misalignment of the gears is the probable basic cause. Metallic particles or chips from the teeth have probably worked their way into the gears. You had better take the car to the service station and let them line up the gearset.

Q.: When I let in the clutch of my car the whole works jumps like a kangaroo. I figure there is something wrong with the clutch. What can I do with it?

A.: You do not mention the type of clutch in question, but if it is a disc clutch, try treating the facing with neatsfoot oil, spread evenly on with a brush. If the clutch is of the disc type lack of oil is probably the trouble.

Q.: Please tell a new owner what gear ratio means.

A.: The gear ratio is the speed of the crankshaft in relation to the speed of the wheels on high gear. If the gear is four to one, the engine turns over four times to each revolution of the wheels, on direct.

Q.: Would it be possible for a storage battery to fail if only one cell was out of order? I have been told that two cells of my battery are all right, but it does not function properly.

A.: If one cell is completely dry it may cause an open circuit and the whole battery will fail. This trouble may be due to a broken jar.

Q.: How can I clean the top on my car? I have been told that gasoline is bad to use.

A.: The top should be cleaned with soapsuds and water. Rub the suds in well all over the top and wash with clear water. Use good castile soap. Gasoline, kerosene and similar liquids, ruin the layer of rubber in the top.

Q.: I am having persistent trouble with my storage battery, although I am careful to keep the liquid up to the proper level. Do you think the generator can be the cause of the trouble?

A.: The trouble probably lies in the fact that your generator is not set for the correct charging rate for the particular service you demand of the car. You may be driving a great deal at night, consuming current for lighting, starting often and the generator is not supplying enough current to keep the battery up to the mark. Consult the nearest service station or the manufacturer of your battery.

Q.: Who makes the best wire wheels for attachment to the Ford car and how much does the complete equipment cost?

A.: If you will inclose a stamped and addressed envelope, a list of manufacturers of wire wheel equipment for Fords will be sent to you. It is too long to publish here.

CAR CREW CAPTURED WOLF.

A large timber wolf, heedless of an approaching interurban car, was stunned and captured at 6 o'clock Sunday morning near Excelsior Springs by the crew of a Kansas City-bound car on the Excelsior Springs line.

L. R. Dougan, motorman, saw the animal loping between the rails ahead of the car. He speeded up. The car overtook the animal, knocking it clear of the track. Dougan and L. L. Morgan, the conductor, got off and captured the wolf.

The animal was only stunned. Morgan caught it by the neck, while Dougan grasped the feet. They shut it in the front vestibule of the car and transferred it to a cage after reaching North Kansas City. Dougan is keeping the wolf in the basement of his home. He says it will live.—Kansas City Star.

lopment of Dam Projects Means Good Roads.

Scenic Wonderland May Soon be Opened Up.

de Trip Shows Possibilities of Country.

The permanent gain for the mo- of America of some of the scenic roads that will ever be ucted on the face of the earth result from the construction of series of dams now projected in great scheme for development ilization of the power of the do River.

If this big power plan is car- through there will have to be roads built to the site of each These roads will lead right into the heart of the Grand of Arizona, to the edge of the do River, and to build them will be necessary to blast their out from the granite sides of canyon walls.

present there is no roadway down into the Grand Canyon, and until a few weeks ago when a Velie six successfully made its way to the bottom of the canyon and back up again, it was believed to be utterly impossible to get any sort of a motor vehicle to the bottom of the great chasm. No average motorist could ever get to the bottom now, and the man who thinks anything of his car would never attempt it. But if the great power development project goes through the work may leave at its completion several fine roads down to the Colorado River, leading the motorist down into some of the most beautiful parts of the canyon.

These roads will be necessary in order to get supplies down for the building of the dams. An idea of the magnitude of the undertaking can be gained by comparison with the Kern River power work recently completed.

For the Kern River dam the Edison Company built their own roads, and maintained them throughout the two years required in the building of the dam, all at their own expense. Over these roads were hauled vast quantities of every kind of material necessary to such work. Some 1,172,000 pounds of powder were used, 21,400 gallons of gasoline, 5400 barrels of cement, besides the food for large crews of men. The food supplies to maintain a crew of 2500 men for each thirty-day period throughout the two years included 93,680 pounds of meat, 23,500 loaves of bread, 30,000 pounds of sugar and 12,000 pounds of butter. More than $150,000 worth of men's clothing was hauled over the roads. And in every other human necessity the figures are correspondingly large. Yet this Kern River project was for the development of only 40,000 horsepower. The Grand Canyon project is based upon the development of 2,500,000 horsepower—so it is not difficult to see that things are going to be doing around the Grand Canyon if the development scheme is carried out.

The first of these roads to be built will undoubtedly be the road into the Grand Canyon from Peach Springs, a distance of about nineteen miles. For this road the Velie six has already blazed the way in 1921.

Wouldn't be the Owner of an Open Car for Love or Money.

Mrs. Lillian Rambeau, mother of Marjorie Rambeau, famous actress, and her Dodge Brothers four-door sedan. Mrs. Rambeau is one of the strongest advocates of the inclosed type of machine for all sorts of climates and weather conditions.

THINKS CLOSED CAR IS THE ONLY THING.

PREFERS TO HAVE A LITTLE PROTECTION WHEN ON LONG MOTOR TOURS.

Mrs. Lillian Rambeau, mother of Marjorie Rambeau, Los Angeles' own actress, and herself an actress of considerable note, thinks nothing of motoring up to San Francisco at regular intervals, a fact which she blames on her new Dodge Brothers four-door sedan, which she recently purchased from the Albertson Motor Company, Dodge Brothers dealers.

"It is so absolutely comfortable for touring, and you arrive in such good shape, no dust, no wind-blown appearance, that it is really the only way to make the trip; those trains are so stuffy you know," Mrs. Rambeau told C. W. Macfarlane of the Albertson Motor Company.

"I really don't see why they named the open car a touring car, for it has been my experience that the sedan is the ideal car for touring. I have just returned from an extended tour up through San Francisco and Oakland, visiting Marjorie and a few of my old friends, and although the trip is supposed to be rather strenuous, especially for a woman, I do not mind it the least bit, probably on account of the easy handling qualities of my Dodge Brothers sedan," said Mrs. Rambeau, naively.

CUSTOM-BUILT CARS IN GROWING DEMAND.

IDEAS AND DESIGNS OF OWNERS ARE NOW RECEIVING ATTENTION.

That this is an age of specialization and individuality, particularly in the matter of personal tastes in motor cars, is the conclusion reached by officials of the Walter M. Murphy Company, coach builders, following a survey of the Southern California territory just completed.

These officials declare that throughout this section of the State there is a marked demand for specially built motor car bodies according to the individual ideas and designs of owners. Certain refinements of appointments and grace of lines not found in the general run of the factory products are required by motor car owners of discrimination, who demand "something different" and stand ready to pay for that difference.

Though the Walter M. Murphy Company has branched out into most California cities, already inquiries have been received from points that have not been touched as to the possibilities of having individual body designs built upon standard chassis.

"Heretofore," says Murphy, "motor car owners desiring special coach work on their cars were forced to send their orders in to eastern firms, and consequently were greatly delayed in receiving delivery. The Walter M. Murphy coach building plant at Pasadena is fully equipped to take care of orders for any and all types of bodies. Experts in their respective lines are at the head of the various departments, and the latest machinery for turning out orders without delay is available."

CUTTING GLASS CIRCLES.

It is possible to break out circles of glass, such as lenses for headlights, by making a number of straight cuts from the edge of the glass and breaking these sections out one at a time. Be careful not to cut inside the line of the circle to be cut.

TO FILL VACUUM TANK.

In cases where the vacuum tank has become empty for some reason it is a simple matter to fill it again by turning over the engine a few times with the throttle closed and the spark off. This takes only a moment and creates vacuum enough to fill the tank.

Pound Out Fenders at Record Rate.

In order to produce Fords at the present price, quantity production has to be featured at every turn. In turning out completed fenders, the local force doesn't waste a particle of time. The five operations necessary to turn out the completed fender is only a matter of four minutes. They can assemble 500 fenders a day when production is rushing and the services of only four men are required.

ASSEMBLE FENDERS IN LOCAL FACTORY.

HUGE MACHINES DO THE WORK IN UNUSUALLY SPEEDY TIME.

At the local Ford factory branch they assemble and enamel all the fenders used on every car sold in Arizona and Southern California. Besides the front and rear fenders, the hood, dust shields, cushion springs and some small parts are enameled.

The fenders are shipped to the local Ford factory branch in carload lots, five separate pieces making each complete assembly. Seven operations are necessary to assemble the fender. Modern invention makes it possible to rivet, fit and bind these five separate parts into the completed fender in less than four minutes. The local Ford plant has a capacity of 500 fenders per day, the services of only four workmen being required in this department.

From the assembly room the fenders are hauled on large racks to the dipping vats, where they are dipped in enamel. After dripping for 45 minutes to allow the surplus enamel to drain off, the racks loaded with two and one-half tons of fenders are rolled into electric ovens. These ovens are the largest of their type in Los Angeles, and have a capacity of 2400 pieces in an eight-hour day. The fenders are baked at a temperature of 350 to 400 deg. for an hour and a quarter. Only the highest grade coal-tar enamel will withstand this terrific heat. After cooling, the fenders are dipped and baked a second time. They are then ready to be installed in the car.

PROTECTING SPARK PLUGS.

Spark plug spares are frequently injured while being carried in the tool box. An excellent method of guarding against this is to slip each plug into a section of rubber hose, closing each end up with a bit of waste to prevent the plugs working out.

BUICK PRESS CARS IN LEAD.

Blaze the Way to Yosemite for Contestants.

Get into Some Wild Rain and Snowstorms.

All Four Machines Make Grade in Real Style.

One of the outstanding features of the Los Angeles-Camp Curry economy run to the Yosemite Valley was the performance of the four Buick press cars, which had been entered by the Howard Automobile Company to transport the members of the press from Los Angeles, as well as San Francisco. Although not competing for the five handsome silver trophies which had been offered as prizes by Foster Curry on behalf of Camp Curry, the Buicks were utilized to good advantage in furnishing valuable road data for the drivers of the cars which were striving to win the cups.

BLAZED THE WAY.

Carrying the Los Angeles newspaper representatives, the Buicks blazed the way to the first night's stopping place in Merced. In the raging rain and snowstorm on the Ridge Route, the scribes were carried in advance of the rest of the cars, thus showing the road was safe for the caravan of twenty-one official cars entered in the economy run and those which were bringing the officials.

From Merced on up over the summit of the Sierras to Camp Curry on the floor of the Yosemite Valley, the other two Buick press cars took up the task of blazing the way for the caravan. Leaving San Francisco on the last ferry boat, the Buicks were sent along at a merry clip, and without stopping, except for gasoline, reached Wawona, in time for breakfast.

CONSIDERABLE RAIN.

Owing to a sudden and unexpected rain and snowstorm, which broke just at sundown Friday, the roads from the foot of Chowchilla grade over to Wawona and from there on over to Inspiration Point via Chinquapin were converted from smooth mountain highways into a sea of slippery mud. Despite this handicap, the Buick pathfinders made their way over both of these steep grades and got valuable data for the rest of the party, who still were in Merced.

All during the night Jupiter Pluvius reigned supreme, much to the discomfiture of the pilots who were after a high mileage gasoline consumption score. Through the inky darkness the drivers of the Buicks went through snow and mud as far as Wawona. Then they were driven right through to Camp Curry in time for luncheon.

Notwithstanding this hard trip the cars made a good mileage record. Although, with the exception of one car, they were brand-new cars which had just been taken off the service floor, an average of sixteen miles to each gallon of gasoline was secured.

Dog Has a Right to Finger.

A Detroit judge has decided that if a small boy sticks his finger through a crack in the fence and loses the digit when the dog snaps it off, the owner of the dog is not liable to damages.—[Indianapolis News.

Literary Artists Journey to Yosemite in Style.

Here are four Buick press cars furnished by the Howard Automobile Company, which carted the literary demons and scribes on the economy run to Camp Curry. How four carloads of scribes ever managed to get anywhere without smashing up is still a mystery, but the Buicks apparently pulled them through all difficulties without a murmur. On the extreme left is Bill Henry, newspaper man and airplane magnate de luxe, who claims to have led the parade all the way to Yosemite. People who have ever driven with Mr. Henry do not doubt the truth of his statement.

LEXINGTON LEADS THE SIX-CYLINDERS.

SHOWS REMARKABLE ECONOMY IN OIL, GASOLINE AND WATER.

Although a four-cylinder car in the same class with the Lexington Thoroughbred showed a better mileage, the Lexington beat all six-cylinder water-cooled engines in its class. This chassis carries the new Ansted motor, which has won distinction by fast speed on hill climbs and track meets throughout the United States, and now it shows marvelous results in the Yosemite economy run.

The distance traveled to Yosemite Valley was 400 miles, and this time of the year it was fraught with many difficulties, such as rain, snow and mud-slushed roads. The gas consumption was twenty-two gallons; no oil was consumed; water required, three pints; mechanical adjustment, absolutely none; tire changes, none, making an average ton mileage of 40.45 ton miles per gallon of gasoline. This is a remarkable showing for a big sturdy six-cylinder car that has unlimited power on hills and for speed.

Mr. Francis C. Davidson, general manager of the Lexington Los Angeles Company, distributor of the Lexington car, drove the entire trip and was much elated over the showing made by the car, even if they did not win the cup in their class. Mr. Davidson said that the title of the run was a misnomer. It should be called an endurance contest, because of the extreme adverse conditions that existed throughout the run.

ENLARGING BUSHING.

It is possible to enlarge a bushing without the help of a reamer, by cutting down a stick to fit the bushing, putting some grinding compound in and rolling the bushing back and forth on the bench, bearing down on the stick and keeping it from turning. The resulting hole is practically as true as if done with a reamer.

OAKLAND REDUCES PRICES.

Mechanical Changes in Factory Cut Down Manufacturing Costs Decidedly.

Answering the public demand for a reduction in price the Oakland Motor Car Company has announced a reduction of $250 on all models effective immediately. According to advices received from the factory by the California Oakland Motor Company, the reduction is prospective, being made to increase demand and production and thereby enabling the makers to spread the overhead over a greater number of cars and still earn a fair manufacturing profit on the output.

"When Mr. Masten, general manager for the Oakland Motor Car Company was out here three weeks ago, he told us that there was going to be a decline in price, but just how soon, he could not foretell," says Reeve Gartzmann, president of the California distributing company for the Oakland.

"He stated that the factory had made extensive mechanical changes that would reduce manufacturing costs at the factory and they were working out a schedule that would make a reduction possible, and that it would be announced just as soon as it could be put into effect.

"Masten's trip over the country spurred him to quicker action, and almost on his return, he called his department managers into conference to determine when the cut could be made and a review of the figures and the increase that had been shown in the demand all over the territory resulted in the reduction being made now, although it is really based on the estimated costs and production for next fall.

"The new lowered price of the Oakland is in fact lower than the prewar price, when the models of the two periods are compared. The car formerly sold at $1275 here and now with the extra war tax added the open models sell for only $1375, and the latest Oakland six is a much larger and better car than it was two and three years ago."

TALKS ON TRUCK MAINTENANCE.

BY L. P. POYER

Of D. F. Poyer & Son, Transport Truck Distributors.

If you have at times wondered why the steering gear fails to control the front wheels of your truck properly, your job is to get a wrench, or a couple of them, and see if the "insides" of your front wheels need adjusting.

Even though everything may appear to be all right, do not let it go, for a few minutes' investigation will show you the trouble and a few more will remedy it. Usually wabbling is caused by loose adjustments in the wheel bearings, wornout spindle bolts or spindle bolt bearings, wheels not aligned properly, a bent axle, knuckles not tilting back. Any one or all of these ailments may be at the bottom of your front wheel trouble and may some times surprise you by flinging your load in to the road or down into the ditch.

To keep the front wheel bearings from wearing and to insure proper adjustment, they should be taken out and cleaned thoroughly with kerosene every 10,000 miles at the most, refilled with fresh lubricant, and carefully adjusted. Hub caps should be filled with grease every 2000 miles.

The method of finding out what part of the front axle is loose, is to place a jack under the axle and rock the wheel sideways to see if there is any side play. In this way it is possible to tell if the spindle bolts, bearings, tie-bar bushings, or bolts are loose or worn out. If the wheel rocks, the bearings are loose. In that case remove the hub caps, take out the cotter pin through nut and spindle, and tighten up on nut until the wheel itself is tightened. As soon as the wheel is tight and does not run loose, release about a quarter to a half turn on nut. The wheel should then run correctly and without side play. Be sure to replace cotter pin after adjusting the wheels and to refill the hub caps with new grease.

If the spindle bolts and bushings are worn, they should be rebushed or replaced with new parts. This replacement can be made by taking out the cotter pin and nut on the bottom of the spindle bolts and removing the safety pin in the middle of the spindle. Drive out the old bushing, but be sure to fit the new bushings to the spindle bolts before putting them in.

BREYER VISITS FACTORY.

Robert S. Breyer, general manager of the Western Motors Company, is now in Marysville, Mich., inspecting the Wills Sainte Claire inclosed models. This is the first showing of these cars, and the principal distributors from all over the country are in conference at the Wills factory.

According to a night letter received by Manager E. B. Wilson of the Los Angeles branch, the reception given the Wills Sainte Claire throughout the country has been a tremendous surprise, even to the makers of the car.

CONGRATULATED.

Breyer also wired that the officials of the Wills Company had warmly congratulated the Western Motors Company on the able way the car had been presented in California.

The demand in this State has consumed all cars shipped, and the advance orders from sub-dealers are reaching large figures.

There is a close race on between San Francisco and Los Angeles in retail sales. Last week San Francisco was leading by a narrow margin of one sale, and by selling a car a day during the past five days they have increased their lead.

Shipments for the leading out-of-town dealers are now en route from the factory, and while in Marysville, Breyer will make every effort to have the allotment for California increased.

A SENSATION.

The wonderful hill-climbing ability, the quick pick-up and the quietness of the Wills motor have been little less than a sensation wherever the car has been shown in California, and the many new features offered in the Wills have attracted the mechanically-inclined to the various salesrooms, where the closest study has been given to the partially cut-open chasses on display.

NAMES JACKSON DEALERS.

In recognition of the ability of the Sudrow Motor Car Company as an organization qualified and capable of representing its varied lines of motor vehicles, the Jackson Motors Corporation of Jackson, Mich., through its general representative E. Z. Jones, has appointed the above company as its exclusive distributors for the State of California for Jackson automobiles and trucks.

Commenting on this appointment, Mr. Jones stated: "It is true the Sudrow Motor Car Company and Los Angeles have been chosen by us as the location respectively for the distribution of our products. We feel fortunate, indeed, to be represented in this wonderful State by so progressive an organization, as our careful investigation has disclosed the Sudrow Motor Car Company to be."

"Our line this year represents the highest achievements in motor-car design and construction. Testimony of this was strongly registered at the New York and Chicago Automobile shows where we closed bona-fide orders for over $4,000,000 and contracted with many of the largest distributors in the East and Middle West. We have been a little neglectful in the extreme West due to pressure brought to bear by those closer to us, but with our new connection here we intend to cooperate in every necessary way to serve the public in general."

"Jackson motor cars were recently reduced and at the new prices represent values worthy of every cautious buyer. The Jackson Motor Corporation has been building motor cars for eighteen years but never in the history of the business has a motor car company made such strides as the new line discloses. Our cars are built along distinctive lines—nothing ordinary or unattractively common about them. When you buy a Jackson, you have that same feeling of contentment and importance that manifests itself whenever you accomplish any other big thing in life."

PIPECLAY FOR MATS.

Pipeclay acts as a preservative of rubber and makes one of the best mediums for treating the rubber mats used in automobiles. Oil and grease are rubber solvents and ruin the floor mats, if they are allowed to remain on them. The mats should be wiped quite dry and then be pipeclayed. The pipeclay dries and sucks the oil out of the rubber.

MAKES FRIENDS OF OWNERS

The sloping hood of the Pilot gives promise of its power. Looking forward from the wheel suggests sighting down the perfect taper of a gun barrel.

The Pilot is properly-powered, scientifically correct for the size and weight of the car.

It is thoroughly adequate for all needs, and gives you exactly the performance you want when you want it.

Drowsily, you can creep along to the purring accompaniment of this gently pulsing machine, or when occasion demands, quickly accelerate to the exulting battle note of top speed.

Both the ability and dependability of the Pilot's power largely account for the confidence of Pilot owners.

This confidence in, and admiration for, the Pilot performance grows with the miles, as the engine preserves its original excellence with little attention for months and years of service.

Behind the Pilot car of today stretches twelve years of experience.

It is well known that the Pilot car makes friends of owners, and it is equally true that these friends make new owners for the Pilot.

Whether you look for power, beauty, or economy, we urge you to let us demonstrate.

By the new t of the steering device t end perfect steering g, entirely under con- e driver of the truck, is secured. While the driver of the truck is in his seat this new steering mechanism gives a wider range of control. Further than this if the trailer has to be backed into an especially difficult position for its work of loading or unloading, the draw bar can be easily disconnected from the axle steering mechanism while still attached to the truck, when it acts as a solid bar. There is also a hand wheel by which the slant of the axle may be fixed at any necessary point while the trailer is backed in the desired direction by the truck applying its power through the solid bar.

The operation of trailers of the ordinary type, when off a straight road and backing is necessary, has customarily required an extra man to turn the rear wheels and even then has been an extremely uncertain and bothersome trick. This new device entirely does away with this difficulty.

LEACH PRESS CAR SETS GOOD MARKS.

NEGOTIATES ROUGH ROADS AND GIVES SCRIBES AN EASY RIDE.

Although the Leach power plus six was not entered in the Yosemite run last week, nevertheless, it was represented among the cars taking part in the event—and taking a prominent part. For it was the Leach that was one of the official press cars and carried the Los Angeles newspaper men who officiated at the run.

A five-passenger model of the Leach, which is manufactured in Los Angeles by the Leach Biltwell Motor Car Company, was used, and was driven by R. P. Pennock, sales manager of the company. The machine easily negotiated the rough and mountainous highways, and would have done exceptionally well if it had been entered in the run.

With the newspapermen, Pennock left Yosemite at 7 o'clock Monday morning and reached Los Angeles at 11 p.m. that night, making the 369 miles in running time of a trifle less than twelve hours. Several stops were made en route, but the Leach made the trip both ways without accidents or trouble.

Incidentally, the Leach company opened its new city salesrooms at the Hotel Ambassador Saturday, where the latest models of the machine are on display, including the classy sport roadster, the four, five and seven-passenger cars. Within the last two or three weeks the company has opened branches at Santa Ana, San Diego, Long Beach, Fresno, Sacramento and San Francisco, while branches also are located in large eastern cities.

PREMIER SHOWS ZIP IN ECONOMY JAUNT.

PROVES THAT LIGHTNING NEVER STRIKES TWICE IN THE SAME PLACE.

Lightning never strikes twice in the same place, according to Fred C. Schoen, the Southern California distributor for Premier cars, and he entered one of his beauties in the Los Angeles-to-Yosemite economy run to show that the accident that befell the Premier entry of last year was an act of fate, although the car finished and made an enviable showing.

The Premier in the run this year placed second in its class and fourth in the free-for-all against the keenest of competition. Shoen has never been an advocate of the run and the Coast method of scoring mileage on economy runs. He argues that an economy run should give the prospective owner a basis for determining what mileage he should expect to get under similar conditions and he drove the Premier in a manner that seemed to him a normal owner would drive.

Schoen used the same amount of gasoline for the trip as the winner, and, when the gauge was examined at the end of the run, it was impossible to get any oil into the crankcase without flooding, and incidently the car required no additional oil when it arrived in Los Angeles on the return trip. The round trip was made on forty-two gallons of gasoline, no oil and one and one-half quarts of water. The distance was in excess of 800 miles and all kinds of roads and weather were encountered.

According to the official figures, the Premier scored 42.55 ton miles to a gallon of gasoline, and in the free-for-all it took fourth place against cars that had undergone weeks of careful preparation.

PAIGE STARTLES NATIVES OF BAY CITY BY CLIMBING DUNCAN GRADE IN SECOND.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—The steepest of San Francisco's steep hills, a grade so severe that the cobbled street is grassgrown for lack of traffic and the sidewalk is a staircase of ladder-like incline, was scaled last week by a Paige 6-66 stock model in second gear. Of all recent demonstrations of the remarkable power and hill-climbing ability of the Paige this conquering of the famous Duncan-street hill is regarded as the most remarkable. Not even in its noted Pike's Peak ascension did the Paige encounter such a severe incline. Three blocks long, the Duncan-street hill begins with a gradient of 12 per cent and culminates in a final up-and-down stretch which is recorded by the City Engineer's office as a gradient of 50 per cent.

To the eye of the motor car driver that last block seems to rise straight up in the air. That it is not traversed very is attested to by the fact that grass grows to the length of several inches between the rough cobblestones. And the sidewalk consists of stairs, rather than ordinary pavement.

Aside from the power developed by the Paige in accomplishing this remarkable climb, an additional feature is the quick pick-up and noteworthy speed the car demonstrated. From a standing start about three blocks' distance from the hill proper the Paige developed a speed of fifty-eight miles an hour, when it struck a large bump in the road, and, with the car literally in the air, "Bill" Wallace, the pilot of the test climb, shifted from high gear to intermediate, and the upward grind was on.

With no perceptible slackening of the speed, the big car buckled down to its task and swept up the first two blocks of its steep climb. Then came the final test—the 50 per cent gradient. For the moment it seemed impossible that the heavy car could reach the summit, where moving-picture cameramen were grinding away furiously to record the remarkable automotive feat. It seemed for the space of a few seconds that too much was being demanded of man-made machinery. But with an almost human determination the powerful motor appeared to take a brace, and with a last burst of power and energy, the car zoomed on up over the crest of the hill to the goal—and safety.

REPEATS YOSEMITE WIN.

The remarkable consistency of the Dorris, a two-timer in the winning column of the Yosemite economy run, is shown when the ton mileage figures of last year and of this are compared, according to A. J. Russell, Dorris distributor.

A winner in its class last year, the Dorris, carrying four passengers, made a score of 47.64 ton miles. This year, carrying six passengers, it topped its competitors with a score of 47.65—a difference of one-one hundredth ton mile.

"The unpleasant weather and road conditions that all contestants had to contend with showed the complete reliability of a large car of the Dorris type to easily make its way under the worst handicaps in the way of mud that was almost hub deep in many places," he said.

George P. Dorris, head of the company that bears his name, and an automotive engineer of national repute, accompanied Russell, who piloted his entry. On the return trip Dorris drove out of the valley and had his first taste of California mountain driving. He likes the experience so well that he intends to get all he can of it while in Southern California.

NEVER WAS BOOSTED; IT WON'T COME DOWN.

NO PRICE REDUCTION LOOKED FOR BY THE STUTZ DISTRIBUTORS HERE.

In the face of the tendency of the times toward price reductions the Stutz anticipates no following of the movement, because during all the period of ballooning prices on motor cars the Stutz increased to a very small degree, according to Walter M. Brown of the company that bears his name.

"How can the Stutz factory reduce its price now, when it practically never increased it?" says Brown. "All that goes up must come down, but it first has to go up. The Stutz is nearer to its former level in price today than any car built, regardless of recent price cuts.

"I do not look for a drop in Stutz prices. If it becomes possible for the factory to build the present car for less money they will put more money into the car, making it better and more complete, giving the public more for the investment both in the initial price and in the resale market. Just as soon as a car lowers its price every car of that make in the hands of an owner drops to a greater amount, so what is there to be gained?

"By building a better car and maintaining prices the owner is protected, and the new car buyer gets his money's worth as well. This looks to us as the logical analysis of the price situation, and it is the one that Stutz will follow."

The Times-Auto Club Suggestion for a One-day Tour

Leads motorists to Camp Baldy this Sunday. The run of about 100 miles can be easily made in a day and affords drivers a variety of scenery, including orange groves and sure-enough mountains.

A TASTE OF MOUNTAINS.

Auto Club Tour Leads Motorists to Camp Baldy on One-Day Trip.

Motorists today are given an opportunity to take a spring trip through the orange groves and up to one of the famous snow-capped peaks of the southern part of the State, if the map of the Auto Club is followed.

It is suggested that those following this suggestion leave Los Angeles by way of North Broadway and thence up Fair Oaks avenue to Colorado street in Pasadena, watching for club signs, if a stranger here. This connects with the famous Foothill Boulevard through the orange groves by way of Monrovia, Azusa and Claremont.

Follow this route as outlined to a point forty miles from the city, where a sign will be found directing the motorist to Mt. Baldy by way of Mountain avenue, just beyond Claremont. A fairly good road will be found up the mountainside through Stoddard's Camp to Camp Baldy.

Here luncheon may be secured and the rest of the journey made on foot or by horse. But the scenery at this point is beautiful. It is only fifty miles from Los Angeles.

The return journey is over another route, and one equally famous. Watch the map closely and return down San Antonio avenue to the Valley Boulevard at Ontario, passing thence through Pomona, Puente and El Monte to the starting point. Only a little more than 100 miles will have been covered in the entire trip, and yet practically all scenery typical of this part of the State will have been viewed with the exception of the ocean. An ocean trip will be given in the near future.

OCEAN FACTS.

The deepest place in the ocean yet found, 5269 fathoms, or about six miles, was discovered by the United States steamship Nero in 1899 at latitude 12 degrees 43 minutes north, longitude 145 degrees 49 minutes east. The maximum average yearly temperature of the surface occurs in the Indian Ocean and is nearly 85 degrees Fahrenheit. At great depths the temperature does not vary much the world round. Below four hundred fathoms the temperatures are mostly within 5 degrees of freezing. Sir John Murray calculated that at least 80 per cent of all the ocean water has a temperature below 40 degrees. By estimating the weight of salt in the ocean and comparing it with the rate of inflow of salt from the rivers, Joly has concluded that the age of the ocean does not exceed 100,000,000 years.—[Milwaukee Journal.

NOTED CAR ON DISPLAY THIS WEEK.

First American Rolls-Royce Models Are Shown in Los Angeles.

The Rolls-Royce cars will be distributed in California by the Pacific Coast Motors, Inc., recently formed, of which Mr. Dan B. Southard is president. Mr. Southard has been identified with the automotive industry for many years, having been associated with the Lozier company and later with the Locomobile company.

Mr. George H. Olsen, well known in San Francisco automobile circles, will have charge of the main office in that city, and F. J. Pardee, vice-president, will be in charge of the Los Angeles branch, covering Southern California. Mr. Pardee is also an old-timer in the business, being one of the first Packard dealers ever appointed and acting as distributor for Packard cars in Chicago for several years.

Temporary quarters have been secured at 1015 South Grand avenue, where one of the latest chassis is now on exhibition. A permanent building will be erected for Rolls-Royce at once.

THE BEST WATER.

Not all car owners know that pure rain water is the best that can be used in the cooling system. This is because it is free from mineral substances, which are present in ordinary water and which are deposited on the metal walls of the radiator, piping, jackets, etc., to their detriment. When rain water is available always use it.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

The Car With 100 Hill Climbing Records

On January 21st the Paige "Daytona" Model 6-66 won the world's stock chassis record for speed by traveling at a rate of 102.8 miles per hour.

Since that time 6-66 models have invited every test of speed and endurance that could prove the metal of a real champion.

At one hundred points in the nation these mighty cars have tackled the best local hill climbing records and surpassed them with ease.

And in each case the tests have been conducted by unprofessional drivers in standard models that any man can buy.

It is not necessary to explain or amplify such consistent success in the field of sport. The records speak for themselves in the most positive terms.

They affirm that, irrespective of price or piston displacement, the Paige 6-66 is the leader of all American sporting cars.

If you believe that championship form is the best guarantee of all 'round efficiency, then you must believe in the Paige.

If you believe in demonstrated performance on road, hill and track, the 6-66 with its exclusive power plant must inevitably be the car of your choice.

ESSEX HAS NOTHING TO FRET ABOUT.

Still Has Transcontinental Records Sewed Up in Very Fair Style.

Speaking of records in these days of speed runs to San Francisco, Bishop and Phoenix, one distributor, Harold L. Arnold, has steadfastly refused to join the "hurry up" cars in their efforts to avoid the speed cops and put over a little faster time between towns.

"Believing in records and knowing how fast Hudson and Essex cars are," said Mr. Arnold, "a number of car owners have wondered why we did not put one of those cars in local competition, for either would be a worthy contestant in any of the speed events so far pulled off.

"To each query on this subject we have made the rather forceful and convincing statement that the transcontinental runs of Essex last year four times broke all previous records from ocean to ocean, totaled 13,388 miles of speed grind. That is equivalent in distance to thirteen runs between Los Angeles and San Francisco, and fourteen more runs from this city to Phoenix, Ariz.

"Everyone recognizes the fact that the greatest test ever put up to an automobile is that from ocean to ocean. Any car to survive that grind is an acknowledged champion, and when Essex came through a victor each time lowering all previous records, we considered that car had done its part in establishing American road records.

"Then, too, that unusual record set by the Hudson five years ago when the first year super-six broke the double transcontinental record and made 6952 miles in ten days, twenty-one hours from San Francisco to New York, and right back again, has never been equaled by any other car, though many a one has tried and failed."

Chain Drive Has Permanent Place With Mack Truck.

With the readjustment that has been brought about and the renewed production activities there have been made many changes in the motor vehicle industry. A number of combinations of small producers already have been announced and others are expected to follow. Some passenger car and motor truck companies have changed completely their previous types and others have made very pronounced alterations. This has created a question in the minds of prospective buyers as to what the future will bring forth and accounts for the declaration of the International Motor Company, manufacturers of Mack trucks, to the effect that it will continue to use the chain type of final drive.

All Mack trucks of a rated capacity of three and a half tons and over are chain drive exclusively. It has been determined by repeated tests of all sorts conducted by the International Motor Company that for heavy duty work the chain drive is preferable. The manufacturers of the Mack are the only large truck producers who retain the chain drive. This company is firmly convinced of the advantages of this type of power application and repeatedly has announced that this construction always will be retained. This means owners of the chain driven Macks are sure that their equipment never will become obsolete.

FRANKLIN ACTS AS SNAPPY SNOW-PLOW.

TOURING PARTY HAS SOME WILD EXPERIENCES ON TRIP TO BUTTE.

Driving a mud-bespattered Franklin car, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Keefe arrived in Butte, Mont., on April 27th after a most interesting trip from Los Angeles. Leaving April 18th, camp was made successively at Ludlow, Las Vegas, St. George, Cove Fort, Salt Lake City, Brigham City, McCammon, Dubois and Lima.

Reaching the entrance to Beaver Canyon, out of Spencer, Idaho, a consultation was held and it was decided to attempt the passage, though other cars were returning with the statement that nothing could get through. So the Franklin was turned into a snowplow and the grind began. At a point four miles from Old Beaver the road was blocked by a huge drift and a caterpillar tractor was stuck in the creek crossing on the road below, so here the railroad bed was the only salvation and a mile was bumped off over ties. From here the road improved, and so it was that Beaver Canyon was conquered on April 26th.

The distance covered was exactly 1309 miles and the entire distance was driven by Mrs. Keefe. This is the third time the same car has made the trip with Mrs. Keefe at the wheel, and a wonderful feature of this trip was the fact that the Franklin, which left Butte in a snow storm on Nov. 9th, 1920, returned on April 27th, 1921, with Butte air in three tires. Only one puncture in nearly si months on every kind and condition of road is quite a record.

AN EDITOR'S OBSERVATIONS.

We don't know who invented the folding bed. But we'll bet that the bed bug tribe has adopted him as its patron saint.

You can keep company with a girl for ten years. But you do not get acquainted with her until after the parson has said them fatal words.

You claim you are overworked. But isn't it a fact that you are trying to make up the time you wasted while you were loafing?

Even when a man is married and has whiskers, you can't get his mother to believe that he is old enough to think for himself.

Why is it that a small-town girl dresses like a city girl and that a small-town man dresses like a small-town man?

The demand for some things may exceed the supply. But the supply of trouble is always adequate.

Any old time a man admits that he is getting his share you can bet that he is getting a little more.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

Impassable Road is Not That Way for Franklin Car.

Much has been said about the poor road conditions encountered by the Yosemite Economy Run contestants, special emphasis being laid upon the character of the road from Merced into the valley. The Miami road was considered in the best condition and the run was therefore held over it. Even so, most motorists would have considered it impassable.

But it was considered absolutely out of the question to reach Wawona by way of the Chowchilla cut-off. However, on the Friday the contest started, Mr. W. J. Rogers, of Dallas, Tex., in his year old Franklin sedan, which had been driven close to 20,000 miles, entered the valley by the latter route. The heaviest rains were over and the very finest gumbo was present to render the ascent of the 20 per cent grades more difficult. Though carrying five passengers, two of them women, Mr. Rogers, who is an elderly gentleman, made the climb without great difficulty and was on hand to watch the entry of the contestants the following day. And his car has not yet required any mechanical repairs.

OPERATORS WANT BEST IN MOTORS.

Cars Have to Stand Up Under Terrific Strains and Changing Conditions.

It is generally conceded by those who know that oil operators rely largely upon the automobile for means of transportation and that because of the nature of their work and the ground which they cover, they give their cars the hardest kind of usage. For these reasons they choose cars with a reputation for power, speed and endurance. Included in the long list of Peerless owners in Southern California are many oil operators, who have owned more than one Peerless and who give their cars the hardest sort of service, according to Stanley W. Smith, president of Smith Brothers, Peerless distributors for Southern California.

"C. C. Magenheimer of Los Angeles, well-known operator in the Santa Maria field, who recently sailed for Europe on a business trip, has just taken delivery of his fifth Peerless," he stated. "This car is really for use by the company with which he is associated and is used over all classes of roads. Magenheimer has had ample opportunity to learn that a car with plenty of reserve power if needed, speed, endurance and yet with all excess weight eliminated, is the best suited for the work in which he and his associates are engaged."

With the growing importance of Southern California as one of the world's greatest oil fields, Smith commented upon the fact that the automobile has become indispensable in carrying on operations incident to production and its development.

MAETERLINCK LOSES A DOG.

Nice.—Maurice Maeterlinck has a special weakness for animals in general and for dogs in particular. He was greatly distressed, therefore, when, the other day, a gentle little Pekinese which he owned was bitten by Alaska, an ill-mannered Eskimo dog brought back from America by the poet.

The little dog's injury was severe, affecting the eye, and M. Maeterlinck, finding the animal's sufferings insupportable, called into consultation one of the best eye specialists in Nice. After a careful examination the physician declared that an operation was necessary. The four-footed patient, however, unable to take an anesthetic, died under the knife.

Now, for services rendered, the specialist has charged M. Maeterlinck the sum of 600 francs, which le maitre refuses to pay. The physician has gone to court with the matter.—[Le Petit Parisien.

A Hudson Advantage That is Distinctive

Its Smoothness and Ease of Operation

Hudson owners tell us they most appreciate the utter forgetfulness of mechanism they are permitted in their cars.

Neither sound, nor the lapse of any function calls it to attention. Even minor adjustments, which are annoying, though not costly, are almost never necessary. And command of the controls seems intuitive—hardly needing conscious direction.

Men say the Hudson Super-Six repays a minimum of care with years of smooth, dependable, punctual conveyance, without default or absence from service.

And we have a gratifying pride in knowing that more than 100,000 owners drive Hudsons, without envy, we believe, of any other car, no matter what its price.

NEW RECORD—12 hours, 16 minutes
OLD RECORD—13 hours, 16 minntes
DISTANCE—424⅛ miles

¶ The Leland-Built Lincoln has again proven its power, its stamina and its reliability in most convincing fashion by smashing the Los Angeles to Phoenix road record by sixty minutes.

¶ With Bill Bramlette at the wheel, and his brother Walter riding with him, the Lincoln unfalteringly covered rough, rocky roads, over routes considered by automobile men to be the most difficult in the west.

¶ Bramlette, who drove his own Lincoln, a strictly stock standard touring car, was enthusiastic over its performance. He said: "The car did everything I asked of it. The engine always had something in reserve. The chassis was capable of any road shock I put on it. It is this kind of a test that proves how Lincolns are made and what they will stand.

¶ Motorists will find the Lincoln dependable, reliable and more than equal in both power and performance to every demand made by even the most exacting driver.

Officials of the Walter M. Murphy Motors Company were delighted with the record set by Bramlette, and called attention to the fact that the Lincoln is consistently setting these records whenever any attempt is made to cover any road under official observation.

"Doc" Green, manager of the southern division of the Walter M. Murphy Motors Company, also called to mind the many flattering reports that owners are daily making to the service station and the salesmen about the reliable service that their cars are daily giving them.

The recent records set by the Lincoln have caused considerable comment in the East as well as on the Coast, and congratulatory telegraphic dispatches have been pouring into the Los Angeles headquarters of the Walter M. Murphy Motors Company all week, lauding the performance of the car.

Bill Bramlette, when interviewed on the run, declared that the roads over which the record was made are difficult, rough and in very poor condition.

"Even at moderate speed, the roads to Phoenix are not such as to afford pleasant riding or driving," said Bramlette. "At the speeds we maintained the roads were such as to give a severe test to the strength of the car, its right construction, its sturdiness and its reliability."

MUCH GOOD WILL COME FROM BILL.

New Highway Measure Calls for Many Important and Valuable Changes.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Concentration of Federal funds upon highways of interstate importance, creation of a Federal highway commission to supersede the present bureau plan, otherwise unify the governmental highway agencies and drastic provisions for adequate maintenance are chief points in the highway bill introduced by Senator Charles E. Townsend, chairman of the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads. The measure will be called up for hearings in the near future.

The bill provides for an appropriation of $200,000,000, with $100,000,000 for the year from July, 1921, to July, 1922, and the same amount for the succeeding twelve-month period, to be expended on main highways in co-operation with the State highway departments, the States themselves supplying a like amount. Additional sums of $5,000,000 and $10,000,000, respectively, are provided for same periods for the construction and maintenance of roads wholly or partly within forest reservations. The measure also provides that such work shall be undertaken at the direction of the Federal commission, which is also empowered to co-operate with the Indian Service in similar work within Indian reservations.

States are required to meet Federal funds as State units instead of being allowed to pass their apportionment on to the counties, thus draining the latter of their resources as in the past. Coincidentally, county funds are released for use in the construction of farm-to-market roads of lesser importance, while the nation and States are permitted to use their funds for the main market highways.

A new formula is introduced in the case of those States having more than 5 per cent of their total area in unappropriated public lands, these States no longer being required to meet Federal funds on a fifty-fifty basis, although the ratio and amount of Federal funds appropriated to such States remains unchanged.

PIRATE PARTS ARE CONSTANT MENACE.

BE SURE TO GET THE GENUINE ARTICLE NO MATTER WHAT IT IS.

"It never pays to buy 'pirate' parts, parts made by other than the manufacturer of your machine and advertised as 'just as good,'" says C. C. Colyear, of the Colyear Motor Sales Company, distributors of nationally known standard units, "and the guarantee of the maker is at once voided when you install such parts into your machine.

"This applies to practically any kind of machine or separate units of machines, but we are particularly urging car owners now to be careful about buying parts for the Borg & Beck clutch units.

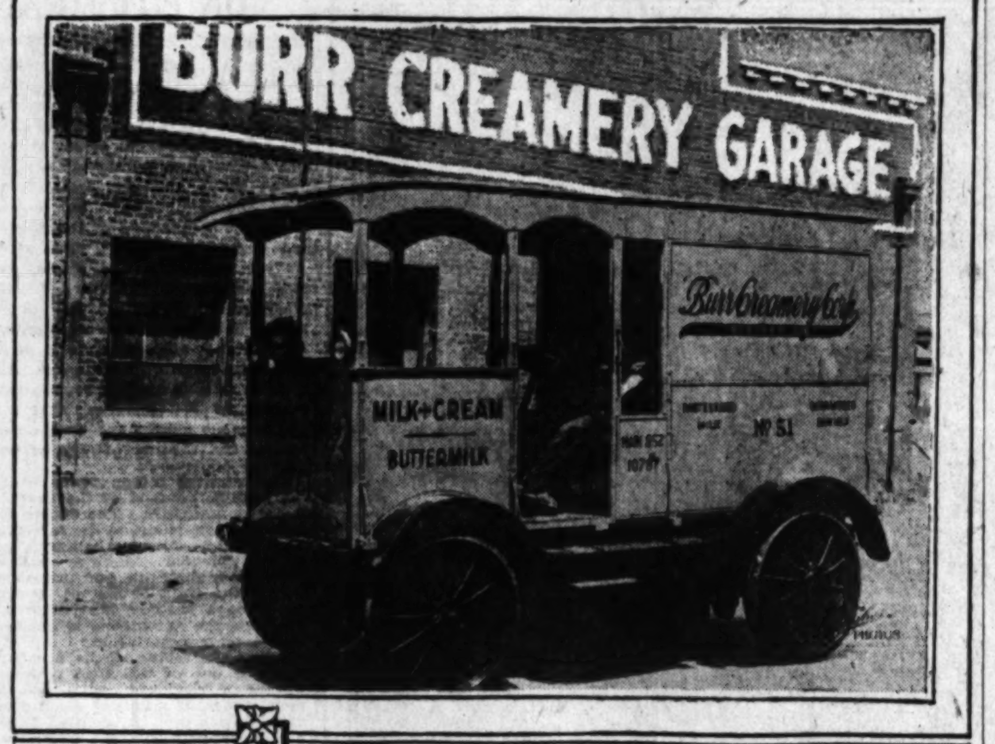
"The clutch is just as important in its operations as any other part of the whole car and if it does not operate easily, smoothly, and promptly, the power which is generated by your motor is not transmitted to the drive wheels without great loss and friction.

"One-sixty-fourth of an inch in the adjustment of the bell crank levers may mean the difference between a perfect working clutch and one that does not give satisfaction. Such fine adjustments are easily made by mechanics who understand Borg & Beck clutches thoroughly.

"A pirate part in your clutch, which wears out more quickly than the genuine part would, puts undue strain and wear on the remaining units and will result in unsatisfactory service from the unit as a whole."

ACID FOR ELECTROLYTE.

In preparing electrolyte for storage batteries nothing but chemically pure sulphuric acid and distilled water should be used. Commercial grades of acid and ordinary drinking water contain enough metallic impurities to cause disintegration of the active material, inducing sulphating and ruining the battery in short order.



Easing the Horse Out of One More Favorite Job.

One of a fleet of five Walker electric trucks of special design for milk delivery service, delivered to the Burr Creamery Company last week. The electrics have proved ideal for this type of work and once more the horse is being shoved into the discard.

ELECTRIC TRUCKS FILLING BIG NEED.

NOW ADOPTED BY CREAMERY COMPANY AS STANDARD EQUIPMENT.

"When the selection of motor-truck equipment is made on a more scientific basis, electric trucks are destined to become a very important factor in the economic development of modern transportation," according to J. Jerome Canavan, transportation specialist and factory representative of the famous Walker electric trucks.

"At the present time electric trucks are fast replacing gasoline trucks in the dairy industry," says Mr. Canavan. "The Burr Creamery Corporation, which is a large operator of various types of transportation equipment, was one of the first concerns in this city to realize the economy of electric trucks in its delivery service. About six years ago this company purchased two used electric trucks, which have been in continuous operation for a number of years. The performance of these two used trucks was so very satisfactory that the Burr company has been constantly adding to its fleet until it now operates fourteen electric trucks in the delivery service.

"We recently delivered to this company five Walker balanced-drive electric chassis of 2000-pound capacity, which were especially designed to meet the particular requirements for milk delivery service. Heretofore the dairy industry has been handicapped by being forced to purchase trucks of standard construction, which have proved to be cumbersome and not adaptable to their service. The special Walker trucks are constructed with the steering column in the center of the chassis with entrance from each side, thus permitting the load to be carried fore and aft, enabling the driver to handle the product with minimum loss of time and motion."

In commenting on the operating economy of electric trucks, E. Burr, vice-president and general manager of the Burr Creamery Corporation, stated it was their ultimate plan to discard all gasoline truck equipment and operate electric trucks exclusively.

CLEVELAND GETS A GENUINE WORKOUT.

STEPS TO YOSEMITE AS PRESS CAR AND DOESN'T GET MUCH TIME TO REST.

On the Yosemite economy run the W. P. Herbert Company tendered the use of a Cleveland six with a driver as a Times press car, and this car which, by the way, is the same automobile that established a speed record on the Banning-Brawley road, was used by members of The Times staff.

The performance of the Cleveland in the deep gumbo and the slippery muddy roads between Chinquipin and Wawona excited much favorable comment from the drivers of contesting cars in the run. The Times press car closely followed the first of the contestants into the valley.

The requirements of a press car include not only speed, but stamina and durability. At one point during the contest it was necessary for The Times representative to reach one of the contesting cars ahead, and in order to do so a short cut was used. Snow and heavy rains in the mountains had badly rutted the roads, and left a film of slippery mud on the surface. As the Cleveland crossed the washout the surface was so slick that one wheel slid off the edge of the road on a precipice with a sheer drop of 1000 feet. The Cleveland pulled back and delivered the members of The Times safely in the valley.

WASHINGTON LIKED THE SEA.

To most people in America George Washington is a great soldier and statesman. Few people realize that Washington ever had any connection with the navy or maritime affairs. But Washington was well versed in naval affairs, and at one time aspired to go to sea as a midshipman.

Washington's life up until his father died was quite uneventful. It was not until 1748, when George was just 16 years of age, that he entered upon the active duties of life. At this time he was living with his brother-in-law, Lawrence, who was the son-in-law of Lord Fairfax, the owner of a large estate adjoining that of Washington's.

Admiral Vernon, British navy, obtained a commission in the navy for George when he was little past 16. He was anxious to go, and he expressed his gratitude to the admiral for his efforts, but his mother would not give her consent. He subsequently took a position as surveyor of the Lord Fairfax estate.—[Our Navy.

Forty Carloads Are Coming at One Fell Swoop.

Forty carloads of a single model, all in one trainload, left the eastern factory last Wednesday for the Coast. It is one of the largest single shipments that ever left this factory, and it is all for California. Does that look as though there was a slump in the automobile business?

That is just what the Haynes Automobile Company of Kokomo is doing in an effort to pacify "Jack" Bennel, Pacific Coast factory representative, and D. Gerard Chessman, Southern California distributor for the Haynes line. Bennel has been hammering away at the factory officials for the last two months in an effort to obtain sufficient Model 50 Haynes to take care of the tremendous demand for this new model out here. Perfect in line and with power and stamina sufficient for the hardest kind of going, the new Haynes has made a hit everywhere it has appeared. But here in Southern California the motoring public has had but little chance to look it over—there have never been any where near enough cars to go around, and the demand is on the increase.

"I just had to do something for these men out here. They have been selling cars right along, but they have not been able to get enough to keep the buyers satisfied," said Bennel. "The factory men just could not see why we should want more than twice the number of cars they had allotted us. The Haynes factory is one of the two big plants that has been running at full capacity for several months, and it must have cramped them tremendously to make up a full train for us alone, but we put it over, and it looks now as though we would have it all to do over again, for the Fifties have been selling so fast that by the time the cars get here ten days from now the salesmen will be clamoring for more to deliver. I have never seen a car become so popular within so short a space of time, but the Haynes certainly has made a real hit."

BELIEVES IN MAKING THE CAR LAST LONGER.

THINKS SIX YEARS SHOULD BE LIFE OF THE AVERAGE AUTOMOBILE.

How proper lubrication adds to the life of the motor car and saves the automobile owner a considerable investment in not being forced to turn his old car in on a new purchase ever year or two is shown in an interesting table recently received here by C. A. Roesch, manager of the Alemite Lubricator Company of California.

Through the thorough oiling of working parts of the motor by means of the Alemite high-pressure lubricating system all unnecessary wear and tear are eliminated, Roesch claims. He further states that if the car is properly cared for its life should be sufficiently long to warrant the owner's keeping it in service for six years and that it is good business judgment to do so.

During the war, Roesch points out, the demand for automobiles was greater than the supply, and second-hand cars had an unwarranted sale value—a condition which will undoubtedly never prevail again. With the value of second-hand cars decreasing it therefore behooves the careful motorist to care for his car in all respects in order to protect his own financial interests.

GARDNER FOUR WNS N THE LIGHTWEIGHTS.

ROMPS OFF WITH INITIAL HONORS IN SPITE OF ROUGH ROAD CONDITIONS.

Pulling through mud, snow and rain, the Gardner, Goodyear equipped, crossed the line a winner at Camp Curry in one of the severest and hardest runs that has been experienced in any Yosemite economy contest. The weather conditions were abnormal from the very start. Going over the Ridge, it was raining and sleeting and part of the time snowing. All through the valley around Bakersfield it was raining continuously. On the second day of the run, upon getting into the mountains, it was one mass of haze and rain, the ground being torn and the adobe earth slippery and unmanageable. Nearer the summits you would be continually running through snow-covered ground, forcing the use of chains and a great deal of skill in driving.

The ability of the Gardner light four to carry its passengers up through this torturous country under adverse conditions shows the feasibility of a light four to tour any district. The great economy in the Gardner four is obtained through the use of a Carter carburetor, which has a two-jet system, allowing one of them to be closed upon reaching slower speeds. The gasoline is also pre-heated, which volatilizes the gas perfectly.

The car was driven by Mr. A. H. Rogers the entire distance, and it required a great deal of skill and endurance to put the car over the road under the existing conditions. The Gardner car is noted for its economy in every way. Its economy of gasoline, its economy of upkeep and its economy of original cost.

At Daytona, Florida, a Roamer with Duesenberg motor triumphed over all motordom and established new world's records for kilometer, one, two, three, four and five miles.

Sweeping down the beach at the terrific speed of 105.1 miles per hour, this Roamer standard speedster chassis (Model F-85) demonstrated Roamer's supremacy as America's fastest car.

All of these Roamer records were officially attested by the contest board of the American Automobile Association. Today this same record-breaking Roamer chassis can be had in either the Roamer standard speedster or 4-passenger sport model.

BARLEY MOTOR CAR COMPANY, Kalamazoo, Michigan

The Rochester-Duesenberg Motor

THE Rochester-Duesenberg motor used in the record-breaking Roamer speed test is the latest refinement of a motor produced for over seven years. This Rochester-Duesenberg motor is a tremendously powerful, dependable and efficient engine of a design radically different from the ordinary type of automobile motor.

It is manufactured by the ROCHESTER MOTORS CORPORATION, an organization famed for precision of workmanship for two decades, and who have brought it to its present state of tremendous power and silent operation, and remarkable fuel and oil economy.

It incorporates the well-known horizontal rocker arm valve action characteristic of all Duesenberg type engines, and develops close to 85 horse power, its surplus power enabling road speeds far in excess of the ordinary motor. In addition, its quick, snappy pick-up makes it a delight to operate in heavy traffic.

CLASSY-LINEUP IN STAR EVENT.

World's Best Drivers to Race at Indianapolis.

Over a Hundred Thousand in the Many Purses.

Overseas Demon to Fight for Initial Honor.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

INDIANAPOLIS, May 14.—The entry gate for the international 500-mile race to be held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway has been closed with twenty-five of the crack drivers of two continents signed to travel the long jaunt over the bricks of the historic Hoosier oval, for the largest racing purse ever hung up, approximately $100,000.

TWO WITHHELD.

Drivers have been named for twenty-three of the speed creations, but the entrants of two have cautiously withheld the pilot's names. Five of the drivers are braving the briney deep to get a chance at the fame and fortune incident to victory in the international race, and six overseas cars will compete with the best of American racing productions.

Six of the drivers named have never competed an an event at Indianapolis, but all of them have established records on road courses or other speedways. All of them will be among the first to hit the bricks of the difficult Hoosier track to practice, while the old-timers, who have coursed the track lap after lap, will devote more time to the preparation of the mounts and general conditioning of themselves.

ITALIAN FLAG.

The Italian flag will fly over the garage of De Palma and Resta, both having been born in Italy, while the tricolor of France will wave over the large French colony composed of Andre Boillot, Rene Thomas, Albert Guyot, Jean Chassagne and their large corps of assistants. Foreign cars entered in the race are Sunbeams, English; Peugeot, Talbot-Darracq and Ballot, French; with the others cars all made in America.

In the race there will be five strong teams, composed of two or more cars, with at least four lone wolves, prominent among them, Ralph De Palma. The advance seat sale indicates that the largest crowd that ever attended a sporting event will again be present at starting time, Decoration Day. The largest crowd that ever saw a race was last year when more than 135,000 people watched the late Gaston Chevrolet win the Indianapolis event.

The entrants, car and driver, follow:

Ralph De Palma, Ballot Special, Ralph De Palma.

Making a Decided Hit with Members of the Movie Colony.

Miss Ora Carew, now on the silver screen in a popular film, is only one of any number of folks who are becoming Moon admirers. Next to the Moon her doggie comes in for a large share of this young lady's affections.

OIL DRIPS.

Oil drips frequently come from the cap screws being loose on the crankcase, from the bearings, from the plungers or tappets above the cam shaft. In addition to being wasteful drips of this kind make a frightfully messy engine and should be attended to promptly. In some cases where oil drips from the bearings the fan picks it up and scatters it over the inside of the hood.

BULB REPLACER.

It is possible to make a very satisfactory electric light bulb replacer by fastening four stiff wires on the end of a broom handle in such a way that they form a sort of hand, which slips over the bulb without injuring it. There should be enough spring in the wire to enable the operator to turn the bulb in either direction in the socket.

MOON GROWS RAPIDLY IN POPULAR FAVOR.

MORE OF THESE NIFTY CARS ARE BEING SEEN ON THE STREETS EVERY DAY.

The ever-increasing number of new Moon models seen on the streets of Los Angeles and other cities of the Pacific Coast tells in a most forceful manner the popularity that this snappy car has achieved with the motoring public, according to P. W. Wisdom, director of sales for all western territory of the Moon Motor Car Company of St. Louis. Wisdom has spacious office quarters at 410 Washington Building and is assisted by Omar Wicklin, director of sales promotion for this territory.

In my opinion, and it is backed by thousands of owners in practically every part of the land, the new Moon job, both open and closed, is one of the smarest cars that has ever been placed on the market," declared Wisdom, just before he left for a trip through the northwest territory that will take him away from Los Angeles for about one month. "In addition to its conservative smartness, it has everything built into it that the discriminating automobile purchaser wants in the way of power, speed and dependability. The manufactory of the Moon is one of the oldest automobile concerns in the industry. This model is the result of all these years of experience."

He Who Kicks Succeeds.

Two frogs accidentally fell into a large can of milk. They began at once to struggle for freedom, leaping for the top, but always falling back. One of them very soon became discouraged and began saying: "It ain't no use, it ain't no use." But the other one kept on striving and said: "I'll never give up." When several hours later the frogs were discovered in the milk the one that said "it ain't no use" was dead and the other one was sitting on a cake of butter singing "I'll never give up."—[Science and Invention.

ON POWER AND FLEXIBILITY.

When a prospective automobile owner conducts a canvass of automobile row inspecting the various makes of automobiles about the first question asked relates to the power and flexibility of the motor, according to Glenn R. Keith, president of the Standard Steel Automotive Company, distributers of the Standard Eight in Southern California.

"It is, therefore, that one of the most attractive features of the Standard Eight is given full opportunity to demonstrate its merits," said Keith. "Every time a prospect asks this information the next step we take is to demonstrate this feature by putting the car over any of the steep grades and then opening up the throttle on one of our near-by boulevards.

"A powerful motor seems to be the genuine demand of the average motorist nowadays. The reason for this, perhaps, is due to the fact that most owners of cars take advantage of our splendid highway system throughout the State and instead of taking the train to distant towns, either on a business mission or for pleasure, the automobile is the first choice of transportation.

"That the motor of the Standard Eight is one of the most powerful on the market has been proven many times by gruelling demonstrations of one kind or another. When a motorist sets out on a long drive, it is always consoling to know that your motor has the power to pull most any grade on high and that along with this feature of power is that of flexibility. Climbing grades is the most monotonous as well as being the hardest part of a long drive. A flexible motor will eliminate considerable of this work by not having to shift gears on every steep grade that is encountered."

Certainly Shows That Liberty is Not Without Pep.

The local advertising man who casually strolled into the office of C. W. McKelvey of the McKelvey Motor Sales Company and calmly asked if the Liberty motor had much power started something.

In the old days of racing there was a certain brand of tea which, when injected into a horse just before it went to the post, caused it to rear and plunge and show great eagerness to tear up the turf. That is just what happened to McKelvey when the visitor asked about the power of the Liberty. He was immediately stirred into action.

"Power? Power? Say, are you trying to josh me?"

The visitor assured the excited gentleman that no joke was intended.

"Then come along with me."

Out of the door went the sales manager and into a Liberty touring car he climbed.

And after thirty minutes of wild dashes over the hills there was one man who was ready to tell the world that the Liberty six motor had all the power any motor car ever needed. All the recognized hills where demonstrations are made were topped on the high gear and the Liberty went over some on the high that very few can take.

In San Francisco, too, the car has proven its power over some of the city's most difficult hills.

TRAP GUN AND ROD

BY TOM MARSHALL

[This is the eighty-third of a series of articles dealing with trapshooting, hunting and fishing by Capt. Tom Marshall, a noted authority on the great out-of-doors.]

Where dreams come true! Santa Catalina, the magic isle of the blue Pacific, set in the ocean twenty-six miles off the main shore, is an island twenty-four miles long, eight wide with an area of 50,000 acres. Traversed by a range of mountains, the highest peak, Mt. Orizaba, rising 2109 feet above sea level. Between San Pedro, Cal., and Avalon, Catalina, the palatial and commodious steamer Avalon, recently acquired, runs in the island trade. This immense boat is an eliminator of sea sickness, the former bete noire of all tourists.

QUIET VILLAGE.

Avalon is a quiet little village, cuddled in a restful cove, on the island's landward side, protected from ocean winds by a range of accessible mountains immediately adjacent. The Tuna Club exhibits are of especial interest. Organized by Charles Frederick Holder, authority on deep-sea fishing, a large bronze memorial standing near the club door, evidences the esteem in which he was held by his associates. Walls of the clubhouse are decorated with mounted specimens of record fish; medals, trophies and tablets, commemorate many more important catches from deep waters. Hawaiian Islands have nothing on Catalina for unique aquatic sports. On July 4, the island colony specialize on original conceptions for water entertainment. "Squirrel" D'Arcy, a copper-colored coin diver, officiates as spot-lighted star at athletic performances.

For water fencing, two men are allotted to each boat, one manipulating the oars, the other armed with a bamboo pole about fourteen feet long, with the small end padded like a boxing glove. When fencing, men stand on the stern seats of their respective boats, industriously attempting to prod, push or punch their adversary from his position into the water, while the boatman by expert oar work affords his partner every advantage to be obtained by favorable location. Success is dependent upon aggressive teamwork. "Ducking" an adversary on three occasions decides the water-fencing championship. Expert swimmers vs. expert anglers is a most interesting diversion. Three expert anglers are named and three expert swimmers are selected by lot, as their opponents.

MEN FISH.

The "men fish" are stripped and oiled, encircled by a belt at the waist. A strong, light fishing line in then made fast to the belt about the center of their backs. Seventy-five feet of slack line is allowed the swimmer for a start. When the starting pistol is fired, the "fish" heads out to sea, the angler aggressively reeling in. They are contesting for two substantial prizes, the angler able to first place his hand on the "man fish" (considered the same as gaffing) receives one prize, the swimmer remaining out of reaching distance from the angler, to receive the other. This results in an exciting contest.

The tug of war is a contest staged between two square-sterned skiffs, four skilled oarsmen in each boat. A six-foot rope is attached between the boats, they then pull in opposite directions, either boat dragging the other a distance of seventy-five feet from the starting point is declared the winner. A case of skill, strength and endurance, their muscles standing out like whipcords. This contest is frequently decided by the complete collapse of the oarsmen, who pull to the last ditch. Skiffs and motor boats are featured in straight-away races. Swimming bouts for men, women and children in 50 or 100-yard dashes. Many other sports are introduced and the inner harbor of Avalon is a scintillating setting of colored lights.

THE YEAR 'ROUND.

Catalina goat hunting is an all-year-round pastime, which requires pluck, courage, skill and endurance. Goats always select inaccessible canyons, steep cliffs or high points for their homes and feeding grounds. It has become necessary to secure hunting permits from Ranch Foreman E. J. Amar before going afield. Catalina was originally stocked with native goats by pirates who called the island their home, this during a cessation of their depredations on the high sea. It was later decided that domestic sheep were more prolific and financially productive. Flocks were then started, but soon cross bred with goats, an undesirable combination. There are now about 10,000 sheep and 6000 goats on the island pasture lands. Corrals, encircling about 400 acres of land have been constructed of hog wire with side wings extending out to the ocean on both sides. After a drive many sheep and goats are gathered in the main corral. An eight-mile chute then guides the animals down to a loading pen at Empire Landing. There they are loaded on board ship and transported to the different markets. There are eighty fresh water springs on the island. At Silver Canyon Spring I annexed to my collection a wonderful goat head, killing him as he came down for water. Goat meat is not a culinary delicacy, neither can I give the odor they exude much indorsement. A shooting permit guarantees a delightful day afield on Catalina Island.

Question: We read your articles every week and have come to you for information. Could a combination dog, half pointer and half beagle, be trained to point quail and rabbits? Would he make a good retriever? R. R. F.
Aurora, Ill.

Answer: This is a dog combine that I have had no experience in working out. It strikes me that a dog of that breed would make a better trailer than pointer. As to his prospective retrieving ability, am again at sea. Having at one time seen a pedigreed bulldog, with undershot jaw, retrieving and working as consistently and rapidly in ice cold water as any Chesapeake Bay dog could possibly have done, don't think I will ever again question whether any breed of dog, not barring Pekinese or Pomeranians, can be taught to successfully retrieve.

Q.: How did Annie Oakley commence shooting? Did she learn from Buffalo Bill? Do you know anything about her girlhood days? Is she still in the show business?
MISS DOROTHEA BLAINE,
Minneapolis, Minn.

A.: Her father operated a star route, carrying mail out of Greenville, O., making the route of twenty miles about twice a week when the roads were passable. The country was then teeming with game, and Annie hunted with her father until she became proficient in the art. She sent her game into Greenville, finding a ready sale at good prices. She then adopted hunting as a means of livelihood.

One Christmas morning she awakened to find a breech-loading shotgun in the corner and 100 brass shells in her stocking—a gift from her father. A five-pound keg of black powder with primers and shot accompanied the main gift. She acquired speed and accuracy in shooting, and joined the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show. She remained with Buffalo Bill many years, showing not only over the United States, but many foreign countries. She is no longer in the show business. Is a preceptress of shooting.

Willys-Knights Well Tested on Yosemite Jaunts.

Hill climbs may come and hill climbs may go, but the trip made recently by two Willys-Knights to Camp Curry, Yosemite Valley, will probably go unexcelled for some time to come, according to certain members of the press who rode in one of the cars, and the manager of the run and his party in another.

The Willys-Knights were two of the four cars which reached Lebec in the middle of a blinding snowstorm. But this was a mere trifle, as the cars passed through rain, hail, sleet, terrific wind and mud up to the hub caps before the objective, Camp Curry, was finally reached.

The trip from Los Angeles to Merced, which was the first night control, was a perfect dream in comparison to what the two cars encountered the following day, when the final leg of the run was staged. The first car to pass over the dirt road which led into Yosemite had sufficient trouble, to say nothing of the two Willys-Knights, which were forced to travel over the route after all of the other cars had chopped it to pieces.

The run was more stringent on these than on any other cars that made the trip, for the reason that they were forced to plow through slippery clay which had already been churned by the contesting cars. According to members of the party who were carried to Camp Curry by these two cars, the trip was the greatest test of the power and easy-riding qualities of a car that could be expected.

On account of the work assigned to the two Willys these cars were here, there and everywhere. There were times when the cars were sent over the wet, slippery roads at a speedy clip, while at others it was necessary to pull off the road into mud up to the hubs. It was at this particular time that the power and smooth operation of the Willys motor was given a genuine acid test, and not once during the entire grind did it falter.

From the start to the finish, not once was it necessary to stop and make any adjustments or repairs. Both cars held up admirably under the rigid condition and, though both cars carried an overload, each averaged better than twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline.

PENNZOIL IS USED BY ALL WINNERS.

SEVENTEEN OUT OF TWENTY-ONE ECONOMY ENTRIES LIKE THIS OIL.

The annual Yosemite economy run is, perhaps, the most practical demonstration of motor car performance yet devised. The results mean more to the average motorist or prospective buyer than the general run of track or road races.

For several years automobile owners all over the country have watched these contests with keen interest. Many have marveled at the low consumption of motor oil recorded. For instance, it is the claim of one car, a repeated winner, that it has never used more than one pint of oil for the entire distance.

Out of the twenty-one cars entered this year seventeen—and among them the four winners—chose and used Pennzoil.

Walter Flavell, representing the Panama Lubricants Company of this city, points out that this is no new departure on the part of the economy seekers. Two of last year's winners attributed no small part of their success to the remarkable wearing qualities of Pennzoil.

"In fact," Flavell says, "nearly all of the motor car distributors have come to use Pennzoil when they have occasion to put their cars to real tests. Our oil has made good time and time again under severest conditions. This year's success is only further proof of its wonderful quality."

So Modest.

W. F. Thomas of Pomona sends the following: "In looking over some old games last week I came across one between N. W. Banks and M. L. Davis, published in The Times column as game No. 377. I think Mr. Banks missed a win at the 44th move. After the 43rd move the position was:

Black—6, 14, 20, King 30.
White—21, 31, 32, King 15.
White to play.

Mr. Banks played 32-27 and allowed a draw. Instead of 32-27, play 31-26, 30-23, 15-18, and it is "curtains for the Black men."

LESSONS ON TIRE CHANGING.

The apparent ease and dispatch with which a thoroughly experienced driver can dismount and apply without assistance big pneumatic truck tires is evidence that there is a knack to it that is worth the attention of those who own or operate trucks.

In the following paragraphs, the United States Tire Company, the pioneer builder of truck pneumatics, points out briefly how handling these tires can be made a one-man job.

To dismount the tire and rim from the wheel, jack up the wheel until the tire freely clears the ground, loosen the tire bolts, and then the rim by shock, and turn the wheel so that the sector containing the valve is near the ground. With both hands grasp the tire and rim at points just below the level of the hub, and quickly lift and pull the rim away from the top of the wheel. At the same time watch the valve to make sure that it does not bind in the felloe, when the rim slides off the felloe band.

If properly performed this method of dismounting the tire and rim from the wheel requires very little lifting, and causes no damage to the valve or the tube at the valve base.

To detach the tire from the rim, lay the tire on level ground, locking ring side up, remove the valve plunger to complete deflation, and push back the valve stem inside the rim. Remove locking and side rings, loosen flap all around, and, standing inside of the rim, lift the tire straight up off the rim.

When the tire is ready for replacement on the rim, reverse the operations of detaching the tire from the rim with tube flap in place and valve stem pushed back flush with base of flap, drop the tire carefully over the rim, taking care that the base of valve stem is directly opposite the rim valve hole. Step down the tire on the rim all around by treading on the bead, apply side and locking rings, draw out valve stem to proper position and inflate.

Finally, in applying the rim and tire to the wheel, engage the valve stem in the felloe at a point level with the hub, push the rim firmly against the felloe and slowly turn the tire, rim and wheel until the valve is at the highest possible point. The rim will drop into place on the felloe except at the bottom, where it can be pushed on by the foot.

This knack of first engaging the valve, then turning the tire and rim on the wheel, eliminates all direct lifting, and makes the applying of an eight-inch tire, the largest perfected truck pneumatic, a one-man job.

REPEAT ORDERS SHOW MACHINE'S POPULARITY.

WHEN OWNERS COME IN SATISFIED AND GET SAME CAR AGAIN IT'S GOOD SIGN.

The average automobile has been subjected to nearly every kind of a test in the nature of a hill climb, sealed-in-high run or an economy jaunt with the object of proving to a prospect the true merits of the car, but there is another and different proof of an automobile's quality, and that is when repeat orders come in.

There is one automobile man who is more interested in checking up the popularity of his product by said repeat orders than by being treated to something new in the line of a gruelling demonstration. This happens to be W. H. Bell, western factory representative for the Columbia Six, and who was a visitor last week at the J. V. Baldwin Motor Company, distributors for the Columbia.

The topic of conversation among all of the dealers of the western territory who are handling the Columbia pertains to the number of repeat orders received, declared Bell. With plenty of cars coming through from the factory all of the Columbia dealers in the West are having one of the most successful years in the history of the car, according to Bell.

"One of the most noticeable features of the Columbia is its remarkable absence from the repair shop, and its failure to decorate a work pit. I attribute the increased repeat orders to this one fact alone," said Bell. He continued: "This is the feature that has made such an impression on the average Columbia owner.

"It is consoling to always know that when you enter your garage in the morning to get your car it will be ready to perform its duty. The Columbia is so thoroughly built that it is ready for service, and no matter how hard a trip may be it handles its task with no trouble to the owner.

"Very seldom is a Columbia found on the used-car market. This is sufficient proof of the above statements. Serviceability is something every car owner desires, and judging from the number of Columbias being sold to former owners of this make they certainly must be rendering the best of service."

The utility of any truck ends with the first piece of impassable road. But no road is impassable for a GMC Truck equipped with a Two-Range Transmission, where there is traction for the wheels. The GMC Two-Range Transmission gears down for more power than has ever been available in a motor truck. Likewise it affords fast going on smooth roads, with an economical power plant.

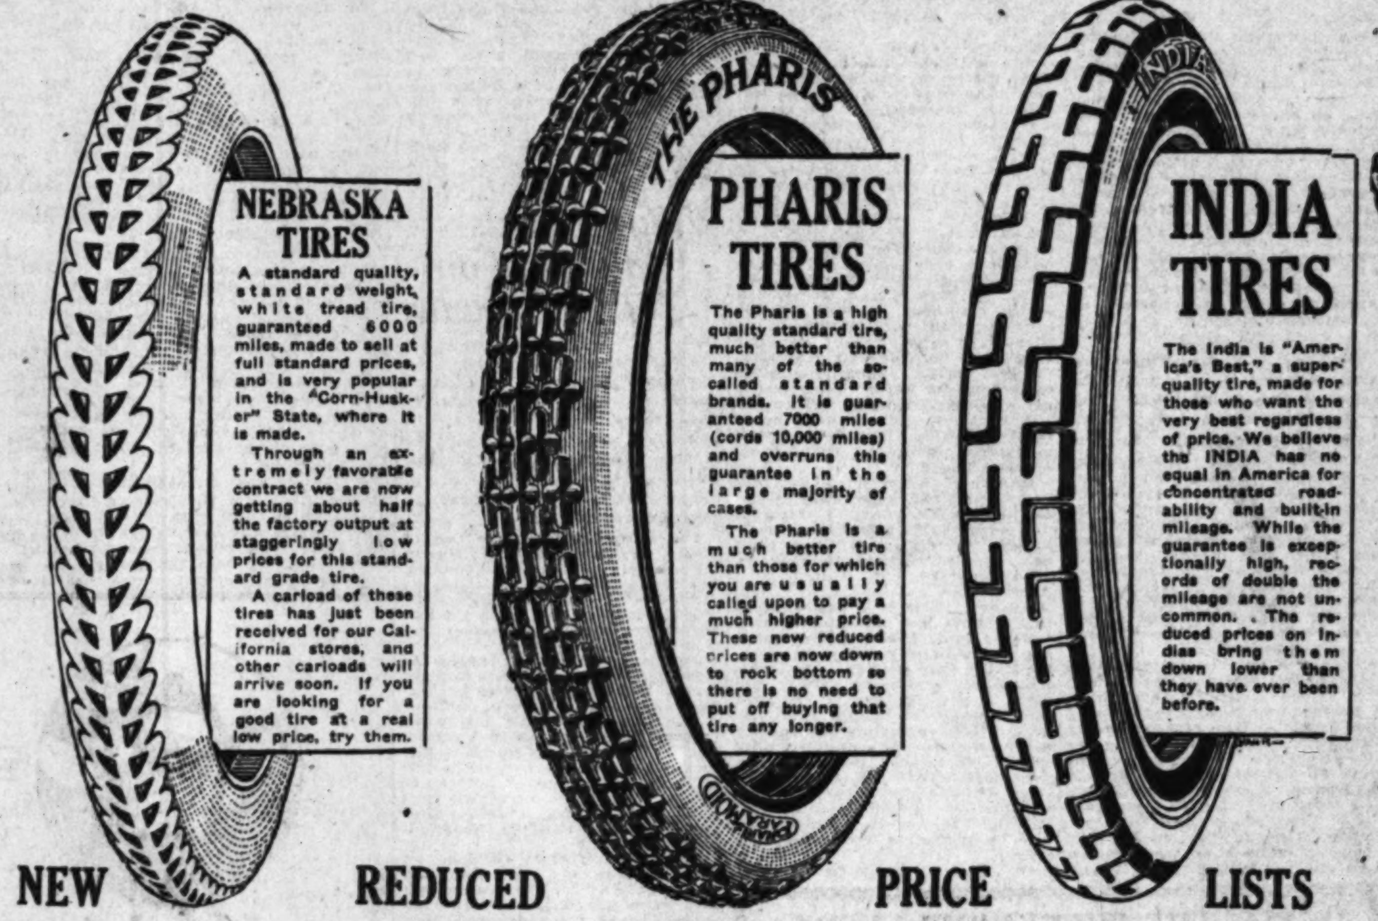
Save Money ON TIRES

Do you know that "Western Auto" offers you a real saving on tires, no matter whether you want low-priced tires, regular standard quality or extra fine quality?

We do not handle seconds or defective tires, but handle three grades of new firsts, with factory guarantee, and save you 20% to 40% from usual retail prices. We stand back of every tire we sell, and the "Western Auto" guarantee assures you that in case you will be treated right.

It will pay you to buy your tires from "Western Auto." You get more tire value for your money and a guarantee that MEANS WHAT IT SAYS.



NEBRASKA TIRES

A standard quality, standard weight, white tread tire, guaranteed 6000 miles, made to sell at full standard prices, and is very popular in the "Corn-Husker" State, where it is made.

Through an extremely favorable contract we are now getting about half the factory output at staggeringly low prices for this standard grade tire.

A carload of these tires has just been received for our California stores, and other carloads will arrive soon. If you are looking for a good tire at a real low price, try them.

PHARIS TIRES

The Pharis is a high quality standard tire, much better than many of the so-called standard brands. It is guaranteed 7000 miles (cords 10,000 miles) and overruns this guarantee in the large majority of cases.

The Pharis is a much better tire than those for which you are usually called upon to pay a much higher price. These new reduced prices are now down to rock bottom so there is no need to put off buying that tire any longer.

INDIA TIRES

The India is "America's Best," a super-quality tire, made for those who want the very best regardless of price. We believe the INDIA has no equal in America for concentrated roadability and built-in mileage. While the guarantee is exceptionally high, records of double the mileage are not uncommon. The reduced prices on Indias bring them down lower than they have ever been before.

MUSICAL.

THE PEOPLE'S FESTIVAL.

LARGE PREPARATIONS FOR WEEK OF SONG HERE.

Music Week, sponsored by the Los Angeles Community Service, Inc., and planned for the week of May 29 to June 6, will give Los Angeles and its suburbs a veritable "music bath" that will wash away much of the dust and many of the troubles of every-day life.

A huge committee, indorsed by the city administration and the Chamber of Commerce, and headed by F. W. Blanchard, has for the past two months made elaborate preparation for the greatest municipal music festival ever held in the West.

Practically all the leading business men's clubs, the Federation of Women's clubs, numerous musical clubs and singing organizations, many churches and theaters, the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., and the city schools, are combining their forces "to bring music to everybody and to bring everybody to music."

Music Week will demonstrate the democratic nature of this, the most universal of all the arts. It is in this democratic spirit of music for everybody that the profession of Los Angeles have volunteered their services in an unparalleled manner.

In recognition of this fine and unanimous sentiment the Chamber of Commerce is publishing a "Music Survey of Los Angeles" which has been compiled by the Music Teachers' Association and which records the music activities of our city today and in the past.

This music survey shows Los Angeles to be one of the greatest music centers in the country.

Regarding Music Week, Mr. Blanchard declared:

"This affair will serve two great purposes—bring music to the people and demonstrate to the world at large that we possess musical resources of the first magnitude.

"Music Week will induce thousands of people who blushed to think of such a thing 'make music' for their own amusement and edification.

"Community sings are already popular and successful in Hollywood, Annandale and San Pedro. We propose to make them more so, and to have them in Los Angeles, everywhere, 'just round the corner.'

"But we propose more than this. We are going to have many such weeks of music—and then we ask you to watch the quick expansion of musical taste and appreciation in Los Angeles. You will see men and women who thought they had 'no ear' flock eagerly to concerts and operas.

"At all events, this is what we hope—yes, and really expect.

"A singing city," said Mr. Blanchard, "is a glad city."

The announcement goes forth that more than a thousand numbers are in preparation. Great mass sings will be held in Exposition Park, Pershing Square and the "Bowl" at Hollywood. Concerts will be given every day in all parts of the city at one and the same time.

The Community Song Leaders' Association is training a chorus of 6000, who will be heard on both Sundays—for that big week holds two—and on Memorial Day.

Famous soloists and massed bands will appear on these programs. In Pershing Square the combined Department Store Choruses will give monster sings, 1500 voices strong.

June 5, Mendelssohn's oratorio of "Elijah" will be given at Hollywood, in the "Bowl," by the Los Angeles Oratorio Society.

These are only a few of the outstanding "attractions." Scores of others, hardly less interesting, might be mentioned, for there are happy signs that every day from May 29 to June 6 is destined to be a red-letter day, and that the week will be a glorious one of "music of the people, for the people, by the people."

—o—

Russian and Californian.

A joint recital will be presented by Vasia Anikeeff, Russian bass, and Thomas Vincent Cator, composer-pianist, the 24th inst., at Gamut Club Auditorium. Both have been appearing with success in concert on this Coast.

Mr. Anikeeff is a native of Russia, and is recognized as an authoritative interpreter of the works of Rubinstein, Bordine, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Moussorgsky, Rachmaninoff and others.

Mr. Cator is a California composer whose works are much admired. One of his best-known productions is the incidental music to "The Soul of the Sequoia," a play of the outdoors, originally presented in 1919.

—o—

Piano Program.

An exhibition of talent decidedly refreshing in its brilliancy and charm was furnished by Miss Shibley Boyes, pupil of Thilo Becker, at her piano recital the 6th inst. at Gamut Club Auditorium.

Essentially colorful and graceful were her interpretations of both the classic and the modern numbers, while she revealed a light emotional feeling in her playing of Chopin's Sonata in B minor, her principal selection.

The Bach, Gluck and Rameau compositions and transcriptions were given with clear technical proficiency, while her Debussy group had a variety in expressiveness notably delightful. She was also successful in emphasizing the beauties of the Liszt "Sonnetto del Petrarca," "Au Bord d'une Source" and the Paganini Etude.

—o—

Hollywood Community.

The Girl's Glee Club of the Hollywood High School will give a program under Miss Edna Ames's direction at Hollywood High School auditorium as part of the community chorus weekly program.

—o—

Sing at Whittier.

A quartet composed of Constance Balfour, soprano; Nell Lockwood, contralto; Clifford Biehl, tenor, and Emory Foster, baritone, with David Wright assisting at the piano, gave a program recently in Whittier.

Miss Lockwood also sang two programs at the Polytechnic High School during the past week.

—o—

Pleases at Club.

Mrs. Berne Barker pleased a large audience when she sang "Love in May," "May is Here" and a negro spiritual, all composed by Elizabeth Harrison Leigh, before the Wa-Wan Club last Wednesday at the Alexandria.

—o—

Lyric Club Concert.

The last concert of the Woman's Lyric Club will be given the afternoon of the 29th inst. at Philharmonic Auditorium. The unusual program of choral songs will be rendered, with soloists from the club assisting. Charles F. Buletti will be guest artist.

Mr. Buletti sang at the luncheon given Mary Garden recently in San Francisco, when the opera stars were in attendance.

In Music and the Allied Arts.

Charles F. Bulotti, Tenor.

Marion Shipp, dance producer.

Vasia Anikeeff, basso.

On Current Programs.

—o—

Grauman Pop Program.

Mme. Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus, contralto, will feature the concert of Grauman's orchestra this morning. She will give a special recital in conjunction with the orchestral program.

"La Paloma," the popular Spanish song, will be the first number of her recital, while others will be in keeping with the theme of the Spanish-Mexican program, which Mischa Guterson has arranged.

The orchestral numbers will include "Espanol," Serenade, (Chabrier,) "Toreador and Andalouse" (Rubinstein,) "La Medianoche" by an unknown composer, "Argentine Tango" (F. Lorando,) "Serenade" (Drigo,) and "Carmen" selection (Bizet.)

—o—

Philharmonic Spring Tour.

Reports from the Philharmonic Orchestra, which is midway on its first spring tour, indicate that it is having an enthusiastic reception wherever it plays, according to announcement by the local office. Portland, Seattle, Vancouver and Spokane contributed crowded houses at their concerts.

Mr. W. A. Clark, Jr., founder of the Philharmonic; Walter Henry Rothwell, and others of the party were guests at an honorary luncheon in Seattle. Plans were discussed to make the Seattle Symphony Orchestra a permanent organization at this affair, as the interest was aroused to a remarkable degree by the visit of the Philharmonic.

The soloists traveling with the orchestra are: Elizabeth Rothwell, Richard Buhlig, Slyvain Noack, Emile Ferir, Ilya Bronson and Alfred Kastner.

—o—

Soloist with Club.

Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, was one of the soloists, Wednesday afternoon, at the Alexandria Hotel. The Wa-Wan Club presented one of the most interesting programs of the year, giving an all-resident composers' day concert.

Mrs. Bollman was favorably received. She has a voice of good range and quality and a charm of expression which is pleasing.

—o—

Marion Shipp Program.

A unique combining of the arts of music, the dance and dramatic recitation was that revealed at the colorful presentation by Marion Shipp, the dance instructor, Friday night at the Gamut Club Theater. Three different interpretations were presented by her pupils, who were assisted by the Jamison vocal quartet, and John Macfarlane, who read the lines incidental to the effective pantomime and dance interpretations.

Of particular charm was the blending of vocal music off stage with the movements of the dancers. Very attractive, too, was the costuming. The younger children made a pleasing ensemble in the fantasy, "Moon Winks," while the more highly developed talents added much to the dramatic interest of "By the Sun Dial" and "Persian Wives."

There is evidence in the presentations of some very interesting ideas regarding the portrayal of moods and emotion, which may be susceptible of significant development, in view of the many pleasing general effects. The program was repeated last night.

—o—

Programs Interest.

Marion Shipp, dance producer, gave her second program before a large audience in very successful fashion last night at Gamut Theater. This is the second presentation of combined beauties of music, dance and drama that has been offered by this instructor in the dance. An attractive performance was given by Miss Shipp's pupils.

—o—

Signals Return by Concert.

At the regular after-dinner musicale Thursday evening in the drawing-rooms of the Westlake School for Girls, the program was presented by Mrs. Alice McComas Gray, a former resident of Los Angeles, more recently from Brooklyn, N. Y. The numbers included Impromptu in F Sharp Major (Chopin,) Concert Etude (Arensky,) "By the Frog Pond" (Sosbeck,) "Dream of Love (Liszt) and "Faust" waltz (Liszt.)

Mrs. Gray, who for the past year has been studying with Leslie Marsh, was formerly a pupil of Sherwood of Chicago and Liginska in New York. She gave a very successful season on the Orpheum circuit and is arranging a concert here for the near future.

The Westlake school musicales are given every Thursday evening.

—o—

Pupils Heard.

A reception and program was given by Mrs. Catherine H. Shank at the Ebell clubhouse Monday evening. Twenty pupils took part.

—o—

Costume Recital.

Pupils of Myra Belle Vickers will give the first of two costume recitals Thursday evening at the Mummers' Work Shop, 1848 Morgan Place, Hollywood.

—o—

Fill Engagements.

Several pupils of Maude Fenlon Bollman have been filling engagements before clubs, in the theaters and in recital with success.

Tuesday afternoon the Rainbow Trio, composed of Nellie Colburn Walker, Ruth Palmer Gaut and Gertrude Pentland Millikan, with Melden-Schen at the piano, presented an attractively arranged program before the Ontario Woman's Club.

Several other women's clubs adjoining Ontario were present.

—o—

Harpist Pleases.

Mae Shumway Enderly has been engaged for three return concerts at Long Beach following her well-received program there April 25.

The dates for other concerts are Tuesday for the M. E. Church, June 5 for the Grace M. E. Church and at a later date for the P.E.O. organization.

—o—

Receives Scholarship.

Miss Violet Stallcut of Arizona, pupil of Jode A. Anderson, has received a scholarship awarded by the French government for a course of study in Paris this summer.

The appointment comes through the government at Washington: Two hundred and fifty scholarships were given to the United States by the French government, which are to be proportioned by the Washington officials according to the number of Senators from each State.

Miss Stallcut has a brilliant future ahead as a concert pianiste. She has done considerable concert work.

—o—

Purpose Program.

Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus with Miss Grace Andrews, assisting will give a purpose program of "Traditional Themes" before The Jefferson High School, Friday.

—o—

Singer Wins Approval.

Mabel Haas-Speyer, who has been spending the summer in Europe, arrived in New York, en route to her western home, according to the Musical Courier in New York. She is well known here both as a singer and teacher.

While in New York, Mrs. Haas-Speyer sang for one of the leading agencies. She has a soprano voice of remarkable range, it is said, rich in quality and thoroughly trained. When she sings "The Magic Flute" aria from "Queen of the Night" in the original key, in an artistic manner, it is sufficient to show how really phenomenal her voice is, it is declared.

As directly opposite to "The Magic Flute" aria in style and range, she gave, "Hear Me, Israel."

—o—

Sings at Ontario.

Alice Thomas, a pupil of Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus, sang before the Parent Teachers of Ontario.

—o—

At the Ambassador.

"The Hymn to the Sun," by Rimsky-Korsakow, the most popular of modern Russian composers, will be played by the Tandler Quartet at the Sunday evening concert in the Ambassador lobby this evening. This selection proved a success when featured here a short time ago by Kathleen Parlow.

Another number worthy of special mention is "Harlequin," an eccentric dance composed by Henry J. Tandler and carrying a charming appeal to all music lovers.

Following is the program:

Selection from "La Traviata" .... Verdi
"Hymn to the Sun" from "The Golden Cockerel" .... Rimsky-Korsakow
"Harlequin" .... Henry J. Tandler
Harp solo, by Miss F. Folsom.
Three Country Dances .... F. German

—o—

Mr. Schouten's work was interrupted by two years' service with the United States Army. He saw active service in the Argonne, at St. Mihiel, and in Flanders. This will be his first appearance in public since he returned to Los Angeles.

The program comprises:

Ballade G Minor .... Grieg
Valse C Sharp Minor .... Chopin
Nocturne F Major .... Chopin
Etude G Flat Major .... Chopin
Ballade "Edward" .... Brahms
"Pagodes" .... Debussy
"Ondine" .... Debussy
Serenade .... [illegible]
"Sposalizio" .... Liszt
Rhapsody No. 12 .... Liszt

READER TO TAKE PART IN FESTIVAL.

Miss Dora Zimmerman, dramatic reader, will read "The Bride" by Lilian Bell, Tuesday, at the Los Angeles Festival presentation of "Rose Maiden."

Miss Zimmerman was for two years a student at King's School of Oratory, completing her study in both the professional and gold medal courses. This included dramatics, Delsarte philosophy, pantomine and voice, to which Miss Zimmerman gave special attention, in addition to her regular instruction in expression. She has a reputation as a reader of child dialects and in impersonations.

Under the private direction of Dr. Byron W. King, the Shakespearean reader and critic, she gave careful study to the Shakespearean plays.

Dora Zimmerman,
Dramatic reader, who has won favor in recitals.

SINGS MODERN NUMBERS.

Miss La Verne Hubbard, soprano, appeared before the Woman's Improvement Association, South Pasadena, May 4, in a group of modern songs. Miss Hubbard has an excellent voice of wide range and timbre coupled with musicianship which is impeccable.

G. Haydn Jones, her teacher, is predicting a successful career for her in the musical world.

MOTION-PICTURE SCHOOL.

Howard Gaye, director of motion-picture acting, has opened a new studio in the Music Arts Studio Building, where he will conduct a training course.

OLD STORES GONE.

Insanitary Bins and Barrels Have Been Replaced by Packages.

What housewife who did her own shopping ten or twenty years ago does not remember the grocery store of those days, with its unsightly, insanitary sugar and cracker barrels, its dried fruit bins and its long rows of tea, coffee, starch, spice, rice and other cereal boxes, its dust and dirt; its clerks who dived with their bare hands for prunes one minute and plug tobacco the next, and who were fishing for pickles in vinegar and filling coal oil cans off and on? In those days the principal function of the clerk's apron was that of a towel.

Things are different today. The up-to-date grocery store is the result of a long and tireless campaign of education and salesmanship. Of course, many influences have been brought to bear to bring about the change, but one of the most important factors was the sanitary ways of packing food. The reformers went further than just advocating clean stores. They improved the way in which the food was placed in the stores.

If groceries were sold from the bin and barrel, as formerly, it is estimated that each of the 365,000 grocery stores in the United States would need at least one more clerk to handle its business. Twenty years ago 99 per cent of the groceries were sold in bulk; today 75 per cent of dry groceries reach the market in package form.

The introduction of the sanitary package was by no means an easy matter. Manufacturers insisted there was no public demand for goods in cartons, that the system of selling in bulk was entirely satisfactory, and that merchants would not be willing to pay the fractional increased cost. The pioneer concern in the industry sold the idea to sugar manufacturers by sending representatives to practically every grocer in the New England States and compiling a list of those who were willing to pay about an eighth of a cent a pound more for their sugar if it came to them in package form.

The grocer absorbs this cost, but more than makes up for it in saving on clerk hire and paper, bags and twine, and in the elimination of spillage and waste. One sugar company found that 80 per cent of a large number of stores were selling package sugar at the same or a lower price than bulk.—[Miami (Fla.) Herald.

Immovable Fez.

The director of indigenous arts in Fez, Morocco, told me that he had recently come upon a book written in the fourteenth century and describing Fez as it was at that time. The director compared the statements in the book, item by item, with Fez as it is today—and found the book to be perfectly up to date. Reprint it and it would pass very well as a modern account of present day Fez. The people of Fez are still doing things just as they did them in medieval times.—[Willard Price in Christian Herald.

BURNS INSURANCE.

Comedian Welsh Refuses Endowment that Would End Career.

Refusing to accept a total disability award from the insurance company of $10,000 in a lump sum, or $75 a week for the rest of his life, Ben Welch, veteran stage comedian, who was stricken blind a few weeks ago, showed his contempt of discouragement by burning his policy in the presence of numerous theater folk. Lacking renewal at expiration, the insurance lapsed.

By the terms of the policy, the comedian would have had to remain idle for a year to collect the $10,000, while to receive the $75 weekly he would have been required to do no work for the rest of his life. Welch declared that life is far too short to accomplish what he has set out to do in the world and that no insurance red tape was going to interfere with his optimistic philosophy of life.

"My wit has been sharper since I lost my sight and my desire to create laughter in people's heart only keener," Welch said. "Why should I stop my work? It is everything to me. If I had accepted the terms of the policy I even would have had to stop writing plays. Life is too short. A promise of $50,000 wouldn't change my opinion on the matter."—[New York Times.

BY DOROTHY DIX.

The head of the employment bureau in a big department store that employs hundreds of women clerks and stenographers, says that the qualification that he attaches most importance to in a girl, is her smile.

Of course, the applicant for a position must be reasonably intelligent-looking, but beyond that it doesn't matter to this student of feminine psychology whether she is homely or pretty, or tall or short, or a flapper, or one who has ceased to celebrate her birthdays. The job she wants is hers, if she wears a smile that won't come off.

Because the girl who smiles nine times out of ten is a winner. First, because everybody likes to have dealings with a cheerful person. There is something in a happy-looking face that draws us as irresistibly as a magnet draws a needle.

The girl who stands smiling behind her counter, is the one we instinctively select to buy from. The girl who smiles above her typewriter as she works, and who wears an expression of contentment and pleasure as she goes about her duties, is never the one who is dispensed with when the force is cut down. She is like sunshine in the office, and everybody wants her to stay. The waitress who takes your order with a smile, flavors your food with something that turns a plain meal into a banquet and makes you double your tip.

It is the girls who never smile during working hours who never succeed. Who wants to buy from a scowling young woman, whose face looks like the human expression of a vinegar cruet? Who wants to keep in their office a bitter, cynical disgruntled creature who feels that she is being done a deadly wrong in being asked to earn any part of the salary she is paid? Who wants to have about them any woman, in any capacity, who looks as if her favorite employment was snapping the heads off of everyone with whom she had to have any business dealings?

Nobody. There's enough unpleasantness in the world that we can't escape, without our afflicting ourselves voluntarily by having a grim, grouchy girl around us. A girl's smile is her best asset, because we forgive such a lot to people who are good-natured and easy to get along with. Pleasantness and cheerfulness are the mantle of charity. They cover a multitude of sins.

Sarah never will learn how to make bread that is not a first aid to the undertaker. No human agency can make Jane sweep under the bed. Harriet's spelling is a disgrace. Somebody always has to check up Florence's books for her. Maude will mix her sales slips. A hundred times we have been on the point of firing them, but we never do. Because when we scold them for their faults, they turn upon us the smile that disarms wrath, and we think that, after all, we would rather put up with their blunders and have their sunny faces about us than to have to deal with paragons of efficiency, who would, like as not, be monuments of gloom.

The girl who smiles is a winner, because a smile is the badge of courage. People who meet the ups and downs of life with a grin, are those whom Fate cannot conquer. They have the strength within them that enables them to surmount every difficulty that lies in their paths, and that carries them on to victory in the end.

Most of us fail because we get downhearted. We lose faith in ourselves. We become cowards who supinely give up without fighting a lick in the battle. We mope ourselves on self-pity. We howl and whine and complain until everybody flees from us, and so we shut every door of opportunity in our faces.

This is true of men. It is doubly true of women. If nobody wants a man about who is glum, and cynical, and a perambulating hard-luck story, be sure nobody wants a woman around who is drenched in tears, and who is about as depressing a companion as a funeral procession would be.

But the woman who locks up her skeletons in their closet and throws away the key, who puts the soft pedal on her personal griefs, and who turns a brave and smiling face on life, is the one that everyone of us will go miles out of our way to give a helping hand to, and who never lacks for friends, or open doors to welcome her.

If a girl wants to marry, there is no other way by which she can win her way so surely in the masculine heart as by smiles. Men do not like women who laugh much. They hate the woman who is noisy, loud, and always ha-ha-ing at something, or nothing, and trying to be vivacious and lively. Also they loathe the giggler, who gets upon their nerves; but they fall for the girl with the sunny smile that betokens a quiet and serene disposition.

The thing that makes a man forsake his bachelor and comfort and shoulder a woman's board bill and shopping ticket, is the dream of being met, when he comes home tired at night, by a smiling wife. The ideal wife of every man, is a woman who is bright, and cheerful, and contented and good-humored; a woman who can smile, and smile, and smile through good times and hard times, who can meet the inescapable trials and tribulations of life with a smile instead of tears, who can even smile fresh courage into a man when his own courage has gone down to zero.

The wife who has got a stranglehold on her smile that nothing can break, has no need to dread age and fat, nor fear vamps and flappers. She has got that which binds her to her husband with hoops of steel, for she who has good nature and cheerfulness, has a charm whose conjure never fails.

So girls, if you want to win out, just smile, smile, smile.

Making More Money.

Mere Man Invades Woman's Field and Takes Away Some of the Big Profits in the Millinery Business.

"YOU can hardly pick up a paper these days without reading about some woman who has invaded a field which was formerly considered as sacred to the masculine sex. There are women conductors, women salesmen, women hotel clerks, women architects and merchants and lawyers and doctors. The accident of sex seems to count for as little as the accident of birth. Hard work and application will overcome either of the obstacles, which is the reason that I'm contemplating entering a field where women have always reigned supreme. I'm going to design and sell women's hats!"

Wallis Pemberton's friends looked at him in amazement. Design hats? Be a he-milliner? Do nothing but toy with bits of ribbon and fuss with straws and velours and the countless other materials which enter into the creation of feminine headgear?

"Why that," they maintained, "is no job for a man!"

"No," was Pemberton's reply, "and being an architect or a lawyer is no job for a woman, either—according to the former standards. But these barriers have been swept away. Besides, do you know the profit which lies behind the successful hatshop? I do, for I've looked into the matter pretty thoroughly and, as you know, I've always had a leaning toward the designing of costumes and color schemes of all kinds. I'm going to try it for a while, anyhow, and see how things turn out."

A few months later, when Pemberton's, Inc., opened in one of the most exclusive shopping districts of Washington, D. C., there were comparatively few who knew that the owner and designer was a man. Put the word was soon passed around and women began to drop in, principally from curiosity and the desire to see what kind of a creation a "mere man" would evolve—but the majority of them remained to purchase, at prices which permitted of a good profit. Now Pemberton's bids fair to be one of the most successful establishments of its kind in the national capital.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

What'll We Do Sunday?

PASADENA, May 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Thinking people have their own fun reading the ravings of the "personal-libertyites" over proposed laws for checking commercialism on Sunday and providing a real day of rest, study, quiet recreation and contemplation of the higher things of life. Some people miss the bid idea in the program. It is not a question of forcing religion on the disinclined or of the narrow construction of circumscribing individual choice. It involves the physical, financial, intellectual and moral welfare of the nation and the safety of our institutions. We need a day of uplift for regeneration and advancement in the higher things of life.

The Sabbath Day observance promoters only ask a day free from the business routine of life, the cessation of all gainful occupations, including commercialized amusements. That's all that is required in the Pomona ordinance. But that is enough to make those who fatten on commercialized Sunday amusements try to get the law declared unconstitutional by the courts, for the business is very profitable to them. The almighty dollar is still the most powerful thing in our land.

What would be the result if our nation observed the Sabbath as proposed in this ordinance?

First—It would have a great tendency to check our extravagance in time and money. We spend $3,000,000,000 a year at pleasure resorts and for joy rides, of which 40 per cent is said to be spent on Sunday. We complain of house shortage while that amount would build 600,000 homes, costing $5000 each. It is three times as much as our entire educational systems cost in a year. Our luxury bill last year was $22,500,000,000. That would build 2,250,000 homes, worth $10,000 each. Yet many thousands of those who spend hundreds of dollars a year in fleeting, sensuous pleasure are tenants who complain bitterly of the high rents and who could easily have owned their own home and been better off in every way.

Second—We would have more reading of good literature, better educated citizens for the time devoted to quiet study.

Third—A part of Sunday could be spent in city parks without the noise of the hurdy-gurdy and the clack of the barker for silly shows; in quiet walks or drives where nature talks to us of the beauties and variety of life and of the great Father of us all; or in visits to our neighbors with whom it would pay many of us to get acquainted.

Fourth—It would pay us well to cultivate home ties and to make it a place where we should love to stay, instead of a place from which we improve every opportunity to run away. Much of our national unrest and divorce and crime are because of the neglect of our homes. A family circle is no longer the blessed place it was. A weekly day of cessation from the giddy whirl of pleasure and devoted to quiet study, recreation and social intercourse would make us far better citizens during the rest of the week.

Fifth—Such Sunday observance would make us much better citizens of a republic that must stand or fall, must advance or retrograde in just the proportion as its citizens shall fit themselves for self-government.

These are the reasons why we should be less particular about our personal liberty and more thoughtful about the intellectual and moral welfare of our country.

The Yellow Kid.

PASADENA, May 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] When Hearst first broke into the newspaper game in New York, about twenty-five years ago, on account of his ultra-sensationalism and questionable methods he was promptly dubbed "The Yellow Kid."

Unable to compute his wealth and unable to estimate the extent of his matchless egotism, the wise New Yorkers predicted he would shoot up like the proverbial rocket and come down like the stick.

If at that time the wise ones had known they were warming in their breast a serpent whose poison would blight their civic life and later on poison the springs of our national life, William Randolph would have had a very short and a very snappy run (?) in New York City.

Surrounding himself with a corps of able and well-trained men (many of whom have lived to regret the day they first trod the Hearst primrose path of shady journalism,) Hearst was able to make headway and branch out.

When a long suffering public discovered that their newspaper idol was something of a faker and a very pronounced blatherskite, and rose up to destroy him, William Randolph promptly took to the woods.

Overnight his hirelings would change the tactics of the paper and the wise ones would be amazed to see that the scarlet woman of journalism was actually inaugurating some great moral reform.

To his standard for a time would flock the usual army of half-baked reformers and other simple-minded folk, anxious to welcome the repentant prodigal home.

This has been the Hearst game for twenty-five years. In every city cursed with his publications this yellow kid's antics are the same. Half-truths, untruths, perfidy, disloyalty, brazen effrontery, blackmail, these are the outstanding features of all the Hearst publications.

When the pace becomes too hot in the morning field, Wily Willie often manages (by the corrupt use of his enormous wealth) to purchase an erstwhile respectable evening newspaper. Cunningly camouflaged to disguise its real ownership and its real purpose, the evening sheet is used for occasional poison-gas attacks.

A careful perusal of the local Hearst publications, the morning Examiner and the Evening Herald, will show how the game is worked.

Men of America, isn't it about time steps were taken to squelch for all time all the Hearst publications? Their evil influence is becoming a serious menace to our national honor and integrity.

HARRY BOWMAN.

Bible Condemns It.

EAGLE ROCK CITY, May 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The girls, hikers and otherwise, who flaunt around in male attire, are probably unaware that the Bible legislated for the condition long, long ago, and placed them in a far more unfavorable light than our self-respecting young men are even given to do. In the twenty-second chapter of Deuteronomy and the fifth verse we read: "The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment, for all that do so are an abomination unto the Lord thy God." The indictment speaks for itself and leaves nothing to be added. A strict adherence to the many formulae of dress and character given in the Bible would result in a purer and wholesomer manhood and womanhood than is pestering our white ways in these days of paints, powders, pufferies and absurdities. God never commanded man to do anything that did not ultimate in moral, mental and spiritual advantage. The prevailing dress has little less to commend it than the man-apery that so disgusts real men. Smirking over knee-deep in visibility and tugging in stupid futility at the hem of the wrap-rag she calls a dress, the modern girl makes herself a fair exhibition of a social cancer steeped in hypocrisy. The aforementioned tugging custom is hypocritical to a degree; let her wear an adequate dress and there will be no need to spend her time in street cars tugging to hide the non-hidable. It can reasonably be taken as a foregone conclusion that the girl who dresses in immodest limitations is likewise limited in purity of mind and heart, and is not to be trusted with the righteous affections of any good man. Young man, beware!

BITS OF VERSE.

Incomplete.

Last night I heard a voice well-nigh divine
Singing the song we always loved the best,
Yet not a cadence reached this soul of mine
And not a thrill ran through my lonely breast.
"How sweet that song should be if she could hear,
Along with me!" was all that I could say.
There's nothing wholly good and pleasing, dear,
When you, my major portion, are away.
Tonight I saw a sunset; burnished gold,
And vision-whelming crimson were its hues.
A finer sight no earth-eyes may behold;
Yet, gazing on it, I could not enthuse.
Something down deep within me seemed to say:
"How grand the sight if only she were near
To watch with me this glorious death of day—
There's such a piteous portion of me here!"
—[Strickland Gillilan in Farm Life.

The Winds That Walk.

The winds that walk among the trees
Come lonely from the hill.
They bear the breathings of the leaves.
They gather odors into sheaves,
And leave them at my sill.

Where, in the pale green light of dawn
I stand to watch the stars
Go down behind the arching day,
And the high cloud-wars,
That crowd and crush in wrath of gray,
Or white, like an old man worn,
Under the hard moon's wrinkled face,
Pale with an ancient scorn.—[Anthony Praga in the New Witness.

Dangerous Business.

A bard received a can of cake; a gift, 'twas, from a friend.
It made that poet's stomach ache, and well-nigh caused his end.
It gave him nightmare awfully, and helped his sleep to cheat.
It also set him crazy with chronic yearns to eat.
Oh, when you do a kindly deed try to be wise and show it.
Give food to common mortals, and only praise a poet.
—[Tennyson J. Daft in Kansas City Star.

The Forgotten.

We men go up the churchyard lane
With joke and song and ribald cry.
But silent, just beyond the wall,
The dead that were our mothers lie.

And here and there along the close,
Deep-trodden in the rain-soaked grass,
The dreamless, uncomplaining dust
Will glow to hear our footsteps pass.
—[Godfrey Elton, in Westminster Gazette.

A Prayer.

Love us, Lord, but not too much,
Come Thou near, yet not too near,
All Thy laughing splendor spoils
What we daily see and fear,
What we bear, and do, and touch.
Love us still, but not too much.

Come Thou near, Lord, not too near,
Let us breathe Thee through our lips.
Even now I saw Thy hue
In the maple's yellow tips,
When a leaf, so gay, so dear,
Fell—but come Thou not more near.

Let us breathe Thee through our lips!
Do Thou enter in our eyes!
Touch us that we not forget;
Make us simple still, and wise.
Circling us, Thy finger slips—
Let us breathe Thee through our lips.
—[Jessie MacDonald, in Poetry.

SEA'S SOCIAL WELFARE.

Skipper Fined for Having Goat and Kids in Passengers' Quarters.

The skipper of the Cape Verde packet, a tiny schooner upon arrival at New Bedford, was fined $1000 by the customs officials for accommodating a mother goat and twin kids in the passenger quarters. The penalty was not imposed out of consideration for the goats, it appears, and testimony was offered that the passengers were not put to serious inconvenience.

The cirucustnaces were that the weather had come on stormy and cold, and it was at the suggestion of the humane passengers that the goat family was given shelter below decks. But the law is inexorable; there must be no such mingling on a vessel sailing into an American port. And it seems that the admission of the goats to the cabin was only one of many infractions of rules charged against this hapless seafarer.

As alleged, he had brought from the Western Islands twenty-eight more passengers than the law allows for the size of the ship. The per capita penalties for that aggregated $1400. It was found that his berths were less than two feet five inches apart—fine, $550. He had no surgical instruments—fine, $250. Ventilation was not provided in the schooner except by its hatchways—another $250.

More heinous than all else, perhaps, there was no copy of the United States immigration laws on board —also $250. How did he dare face the perils of the stormy Atlantic without the immigration regulation?

The amazing thing, considering the goats, berths, hatchway ventilation and the rest of it, is that all hands reached New Bedford alive and well, and reported a pleasant passage.—[Providence Journal.

INTERRUPTED PRAYERS.

In the smoking room of La France, on a cold, rough, windy day, George Gould said:

"These winter passages are unpleasant, but they're never dangerous. One bleak December day I was sitting, wrapped up in furs and rugs, in a sheltered corner of the promenade deck of a Cunarder. The seas were mountain high. The good old boat seemed to stand on her head one minute, and the next she reared right up on her hind legs.

"A tiny tot of a boy made his way cautiously to the young and pretty matron seated next me. He steadied himself against her deck chair and said:

"Mamma, is it wrong to pray that we get home safe?"

"Of course, not, darling."

"'Well,' he went on, 'I've been kneeling on a locker trying to pray that we arrive safe in port, and each time I begin the ship heaves up and throws me on the deck.'"—[Washington Star.

He tells how the Council of Four grew out of the larger one, but remarks that to assume, as some have done, that the treaties were drawn by the four heads of states and that the terms were fixed by these individuals is "an extraordinary perversion of the fact." He explains that most of the articles of the treaties were taken bodily without change from the reports of commissions. "Some serious problems, it is true," he adds "notably those relating to the Italian frontier, had not been referred to any commission; decisions on these problems were reached in the private sessions of the four . . . Their power to determine just what the terms of the treaty should be is commonly much exaggerated."

Prof. Charles Homer Haskins of Harvard writes on the new boundaries of Germany, showing the problems to be met in fixing these boundaries, and the factors that finally determined the decision. Incidentaly, in a foot note on page 65, he remarks that "the nature of the council's sessions has been grossly misrepresented by a popular writer, Mr. J. M. Keynes, in an effort to discredit the conference and its work ("The Economic Consequences of the Peace," pp. 31-2.) It is stated by the official interpreter, Capt. Mantoux, that Mr. Keynes never attended a regular session of the council of four; the confused and furious gathering which Keynes describes in the large drawing-room of the President's house would appear to have been so rendered by the presence of a large number of economic advisers like himself, specially called in for the occasion. The real work of the council was done quietly and efficiently in President Wilson's downstairs study, and it is no service to the cause of truth or of peace to assert the contrary."

One of the most interesting chapters is that on Fiume and the Adriatic problem, written by Douglas Wilson Johnson. It shows what serious study was given to each phase of this question, and lays bare the exact status of the case as regards Italy's claim to Fiume. The provisions of the secret pact made by England and France with Italy, known as the pact of London, are explained, and it is shown just how far Italy tried to push her claims beyond even the provisions of that pact.

The all-absorbing question of reparations is discussed by Thomas W. Lamont, economic adviser of the American Peace Commission. Mr. Lamont maintains that Germany is able to pay the full amount fixed by the conference in Paris in February of this year, and shows that this sum, $56,000,000,000, at the old par of exchange, amortized at 8½ per cent would be reduced to a figure of about $12,000,000,000 plus whatever amount Germany has already paid. The 8½ per cent interest rate here used Mr. Lamont considers not unfair, as a basis for computation, since Belgium and France are paying at least that much for their borrowings from America.

Mr. Lamont finds both Lloyd George and Clemenceau guilty of playing politics in a grossly unwarranted way in the matter of the fixing of the amount of the reparations payments. While President Wilson was anxious to have this sum definitely decided upon by the conference, the two premiers refused to come to any conclusion at that time, leaving it to be fixed this year. The reason, according to Mr. Lamont, is that they both knew that Germany could not possibly pay the outrageous and impossible sum the people of England and France had been led to expect, and both the premiers feared loss of power if they let this be known.

While most of the authors of this book are friendly to the treaties framed at Paris and look upon Mr. Wilson with approval, David Hunter Miller, who writes the chapter entitled, "The Making of the League of Nations," is an exception in so far as the ex-President is concerned. Mr. Miller evidently thinks more of his own powers than of those of any other man who was in Paris during the conference. It was he who issued a pamphlet during the sessions of the conference, severely criticising the draft of the covenant drawn by the President, a pamphlet that made excellent ammunition for the Senate later. It is interesting to note that it was the clause inserted in the covenant at the request of Mr. Taft, expressed in his own words, that later proved one of the most unpopular clauses with the Senate.

Mr. Miller closes his chapter with this sage remark: "The covenant has two schools of critics, perhaps three: those who think it goes too far, those who think it does not go far enough, and those who approve of it, but who do not like some of the people who wrote it. . . . Those who framed the covenant have seen it accepted by the competent governmental authority of nearly every country in the world, and that is the first real test of success. And when I say nearly every country, I include my own; for so far as the Lodge reservations made changes in the League, they were of a wholly minor character, left its structure intact, and they would have interfered with its workings not at all." Thus, the onus for the failure to ratify the treaty is put upon the President, who refused to accept the Lodge reservations.

RECENT FICTION.

BEAUTY AND MARY BLAIR. By Ethel M. Kelley. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

A book that plainly intends to be shocking, but that keeps well within the bounds of decency is this, which the publishers call "a fresh transcript from life."

It is surely fresh enough, but is hardly a transcript from life—at least not as it is lived in the select circles.

The book is presumably written by a sub-deb, a little too pert at somewhat forced naivete. It pictures the woeful plight of a family neglected by the beautiful mother, who is so absorbed in her very good friend, Ellery Home, that she allows all sorts of things to happen right under her nose without seeing them until too late—or nearly so.

In the first place, she allowed her husband to slip through her fingers, even to the extent of buying a $1200 seal coat (at half price) for a quite bold lady friend. Then she allowed her daughter, Mary, the sub-deb who tells the story, to go to the very door of destruction, from which she was saved at the eleventh hour because, fortunately, the doorbell failed to ring.

However, in the end, the too feminist daughter profited by the example of her mother and took steps to keep her own husband well in hand and the younger daughter found that "there is just one big ideal in this world—and that's love—the fusion of two beings into one. It's the truth that underlies everything." So she proceeded to act upon her new-found wisdom and thus we have the happy ending.

There is a freshness in the book, an air of spontaneity, that has a certain charm, and enough nice sugar-coated morality to make the erotic implications acceptable to the most sensitive palate. "Beauty and Mary Blair" is not a great book nor a good one—neither is it very bad. But it is racy enough ta have a big sale.

BLIND MICE. By C. Kay Scott. George H. Doran Company, New York.

The book cover tells us that this is a first novel, written by a man who has spent an adventurous life of travel in every country in the world; likewise that it is a drama of spiritual conflict. The first two statements are not open to question, but the last is.

If the struggle for the love of a man between two women, mother and daughter, who are totally unlike temperamentally and every other way, and who hate each other and always have, is a spiritual conflict, then that's what this harrowing tale is about.

In this book the author has inverted the mother-in-law motif, making of this much-maligned character an unscrupulous vamp who ruthlessly proceeds to alienate the affection of her daughter's husband and attract the latter to herself.

Even if the story exasperates at times because of the seemingly causeless conduct of some of its characters, and because it pushes the action beyond our credulity, there is power in its meticulous realism and in the relentless movement toward the catastrophic end. The steady advance of the story, in which little by little a happy commonplace family group is rendered wretched beyond words through the baneful influence of one woman, the embodiment of selfishness and self-seeking, is accomplished with remarkable skill.

If the author had refrained from making Lucy, the young wife whose mother robs her of her husband's love, weep in every chapter and almost on every page, the tragedy would have been more effective, perhaps because less diluted. Likewise, if any one of the many family breakfasts, luncheons and dinners described had been permitted to proceed without someone breaking down and leaving the table, the interest would have been kept at a livelier stage.

SAMUEL LYLE, CRIMINOLOGIST. By Arthur Crabb. The Century Company, New York.

The hero of this series of mystery stories is Samuel Lyle, lawyer by profession, unraveller of baffling crime tangles by avocation. He follows his avocation with the keen enthusiasm that a man gives to his hobby, and the reader cannot fail to catch something of the same tenseness as he follows the master mind along obscure trails.

Those who wish to lose themselves in a series of cleverly developed entanglements will find these stories quite to their liking.

THE RIDDLE OF THE MYSTERIOUS LIGHT. By Mary E. and Thomas W. Henshaw. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y., and Toronto.

A yellowback with most of the thrill taken out. As a foreword we are told that this is the return of Cleek. Now Cleek may be well thought of by his friends, but as a hero, as a go-get-'em detective he is about as inspiring as a temperance drink. In the Apaches' den he simply gives himself away scandalously, as the fair young thing might say. He just simply isn't there, that is, other than physically. We have read many blood-and-thunder yarns, and like them, but the Hanshews will have to concoct a tale of more merit before we will believe in the advance specifications handed out by the press agents for the Garden City company.

A HOUSE IN PAPEETE.

A letter written by Rupert Brooke to a friend in England describing the house where he and Frederick O'Brien, author of "Mystic Isles of the South Seas," lodged in Papeete, Tahiti, says:

"I am in a hovel at the back of my hotel, and contemplate the yard. The extraordinary life of the place flows around and near my room—for here no one, man or woman, scruples to come through one's room at any minute, if it happens to be a short cut. By day nothing much happens in the yard . . . But by night, after 10, it is filled with the flitting figures of girls, with wreaths of white flowers, keeping assignations . . . It is all—all Papeete—like a Renaissance Italy with the venom taken out. No, simpler, light-come and light-go, passionate and forgetful, like children, and all the time South Pacific, that is to say, unmalicious and good-tempered."

SIGNIFICANT BIOLOGICAL WORK

"The Direction of Human Evolution" by Edwin Grant Conklin, professor of biology in Princeton University, which is one of the most significant biological works of the spring, represents the crystallization of years of study, observation and experience. Unquestionably Prof. Conklin's most notable contribution to the science of evolution, the book, appearing when biological discussion and controversy are at probably their greatest height, has been eagerly greeted by biologists and thinkers generally. It is published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

ON ART AND ANTIQUES.

Connoisseurs will welcome two books on art which Harcourt, Brace & Co. have imported: a translation of Hegel's "The Philosophy of Fine Art" which is probably the most important single contribution that has ever been made to the philosophy of art; and "Antiques, Genuine and Spurious," by Frederick Litchfield. Litchfield's book is an invaluable guide and reference book for the collector, and in addition, it gives so much of the history of its subject and is so beautifully illustrated that it will be interesting to anyone, whether or not he is a collector.

IN MAYTIME.

To sit and muse by the glowing grate
With a book for company,
While the soft May blasts reverberate,
Is the friendliest place for me—
In Maytime.

Let them rave of their airy motors fleet
And a spin through the country fine,
A fire to greet—some bon bons sweet,
A book to read, for mine
In Maytime.

Let the shivering birds have the chilly flowers
And the springtime outer air;
Let them cling to the tree tops' lashing bowers—
For me by the fire a rocking chair
This Maytime.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

A NEW ENGLAND GROUP AND OTHERS. By Paul Elmer More. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

The clumsy title of this volume is in no way indicative of its author's style. Paul Elmer More usually expresses himself with extraordinary clarity, vigor and grace. Thus he makes the veriest platitudes momentarily interesting. Also he confirms the truth of Emerson's saying that all biography is autobiography. For from Jonathan Edwards to John Morley, More gives us no counterfeit presentment of the men themselves. We only learn the philosophic and religious ideas in general of which Mr. More approves or disapproves. His subjects are not made to live, but serve merely as pegs upon which are displayed the author's opinions.

It is usually assumed that the essayist or the moralist has some degree of affinity for the men of whom he chooses to discourse. The fields of the historian, the professional controversialist or the book reviewer are not for his reaping. These must take subjects as they come, but those have the right of selection. If they do not like a man they can leave him. But the spectacle of Mr. Moore trying garments taken from his private wardrobe upon each of his clients and condemning these as disproportioned monsters when his intellectual end moral clothes do not fit them, is a peculiar one.

Of Emerson, for instance, who looked upon evil as a lower state of being, seen from a higher state and itself capable of being evolved into the higher, Mr. More says: "Such a view argues some deep-lying limitation of spiritual experience." But since all mystics from St. Augustine downward deny the "reality" of evil, which St. Augustine describes as "simply privation of good," each of these must suffer from similar spiritual limitations. For it is, of course, impossible to doubt the infallibility of Mr. More's judgment.

In his essay on "Economic Ideals," this author agrees with Nietzsche that "humanitarianism is merely an intellectual disguise for the social instinct of fear." Ignorant laymen who had supposed it to be an organized effort to fulfill in action the precept of love for one's neighbor are thus soundly corrected by these dual authorities.

Since we have to fear some things, says our author, it ought really to be God. Thus he would have us return to an older philosophy than Christianity, which teaches that "perfect love casteth out fear." Before expending the labor which Mr More thinks necessary for the purpose of "getting the fear of God back into society," it might be well to thoroughly test the alternative offered in the religion of Jesus.

More achieves his greatest success in his essay on Charles Eliot Norton. This for the simple reason that Norton was nearest his own stature.

In "Oxford, Women and God," Mr. More hesitates to say in so many words that when the originally cloistral Oxford began to admit women into its society, God was thereby driven out. But he does not fail to suggest that the two events were contemporary. From the pen of a man who was not firmly established as an exemplar and arbitrar of the finest taste such an insinuation might seem a little disgusting. And in any event one cannot fail to be reminded of the good old Quaker's remark in similar circumstances: "I hope the gentleman is expressing his estimate of his own mother and sisters, and not of ours."

A TALE OF HIGH ROMANCE.

In "Savages" Gordon Ray Young Has Given Us a Yarn Into Which He Has Woven the Spell of the Steaming Tropics.

SAVAGES. By Gordon Ray Young. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y.

There are fashions in books these days, just as there are in clothes. The South Seas seem to have the call just now. Gordon Ray Young of Los Angeles, Lewis R. Freeman of Pasadena and Frederick O'Brien of Glendale have all recently scored signal successes with books dealing with this glamourous region.

Kipling has immortalized the East in that swinging poem, "On the Road to Mandalay," so pregnant with the devil-may-care spirit, in which he sings:

"Ship me somewheres east of Suez,
where the best is like the worst,
Where there aren't no Ten Commandments and a man can raise a thirst."

In "Savages" Gordon Ray Young has given us a picture of the South Seas. Here the Ten Commandments have been abrogated, and a man can raise a fuss just about as easily as he can a thirst. Instead, however, of the British Tommy mourning for the little dame whose "petticoat was yaller" we have "Hurricane" Williams, a silent, grim, taciturn man, known by reputation in every port of the South Seas, but known personally only to the inhabitants of a few of those inlets visited only by the most daring traders and outlaws.

The spell of the tropics and far places is woven into the warp and woof of this yarn. It is a tale of high adventure for high stakes, with an interplay of motives and reactions that make for high romance.

It's a man's book from cover to cover. It fairly reeks with the smell of blood, mingled with the odors of steaming tropic glades. The action is rapid, consisting almost entirely of battle, murder and sudden death. And for good measure we are given a peep at the joyous preparations being made by natives for a cannibal feast, the delectable morsels to be served being the bodies of some bushmen killed in a skirmish.

"Hurricane" Williams, suspected pirate, whisky runner, nigger-lover, sought by the navies of England and Germany for his many misdeeds, is the hero of the tale—if hero he be—for the author has carefully seen to it that Williams seldom enlists our sympathies.

To this man in one of his out-of-the-way hiding places comes Gilbert Lang, a mere babe-in-the-woods in this lawless region. Lang asks that he be allowed to sail with Williams and his native followers, his object being to seek out and slay the man and woman responsible for the murder of his elder brother.

Williams finally consents and with his native entourage he sets sail in his clipper-rigged ship for one of the little known inlets where shell and pearls are to be found in such abundance as to be equal to a king's ransom.

The study of Lang's reactions to the wild life led by this rough sailor is a fine piece of psychological analysis. For Lang is one of those tender saplings of civilization who for the first time in his sheltered life comes in contact with the "world's rough thumb."

It is in the final meeting of Lang and the objects of his quest, in his failure to take the vengeance he sought, in Williams's successful frustration of Willerby, a rich, but notoriously unscrupulous trader, and in the final revealing of Williams's identity that the plot swings.

Frustration is the fate of all who play parts either as powers or puppets in this story. There is no happy ending to compensate for hectic adventures through which the principal characters pass. Countless natives whose only sins seem to have been that they were natives are ruthlessly slaughtered by the author.

The reviewer confesses to having read the book with the keenest zest, which after all is the final test of a good story.

If you like action, if romance calls to you from the far places, but the cold realities keep you grinding away at the prosaic tasks that produce bread and butter, here is a yarn that will satisfy, in so far as a book can, that craving for adventure which seems to be part of man's heritage from his not too remote ancestors of arboreal habits.

The author, Gordon Ray Young, was formerly literary editor of The Times.

CALIFORNIA HISTORY.

SANTA BARBARA AND MONTECITO. By John R. Southworth, F.R.G.S. The Schauer Printing Studio, Santa Barbara.

A brief, concise narrative giving the principal events in the history of Santa Barbara and Montecito, by a man who is intimately acquainted with this beautiful region, and whose researches have developed a very readable account of those early days when romance was in flower in the glamourous land of California.

It would seem that even the earliest tourists to the Golden State were so impressed with its beauties that they could not refrain from writing booster letters back home. We find that Gen. Don Sebastian Vizcaino, who entered Santa Barbara Channel on Dec. 4, 1602, and who named the channel for Saint Barbara, to whom the 4th of December is sacred, in a letter to his sovereign, King Philip III of Spain, May 23, 1603, made the following statement:

"This land has a genial climate, its waters are good, and its soil fertile judging from the variety and luxuriant growth of the trees and plants, and it is thickly settled with people, whom I found to be of gentle disposition, peaceable and docile."

Vizcaino was very anxious that the King consent to his founding a colony in this delightful land. In 1606 this plan was about to be carried out, but the death of Vizcaino put an end to the scheme.

One of the most interesting accounts of the important events in early history of Santa Barbara and its environs is that of the wedding ceremony of Don Luis Arguello, one of the most picturesque characters of the early days, and Dona Maria Soledad Ortega of the Rancho del Refugio, Santa Barbara, and how for months scores of Indian girls had been busy with the making of silks and satins into gowns and of the fashioning of fine bedspreads and undergarments for the bride-to-be.

In addition to a wealth of early history, the book gives specific information as to Santa Barbara and Montecito of today. Every point of interest is taken up and treated in a sane, rational manner. The style is clear, free from the usual bombast that mars so many books of this kind, and is packed with information from cover to cover.

The book is divided into five parts, which adds to its usefulness as a handbook. But aside from this feature it is also filled with solid history, and will well repay perusal by all who are interested in California history in general and Santa Barbara and Montecito in particular.

NEW EINSTEIN BOOK.

Prof. Albert Einstein, who delivered a series of five lectures on the theory of relativity at Princeton University during the week of May 9, has arranged with the Princeton University Press for their publication in book form. This will be the only authorized publication of any of the lectures he will give during his present visit to the United States.

AN ADVENTURE YARN.

H. De Vere Stacpoole's latest novel, sulphurously entitled "Satan," has just appeared under the McBride imprint. The hero, after whom the book is named, is not, as might be supposed, the person about whom Milton wrote his well-known epic, but a youngster who has a Machiavellian habit of using other people for his own purposes. The action takes place in the West Indies, chiefly aboard the good ship Sarah Tyler, and concerns, among other things, a sunken treasure and a red-haired girl named Jude.

MRS. RIGGS AND DICKENS.

Kate Douglas Wiggins will be the guest of honor at the May meeting of the Dickens Fellowship in Boston. She is to read her charming "Child's Journey with Dickens." Mrs. Riggs (as the author of "Rebecca" and "The Birds' Christmas Carol" and many other much loved books known to her friends) is an ardent admirer of Dickens. Probably no other contemporary writer has drawn children of such quaint and characteristic charm, or children so worthy to stand beside Little Nell or Tiny Tim.

THE FACTS

The less people know of a thing, the more prone are they to discuss it, as a rule. Take the Japanese problem. There has been considerable noise about it. The man on the street harangues his acquaintances. Everybody is more or less opinionated. But how many actually have gone below the surface? To put it bluntly, how many know what they are talking about? If we have a Japanese problem, it is our duty to learn something about it before we call out the home guard. T. PRINCE HENRY FINE ATHLETE.

Third in Line for Throne of Britain Regular Fellow.

Prowess in Sport Compels Admiration.

Training for Army, Gets No Special Privileges.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, May 3.—"I hope you'll all be bombed! Then I'll be Henry the Ninth and I'll have nine wives!"

It was a little English royal prince who hurled those extremely naughty, exceedingly disrespectful words after his august father, King George, and his two elder brothers, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, one day when they left him behind when leaving Windsor Castle to take part in some public ceremony.

This was a ceremony that promised to be rather less of a bore than most functions royal personages are condemned to take part in, and with no end of good things to eat and drink, and the little royal prince was very angry indeed at being out of it.

This royal youngster was Prince Henry, third of the four sons of the King and Queen of England. The story of his rage on that occasion, and of the deplorable exhibitions of lese majeste he gave in expressing it was told this week by a former royal lady-in-waiting.

Today, of course, he would never think of giving vent to any corresponding sentiments, but the fact remains that, in case of anything happening to both of his royal elder brothers, he ultimately would become Henry the Ninth, the first Henry to sit on the throne of England since the monarch who has been called "the greatest widower in history."

TALLEST OF PRINCES.

Prince Henry is the tallest of the sons of the King and Queen, and now that, having reached his majority, he will be seen in public more often than he has been previously, the strong probability is that he speedily will become as popular as the other royal brothers. In fact, his prowess in many varieties of sport already has compelled the admiration of the British public, in whose estimation to be "good at games" and a thorough sportsman is to be as we put it, a regular fellow.

It is usual, I know, to attribute all sorts of performances and achievements to royal personages, but it is probably a fact that had he been a mere commoner, Prince Henry would by now have won renown in the sporting world.

The feats of the Prince of Wales as a horseman and gentleman jockey recently have attracted a good deal of attention, but it is generally admitted that his younger brother far surpasses him in this direction.

And, in addition, Prince Henry is a useful cricketer (he is said to be the best the royal family ever produced,) a good country runner (he thought nothing, while a mere boy at Eton, of doing a ten-mile run in an afternoon,) and a crack polo player and probably would have developed into a mighty man at Rugby football if his royal mother had not objected to his playing this game after he had begun to do stunts on the gridiron.

IS FINE HORSEMAN.

An expert assured me the other day that the Prince gives promise of becoming one of the finest horsemen in the country. He won the intervarsity tent tent-pegging and jumping competitions for Cambridge single-handed last year, and his polo is so first class that it is predicted that he will be playing for England within the next ten years provided he has the time to devote himself seriously to the game.

Even as a youngster Prince Henry was bent on being a soldier. King George approving, his education proceeded on different lines from that of his two elder brothers, both of whom passed through the Royal Naval College at Osborne and Dartmouth.

TRAINED FOR ARMY.

As soon as he was old enough he was sent to Eton, where he was trained in the army class, and later went to Sandhurst, the British West Point. He is now a second lieutenant in the King's Royal Rifle Corps, but for several months he has been serving with the Thirteenth Hussars in order to gain experience of the cavalry.

By special order of the King the Prince is accorded no privileges, which other officers do not enjoy, and the "birthday leave" that had been given him was immediately cancelled when the menace of a general strike became imminent.

The King marked the Prince's coming of age by conferring on him the Order of the Garter. It is stated that he will soon be made a royal duke, probably with a Scottish title.

THE "I AND ME" PROBLEM.

The line, "Look what I done for you and him and me," is good American, but better American, I believe, would be, "Look what I done for him and you and I." This, however, brings up a subject to which one ought to be able to devote a whole volume, but one ain't goin' to. One is only goin' to state that mysterious rules govern the cases of personal pronouns in our language and one hasn't had time to solve the mysteries even since prohibition.

We say, "He come up to me in the club," but we also say, "He come up to Charley and I in the club," or even, "He come up to I and Charley in the club." Charley's presence in the club seems, for some reason or another, to alter my case. The other night I was reading a play script by one of this country's foremost dramatists, and recurring in it was the stage direction, "A look passes between he and So-and-So." But this playwright wouldn't think of saying or writing, "She passed he a look."

My theory on this particular point is that when the common American citizen, whom we will call Joe, was in his last year in school (the sixth grade,) the teacher asked him how many boys there were in his family. He replied: "Just Frank and me." "Just Frank and I," corrected the teacher. And the correction got Joe all balled up.—[Ring Lardner in the Bookman.

Acquitting Time.

"Miss Passee," remarked the young man, desperately trying to make conversation, "what a beautiful shade of gray your eyes are."

"Prematurely so, I assure you," answered that slightly over-boomed maiden.—[Exchange.

Emphasizing the Unusual Opportunities at Barker Bros.

What Bride Wouldn't Enjoy Starting Housekeeping with a Fireless Gas Range?

Fireless gas ranges are a unique departure from the general run of gas ranges. Though they may be used just the same as any gas range, they have an additional feature—the fireless cooker, "built-in"—that saves the housewife's time, economizes on gas, and, in short, is an assistant cook.

The Chambers Fireless Gas Range

Cooks at Full Speed With the Gas Turned Off

This remarkable range, purchasable only at Barker Bros., in Los Angeles, may be had in a variety of styles. The model pictured, has a wonderfully convenient high broiler, fireless cooker oven and fireless cooker hood over one gas burner. In this range you start your food cooking just as you would on any gas range, and after a short while, turn off the gas. The food continues to cook. Think of the gas saved! Think of the time that is yours to do with as you please! No more tedious "pot-watching." See the fireless gas range demonstrated.

The Renowned Nationally Advertised Leonard Cleanable Refrigerators

Not even in California can you get along without a refrigerator. It seems then, that the logical thing to do is to investigate the merits of the various makes of refrigerators, their reputation, and quality, before buying.

You can buy cheaper refrigerators than Leonard Cleanables, but you cannot buy better made ones, better known ones, or cleaner refrigerators. These are the very same refrigerators you see advertised in the national magazines. The "ten walls to save the ice" refrigerators, with one-piece porcelain lining and rounded inside front corners. The floors of the food chambers are flush with the bottom of the door. There are no corners, cracks or seams where food particles can collect. A continuously circulating stream of dry, sweet, frigid air keeps the food in the Leonard Cleanable, perfect.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

For the relief of famine sufferers in China the American Red Cross made an appropriation of $500,000. The relief work, which has so far been confined to Shantung, has been conducted by John Earl Baker, an American who has spent several years in China and who has been for a long time technical advisor to the Chinese Government Railway Administration. After visiting the famine district assigned to the American Red Cross and consulting with leading Chinese authorities, Mr. Baker decided that the best method of aiding the famine sufferers was to provide them with employment and pay them for their work in food supplies, money being useless in a country where no food was obtainable. The American Red Cross buys its supplies in Manchuria or other distant places, ships them to the famine area, and pays them out through a commissary department to the heads of the families employed on the public work undertaken by the American Red Cross.

Farmers in Lawrence county, Tennessee, can attend free motion pictures any Saturday afternoon they choose this year. The Booster Club of Lawrenceburg, working with the county agent and the Social Welfare Committee of the County Council, has arranged these free pictures for the farmers. The business men of the town purchased the machine and paid the expenses incidental to the show, such as the express on reels. The reels used are obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture and slides from the division of extension of the State Agricultural College. The Mayor of the town gave permission to have the pictures shown in the Courthouse and donated the electricity used.

The Methodist Episcopal Commission, touring Europe promoting welfare work among the needy children of poverty-stricken areas, allotted 100,000 lire to be expended for the care of Ruthenian children in an orphanage. The money will be expended in providing a meal a day for 1000 children for a period of five months.

With the idea of saving the beautiful oak trees on the campus of Wellesley College, a number of the students have organized a bird club, which in every way possible will endeavor to encourage the presence of birds on the campus. It is thought that the pest of destructive insects will be held in check in this manner.

An important meeting was recently held at Rio de Janeiro, under the auspices of the Brazilian Red Cross, for discussing plans for an intensive antituberculosis campaign throughout the States of Brazil. At the conference, which was attended by Senhora de Pessoa, wife of the President of the Brazilian republic, Dr. Amaury de Madeiros explained the proposed scheme for this campaign, which, in the course of the meeting, was definitely worked out in its main lines.

At one time snail racing was a great fad in Austria. Vienna had a fashionable snail racing club, where fortunes were frequently wagered on the ridiculous contests. Careful records of the time taken by the winning snail to crawl around the miniature race course were kept, in order that contestants might be properly handicapped in subsequent matches.

A big bull, which escaped from a pasture between Ellwood and Zelienople, La., charged a street-car head on. The car was derailed and rolled to the edge of a sixty-foot ravine, where it hung suspended with its crew and six passengers. All escaped unhurt. The bull was killed.

Here is an illuminating instance of the working of the out-of-work pay system in England. To a general fitter was offered a job at £4 10s a week, which, with overtime, could be turned into £5 10s. For various "reasons" the man put off taking up the job, and inquiry revealed the interesting fact that he was drawing 29s out-of-work pay, children's allowance, 9s; a military pension of 15s; a club out-of-work pay, 20s, while his wife was earning 50s a week and her board.

Joseph Percente, veteran Milwaukee newsboy, who began selling papers in 1884, figures that he has sold on an average 1200 papers a day, 300 days a year, for thirty-five years, and that if those papers were stacked on top of each other and Folded one-half they would make a pile twenty-six miles high.

PIERRE KEY'S Music Article

BY PIERRE V. R. KEY.

NEW YORK, May 14.—We have arrived, apparently, at the age (or stage) of the musical duettists. First we had Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, pianists; now we have the Kouns sisters, Nellie and Sara, who are showing us a trick or two and some art into the bargain as singers. You have all heard manifestly better individual singers than either Miss Sara or Miss Nellie. Neither has an unusual voice, though each is, we admit, sympathetic in quality and moderately responsive in a technical way. But it is when these Kansas young women sing duets that they shine, and please, and provoke more than the usual amount of applause.

The Misses Kouns come from the same town which sent Brock Pemberton into our midst. They have studied long, principally abroad; and they have gone the less artistic way of vaudeville. Now, however, the chance of their musical lifetime hovers. A clever manager who does not spoil things by hippodroming the young singers can easily arrange for their appearances in many cities. That taken care of we can rely on the Missess Kouns to do the rest . . . neatly, agreeably and in convincing fashion.

No, they do none of the stunts of vaudeville specialists. We never saw or heard them in this line of public work, but those who have, assure us that they always proceeded seriously. Someone once mentioned them as the "mirror voiced sopranos," which is rather an apt phrase and is likely to stick.

Their town hall recital a few evenings ago was well attended. And wonder of wonders, the daily newspaper music critics actually grew enthusiastic over the singers. I approve what one of them said about the prima donna accompanying of C. V. Bos. This musician makes too much fuss at the piano keyboard, and we have others who are just as fine artists—and they are Americans.

LA FAVORITA OPERA.

Opera seems to have gotten a toe-hold on the Manhattan Operahouse again—once the temporary home of wrestling, which, by the way, was the start of the hippodroming sport back into honest-is-the-best-policy ways. Fortune Gallo began things operatic at the Manhattan—after the long period there of theatrical shows, motion pictures and other things not wholly artistic. Then came the Chicago Opera Company, and recently the La Favorita Grand Opera Company, composed largely of principals who had appeared in the two-performance season of the lately wrecked Italian Lyric Federation scheme at the Lexington Theater.

For the money it wasn't at all bad opera the Favorita crowd gave us. The start, with "La Gioconda," was passable in ensemble and moved some of us when two of the principals sang some excellent phrases. The orchestra did its part moderately well, the chorus was efficient if not numerous, and the settings were not as unattractive as some we have beheld where the scale of seat prices was materially higher.

The repertoire has been varied enough for the project, and the attendance is almost up to the enthusiasm. The season of two weeks is scheduled to close today. I doubt if there will be an extension, but one can never tell. Sometimes opera enterprises do the unexpected, and this one may elect to go on, whereas so many of them stop before the appointed schedule.

SYMPHONY DEFICITS.

It must be great to be able to put the hand into the right hand trousers pocket (that's where we carry all our money) and pull out $300,000 and say to an orchestra: "Here take it and pay the deficit!"

That's what the guarantors will do this year—the last one, by the way—for the National Symphony Orchestra. This was a pretty penny for the privilege of giving us some interesting music, and a great deal more of it than was necessary. Next season the National becomes a part of the Philharmonic, and while there will be a deficit it isn't likely to be half of that $300,000 we speak about.

There need not have been such a shortage. Still, as this organization has already ceased to exist as an individual unit the least said the better. But some things were learned by the gentlemen who will have something to say about the policy of the Philharmonic, and that will be turned to profitable account in future.

Both the Philharmonic and the New York Symphony suffered monetary losses. In fact, all symphony organizations in this country do, excepting Chicago's. Conductor Fred Stock and Business Manager Fred Wessels are a resourceful team. They manage so well that, aided by the ownership of Orchestra Hall, there is a surplus instead of a deficit.

I expect to see that ultimately achieved by the new heads of the Philharmonic. Clarence Mackay and Otto Kahn will pilot henceforth that craft, and their plans are sure to be big plans.

RICHARD STRAUSS'S VISIT.

The plan of a resourceful New York music bureau to bring Richard Strauss here next autumn is one which interests many. Germany's foremost composer has visited us just once; that was back in 1904. He will arrive here next October, and if all goes well will make his debut at the head of an orchestra in Carnegie Hall. This will be followed by two other orchestra concerts, in the Metropolitan Operahouse, if that can be arranged. Also, Strauss will appear as guest conductor of several—doubtless all—of the leading United States symphony orchestras.

But his chief occupation on his three months' tournee is to be as chief participant in what are to be termed "Strauss Evenings." He will have the assistance of an illustrious soprano — probably Claire Dux, who is to come here for the first time next fall, and is already engaged for some appearances with the Chicago Opera Association.

Miss Dux—or whoever does appear with Strauss—will sing, and the program will consist almost wholly of the distinguished visitor's music.

What is quite likely is the presence of Strauss in the orchestra pit of the Metropolitan Operahouse, conducting some special performances of his "Der Rosenkavalier." This opera hasn't been given at the Metropolitan since our participation in the late war; and with peace terms in sight with Germany, there could be no objection to the representation of this work.

A second feature of the coming of Strauss would be the possibility of his conducting some special representations of his own "Salome"—for the Chicago Opera Association—with Impresario Mary Garden as Salome.

So, it would appear, the 1921-1922 music season will not be devoid of its thrills.

A DUTCH SONG SINGER.

Miss Julia Culp did not remain long with us on this visit: She is a great artiste, this Dutch mezzo-soprano. Whenever she sings her art arrests the attention. She never had a great voice, though her's was always serviceable and sympathetic in quality. This visit of Miss Culp shows her vocal instrument somewhat worn. The bloom is gone from it; but the singer's art still soars, and we listen to her with real enjoyment, with profit, and with a better understanding each time of what requirements are needed to make a great artist.

Miss Culp impressed her hearers at her previous appearance with the final Beethoven Association concert. We hadn't heard her in several seasons, so her reappearance had in it the elements of a semithrill. She has gone back to her home now, and we do not know whether she is to return next year. If she does she will be welcome.

A VERSATILE MUSICIAN.

Erno Dohnanyi is a great musician and a versatile one. He can play piano and conduct a symphony orchestra at one and the same time—as he recently proved a few afternoons ago at a National Symphony concert. Mr. Dohnanyi also figured on this program as composer, one of his suites being performed in a manner to invite critical commendation. But I couldn't help wondering when I read in the program notes the following observation from the pen of Lawrence Gilman, the clever and erudite annotator:

"The suite is in four movements. It has no program of any kind—dramatic, poetic, pictorial, philosophical, astronomical, ornithological, mythological or geographic. It has neither title nor motto. It has not even a message. It is nothing but music."

Mr. Dohnanyi has returned to Europe after a very busy three months in our midst during which time he played often and well for many people in a number of towns. He will return next year and, no doubt, be equally well thought of.

And others will come also. It promises to be a busy season, but so is this one, which still exists. May has the biggest concert schedule New York has ever known. So we will continue with our appreciation and our observations. Music has taken a firm hold of the nation, and there is every indication that 1921 will record a greater expenditure of money for music, by several millions, than 1920 knew.

It must be just horrible to have to live in mortal dread of visitors at the wrong time. It's too easy for them in the next room to step in at the wrong time.

Well, a setting around a wondering what you will do next occupies so much of your time in them places that you ain't got no time to do real work, and pretty soon you ain't got a thread to your back nor a thought in your head that everybudy don't know all about —.

Yes'm, them women are a slave to what the other folks in the house think of 'em and expect of them. They git thataway without knowing it.

Ma'm? Why don't you just have that duvetyn band picotted on to the satin, then you won't be worried over how you are going to git the edge turned under. I think you could find a piece of duvetyn (the all-silk is cheaper now than the silk and wool, and that's because the all-silk musses easier than what the mixed does) that pretty toasted shade and have your satin dyed to match. You might as well use that satin. Or if you want it to be a evening cape, why git out that satin and corded brocade and have it dyed. It will dye nice and you won't have to have any lining.

Just make a straight cape, I would, and then have the band of duvetyn picotted to the collar, and that will make almost a double cape and the brocade is so heavy it won't need to be lined. And if you don't want to do either of them, why buy you some crepe de chine the color you want and have that cream brocade dyed jade green or some pretty color and line it.

Yes'm, crepe de chine makes lovely wraps now and real serviceable ones, too.

Oh, land! It's a comfort certainly to be sewing here, a little way out, in a house where the street cars ain't running by and they ain't nobudy dropping in for you to have to hide things from whilst you are a-sewing on them. And I like to sew for you because you seem willing to stay at home a whole day without flying downtown or running this place and the other and missing your right fittings when I need you, or being so full of feeling about the single or married man what eats breakfast acrost from you and you have to set and look at the way he stuffs things in his mouth every day in the week and every week in the month and every month in the year onless you ask to move your table, and then that would stir up a row, and you would ruther put up with some folks' table manners than to be turned out with no place to go —.

Yes,m, I've heard women talk day after day right after a meal about how other women's husbands eat. No'm, you better be satisfied, like me and Lonny, to let the other folks have the boardin' worries.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Throughout the history of Japanese feminine dress the graceful lines of the kimono have prevailed almost unchanged.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY MYRA NYE.

This is the "off year" for General Federation convention, the biennial, but the western women are not going to lack a conference. The Great Salt Lake council will be held in Hotel Utah, Salt Lake City, June 15-16-17, when the following nationally prominent women will be present: Mrs. T. G. Winter, president G.F.W.C.; Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, past president; Mrs. Philip North Moore, past president; Mrs. Elmer Blair, chairman of the department of public welfare of the national organization, and Mrs. John D. Sherman, chairman of applied education. Dean Byron Cummings, archaeologist of the University of Arizona, will lecture upon the "Cliff Dwellers," and Prof. Levi. Edgar Young of the University of Utah will address the convention on "The Idealism of the West and Its Significance to the Nation."

Six State federations are included in the convention, California among them. Formal reports will be eliminated and only one conference will be held at any one time, instead of special ones of many kinds at the same time as formerly.

Miss Louise Kline.

Miss Gladys Kline.

Talented Sisters.

Miss Gladys is to present the pantomime, "Pierrot and Pierette," with a cast of twelve persons, at the Ebell clubhouse tomorrow under the auspices of the Wa Wan Club. She will take the part of Pierrot. Miss Louise is to appear in a "Torch Dance" and will give a Terpsichorean version of "An Ancient Hebrew Melody" on the reciprocity program of the Matinee Musical Club at the Ebell clubhouse Thursday.

Mrs. Pennybacker, who originated the idea of observing Citizenship Day together with Independence Day on the Fourth of July, will tell how it will be observed throughout the United States, not only to celebrate independence, but as a public recognition of the responsibilities of new citizenship.

"May every town and hamlet on that great day use our national holiday for a public welcome to American youths attaining their majority and to citizens newly made through naturalization. Use the flags, topped by the Stars and Stripes, sing the great songs, let the climax of the ceremonial be the administration of the civil oath to all new voters. Make it a community day. Begin to get ready at once," writes Mrs. Pennybacker, enthusiastically.

California will have to report at this convention well over 10,000 new members and twenty-six new county organizations, which tops the list, so far, of all the States.

Wellesley Club.

Typical of the famous Wellesley College Tree Day festival the Wellesley Club of Southern California will present an original pageant June 3 and 4. Through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien N. Brunswig, the premiere will be held in their gardens at 3528 West Adams street, Friday, the 3rd prox., and the following afternoon the pageant will be repeated in Pasadena in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garford, 1126 Hillcrest avenue, Oak Knoll. The interpretive dances and pageant are under the direction of Miss Josephine Stanley Partridge of Hollywood and Miss Ruth Bolgiano of Los Angeles, the latter having taken the principal role, as well as having directed the dances at Wellesley College last May. In addition to the younger members of the club there will be the following students from the Hollywood School for Girls: Alice Wyeth, Irene and Edith Mayer, Helen and Mary Little, Prudence Wollett, Alice Barnhart and Virginia Hunter. Music for the production has been composed by Miss Marion Ralston, formerly of the musical faculty of Wellesley. The proceeds from the presentations will go toward the college endowment fund, a sum greatly needed to increase the salaries of the professors and instructors in order that Wellesley may continue to offer the high standard of instruction for which it is noted.

The Reciprocity Club.

Celebrating their annual "Young-old Ladies Day," the Reciprocity Club will meet in the Unitarian Church, 925 South Flower street, Tuesday, for a noon luncheon. Reservations should be made tomorrow. Phone 61421 or Main 6375.

The program, beginning at 2 p.m., will include an organ solo by Ada Marsh Chick; readings by Mrs. C. L. Vose; groups of songs, Mrs. Wallace R. Hardison; reading, "The Missionary," Mrs. C. W. Hardy; short stories, Rev. H. S. Canfield, and will conclude with "Auld Lang Syne." At previous May meetings the average age of the guests has ranged from 76 to 93 years.

Woman's Osteopathic Club.

A symposium conducted by Dr. Georgia Carter and Dr. Nettie Olds Haight will engage the attention of the Woman's Osteopathic Club at the regular meeting in the Mary Louise Tea Room, Brack-Shops, Tuesday. The election of officers will take place after dinner.

Child Welfare.

"Disciplining the Normal Child" was the subject of Miss Julia Matthews before the Whittier Child Welfare Circle entertained at the home of Mrs. Herman L. Perry Wednesday afternoon. Miss Matthews is the assistant psychologist of the bureau of juvenile research at the Whittier State School. After the address an informal forum was held. Mrs. John D. Gregg, Mrs. H. E. Tebbets and the hostess served tea at the close of the afternoon.

The Whittier Woman's Club was delightfully entertained by the La Habra Woman's Club Thursday afternoon in the City Hall of La Habra.

Elysian Heights Civic Club.

"East Los Angeles has 60,000 people and no recreation center at all," said Mrs. Flora Nelson, of the Juvenile Protective Association, speaking before the Elysian Heights Civic Club at its last meeting held at the home of Mrs. Frank Kirkby.

"If children are taught to play fairly, it has a good effect upon their morals," she continued.

"The association is a clearing-house for the other welfare societies," Mrs. Nelson stated. "For instance, the Juvenile Court makes no investigation of cases, but the Juvenile Protective Association does so by visiting and by going into the moral surroundings of the child."

Interesting reports from the Pomona convention were given by Mrs. Frank Kirkby, Mrs. H. E. Wilkinson, Dr. Anna E. Tasker and Mrs. Grace Kerwin.

Mrs. Charles Smith reported on the work of the legislative council and Mrs. Emma Walker told of the preparations being made for the pageant to be staged at Yosemite.

Woman's Auxiliary Postoffice Clerks.

At the Echo Park clubhouse tomorrow at 2 p.m. the reciprocity program of the Woman's Auxiliary to Local No. 64, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, will be presented to guests of the Los Angeles district federation. Responses should be made to Mrs. F. O. Hoffman, 1316 West Fortieth Place.

The Poppy Garden.

The Poppy Garden of California is the name of a new organization of little girls. Meeting the first and third Saturdays, this group of forty members is now, with the help of the mothers, planning a benefit entertainment for hungry little babies of the city. Brig. Boyd of the Salvation Army has given his advice and help and through "The Poppy Garden," $15 worth of milk was given last week to the babies of the Day Nursery. The officers of the garden, who are uniquely named, are: Poppy (president,) Miss Sara Tinewell; stem (secretary,) Anna McKenna; color (treasurer,) Doris Wentzell, and the petals (committee,) Shirley Tinewell, Dorothy Buren, Hortense Strang and Ethel Davis. With the exception of the "poppy," who is 17 years of age, no one of the others is over 13. The purpose of the little club is "to do good, to be kind and polite in thought, word and deed," which is set forth in a beautifully framed charter, surrounded on its mat by hand-painted poppies. The next meeting will be in Native Sons Hall, the 21st inst., at 1 p.m. Little girls, who are interested, are invited to attend. Miss E. Jean Gibson is director-in-chief.

Audubon Society.

"The Courtship of the Birds" will be the subject of Alfred Cookman, ornithologist and instructor of science in Glendale High School, at the next meeting of the Los Angeles Audubon Society to be held in the State Building, Exposition Park, the 19th inst., at 1:45 p.m. The annual reports will be read and election of officers will take place. There are many phases of courting antics and love songs among the wild tribes, as the male of each species has its own way of tendering its affections to the female. Song and dance are the sex "language" of the male.

Pasadena Shakespeare Club.

Throughout the whole of last Tuesday, the Pasadena Shakespeare clubhouse was thronged with women eager to hear the programs. As early as 10 in the morning the auditorium was comfortably filled to hear Miss Winifred Rouzee, director of the Bible section, lecture on "Symbolism in the Bible." This preceded the meeting of the book and magazine section when Dr. Frederick Ellerman lectured informally on "The Work of the Mt. Wilson Observatory." He illustrated his talk with photographs of Orion, which, he demonstrated, was much larger than the sun, saying that it took just one year for the light from one side of Orion to flash to the other, so great is this huge star. Mrs. H. D. Bentley presided as curator of the section. "Monna Vanna," by Maeterlinck, was read in the afternoon by Miss Grace V. Noe. The dining-room was crowded at the luncheon hour when Mrs. Leo G. MacLaughlin presided as toast mistress.

English Study Club.

The last meeting of the English Study Club to be held before the banquet which marks the close of the year was held Tuesday evening at the home of the Misses Bess and Elsie Osborn, 726 North Occidental Boulevard. Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson read a group of her original poems. Mrs. Sweitzer gave an essay on Emerson. Selected extracts from Milton's "Paradise Lost" were given by the members of the Milton class. The question box on correct English was opened by the president, Mrs. Sara Rittenhouse Brown. The usual debate followed. The paper, composed of editorials, stories and poems by club members, was read by the editor, Mrs. W. Rowland MacCormack.

League of Penwomen.

Under the direction of Mrs. T. A. Whitworth, the Los Angeles branch of the League of American Penwomen will give a musicale for members and their guests at the Potter Park Studios, 2619 Wilshire Boulevard, the 21st inst. at 8 p.m. Mrs. Whitworth will be assisted by William C. Heintz, tenor; Miss May Trude, soprano; Miss Helen Roberts, mezzo-soprano, and other well-known talent. Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, president of the league, announces the musicale.

In Charge of Wellesley College Tree Day Pageant.

Miss Josephine Stanley Partridge (right) and Miss Ruth A. Bolgiano.

The former is in general charge of the pageant, which will be presented in the L. N. Brunswig gardens on June 3 and on the spacious grounds of the Arthur Garford residence in Oak Knoll on June 4. The latter is in charge of the dancing.

Personals.

In behalf of the Pastime Clearinghouse, which she originated, Gertrude Gilmour spoke during the last week before the City Advertising, Kiwanis, 100 Per Cent and Rotary clubs. This week she will speak before the Men's City Club at one of its luncheons. The women's clubs have manifested so keen an interest in the venture that Mrs. Gilmour is asking the co-operation of the men, since young men as well as young women will be benefited by the 'Pastime Clearinghouse.

Mrs. Jules Kauffman, a well-known figure in club and philanthropic circles for the last twenty years, was elected Thursday as president of the Council of Jewish Women to succeed Mrs. E. M. Lazard. Mrs. Kauffman is prominent in the Friday Morning Club and a member of the Social Service Commission.

Mrs. W. H. Lyon, who writes children's stories and clever little satires under the name of Lucile Greinnan Lyon, is the latest addition to the personnel of the Ebell Club, joining two weeks ago. Mrs. Lyon is going to the Yosemite, and will have a part in the pageant.

Los Angeles Travel Club.

Delightful was the summer luncheon served to the members and friends of the Los Angeles Travel Club Monday in the banquet hall of the Prince Rupert Apartments by Mrs. W. C. Finch and committee. The luncheon speakers were Mrs. Sydney T. Exley, Mrs. Martha Harman, Mrs. Carrie Trewella, Mrs. A. Sydney Cox and Mrs. Ellen French Aldrich. Beautiful bouquets were presented to Mrs. Harmon, Mrs. Exley and Mrs. Trewella. Mrs. Grace Nicholson and Mrs. Exley were each crowned Queen of May with beautiful crowns of Cecile Brunner roses. Miss Flossie Ehrgott and Miss Helena Heller were the flower girls, and made the presentation speeches. At 2 o'clock all adjourned to the clubrooms, where a touching talk on the immediate needs of the disabled World War veterans and interesting stories of the Big Sisters' League were given during Mrs. Ellen French Aldrich's public affairs hour by Mrs. E. B. Weirick, president of the Big Sisters' League. Mrs. Ella Cooper Keith spoke on "How to Make Money." Tomorrow the last business meeting of the year will be held. Reports will be given by all officers and chairmen of sections and committees. Last Thursday Mrs. Grace Nicholson entertained the following at a prettily appointed luncheon at her home on Santa Barbara avenue: Mmes. Anna Russell, R. A. Laughlin, G. F. Ehrgott, Ellen F. Aldrich, L. A. Smith, S. R. Trengrove, J. W. Dick, E. C. Keith, E. A. Prescott, E. C. Kesling, Claude Mowder, W. C. Finch, L. E. Jenkins, L. M. Hughes, Len D. Conklin and Mark Lacey.

Los Angeles Chapter, D.A.R.

Children of the American Revolution were entertained by the Los Angeles Chapter, D.A.R., Saturday at Glen Arden, the home of Mrs. C. H. Baker in Pasadena. The children's society is growing rapidly and the members are planning to follow in the footsteps of the parent association in fostering patriotism. Those eligible to join notify Mrs. G. W. McCoy, 314 South Manhattan Place; phone 568[illegible]48.

Catholic Woman's Club.

Pretty was the party for children given last Saturday by the Catholic Woman's Club at Payne's Dancing Academy, when children of members, some like little dolls in dainty gowns and others just approaching the "sub-deb" age, enjoyed the dances. Dainty Lillian Sheehan, in Scotch kilts, danced with Mr. George, who played the bagpipes. He, too, wore the Highland costume. Refreshments were served and the children were happy to share in the club life of their mothers. The activities of the music section ended with the concert at the County Hospital. Thomas Taylor Drill sang a group of songs and was assisted by his pupils in giving the people who are ill a happy afternoon.

D.A.R. State Board.

The monthly council meeting of the State board of Daughters of the American Revolution, with Mrs. Lyman B. Stookey, vice-president, presiding, will be held Tuesday at 1240 West Twenty-ninth street, at 2:30 p.m. Reports of the national congress of the organization held in Washington in April will be given. All members and regents who are expecting to attend are asked to reply to Mrs. Stookey at the above address.

Woman's Citizenship Club.

Mrs. E. B. Varian entertained the members of the Woman's Citizenship Club of Hollywood at the meeting Thursday when the speaker of the morning was Miss Dorman, librarian of the Cahuenga branch of the public library. She made a strong appeal for interest in the proposed new library building. In the afternoon Mrs. E. K. Foster, president of the Juvenile Protective Association, spoke on housing conditions. The new officers of the club are: President, Mrs. John R. Dudley; first vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Percy; second vice-president, Mrs. C. M. Wescott; third vice-president, Mrs. E. P. Bradbury; fourth vice-president, Mrs. R. S. McClellan; recording secretary, Mrs. Emma V. V. Shaffer; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Henry N. Adams; treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Hunter; parliamentarian, Mrs. O. B. Suhr; historian, Mrs. Francis A. Blackburn; press chairman, Mrs. Frank Barrow. A field day trip will be taken at the next meeting, the 19th inst., when the members will go to the Southwest Museum, stopping for a mid-day picnic at Sycamore Grove. Each member is to take a picnic basket for herself and guests.

Highland Park Ebell.

Rupert Hughes spoke last Tuesday at the Highland Park Ebell to one of the largest audiences of the year, his subject being "American Composers." Mr. Hughes said music clubs and the concert-going public should demand more American compositions, and he spoke of the individuality of our march music and jazz and the part they played in the late war. As it was American composers' day, James Anderson, baritone, sang a group of songs by American composers, two of which—"The Son" and "The Sun-swept Dunes"—were compositions of Mr. Hughes. Mary Rose Clark was the accompanist. Next Tuesday Dr. Herbert Booth Smith will speak on "The Program of a Progressive Life." Mrs. Charles Oden will sing.

District Federation.

A preview of the pageant, "The Questing Spirit of Womanhood," the Los Angeles district episode will be given in the Mitchell Gardens Wednesday at 2 p.m., admission 50 cents to defray the expense of the presentation in Yosemite Valley on the 25th inst.

WA-WAN MEMBERS NAME NEW OFFICERS.

The regular artists' program of the Wa-Wan Club was held in the ballroom of the Alexandria Wednesday afternoon, when the compositions of Marian Ralston, Elizabeth Leigh and Ann Pricilla Risher were presented.

Plans were made for a new study section both for music and the drama at the annual meeting of the club in the Union League Club Wednesday. Splendidly systematibed altruistic work under the chairmanship of Mrs. Carl Johnson was reported and new suggestions both for the social and professional encouragement of the student section were given.

Mrs. W. E. Mabee, president of the club, accepted a unanimously voted courtesy, a trip to Yosemite May 24 to 29 as the club representative.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Mabee; first vice-president and program chairman, Maud Fenlon Bollman; second vice-president and drama chairman, Mrs. Edward Dvorak; third vice-president and resident composers' charman, Ida Selby; fourth vice-president and chairman of authors, Louise Anderson Henderson; recording secretary, Carlotta Comer Wagner; financial secretary, Letitia Williams; corresponding secretary, Mrs. William Kirkley Chambers; treasurer, Nelle T. Lohmeyer; auditor, Earl Meeker; parliamentarian, Mrs. W. H. Anderson; press chairman, Mrs. Frank Geiger; altruistic chairman, Mrs. Johnson.

CANDIDATE BAITING IS FAVORITE CLUB SPORT.

It is a decidedly prickly gauntlet that the members of the City Council seeking re-election have to run when they appear before the women's clubs. But they do it. The herding together of the candidates before the Friday Morning Club, Mrs. Pauline Barington said, is immensely diverting. It gives the club woman such a feeling of power in her thumbs, a little like the arena of old, for the direction in which she turns them up or down is of great moment to the candidate. Or, perhaps, it is like a fashion show with each smiling, happy victim getting the once over as he tries, in the two minutes allotted him, to tell all he knows. Really he often needs only a moment, but he doesn't seem to know it.

Alice Duer Miller will appear before the club at the next meeting in an author's reading. After the luncheon there will be a reciprocity program, one of the first this club has given for the district federation in many years. A group of one-act plays, including "Her Hunch," by Marion L. Davidson, will be

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGESTIONS.

Up-to-Datest:

A knitted beach costume comprising a one-piece gown of straight lines in addition to an enveloping cape. These fetching outfits for wear beside the sad sea waves are checkerboard as to weave and two-toned in color. The combinations of blue and silver and orange and beige are especially striking.

Soft felt hats, in which white and light colors prevail, as an accompaniment to sports suits of the more tailorish type. These hats have for long had the indorsement of Paris and their suitability is winning appreciation for them on this side.

A white wool sweater of thinnest weave, the skirts of which have checks formed of fine black lines in silk. A distinct note of novelty is given in the belt, which is of black patent leather and white kid, braided and a trifle wider than formerly.

Now is the Time to Buy:

The graduation gift for the girl of girls. Whether your inkling of her preferences inclines you toward a string of pearls, rose-tinted; a beaded bag of rare pattern; a desk lamp shading its beams beneath the silken skirts of a colonial dame or one of the exquisitely tooled and bound "Graduation Books" designed for the preservation of records and souvenirs of the great occasion, you will find a plethora of richness in choice awaiting your selection.

For your porch or patio, the couch hammock, ball bearing in its ease of motion; cushiony and springy to a degree calculated to excite the envy of a lounging Turk. Such a piece of outdoor furniture will prove the most potent of aids in that loafing and inviting of one's soul in the soft air of late afternoon which is the dream ultimate of many a busy man and woman fagged by the combat of a strenuous day downtown.

Encouraging the Nimble Needle.

I was visiting Marjorie's mother one Saturday morning recently when Marjorie, starchily immaculate in blue and white checked gingham, appeared in the doorway.

"I'm off to my sewing class, mother," she announced, waving aloft a jaunty basket on which gay wool flowers blossomed. "We meet at Eunice's today. Don't expect me home until late; I'm finishing the green dress to wear Monday."

"If Marjorie's enthusiasm for sewing holds out against her high school years, I foresee my own second blooming unhampered by the problem of dressmaking for my daughter," remarked the mother of Marjorie, as the door closed with an exuberant bang. "I don't know whether I'm more grateful to a school system which incorporates a course in sewing into a girl's education or to the manufacturers of these wonderful patterns which make the work of constructing a frock seem play."

It sounded like a page from "The Young Visiters," this story the mother of Marjorie went on to tell me of the surprise packages out of which come, literally, dress patterns—term beloved of our grandmothers—of gingham of excellent quality, cut in sizes to fit girls from 6 to 14. Each seam is carefully notched for the guidance of the embryo dressmaker. Collars and belts and facings are shaped with painstaking trueness and their joinings indicated. Even buttons are included. I could understand why Marjorie and her pals are finding the building of their own wash frocks from these delightful foundations so intriguing that they are giving up their Saturday playtime to the sport.

Beauty That Bewilders.

If you are on the threshold of choosing an organdie gown for afternoon wear, O daughter of Eve, heed the advice of one who has profited by experience, and go at it blindfolded!

You cannot escape picking a peach off the organdie gown tree on which only this variety of fruit appears to grow, this season. And you will be saved the soul stress attendant upon a decision between the allure of the gray organdie with red frills and the red organdie with a girdle of black cire ribbon. Between the blue organdie with pink flowers and the pink organdie with no flowers at all but lacy insets, instead. You will escape reckoning with the appeal of the orchid organdie, double-skirted and fastened at the back of the neck with a single clasp, as against the smartness of line characterizing the brown organdie garnitured with appliques of leaves in nasturtium silk. And this takes no account of the peachiest of the lot—an organdie of pale green in which a blonde maid would look the spirit of spring incarnate.

Well, anyway, as I advised in the beginning, I'd go it blind. There are some heights of decision to which no woman susceptible to the spell of summery loveliness in clothes should be required to climb.

Sportswear for All Tastes.

When it comes to sportswear—so profuse is the present display of clever togs for the out of doors—the strain upon your preference is only a bit less severe than in the matter of the froufrouiness of organdies. You know that you are clad in a fashion favored of the moment if you are wearing a plaited skirt of white flannel, herringboned between the plaits with stitchery in silk, black or in color. With this goes a silk sweater which matches the herringbone on your skirt. Your shoes will be finished with fine lines of black leather and you will crown your smart study in black and white with a white felt hat, straight out as to brim.

Equally in the vogue, sponsored by women who make a business of good dressing, will you be if you top your skirt of white canton crepe with a long, heavily fringed sweater of rust color or the darker henna, and wear with this striking combination a broad-brimmed chapeau of woolly white braid, ornamented with a wreath of lacquered-looking leaves matching your sweater in color.

On the other hand, if you confess a fetich for tailored effects which refuses to abdicate before even the allure of the more informal skirt-and-sweater style of apparel, you may adopt one of the so-called "country suits," most favored for wear in town, of bright-colored tweed or homespun, such as well-dressed New Yorkers are putting at the top of the ladder, sartorially.

Fashion Confirms the Rumor that:

Organdie ruffles trim the dainty frocks of voile, dotted swiss and gingham.

A frock of rose voile has a long straight bodice attached to a plaited skirt.

Crepe de chine jackets are worn over frocks of the same fabric and color.

Waxed flowers in brilliant colors are worn at the girdle of the evening frock.

Two colors of silk lace are often used with black silk lace in the same frock.

Nailheads of gold and silver serve as trimming to satin and wool stuffs.

Sashes are ofttimes cut in one piece with the front panel of the blouse.

A gown of black-and-white chiffon is trimmed with deep black silk fringe.

Colored organdie sashes are extremely effective on dotted swiss dresses.

Many jackets are fitted to the waistline and then flare slightly over the hips.

If Your Hair Is Thinning

Strengthening and enlarging the roots of the hair is one of the real secrets of forcing hair to grow, something which has heretofore not been fully realized. Merely stimulating the surface tissue of the scalp will not stimulate the hair growth to the extent desired. By the new method just mentioned hair can be forced to grow several inches a month. Hair will stop falling as if by magic. The new vigor of the hair will be quickly noticed, and all bald spots will be soon entirely filled out with new sprouts. This can all be easily obtained by the simple use of beta-quinol, which can be secured at any drug store in the original one-ounce package. This can be mixed at home with a half pint of bay rum and a half pint of water, or with witch hazel, if you prefer. It contains no oil whatever.

To Have the Arm Pits Soft and Free from Hair

You can be sure that there is but one sensible way to remove hairs from the arm pits, and, in fact from any part of the body. It is foolish to "burn" them off, injuring and spotting the skin. Just moisten the hairs with sulfo solution. This will actually dissolve away the hairs completely, and leave the skin superbly soft and smooth. It will not irritate the most delicate skin. Sulfo solution may be obtained at nearly any drug store.

Something Better Than Soap for a Head-Wash

As to head-wash, you are advised against using soap or the many shampoos sold, because of the alkali they contain. This dries up hair secretions. Get a package of eggol at the drug store and dissolve a teaspoonful of it in half a cup of water. You can get enough eggol for twenty-five cents for a dozen or more head washes. It is magic in cleansing hair and scalp, and aids wonderfully in making hair grow.

MANUAL ARTS P.-T.A. ON SCHOOL PROBLEMS.

Why is the school attended by a delinquent or immoral child invariably mentioned in the reports given the public and rarely the home or church with which he may be associated?

For how much should the school be held accountable in a child's moral development?

Why is the attendance record lower on Monday than any other school day?

Should teachers be obliged to chaperone parties and picnics away from the school grounds?

All these questions regarding school children were discussed at the meeting of the Manual Arts Parent-Teachers' Association last Tuesday. Those who took part in the discussion were: Mrs. Mila Tupper Maynard and Mrs. Rosa Winterburn, for the faculty; Mrs. Charles F. Gray and Mrs. C. M. McRoberts, for the parents. Present-day dangers, it was brought out in the discussion, are the free and indiscriminate use of automobiles by children, improper moving pictures and the accounts of fast living and crime in many daily papers.

Mrs. Robert Hubbard presided at the meeting and Mrs. R. W. Culver was elected president for the ensuing year.

Thrift Has None of the Pinchpenny Blood in His Veins.

A good many folk think Thrift is a kinsman of Pinchpenny. They are wrong. Thrift has none of the Pinchpenny blood in his veins.

Thrift uses his time, his strength, his mind intelligently, and makes his money serve his needs and minister to his pleasure. He labors hard at things worth doing, but wastes no effort on things not worth doing.

He has time for play, for observation, for study. His hand opens quickly when his head tells him it is time to spend, or his heart counsels giving. Thrift has learned to make the dollars he has earned work for him.

Pinchpenny sweats for his money, and all its life long he is its slave. He fears to enjoy himself because he fears to let go of his purse. He does not dare to put out his money, being haunted by the thought that it may not come back to him.

When Opportunity knocks at his door he sends word he is "not at home and keeps on counting coppers when he might send them forth to bring back coins of gold. Pinchpenny starves his mind, his body and his soul, for his hours are filled with anxiety and depressing forebodings.

Thrift is an admirable fellow whom we should all imitate. He knows what money is for, and he uses it to make things go. He keeps the shops open and the factories running. He will not be swindled, but he is not so foolish as to go without what he wants and can afford to buy.—[New York Herald.

All Mothers Will Find Use For This Laxative

Give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a constipated child and note its quick recovery.

IN a growing family the subject of thought with the parents is how to keep the children healthy and happy, and what to do when they become ill. Most illnesses of childhood are the symptoms of constipation, such as headaches, coated tongues, flatulence, dizziness, loss of appetite and sleep, biliousness, etc.

You can surely feel safe in doing what tens of thousands of others do with good results, so give, according to the age of the child, a small quantity of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Eight million bottles were bought last year at drug stores. It is America's favorite family remedy for constipation, indigestion and similar ills, and is especially suitable for children, women and old folks as it is so mild and gentle in action.

There is no secret about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant tasting aromatics. The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

"Bad Nerves" writes: "Is it possible to find a medicine which by its tonic or nutritive powers will bring the glow of health and ambition back to a man who has everything in the world but health and happiness? I am dull, forgetful, despondent, weak, trembling, short of breath and suffer more or less with pain in spine and back of head."

Answer: Your condition indicates the need of a strong, harmless tonic nutritive to restore nerve equilibrium, which in turn fortifies and strengthens the organs of nutrition, thus vitalizing the blood and promoting new cell and tissue to take care of the waste forces. Cadomene tablets, packed in sealed tubes with full directions, are recommended in all such cases.

Mrs. L. O. writes: "My husband is surely afflicted with some kidney disease. He has become weak and suffers with headache and pains in his back and groins. Pains are like rheumatism. His ankles swell and his feet seem to be tired all the time. Some days he has chills and no appetite. Please prescribe."

Answer: His symptoms indicate derangement of kidneys and should not be neglected. I would advise Balmwort tablets, a compound well suited to such cases. Obtain in sealed tubes with directions for home use.

Adele writes: "My hair is coming out, my scalp itches and dandruff is much annoying, and I want something to cure these conditions."

Answer: For hair and scalp troubles I have never found anything to equal the beneficial results of a thorough treatment of plain yellow Minyol. It is cooling, cleansing and invigorating, and thousands now use it regularly as a hair and scalp tonic.

S. R. writes: "Two years ago I used your great prescription for kidney trouble, and it wholly overcome the trouble. I want medicine now for constipation and impure blood, for I am a sight with pimples that make his lumpy form."

Answer: I would advise the taking of Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) for several months to purify the system.

"Farmhand" writes: "Please give me a prescription for my rheumatism. I suffer greatly. A friend tried your prescription, was cured, but can't remember it."

Answer: Here is my favorite prescription for rheumatism: Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, ½ oz.; comp. essence Cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid Balmwort, 1 oz.; and syrup of Sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs. Take a teaspoonful at meal time and at bedtime.

R. K. writes: "Can a sufferer from bronchial trouble be relieved? Doctors do not seem to help me. What would you suggest?"

Answer: To relieve chronic cold, sore throat, bronchitis, I would advise the use of concentrated essence Mentho-Laxene. Purchase this at any drug store in 2½ oz. packages and mix according to directions given on bottle and you will very shortly be relieved. This will not only relieve, but will correct, and is very pleasant to take.

"Myrtle" writes: "Owing to my extreme thinness I am frequently embarrassed by slighting remarks of young people. Can you prescribe a safe remedy to increase my weight?"

Answer: I have so many gratifying reports from the users of three grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets, that I have become to regard these valuable little tablets as a specific and prescribe them to all who are anaemic, thin, wasting nervous and debilitated.

HOBO PROBLEM AGAIN IS HERE.

Railroads Once More Carry Many Uninvited Guests.

Weary Willies Show Increase Since War's End.

Estimated 500,000 With Us; Trans Kill Many.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, May 10.—After disappearing almost completely for several years, the hobo is back again. Reports from allover the country show than the army of men which moves across the country as the uninvited guests of the railroads and the public, is once more mobilizing. Again is heard the request at the back door for a hand-out. The water-tank has again become the waiting room for these non-paying passengers, and its strange collection of cabalistic writings, which are of so much value to the wandering fraternity, is being renewed. Theft of freight is again mounting up to an enormous figure, jails and workhouses are filling up, petty offenses are on the increase.

FALLACY EXPLODED.

Popular opinion in this country has always held the tramp to be a man who would not work under any circumstances. This theory was dealt a blow by the fact that during the war the Army and industry seem to have absorbed nearly all of the tramps, and that they have reappeared now only with the return of hard times. The tramp, then must be a man who will and can work if the inducements are strong enough, but who prefers a wandering life when employment is hard to get or unremunerative.

The tramp is a large and significant problem which has had very little study. The size of it you can realize when you are told that several different estimates made by officials of railways placed the number of tramps in this country before the war at 500,000. This estimate is based on the number of vagrants who are killed every year stealing rides on the railroads. More vagrants are killed this way in a normal year than trainmen and passengers put together.

In one year it was estimated that these vagrants cost the railroads $18,500,000. This included what was paid for protection from them, and the thefts of freight which were attributed to them. For tramps often get food as well as transportation from the railroads.

They break into shipments of foodstuffs and take what they can eat or carry away, often making it impossible for the railroads to deliver a case of canned goods, for instance, although perhaps only a few cans have been stolen.

VARIETIES OF VAGRANTS.

The estimate of half a million which the railroads place upon the normal tramp army of America does not, of course, include only tramps properly so-called. It includes all those who steal rides on the railroads. Among these is a small number of men who are ordinarily steady workers, but are temporarily out of funds and ride the brake beams or the blind baggages to get to some new job. One young man, for example, who was a native of a far western State and worked his way through college, employed this method of crossing the continent four times a year.

Such cases are few. Besides the true tramps, the greater number of these vagrants belong to the class of seasonal workers. The tramps and the seasonal workers are of close kin. Many a man drifts into tramping by way of seasonal work, and the tramp may occasionally become a seasonal worker.

The seasonal workers are a large and well defined class. They make their livings at such work as cutting ice and felling timber in the winter and working on lake boats and in the harvest fields in the summer. When not employed these men congregate in large cities, such as Chicago, where there are great numbers of cheap lodging-houses that cater to them. They soon learn to live for a year on the earnings of a few months, and will not take all-time employment of they can get it unless actually starving. A man who is used to making a living out of the harvest fields in the summer has been known to refuse work at ice-cutting in the winter on the ground that he did not need the money and would be merely taking bread out of the mouth of some habitual winter worker.

LIVES LACK COMFORT.

The lives of these men lack all comfort and stability, but they have change, adventure and leisure. Hence it is comprehensible that men of a certain type come to prefer it. Freedom and wandering are the things that we all dream of, and the man for whom the alternative is ten hours a day at some monotonous mechanical task cannot perhaps be altogether blamed if he prefers a life in which labor and leisure alternate and there is change of scene and occupation.

Unfortunately society makes no allowance for men of that temper. The seasonal worker out of work is regarded as a vagrant. He is hunted by the police and pitied by charity. He and his pocketful of savings are the proper prey of all kinds of vice and fraud. No place is open to him but the lodging-houses, which are dirty and comfortless places, breeders of the drug habit and of other habits which unfit men for normal social relations. Hence the seasonal worker generally deteriorates into a confirmed tramp, beggar or thief.

A STUDY OF TRAMPS.

There has been much romance written about tramps, and also several honest realistic books. The best of these are by Jack London and Josiah Flynt, both of whom tramped with the tramps. These books bring vividly home to one the social waste and deterioration that go with vagrancy, but also the lure of freedom and adventure which leads men into it.

When it comes to scientific study of vagrancy, remarkably little has been done, considering what a large fraction of the nation's labor supply it absorbs. Perhaps the best thing that can be found in this line is a study of 1000 homeless men made by Mrs. Alice Willard Solenberger for the Russell Sage Foundation. She studied carefully a thousand men who applied for aid to a certain organization in Chicago. She found that of this thousand only 220 could be properly classed as tramps—that is, men who wandered for the sake of wandering.

OVERPOWERING IMPULSE.

The distinguishing thing about the tramp, she found, was that he had an overpowering nomadic impulse. He is almost invariably a man who craves wandering as some others crave alcohol. In some the craving was incessant and kept them always on the go. In other its was periodical. Some men deserted their families regularly at intervals of years, wandered for a while, and then returned and settled down as usual. In yet other cases, the men had controlled the impulse to wander until some misfortune overtook them. Usually this was either the death of a wife, which broke up the home, or a failure in business or the loss of a sum of money. Such men usually deteriorated rapidly on drink and drugs, feeling that they had lost their proper places in society.

The continuous wanderer, on the other hand, is often a man, who enjoys his way of life and keeps his self-respect. Tramps of this class come from all grades of society, and include a considerable proportion of college men. Many of them have ways of making money along the road. Some of them are very accomplished beggars. Many of these inveterate wanderers are intelligent men, who differ from others chiefly in that they cannot endure the routine of a settled life and must wander. Explorers, professional globe-trotters, literary and journalistic vagabound are of the same type, but have had the good fortune to find a way of making a living that is congenial to them, and approved by society.

It is said that crime is the conscience of society. That is, every crime points to some imperfection in our social organization. The feeble-minded murderer would not have killed if he had been properly studied in the public schools and isolated.

IS A NECESSITY.

Neither would the seasonal worker and the hobo be a menace, perhaps, if their cases were intelligently studied. The seasonal worker is a necessity. Crops could not be gathered, nor boats manned, nor ice harvested without this army of floating labor. But society makes no proper provision for this man who is necessary to it. His numbers could easily be ascertained, his movements directed.

The government could see to it that his living and working conditions were decent, as it does in the case of settled factory workers. As it is, when he works he is provided with the most degrading sort of surroundings, for the most part. The typical lumber camp, with its vermin and dirt, is an example. When he has finished his work in one place and starts for another, he becomes a hunted animal. The police keep him moving, give him twelve hours to leave town. The railroads throw him off when he tries to execute the order. Only the tramp lodging-house opens its doors to him, trusts him and welcomes him. So he is hammered down into the ranks of the confirmed vagrants and criminals.

Help Wanted.

A motorist came upon another whose machine had broken down on the road. In the disabled car sat a woman.

"Need any assistance?" inquired the newcomer courteously.

The other man lifted his flushed and grimy face from under the hood. "Yes," he replied, "I wish you'd answer my wife's questions while I'm fixing this infernal engine."—[Boston Transcript.

THE RIGHT SALUTE.

George Ade Wiser than He Knew When He Entertained Mr. Taft.

When Taft ran for President the first time, George Ade invited him out to his farm near Brook, Ind., to a barbecue. Taft accepted.

The day before Taft was due to arrive, Ade called in his farm foreman and told him to go to town and get some fancy Japanese fireworks to fire off when Taft drove up the lane. The foreman got the fireworks and Ade, to make sure that the things were working, had one of the dozen rockets set off before Taft arrived. It worked, and that left eleven rockets.

When Taft drove up the lane, the foreman left go the eleven rockets and they were a shieking success. They rocketed all over the place so well that even Taft mentioned them.

After the Taft party left, and Ade was standing on the lawn knee deep in lemon rinds, one of his rural neighbors, a literary cuss like George himself, came up, smiling broadly.

"Well, George," he said, "you certainly put this thing over in great shape. The entertainment was grand, the food was good, the drinks (this was years ago) were plentiful and everybody had a fine time.

"Well," George replied, "I certainly am glad that you enjoyed yourself."

"Enjoyed myself," went on the rural Poe. "I did more than that. In fact, I think I enjoyed myself more than anyone here, because, being widely read, I understand the significance of that rocket salute."

"Yes," Ade replied, wondering what his caller meant.

"You bet," the caller continued. "I've read enough to know that eleven guns is the salute for the Secretary of War."

After the visitor had left George called in his foreman and handed him a crisp bill for getting the salute right by firing all the rockets he had on hand.—[Labert St. Clair, in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"So you have named a new brand of cigars after me, have you?" said the celebrity.

"I have taken that liberty, sir," replied the manufacturer.

THE REEL AND THE REAL ANITA.

Miss Stewart is Connoisseur of Home Life.

Style is Not Star's Idea of Perfect Bliss.

Her Don'ts on Marriage and Her Own Love Letters.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

Seated on the porch of her pretty Hollywood home in the moonlight, surrounded by admiring young men, she coquetted first with one and then with another—audaciously—in fact, a bit too daring for a married woman——

Not a bit like it!

Well, then. Her cheeks were pink with excitement, the wind blew her pretty bronze hair off her forehead, and, flying a-horseback across country, the gallant horseman beside her could hardly make his steed keep pace with hers. She looked provocatively around at her companion, and——

All wrong again!

The Robert W. Chambers stuff doesn't suit Anita Stewart one bit.

One hastens to explain this in view of the "Tornadoes," the "Typhoons" and now "Sowing the Wind," showing at the Kinema, in which Miss Stewart has lately appeared.

Having parked her slinky dresses and her professional vampire smile, she had become a laughing, joyous girl, in her neat little sport suit and cutey hat, with that glorious bronze hair of hers done low on her neck, the day I went to Hollywood to call on her in her big, beautiful home on Western avenue.

By the way, as evidence she isn't the least bit like those vampire ladies she sometimes plays, let me explain she is a very homey girl. She doesn't go to parties very much, but likes better to stay at home with her husband, Rudey Cameron.

As proof she likes homes, let me mention that she owns or leases no less than five of them at present. There is the beautiful new one on Franklin avenue, which she has just bought, but which she won't move into until she returns here in the fall. Then there are the house she is living in, the New York home, the little bungalow in Hollywood she bought for her mother, and the summer home in Bayshore, L. I. So you can see she has a regular Farnum collection.

And she likes the small ones the best!

"I'm a bit peeved," she said, as I drove up and called out "Hello" as she greeted me from the porch of her home. The reason was that she had had her day's plans upset by the untimely call of the rug man, or somebody.

And you know how very, very cross you can get when you've just made up your mind to be sweet-tempered. Really, much crosser than if you hadn't made up your mind to be sweet.

"Don't you feel ever like being a regular devil?" I asked. "Those parts you play, now—"

"Dear me no—I think it would be an awful bore!" answered Miss Stewart. "In the first place I don't like wine, and then, if I had to have all those men around me, positively it would make me feel like going home and throwing my grandmother into the fire.

"As for marriage—well, on the other hand, I don't think such an awful lot of that. Oh!" she exclaimed, "I don't mean I don't think a girl should marry. But I think she is taking an awful chance in getting married before she is 25.

ARBUCKLE'S LATEST.

"The Traveling Salesman" Booked for Grauman's Tomorrow.

Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, in "The Traveling Salesman," based on the stage play by James Forbes, opens at Grauman's Monday.

In this production Arbuckle imbues this engaging story with entirely new and fresh life. It is said that he has magnified the comedy situations so that they stand out as not only the most hilarious, which have spiced any of his many successes in his long career, but so that they have no peer in the field of comedy, either cinema or legitimate.

Supporting Fatty in this laugh and chuckle festival are Betty Ross Clark, Frank Holland, Wilton Taylor, Lucille Ward, Jim Blackwell, Richard Wayne, George Pearce, Robert Dudley and Gordon Rogers.

Besides looming forth as the masterpiece of Arbuckle, "The Traveling Salesman" is the high light among the various successes of James Henabery, who directed; Walter Woods, who wrote the scenario, and Karl Brown, cameraman.

Making the attractiveness of "The Traveling Salesman" even greater is the interpretative musical score which has been arranged by the conductor of the Grauman Orchestra, and Henry Murtagh, organist; and Sid Grauman's series of atmospheric presentations, which include among several other features the Mexican government National Military Band.

PLAY PREMIERE BENEFIT.

Stage and screen actors will appear in a three-act play as a benefit for the relief fund of Disabled Veterans of the World War, Post No. 1, of Los Angeles, next Sunday at the Mason. There will be a matinee and night performance.

The cast is made up from the motion picture colony, members of which have donated their services for the occasion. Included in the cast are Mitchell Lewis, Alfred Roscoe, David Butler, Hardee Kirkland, Harry Rattenberry, Carrie Clarke Ward, Ann Forrest, Annette De Foe and others. Rehearsals have been in progress the past two weeks under the personal direction of Sedley Brown. Joe Cox is in charge of the stage.

The play is entitled "The Timber Wolf" and was written by a member of the post, Ernest F. Bishop.

The action of the piece of laid in the Canadian north woods, and Mitchell Lewis, who is recognized as a rarely gifted French-Canadian character actor, will be seen as Dumont Batoche, a half-breed rengade.

Alfred Roscoe, who won fame on Broadway, in "The Hawk" and "Daddy Long Legs," will play the part of Sergt. James MacKenzie of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

David Butler, the screen star, is to be seen as Corporal Donald Donaldson, also of the police.

The part of Rhupert MacLeoud, an inspector of the Royal Mounted, will be played by Hardee Kirkland. Jovial Harry Rattenberry will be seen as Father Paul, a priest.

The character woman part, Mrs. MacLeoud, will be portrayed by Carrie Clarke Ward.

Ann Forrest will be seen as Alice MacKenzie, the sister of one of the mounted police. Annette De Foe, leading lady, will portray the role of Marie Le Moyne, whose duty to family and religion are held paramount even to love.

BARTHELMESS RECOVERING.

Richard Barthelmess spent his birthday anniversary today in the Flower Hospital in New York. He is rapidly convalescing from an operation which he underwent last week, and expects to start work within two weeks.

HOLT'S STEEDS WIN TROPHIES.

Jack Holt, Paramount leading man, has been carrying away ribbons of all colors at recent horse shows held on the Coast—at least his horses have. It so happened that when Flintridge and Santa Barbara held their shows a few weeks ago, Mr. Holt was in New York so his horses were ridden by substitutes. At Flintridge, the three-gaited gray won two blue ribbons, while the jumper got second place. At Santa Barbara the jumper captured a first and the three-gaiter did the same. Holt is a connoisseur in horses.

"BURIED TREASURE."

Thrilling Tale of Reincarnation at Grauman's Rialto.

"Buried Treasure" opens at Grauman's today.

This Famous Players-Lasky production depicts what never before has been attempted successfully in motion pictures—an intelligent portrayal of the theory of reincarnation, the various phases of which have prompted endless discussion in scientific and intellectual circles.

The background of its theme is laid in two widely-separated worlds, both the most colorful of their era—that of metropolitan New York of today and of Spain in the years of the pirate-ridden main.

The cast of "Buried Treasure" is called upon to portray identical characters in these two ages—characters living their lives again, only through different channels.

In the cast are Norman Terry, Anders Randolfi, Edith Shaynem, Earl Schenck, John Charles and Thomas Findlay.

George D. Baker directed "Buried Treasure," which is an adaptation of the story of the same name by F. Britten Austen, an English author.

Adding color and atmosphere to "Buried Treasure" is the interpretative orchestral score and the organ selections by Oliver Wallace.

TWINS AS TWINS.

Charles and Raymond De Briac, two 3-year-old twins whose resemblance to each other is so remarkable that their own mother distinguishes them only by means of a birthmark, have been engaged by Universal to play in "Christine of the Young Heart," in which Gladys Walton will appear under the direction of Lee Kohlmar. The youngsters are recent arrivals in Hollywood, having appeared on the New York stage in the Biblical spectacle, "Through the Ages." They portray twins in the picture, of course.

A BARRIE GIRL AND HER CHARM.

May McEvoy Might Have Been Teacher, But ——

They Discovered a Place for Her Before Camera.

Rod la Roque Tells How Films Boost Taste.

Some times, for a moment, when looking at a photograph of her, I've thought that she looked a little like the late Olive Thomas. I suppose, though, that is merely a general Celtic resemblance. In reality, May McEvoy, the birthday star of the Realart Company, looks quite like herself. Which happens to be the most complimentary thing you can say about a picture player, especially when the "self" happens to radiate a beauty which subtly penetrates your senses so that you feel as well as behold its presence.

I suppose I should elucidate this description of an intangible charm, and I might do so by terming it a remarkable highlighting of physical attractions by a spiritual aura. Quite indicative is this of the reason why she was selected to portray Grizel in the film version of "Sentimental Tommy." This and the fact that she can probably appear just as Scotch as she is Irish.

Of course, she was born in New York. Raised there, too. And once upon a time almost became a school-teacher. At least she took one year at normal. And then—

"I had a friend who was on the stage," said Miss McEvoy. "People had told me, too, that they thought I had talent for acting. I'd never had any special ambition to become anything but a dancer, though.

"When I finished high school I knew I wanted to do something. I couldn't find any interest in wasting my time going around to social functions and the like. Teaching seemed the nearest thing at hand, and I thought I would try that.

"But now, well I'm glad, needless to say, that I quit school for the films," and her face momentarily registered dismay at the recollection of the chance she'd run of becoming a schoolmarm, and then brightened again at the thought of how her career had really shaped itself.

A PARTY AND A PART.

The first engagement Miss McEvoy filled on the screen was in a one-reel play filmed for advertising purposes. She had made her application at the studio, and when the casting director telephoned her and told her he wanted her for the morrow, she gave up a very important party to do her first bit.

"I asked him though if he couldn't postpone the picture so I could go to the party—and he laughed and said that it was easy to tell that I had had no experience. When he said that I told him I'd find a way to be there. I made up my mind right then that work came before pleasure."

It wasn't very lond until she was playing bits and parts quite regularly. They were all serious bits and parts, too, for it is the sincere and serious character that she likes to play, and that, it seems, producers have found her to interpret best.

You probably recall that she recently had a leading role with Lionel Barrymore in "The Devil's Garden," an atrocious picture, but still one in which Miss McEvoy's presence shone by contrast. She was also in "The Truth About Husbands," "The Perfect Lady," and "Forbidden Valley."

Several years ago she appeared in a picture with Mary Carr, who is making such a big impression in "Over the Hill." This was in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and Miss McEvoy had the role of Asia.

"They were always certain to select me for the serious parts even at that time," she said. "Asia, you will remember, was the eldest sister, and had to be a sort of mother to the younder girls."

Miss McEvoy had lots of fun during the making of the picture, however, watching the other girls, who had some very amusing scenes, especially the one where Australia, I believe it was, had to pull the goat out of the kitchen by the tail. The goat pretty nearly wrecked

OF ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

St. Peter's by Moonlight.

Low hung the moon when first I stood in Rome;
Midway she seemed attracted from her sphere,
On those twin fountains shining broad and clear
Whose floods, not mindless of their mountain home,
Rise there in clouds of rainbow mist and foam.
That hour fulfilled the dream of many a year;
Through that thin mist, with joy akin to fear,
The steps I saw, the pillars, last, the dome.
A spiritual empire there embodied stood;
The Roman Church there met me face to face;
Ages, sealed up, of evil and of good
Slept in the circling colonnade's embrace.
Alone I stood, a stranger and alone,
Changed by that stony miracle to stone.

Landscapes by Guy Rose.

Guy Rose, winner of the William Preston Harrison prize at the last exhibition of the painters of Southern California, is showing a score of canvases at the Friday Morning Club through the month of May. With a few exceptions, they are landscapes of California.

A landscape vista may be approached and studied in two ways by the painter. He may look at it with the objective eye only. Or he may let it sink so deeply into his consciousness that the contemplation of it becomes transmuted by emotion into "something rich and strange," a glorified inner vision.

In some artists this inner vision, separating itself almost entirely from the objective, produces pictures as exquisite and remote as dreams.

The objective point of view makes for solidity. It chains the mind and the eye to the actual and the palpable. It takes no account of the "light that never was." It notes and records with honest precision and without prejudice. The painter who has it in abundance is apt to be literal rather than poetic. He transcribes rather than translates. His appeal is to the many who have the taste for facts.

On the other hand, the dreamer, the symbolist, must remain content with a small audience. Those who are en rapport with him are of necessity very few in number, for the vast majority of men are not sensitized to receive his subtle impressions of life and of nature. To the most of us his work must forever remain a tantalizing problem, a strange enigma. Our inability to comprehend makes us even a little resentful at times—though I think wrongly so, for we are probably mistaken in our uneasy belief that the artist is making game of us.

There remains, however, one class of painters not yet brought to our notice, and those men, I think, are the truer artists. They are the painters who show themselves as a happy compound of the seer and the dreamer. The seer, of course, is the man who sees. Their heads may be in the clouds—where they belong, to be sure—but their feet are firmly planted on the earth.

Thus, they are enabled to turn the vision into artistic realization, into pictures that may be understood and loved. Your "favorite painter" is probably one of these.

Our California painters have been accused, and I think justly, of having a too objective viewpoint. The reason for this objectivity is simple enough. The overwhelming bigness and grandiosity of California landscape forces itself upon us wherever we turn. The refinements and subtleties are there—oh, be sure of that!—but they are often submerged, lost, obliterated in the grandeurs. Or so it almost seems. You have to look long and closely to find them.

There are evidences, an increasing host of witnesses, that our painters have begun to take the longer look, and that there is among them a growing dissatisfaction with their former automatic rendering of the substantial facts of nature, however beautiful these may be.

A painter who has been an interpreter from the very first is Guy Rose. Trained in France, though born in Los Angeles, and returned to us only a few years ago, he is rediscovering our landscape for us, translating it, we may declare, into the French idiom. And the translation has its great charm. California is more subtle, more delicate, more refined than we had supposed. Our light is more diffused, our distances are more palely blue and ethereal.

Whether Mr. Rose's landscapes are "truer" than those of our other painters is not the point. The truth of nature is not always the truth of art. If a picture is the artist's truth, it must be ours. Failure to grasp it is our fault, not his. But art is long, the artist is patient, and tomorrow, or the next day—or perhaps a year hence—we shall see as he does. Let us pray that we may, for when we don't see we miss a lot.

There is a list of titles to the twenty pictures that Mr. Rose is exhibiting, but unfortunately it is thumb-tacked to a wall, with no duplicate numbers attached to the pictures. So we are no better off than if there were no titles at all, since a picture, like a man, has a name only for purposes of identification. The same hiatus occurs in the exhibition at the Ebell Club this month. Ladies, can it really be true that you have no genuine passion for details? I am loath to believe it. And yet—and yet—these are the facts!

Without the benefit of titles, then, let us study the pictures together. We shall find several small winter scenes of great subtlety in the rendering of atmosphere. Here is a picture of chalky gray rocks and a chalky gray shore—the chalk being full of color—with a deep blue sea surging around them. Here is a large and beautiful picture of a cold green sea under a gray-blue sky, perhaps the most important canvas in the collection.

Another picture gives us a sea of deepest lapis lazuli reaching toward a tawny shoreline. In another we are shown windswept trees on a height, seen against a blue sky that is filled with fleecy clouds. In still another we have the rich gold of a French October in trees and on a venerable church. And in yet another we see the vivid green of orange groves that stretch toward the gray-blue and pink of mountains dreaming far away.

Are these pictures the California of an impressionist nurtured on Monet traditions? Perhaps. But they are also, you will presently discover, your California and mine. Don't forget that Guy Rose is native to this soil.

From Various Brushes.

Despite the lack of proper identification numbers on the twelve or fourteen pictures shown at the Ebell Club, I was enabled, by the aid of a typed list of names and titles, to place the right name on every title. I discovered the artists by internal evidence more than once—by color, brushwork and composition. Voila!

R. Clarkson Colman has two characteristic studies of the sea, "West to the Sinking Sea" and "Through the Closing Portal," both of them carefully painted, each with the little touch of poetry that we are led to expect from its title. Pauline Palmer's "Among the Posies" is an outdoor sketch of a small girl in a garden—but only a sketch, hardly as much as a study. The color is bright, though not very clean; and the composition is confused, unrestful.

We find rich color contrasts in Louis Kronberg's study of a ballet girl, "The Curtain Call," the curtain hanging straight down to the right, being very fine in its deep, yet brilliant, note. But the girl's pose is lacking in grace. A good picture of three dogs is Edmund Osthaus's "Pointers." The eager animals are beautifully drawn, full of action. The landscape, however, lacks life and light. Plenty of action, too, in Charles M. Russell's water-color study of a wounded stag attacking a hunter and two horses. The drawing of man and horses is not so good as the drawing we generally find in Mr. Russell's western subjects in oil.

From William Merritt Post we have "Connecticut Sunset," the sky very brilliant in hues of flame and gold, genuine light, stream and trees in the foreground very dark that we may feel the light more intensely. The composition is conventional. Frank C. Desch's "Blue and Gold," a girl looking into a hand mirror, strikes one as being painty, and if the artist had given the mirror an ivory-white back instead of a blue one the picture would have an accent that would have relieved the general monotony of overvivid blues. Why force a note beyond its limits? When you do, you strike paint.

Two old-timers, Hudson River men, if I mistake not, are delightfully represented by landscapes of punctilious exactness. Meticulous, perhaps, but pleasing to look at nevertheless, for these men studied nature with loving care. No hasty impressionism for them, if you please! J. E. Palmer's "The Brook" is especially charming, in spite of its browns and dull greens, a composition of intriguing harmony. And how excellent is the drawing of meadow and sheep in Kruseman Van Elten's "Near Granby," and of glebe and reapers of "In the Field." Smile not, O Cubist and O Futurist, lest the O before your names mean more than you think.

ARE GIRLS LOW-BROW?

Conclusions Founded Upon Experiences of Librarians.

If we may trust the librarians who expressed their opinions to the Chicago News on the occasion of the meeting of the American Library Association in that city, the war really made students and bookworms of the boys in the expeditionary forces in France. Books were plentiful in camps and billets and the boys acquired the habit of reading. Now that they are home again, they are calling at the libraries for books on plumbing, agriculture, engineering, chemistry and the like. They are looking for something to help them in money-earning pursuits; they are serious-minded and in earnest.

But the girls—it is said to be very different with them. The college librarians were especially critical, declaring that the coeds did not even read the newspapers to learn what the world is doing, and were concerned chiefly with Paris styles and sorority shindigs. We quote the News' report of the librarians' lament:

"She was young; she was pretty. She wore the traditional tortoise-shell campus windshields. And she had the American coed's blithesome assurance as she stepped up to the library window.

"'Oh, look,' she said, 'I've got to read some books. It's for my English IV semifinals. Look, have you got "The Four Horsemen With the Erysipelas" by that Spanish caveman? And I want a book of poetry, too. Something kind of jazzy, see.'"

One may enjoy this without believing that it is typical. There are numerous coeds in Ohio, but no such complaint has been laid against them as a class, and we may suspect that this picture is due to an overcynical librarian or an imaginative reporter. There is plenty of frivolity, but was there ever a time when there was not? And hereabout it is found in the young without regard to sex, and along with it there is generally an appreciation of the fact that it is only temporary and just beyond it lie the serious things of life.—[Columbus Dispatch.

Where the Peach Stones Were.

A 500-ton mountain of peach stones was recently thrown upon the the New York local fuel market as a substitute for coal. The stones were gathered by patriotic Americans in war-time to be used in the manufacture of gas masks. They found a ready market at $1 a ton, and were distributed to the needy.—[Dearborn Independent.

Art and Artists.

one of the best I have looked at for many a day in the manner of expression, if not in the matter of subject—and, mind you, I think the subject is quite important enough—is the canvas called "Waiting" by James R. Hopkins. It shows us a woman in a graceful plum-colored velvet gown and a white fichu. Her back is turned to us. She is standing before a broad French window that is severely draped in straight curtains figured in blue. Sheer white is drawn precisely across the window, which is lit by the pale golden glow of late afternoon. We see the foliage of green trees in a pattern across the window.

The woman is waiting—that is all. Yet how beautifully and how quietly she waits, how poetic the painter has made that tender half-hour of happy expectation. No fussy arrangement of superfluous things here, no restless conflict of unrelated colors. Just a few simple straight lines unobstrusively assembled to join a few simple colors and masses. Yet the picture is very beautiful. It has feeling. It has perfect technique. It is low in tone, but it is full of light as well as of shadow. It satisfies one's esthetic sense. It rests and soothes.

Sometimes, no doubt, you and I trouble ourselves over much with the old, old question, "What is art?" The picture called "Waiting" answers it for us—we need no further definition.

Among the Big Trees.

An exhibition of pictures painted among the redwood trees of California by Martella Lane opens tomorrow at the Kanst galleries. It will continue to the end of May. Tomorrow evening, from eight to ten, a reception will be tendered the artist. All art lovers are invited.

Headlined on the Society Circuit.

Mr. and Mrs. Winne have just returned from a six months' visit in Louisville, Ky., with her parents, and are now in their new home at 1016½ South Serrano avenue. Miss Vickers and Miss Katheryn Boyce gave a dancing party recently at which twenty of the subdebutante set of Santa Barbara were guests. Mrs. Thomas and her daughter, Miss Josephine, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, are now making their home at Beverly Hills and they and Mrs. Dulaney of Chicago were snapped while enjoying a breakfast ride given by the management of Beverly Hills Hotel in the foothills near by.

pair hailing from the are due for much feteing are Mr. and Mrs. Salem (Sally Long), whose mar- brilliant social event in last week. to visit another bride and groom while here—Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Wines (Mary Hillman) at Huntington Beach.

Mrs. Wines is planning several functions for her, and Mrs. Loren Langmade Hillman (Doris Collins) is to give a luncheon for her.

Mrs. Pohlmann is the daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Oscar Fitz Long, and is one of the most notable young women socially both in the Bay region and in Washington, where she has spent so much time with her parents and the Mark Requas, her relatives. She was married at the historic old mansion of her grandmother, Mme. Requa, which has been the scene of many notable weddings in the past.

For Mrs. Huntington.

Mrs. Henry E. Huntington of San Marino, who not long ago returned from France and from New York, where she has a town house, was cause of one of the delightful functions given at the Flintridge Country Club on Friday, when her daughter-in-law assembled a company of twenty-two at luncheon.

The table was adorned with marigolds, arranged quite cleverly with some lovely flowers of sapphire blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Huntington are planning a trip to New York and to their villa near Versailles, France, either in June or July, but will return to California early in the autumn, and, contrary to their custom, will not pass the winter in New York.

Mrs. Bayer's Tea.

One hundred of the younger set assembled at a tea given by Mrs. Alfred J. Bayer on Tuesday last in honor of Miss Gladys Carson, who is to marry Edward Scheller the morning of May 25; Miss Helen Duque, fiancée of Fitz Hugh Phillips, and Nanette Francisco, who is betrothed to Herbert McGaffey. With the great masses of vivid-hued flowers which were in every niche as a rich background for girls in lovely spring frocks, the scene was like a Maytime picture.

A bevy of debutantes and subdebutante friends of the daughter of the house, Miss Leontine Bayer, assisted.

Garden Supper and Musicale.

Mrs. Patricia Henshaw, who is to become the bride of Carlo Morbio of San Francisco at a quiet morning wedding on June 14, is the honoree for a musicale and supper party, at which Mrs. Irwin Johnston Muma is to entertain a group of thirty intimate friends on Saturday evening next at her home in Windsor Square.

Mr. Morbio is one of the well known attorneys of San Francisco, and is the scion of one of the oldest families there. Mrs. Henshaw is still visiting in the Bay City and is the center of some brilliant entertaining.

Mrs. Earl Home.

Mrs. Edwin T. Earl, who has been visiting in the East since February, arrived home yesterday, accompanied by her son, Edwin Earl, Jr., who is just back from a trip abroad.

Mrs. Earl went with Mrs. Mary Wilcox Longstreet, who was called home early through the illness and death of her brother-in-law, James Calhoun Drake.

While away she visited in Washington, New York and Baltimore and other cities, where she was the center of a round of social courtesies.

In Baltimore last week Mrs. M. E. Buck gave a very large and handsomely appointed luncheon for her at the Elkridge Kennels.

She was a guest for a few days before leaving of Mrs. George Marye

By Lady Popham-Young.

A charming affair out in the gardens at her attractive home was the bridge tea at which Lady Popham-Young entertained on Friday in compliment to Mrs. Arthur Bixby and Baroness Alfred de Ropp, who are leaving soon for the summer, Mrs. Bixby for Santa Fe, N. M., and the Baroness to Montecito. There were twenty guests.

A June Wedding.

June 22 is the day set for the marriage of Miss Margaret Brown and John Hauerwaas, who will sail a week from their wedding day for a honeymoon trip to Honolulu.

The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Roy Brown of 415 South Gramercy Place. Miss Evelyn Brown will be her sister's maid of honor and another sister, Miss Elaine Brown, will be bridesmaid. Kenneth Dulin is to serve as best man and two darling little cousins of Miss Brown, Mary Evelyn Lillard and Mary Elizabeth Roberts, are to serve as ribbon bearers.

Next Thursday afternoon Miss Genevieve Murray will give a tea in honor of Miss Brown and will be assisted by Misses Margarita, Rowena and Camilla Schneider, Ann Dorr Morse, Evelyn Brown and Alma Barman. There are to be seventy guests.

Miss Mary Forve is to give a dinner party for the betrothed pair on next Saturday evening.

For Mrs. Lyon.

Mrs. William H. Lyon (Lucile Grinnan) of Dallas, Tex., who, with her husband, is here for six months at the Weymouth Apartments, was the cause of a congenial little assembly of guests at luncheon on Wednesday when Mrs. John E. McMorries entertained for a dozen guests, afterwards taking them to a matinee.

For Lorenzo Snow.

The home coming of Lorenzo Snow, who is now a captain in the Engineering Corps, U.S.A., stationed at Dayton, O., is a much welcomed event in society, especially in Pasadena, where he was always a favorite. He has been away since early in the war and his advancement in military circles is pleasing.

Last evening Col. and Mrs. Edwin Francis Holmes, whom he is visiting, gave an elaborate supper-dance for him in the zinnia grill at the Ambassador. There were fourteen guests.

Mrs. Holmes celebrated her birthday anniversary with a smart dinner party at her Los Angeles residence on South Wilton Place. A dozen guests were present.

Col. and Mrs. Holmes will again be installed in their home in Pasadena, overlooking the arroyo, by June 1. It is about that time that she will make a short trip to her old home in Salt Lake and her sister, Mrs. J. T. Harris, and her children will return with her for the summer.

There is to be a junior committee headed by Miss Carolina Winston and Miss Marguerite Winston. This committee will act as ushers and will be assisted by their escorts. There will be booth in the lobbies for the sale of various articles, and there will be flower girls.

To provide for these sunshine houses, 50,000 francs a year is required. The children are the orphans of French soldiers.

Next Saturday evening the California Club promises to be gay with several hundred members of the Supper Club assembled to dance. They will come in groups from dinner parties preceding the dance.

Some of those who are to give dinners include Mmes. J. A. H. Kerr and Howard Scott Dudley and Miss Rosemary Sartori.

Interesting Betrothal.

The most interesting betrothal disclosed last week was that of Miss Julia Valentine of South Pasadena and W. L. Stewart, Jr., of Lamanda Park.

It was made known at a luncheon that Miss Valentine gave on Tuesday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Valentine, in honor of Miss Bernice Carr, who is this month to marry Hugh Kice, and at which there were twenty-five guests.

Miss Valentine is a graduate of the University of California and is one of the most popular girls in Los Angeles and Pasadena social circles. Mr. Valentine is in the oil business.

ARE "THUMBS DOWN" ON YOUR SUCCESS?

Are "Hard Times" Causing You Worry or Distress?

How you may make money and "get ahead" in spite of "hard times" and business depression

In the days of the old Roman Arena "THUMBS DOWN" from the audience meant death to the wounded and fallen gladiator; Thumbs up was the signal to let him live.

Today "THUMBS DOWN" on your BODILY and MENTAL VIGOR may mean FAILURE AND FINANCIAL RUIN to you. It is the strong keen red blooded man who is the most certain to win and come home with the "CASH"—many of the others are going to fall under the terrible spell of "thumbs down" just like the weak, unnerved man in this picture. This poor man is trying hard to get up but he hasn't the bodily and mental vigor and the necessary iron in his blood to give him the strength, force and "will power" to overcome the obstacles caused by "HARD TIMES."

YOUR BRAIN CANNOT WORK RIGHT—think the thoughts that are most certain to bring success—when you lack bodily and mental vigor—A great business man has said that genius is nothing but a capacity for hard work—A wizard is generally a man who thinks longer and harder than the other fellow—That "INDEFINABLE SOMETHING" that wins is often nothing more than an "iron-will" supported by IRON BLOOD—With these two things nothing can stop you—without them, everything is uncertain.

IRON IS THE MASTER PRINCIPLE OF THE BLOOD and BLOOD IS LIFE. It is the iron in your blood that carries oxygen to your brain. Without iron your brain gets no oxygen. Without oxygen and plenty of rich red blood, your brain becomes dull and heavy; YOUR INTELLECT IS POOR; YOU MAKE BAD DECISIONS; DO FOOLISH THINGS; your memory often fails—no matter how smart you may be by nature, in your weakened physical and mental condition, you are certainly no match for the strong, keen, clear headed man with plenty of iron in his blood. Although you may give two men the same firearms or swords in a battle, the strong vigorous fellow always has a decided advantage over a weak tired-out opponent.

WITHOUT IRON YOUR BLOOD ALSO LOSES ITS POWER TO CHANGE FOOD INTO LIVING CELLS AND TISSUE and nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it. In fact sometimes the more you eat the more you starve, as your digestive organs are unable to handle much food when your blood lacks iron and you often think you have stomach trouble, when it isn't that at all. Simply eat less and take iron. There are 30,000,000,000,000 Red Blood Corpuscles in your blood and each one must have iron. DON'T TRY TO "FOOL YOURSELF" into thinking you are a man of "blood and iron when" you have good reason to suspect that you are not—CONSIDER THE SIZE OF YOUR BANK BALANCE what success you have had in life—A MAN IS ONLY PART OF A MAN WHEN HIS BLOOD LACKS IRON.

When you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; or have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but take some organic iron like Nuxated Iron at once to help enrich your blood and revitalize your wornout exhausted nerves. Organic Nuxated Iron often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, tired, wornout, nervous people, in two weeks. It's like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. You can even eat it if you wish. It will not blacken or injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It is entirely different from ordinary metallic iron which people usually take, and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "NUXATED" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactor sults. At all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

FILM INVASION STILL GOES ON.

French Picture and New German Show in Gotham.

"Gypsy Love" Not so Good as Predecessors.

"J'Accuse" Startles With Its Brilliant Story.

BY HARRY CARR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, May 14.—Two more big foreign pictures were shown in New York this week.

One was the French film, "J'Accause," previewed by an invited audience at the Biltmore Hotel, previous to its Broadway release. The other was the Pola Negri version of "Carmen" at the Strand Theater on Broadway.

Presumably to meet the American demand for peppy titles, the Negri picture was put on as "Gypsy Love."

To tell the truth, the town has been all torn up over the question of the merits of the Negri picture. The New York World hammered the tar out of it. Papers like the New York Times and the Evening Post, on the other hand, praised it to the skies.

It would be folly, however, not to recognize it as a very remarkable picture, all the more dangerous to the American film industry, when we remember that Pola Negri is said to have received $45 a week in our money as salary and that Ernest Lubitsch, the director, received $65 a week for making it.

Lubitsch is the same man who directed "Passion," "Deception" and one other German picture which is soon to have its Broadway premiere.

During the making of "Gypsy Love" the vast army of extra people received 25 cents a day each, and the artisans, such as electricians, $4.50 a week.

Pola Negri's version of "Carmen" is entirely different from that of Farrar and most of the other well-known stars. She has taken her idea from the original story by Prosper Merimee instead of the opera of Bizet.

Farrar made you believe that Carmen was a very lovely and beautifully dressed young lady with an unfortunate temper and inclined to be flirty—something on the order of a Ziegfeld show girl who did not always remember to be quite a lady.

Pola Negri makes her just what she was—slovenly, dirty, licentious, voracious.

As a matter of fact, Negri is right and Farrar was wrong. This is quite clear in the Prosper Merimee story—even to telling about the holes in her dirty stockings. There is no use denying it.

In Pola Negri Poland has sent us another great actress to follow the trails cut by Modjeska and Nazimova.

The picture was evidently taken partly in Spain, for the exteriors are very beautiful. It looked, however, as though Lubitsch had practiced a little economy by using some of the sets from "Passion."

Taken as a whole the picture was beautifully directed, with gorgeous sets, but it was not handled as well as De Mille handled "Carmen."

MISSES MAIN POINT.

The story did not have De Mille's fine, free sweep. I thought the German director missed the very point of "Carmen."

In Merimee's story Carmen is happy enough with Jose, after she wrecks his army career, until she marries him. In fact, she tells him that her love for him is less as his wife than it was as his mistress.

This point is completely lost in the Pola Negri version. Nothing is said about her being the wife of "the one-eyed one" or of his murder by Jose.

Also Pola Negri makes very little of the fatalism which ran through Merimee's "Carmen." In this picture, as in the shoddy theatricalism of the Bizet opera, Jose kills her at the door of the bull ring. In the story she was killed in a field, where Jose had led her for the purpose.

She knew she was going to be killed and made not the slightest effort to escape because, having seen her fate in the cards, she knew it was useless.

It struck me as very peculiar that this German director, photographing in Germany, should have handled the military feature of the picture so badly. He had a colonel of Hussars commanding a regiment of dragoons and the soldiers were just as sloppy and quite as much like bags of hay as our extra actors are when they dress in uniforms. Also the fight between Carmen and the cigarette girl was very tame compared with Farrar's fight.

GREAT FRENCH FILM.

The French picture "J'Accuse" is a whale—no mistake about it. In some ways, the direction is not quite as good as the German; the crowds are not as well handled, but the drama is superb. It is more gripping and more tense. The suspense is wonderful.

There are in the world no such artists as the French for adroit skill in telling a story, and Abel Gance, the director of "J'Accuse," proves it in this picture. It is filled with charming little surprise, unexpected twists and turns gasping dramatic corners.

No matter how great our prejudice against foreign films and no matter how great the danger to our American films, it would be ostrich-like not to recognize that a great new power, a fresh, brilliant intellect, has come to the picture world.

Whatever the remedy may be, it is not to deny that foreign pictures are good—for they are. Samuel Goldwyn, who has just returned from Europe, says that not more than 2 per cent of the German pictures are good enough to be shown in the United States.

One great point of superiority of the French picture by Gance over the German pictures of Lubitsch is their greater logic. There are points in "Deception," in which you have to strain your imagination very hard to believe. Everything in "J'Accuse" is beautifully lucid and logical and clear.

William De Mille's "The Lost Romance" is at the Criterion Theater, having displaced "Sentimental Tommy" which won high praise from the critics, but was only a fair box-office success.

The new De Mille picture is pre-

"SOWING THE WIND."

Anita Stewart in Dramatic Cyclone at the Kinema.

Anita Stewart is making her appearance at the Kinema today in Louis B. Mayer's production "Sowing the Wind."

An unusual story is unfolded in this picture, which was directed for First National release by John M. Stahl. It concerns a convent girl who goes out into the bleak world only to discover that her mother is the keeper of a notorious gambling house. Her struggles to live rightly, her subsequent meeting with the man she loves, and finally the locating of her father, combine to make "Sowing the Wind" a play of much dramatic variety.

In the cast are Ralph Lewis, James Morrison, Myrtle Stedman and William B. Mong. Sydney Grund ywrote the original play.

John M. Stahl, the director, has worked with Rene A. Williams, conductor of the Kinema orchestra, in synchronizing the musical score for "Sowing the Wind."

VICTOR AND HELEN.

Police Pachyderms Come to New Pantages Tomorrow.

Everything on the vaudeville calendar seems to be included in next week's variegated bill at the New Pantages, with first honors accorded to Rhoda Royal's ponderous pets, their elephantine majesties, Victor and Helen.

The return of the De Michele brothers assures a large measure of music and merriment, and a comedy sketch by Bruce, Duffet and company is said to be another cachinnation starter.

Sammy Duncan, the smiling Scot, will be seen for the first and as Sammy is reputed to be Lauder's closest competitor, his songs of the land of thistle and burr should be another sure-fire success. The Misses Rinehart and Duff from Dixie, and Rose, Ellis and Rose, "The Three Jumping Jacks," are all listed as entertainers par excellence.

An exceptionally interesting motion-picture feature has been secured in "The Kentucky Colonel," a Hodkinson production, featuring Joseph E. Dowling, the "Miracle Man of the Screen."

"OVER THE HILL" TREMENDOUS SUCCESS.

The amazing William Fox mother film enters its second week with tomorrow's matinee at Philharmonic Auditorium.

"Over the Hill" is a very unusual picture, and many remarkable incidents attest to this. During the first week's showing here in Los Angeles 150 persons personally called upon the manager of the theater to express their appreciation of the entertainment afforded by "Over the Hill," and the offices of the Philharmonic Auditorium have been flooded by letters from men and women of Southern California who have been deeply impressed with this picture.

Critics have pronounced the work of Mary Carr, who mothers a flock of unruly children in the play, to be the greatest mother presentation ever registered on the screen.

Contrary to the widespread opinion that there would be no reduction in theater prices in Los Angeles, "Over the Hill" is being shown to Los Angeles audiences at just half the price that the New York film fans paid to see it. The top price was $2 in New York; it is $1 in Los Angeles. "Over the Hill" is now playing in its thirty-sixth week in New York, and from all indications the picture bids fair to run well over the one-year mark.

"TURN TO THE RIGHT."

Popular Comedy Drama Opens at Majestic Today.

Rated as the greatest comedy success since "The Old Homestead," Winchell Smith's and John E. Hazzard's comedy-drama, "Turn to the Right," will be presented by Thomas Wilkes at the Majestic, beginning this afternoon.

It is a typically American play, in which the central figure is an erring youth who is rescued from a career of crime through the Christian influence of his old-fashioned mother, and the story provides the play with a powerful underlying theme of mother love.

The action takes place in a small New England village. The characters are plain, lovable everyday folks.

Joe Bascomb, the youth, returns to his home after a long absence, part of which is spent in prison, and meets two of his former crook friends. How the three of them match wits against the village skinflint, who is about to take away the home from Joe's mother, provides a series of hilarious surprises and breath-taking dramatic situations.

Mary Newcomb and Edward Everett Horton will head an excellent cast.

JAPANESE FUN AT BROADWAY PANTAGES.

"Oklahoma Bob" Albright's show for the coming week at Broadway Pantages defies all the traffic rules with its title, motif and slogan, "Turn to the Left."

This wanton disregard for law and convention is due to the fact that the scene of the comedy is laid in Japan, where the rules of the road and sidewalk, and many of the social regulations reverse American procedure. Autos, pushcarts, perambulators, pedestrians and Geisha girls are all said to "turn to the left" in Japan, and "left-handed marriages" are there known as right-handed alliances.

These Nipponese peculiarities will be fully exploited in the new Broadway Pantages show.

Billy West makes his regular twice-a-month appearance in "Why Marry?" the latest of his new series of comedies, and those who are debating matrimony, pro or con, are advised to get Billy West's angle of the problem. "Why Marry?" is said to fully maintain the comedy standard set by "Sweethearts" and "Service Stripes," recently shown at Broadway Pantages.

"What Women Will Do," a Pathe film drama, is also billed.

ENTER BILLIE BURKE.

This Time She's a Chorus Girl at the California.

Billie Burke lends herself to dramatic as well as humorous situations with like artistry, and it is said that this was never better demonstrated than in her new comedy, "The Education of Elizabeth," which shows today at the California.

The fact that this is the first appearance of Miss Burke on the screen in many months adds great interest to this announcement. It is as a charming, fun-loving chorus girl who is very real beneath her rouge and powder that Miss Burke will be seen in this picturization by Elmer Harris of a well-known stage success.

The girl falls in love with a staid member of a very aristocratic family, who proceeds to educate her into his set, and it is during the time her education is in progress that the rough-and-ready chorus girl proceeds to do things that are sure to keep any audience laughing every minute she is on the screen.

The role also affords her plenty of opportunities to wear many pretty gowns both during the stage scenes and at the country place of her suitor.

Lumdsen Hare, Donald Cameron, Frederick Burton and Edith Shayne are prominent members of the supporting company. The picture was directed by Edward Dillon.

Another feature is the newest Larry Semon comedy, "The Rent Collector," which is said to about reach the limit in new gags and hair-raising stunts.

CRISP TO FILM "BESIDE BONNIE BRIER BUSH."

Word comes from the London studio of Famous Players-Lasky British Producers, Ltd., to the effect that Donald Crisp, who has just finished the production of Cosmo Hamilton's "The Princess of New York," will next produce a screen version of Iran MacLaren's "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush." Margaret Turnbull has been working for some time on the scenario and the script is nearly completed. Mr. Crisp himself will play one of the roles in the production. He will not be seen as a Battling Burrows, however, but as a typical Scotch elder.

STARS ARE BUSY AT UNIVERSAL.

Gladys Walton Begins on New Film Feature.

Former MacLean Director is Now With Lee Moran.

Strike Causes Worry in Von Stroheim Picture.

It's a busy bunch out at Universal City, these days, despite the general unbusy complaints generally.

Work was commenced yesterday on Gladys Walton's latest picture, "Christine of the Young Heart," from the novel by Louise B. Clancy. Lee Kohlmar is directing the production, while in the cast are Frederick Vogeding, William Worthington, Freeman Wood, Robert Dunbar, Kirke Lucas, Milton Markwell, Dwight Crittenden, Ola Norman and the De Briac twins.

Jack Nelson, director, who guided Douglas MacLean through a half-dozen successful comedies, will hold the megaphone on Lee Moran in the latter's next Universal comedy, "Robinson's Trousseau," work on which is to begin within a few days. The story is by H. C. Witmer, and was printed recently in a magazine.

Mabel Julienne Scott is still busy under direction of Tod Browning on Edna Ferber's story, "Fanny Herself," while Jack Conway has just begun a new story starring Carmel Myers.

Frank Mayo, who has been spending the last three weeks at Balboa Beach, filming island and marine scenes in "The Shark Master," written and directed by Fred Granville, returned yesterday. He will remain a few days, making scenes at the studio, after which he will leave for Palm Springs, where he will spend a week making desert scenes. May Collins is playing opposite.

It seems as if Eric Von Stroheim is having a share of troubles in completing "Foolish Wives." Now it is the seamen's strike, paralyzing shipping on both coasts, which, it is alleged, has slowed up production of the picture.

Stroheim was filming a boating scene on the lake in Westlake Park the other evening. He had hundreds of persons, many of them in gondolas, at work, propelled by amateur seamen, who donned the flaring panties of the bounding billow for $7.50 a day, and a ration of a seasick remedy.

Hearing of the strike, the histrionic mariners congregated in the boathouse and refused to sweep another scull until their wages had been hoisted like a mainsail. They would probably have won the strike except for the fact that a bunch of he-men from the Pacific Fleet happened along and participated in the making of the picture for the fun of it, and $10 apiece.

A new and commodious building is being erected at Universal City to house the scenario department. It will face the Lankershim Boulevard, and will be located between the hospital and the automobile entrance to the studio. Here will be light and airy offices for Lucien Hubbard, scenario editor, and for his assistant, C. F. Bender, as well as for the entire staff of writers.

There will also be a number of quiet rooms for the readers. A research library in charge of Leroy Armstrong is among the plans for housing the scenario brains of the Universal organization.

"BLACK BEAUTY" AT TALLY'S BROADWAY.

"Black Beauty" is being held at Tally's Broadway for a second week because of the favor it is winning, not only from junior members of the audiences, but from grown-ups, nearly all of whom have at some time read the novel.

By a clever combination of two stories, that of Anna Sewell and an inside story of the lives of Black Beauty's human friends, by George and Lillian Randolph Chester, who adapted the novel to the screen, Vitagraph has produced one of the most unique pictures of the year.

Many magnificent and spectacular scenes have been added in the photo-dramatization, including a stirring fox hunt, a fire in the stable, a realistic storm that sweeps away the bridge, and a race between Black Beauty and a train.

A cast headed by Jean Paige, and including Jimmy Morrison and George Webb, has been excellently chosen for the interpretation of the roles.

Added attractions on the program include Kinograms, a solo selection of the intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana" by Sybil Chase, violinist, etc.

SPARKLING COMEDY STILL AT MOROSCO.

"Adam and Eva" enters the sixth week with today's matinee at the Morosco.

This sparkling little comedy was written by George Middleton and Guy Bolton, co-authors of "Polly With a Past." New York has acclaimed this latest work of Middleton and Bolton to be even better than their first big success.

Bertha Mann and Gayne Whitman, who appear in the leading roles, are well supported by regular Morosco favorites—Joseph Eggenton, Helene Sullivan, Dora Mae Howe, Harry Garrity, William Auston, Vivienne La Rue, Jack Pitcairn and Alan Conner.

The next attraction will be "Three Faces East," a popular New York dramatic success.

MAGICIANS TO GIVE THEIR ANNUAL SHOW.

When the Los Angeles Society of Magicians gives its annual show at the Gamut Club Thursday evening, mystery of every kind is promised by the committee in charge. Besides the conjuring, of which there will be generous measure, Walter Hiers is to appear with a sheaf of funny stories and Miss Maude Ryan will give a selection of popular songs. Appearing on the bill will be Prof. Harry Cooke, Adam Hall Shirk, Frank Fewins, Hewes, Thayer, Shigeta and Mme. Chrysanthemum, Roth, Dana, Glyn, Don and others.

All will offer original and varied experiments in the art of magic, the society having developed many clever conjurers, who give their talents freely to various charitable organizations and other worthy causes.

Lolya Adler,
Dramatic actress, who will be seen in playlet at the Orpheum.

SOCIAL SATIRE.

"Dollars and Sense" Comes Once Again to Orpheum.

A delightful sketch is "Dollars and Sense," presented here before by Alan Brooks and his very acceptable company, so it will be indeed a joy to all lovers of cleverness to know that Mr. Brooks is returning to head the Orephum bill, opening tomorrow, in this very play.

Since he was here before, now three years, Mr. Brooks has put this sketch into a full drama form and played it in the "legitimate" houses, but though its vogue was tremendous, still in its vaudeville form it gave the public just as much as it did in three acts, and Mr. Brooks very wisely determined to return to his original field with it.

Another play on the bill, said to be equally unusual, is "The Beautiful Lady," wherein Lolya Adler, daughter of Jacob Adler, the famous Yiddish tragedian, is featured. It was written by E. H. Conway, general press representative of the Orpheum circuit, staged by Holbrook Blinn, and has in it three characters, all women—a singular fact in itself.

A third big feature on the bill is Franklyn Ardell in "King Solomon, Jr.," one of the funniest comedies of the day and one of the most original, so the dramatic field will be well covered.

In the more distinctively vaudeville line come Jack Dunham and Andy Williams, selling "Happiness," which may be defined as a good selling proposition just now; Larry Comer, last seen here with Emma Carus, who has an intimate song revue; the Four Gossips, a quartet of singing girls who are extra good; Prosper and Maret, college athletes, and Lalla Selbini and Bert Nagel, in "The Butterfly and the Cat," he being the feline and she the dainty butterfly.

HIGH JINKS.

New Musical Comedy Company Comes to the Burbank.

Today will mark the Los Angeles debut of the High Jinks Musical Comedy Company, arriving at the Burbank here to remain as the regular presentation organization.

Direct from a two years' stock engagement in the East, this organization will present "The Bluebird Girl" as its opening bill. All the scenic equipment, as well as the rich costumes of the beauty chorus, will be shown in the initial attraction.

The featured players are Al and Loie Bridge, a team of highest standing in the musical comedy world.

The large cast includes the Marten sisters, the Kimball four, George Clark, Jeso Phillips, Olga Brooks, and a host of eastern beauties in the chorus.

The repertoire of the High Jinkse Musical Comedy Company promises a never-ending line-up of most pleasurable productions. It is said that the first production, "The Bluebird Girl," is one of the most massive and gorgeous ever presented here, and no doubt Burbank audiences have in store a season of high-grade musical attractions.

BEING A MOTHER.

Why Mary Carr Acts So Naturally in "Over the Hill."

Mary Carr, who so strikingly portrays the role of the mother in the William Fox production of "Over the Hill," now playing at the Philharmonic Auditorium, comes naturally by her mothering instinct.

She is the mother of seven children. Six of them are living, and four of them appear in the picture as her screen children.

The responsibilities of children have in no way interfered with Mrs. Carr's professional advancement. She has been on the stage for a considerable time.

Mrs. Carr began her motion-picture career with Lubin in Philadelphia in 1913. Her children worked right with her before the camera.

"Ever since I was a little girl I have known by heart the two Will Carleton poems from which the picture was made. When I was selected to play the role of the mother in 'Over the Hill,'" said Mrs. Carr, "I discovered that I couldn't 'act before the camera.' The only way I could get along was to simply live with my children through the filming of the picture. This I did. We were simply a family together."

OFFICIAL PREVIEW OF HAMPTON FILM.

Ministers of every creed, educators and journalists will mingle with public officials at the special preview of "A Certain Rich Man," based on William Allen White's novel at the Ambassador Theater Thursday morning.

"A Certain Rich Man" is to open at Miller's Theater Saturday. It was run off before a select few at the Ambassador not long ago but this is to be the official preview.

The picture tells a story of money lust and its remedy. The cast includes Claire Adams, Robert McKim and Carl Gantvoort among others. The picture was directed by Elliott Howe and Howard Hickman and was personally supervised by Benjamin B. Hampton.

"THE HOTTENTOT."

Willie Collier in His Latest Farce at the Mason.

William Collier, who has rightfully gained the title of America's foremost farceur, comes to the Mason for a week, beginning tomorrow night, in "The Hottentot," which is proving one of the greatest successes of his long and brilliant career. He is under the management of Sam H. Harris, and comes to Los Angeles on his 8000-mile tour from coast to coast.

Instead of bringing a road-worn production and an inferior company to California, Mr. Collier has changed the order of things and has really improved on his New York success. He has had his scenery rebuilt and has furnished the members of his company with new costumes in the latest New York style for his tour to the Far West.

The play ran on Broadway last season until hot weather, and has duplicated its New York triumph in every city Mr. Collier has visited this season.

"The Hottentot" is by Victor Mapes, co-author of "The Boomerang," and Mr. Collier. It has been built for laughing purposes only, and there is never a dull moment. Mr. Collier's quaint humor is irresistible. He has the happy faculty of getting more genuine comedy out of a speech or situation than any comedian on the stage today. "The Hottentot" has been described by critics as the funniest play produced in years, and Mr. Collier, as Sam Harrington, has a role giving him exceptional opportunities.

"The Hottentot" gets its unique name from a race horse. This horse is owned by the charming Peggy Fairfax, and she, believing Sam to be a famous steeplechase rider, begs him to ride her horse to victory. Sam, in reality, is very much afraid of horses, but he dares not confess this to the girl, with whom he has fallen in love. As can be readily seen, this plot gives material for many complicated situations, and these grow more and more laughable as the play progresses.

Mr. Collier is surrounded by a most capable company.

"A PERFECT CRIME."

Whimsical Tale by Los Angeles Man at New Symphony.

"A Perfect Crime," which starts today at the New Symphony, is an example of Allan Dwan's latest method of producing, and it is one of the most surprising comedies of the year. The hero is a liar, but he is a magnificent one, and he lies with ease, poise and self-confidence, for even to a liar self-confidence is an asset.

Surprise No. 2 is Monte Blue. He has never done anything like his role in "A Perfect Crime," and he will delight his admirers. There is a touch of whimsical humor about the Blue interpretation in "A Perfect Crime" that is Barrie-like in its deft subtlety.

Jacqueline Logan, whom Dwan lured away from the Follies and into motion pictures, has the leading feminine role. Wilfred Buckland assisted Allan Dwan in the production.

Local interest in the production lies in the fact that the First National Bank loaned their vaults and offices to Dwan for the production, and Carl Clausen, the writer, is a Los Angeles product.

MODERN MADONNAS.

Unique Beauty Contest to be Held at the Garrick.

"Madonnas and Men" begins its second week at the Garrick today.

Novelty features in connection with the showing of the film include the presentation at every matinee to every lady in attendance a box of Madonna chocolates; an essay contest on the subject, "Are the husbands of today more brutal in their pursuit of women than were the cavemen of 2000 years ago?" With a $150 gown from the Paris Cloak and Suit House at the prize; and a Madonna photo contest with the girl photographing most like the famous Madonnas of art history receiving a handsome cash award.

In the cast of "Madonnas and Men" are Evans Burrows Fontaine; the sensational oriental dancer; Edmond Lowe, the popular Los Angeles leading man for many months favorite at the Morosco; Faire Binney, Raye Dean and Anders Randolph.

The run of "Madonnas and Men" is putting the Garrick on the map as a first-run Broadway playhouse. It has been entirely redecorated and the lobby remodelled, and an orchestra installed under the direction of Max Weil.

STYLE PARADE IN DEAN PICTURE.

In the early scenes of the story, laid in America, a little over a decade ago, Miss Dean in the role of the provincial actress, dresses in the mode of the period.

A few scenes later the story shifts to London, where Miss Dean in the role of Laura Figlan, one of the most popular stars in Europe revels in Parisian finery. At a magnificent banquet, given her by the principal moths in the flame of London, she is arrayed in a jeweled gown that glitters from a thousand facets and at an Oriental party in the Limehouse district she wears a breath-catching creation entirely different from the others.

In the other part of her dual role she appears as a New York girl, wearing the modes of the hour, and in the theater sequence where a story of the DuBarry period is presented on the stage, she wears the frumperies of the fashionable court of Louis XV.

ORIGIN OF THE COLLAR.

The stiff white collar has many softer rivals nowadays, and the fact that its weekly cleansing is in the future likely to cost more rather than less suggests that it may disappear altogether. The reflection prompts the question: When did that same stiff collar first come into existence as a separate garment? It was about 1825, and the invention was due to the wife of a blacksmith in the American town of Troy, which, oddly enough, is the biggest collar factory in the world at the present moment. The worthy woman—Hannah Lord Montagu, as a tablet to her memory on the wall of her house informs the traveler — was busy washing her husband's shirts (with the collars attached) when it occurred to her mind that a shirt lasted clean much longer than the collar, and forthwith she started making the separation required. The idea caught with her neighbors and she began to sell her collars. Then one Ebenezer Brown, a retired Methodist preacher, who kept a small shop in Troy, scented money in the manufacture and put a selection of these separate collars — "string collars," he called them—in his windows. The sale and demand grew from the first and several collar-making companies were operating before 1840.—[Manchester Guardian.

WELCOME TO SWIMMIN' HOLE."

Ray's production of "The Hole" entered on its second big week at the Alhambra yesterday.

The story is based on James Whitcomb Riley's famous old home poem, and the production was directed by Joseph De Grasse.

One of the outstanding features of the production is its lack of subtitles. This marks an innovation in feature productions, attaining that to which many producers have aspired, the making of a picture whose story alone carries the interest of an audience without employment of the written or spoken word. Critics have declared that this Ray production stands unique from this angle alone, if from none other.

Ray is supported by a most capable cast in the production, among the actors being James Gordon, Lon Poff, Lincoln Stedman, Blanche Rose, Laura La Plante and Marjorie Prevost.

A curious test was made of the Ray picture before its release. Several audiences viewed it in the studio projection room and were asked if they noted any radical difference from other feature productions. Not one of those present noticed the lack of sub-titles.

"THE MONEY CHANGERS" STILL AT MILLER'S.

"The Money Changers," which opens its second week at Miller's today, has not been sacrificed to provide a star role. There are many important characters in the picture, and their roles have been enriched by experienced and talented actors.

Robert McKim makes the villain human and interesting. Roy Stewart is virile and forceful as the newspaper reporter who finds that the man he is trying to run down as head of a drug ring is the fiance of the girl he himself loves.

Claire Adams is most attractive as the heroine. Audrey Chapman is an adventuress quite in a class by herself. She knows no rules and regulations—therefore her interpretation of the villain's plaything is refreshingly novel and lifelike.

Edward Peil has a Chinese role slightly reminiscent of "Broken Blossoms." George Webb is the crook who wanted to "go straight."

The Miller program is enlivened by the showing of the Prizma color feature, "A Day With John Burroughs," and some artistic solo violin playing by Anne Ebert.

MORE PAINTINGS ON CELLULOID.

FAMOUS ART REPRODUCTIONS ADD TO ATMOSPHERE OF "UNFOLDMENT."

With the completion of the "Fall of Sodom," George H. Kern this week will start filming Samson's "Destruction of the Temple" for the Biblical episodes of "The Unfoldment." Samson's betrayal by Delila into the hands of the Philistines and the great scene where he tears down the temple, crushing himself and his enemies, will be included, with William Conklin in the role of Samson.

In the episode dealing with the life of Christ, Mrs. Ida Moss appears as the Madonna, with her 4-weeks-old daughter in the role of the infant Jesus. Joseph Stern portrays the Savior at the age of 10, while R. Lucien Frost appears as Christ at manhood age.

Vallerio Olivo, James Rowe, Miss Nancy Brown, Joseph Roi and Mayer Ouhajou have been added by Mr. Kern to the cast of players depicting the biblical episodes.

The reproductions of famous paintings this week will include "Sistine Madonna," Dore's "The Nativity," Dore's "The Crucifixion" and Hoffman's "Christ in the Temple."

The biblical episodes, together with the reproductions of the famous paintings, are utilized in "The Unfoldment" only to emphasize the dramatic narrative of the modern story.

IT'S SERIOUS BUSINESS.

"The first thing that you have to do to be funny is to be serious!" That is one of the rules Louise Fazenda, featured commedienne, lays down for those who wish to be screen funmakers. And she goes on to say: "No matter what else you do you must keep your face absolutely straight. You must seem absolutely unconscious that you are doing anything at all ridiculous and utterly ignorant that you are being funny. The more outlandish the scene the more solemn must be your bearing. But you must know all the time, inside of you, that you are being funny. So long as you can feel a little giggle just below your throat you can be pretty sure you're funny. If you can laugh at yourself others will laugh, too."

"REPUTATION."

Second Week of Priscilla Dean's Picture at Superba.

Today marks the opening of the second week of "Reputation," Priscilla Dean's Universal feature, at the Superba.

The story, interpreted for the screen by Stuart Paton from Lucien Hubbard's revision of Edwina Levin's narrative, created a sensation at its premier.

Priscilla Dean plays a dual role, that of mother and daughter, and gives the screen her finest work. In the opening sequences she appears as a popular actress of a decade ago; then as the daughter of that actress after dissipation has marred her beauty and sent her from the heights of fame to the depths of infamy.

Those who have seen the picture for the first time are particularly taken with the fast dramatic action, which begins with the opening scene and continues with increasing power to the amazing climax. The second viewing of the production gives one additional flashes of humor, pathos and drama which were overlooked in the stress of the first impression of the work.

The Superba program is not all big smashing drama, however, for Joe Martyn will be there in one of his funniest comedies, "A Monkey Hero."

Helen Byers, lyric soprano, and George Evans, violin virtuoso, present an atmospheric prologue to "Reputation."

THE REEL AND THE REAL ATITA

because I myself am lucky enough to be happy is no sign other girls shouldn't be careful. Here are some of my don'ts on marriage:

"Don't marry a man just because you think he is 'cute' or something. He may be cute like a young puppy dog, and as useless.

"Don't marry before you are 25, because you have to give up all your girlhood joy of making a lot of men miserable before you finally pick on the one you want.

"Don't marry a man just because he seems very much in love with you. You're likely to miss happiness there.

"Don't marry a man because you feel that you have a call to help him in his career. Don't marry a man because you think you have any sort of call at all. It's probably some other noise you hear, anyhow.

"Don't pin all your happiness to a man, anyway. Have other interests—children, social work, a profession.

"Don't go by what a man says he likes in a woman—keep your eyes peeled for what he really does like. Then do it.

"This big house gets on my nerves," Miss Stewart said suddenly, after we had taken a peep at her garden. "It's really an awful nuisance being so grand.

"Butlers and maids and secretaries and things do get under your feet so. As if it wern't enough to have to put up with stage butlers! Let's run over to mamma's for lunch."

So we went. And though Miss Stewart has a $5000 car and a $50-a-week chauffeur, we walked. And it was several blocks too.

But the softness of spring was in the air, the sun shone, birds sang, and the minute Miss Stewart got away from her big, handsome, gloomy house, she was smiling.

"Mamma's" proved to be a little bungalow, cosy and delightful, and mamma confided that Anita would much rather live there in a little house like that if it only weren't for what that awful public expects.

Mama herself has been entertaining her papa—Anita's grandpa—all winter and brother George, too. And—well, she said they were simply sleeping on overturned bookcases and every place.

But they were very happy. Because Anita was with them every minute she could spare.

Over there she can muss in the garden to her heart's content, while at home—well, you should see how the maids look at her when she gets her dress dirty. And then how she did enjoy taking grandpa out for a ramble every day.

Grandpa, by the way, is a perfectly charming old Irishman named John Lee. He was born in Dublin, and he even goes so far as to sprinkle his conversation with "faith's" and "shures."

Brother George was going home next day, and so was Grandpa Lee, but in the meantime everybody was gay.

ANITA'S LOVE LETTERS.

Mama told me quite a lot about Anita's romance with Rudey Cameron, by the way.

"You see I wrote Anita's first two love letters to Rudey Cameron—"

"Oh, ma, don't tell that?" exclaimed Anita.

"Oh, well, Rudey knows it now anyhow—" began ma.

"Well, you see," explained Anita, blushing, "I had never been in love before, and I hadn't the slightest idea what to put into my letters. You see I've got you to blame, ma, that I'm married at all!"

But she grinned disarmingly at Rudey, who merely squirmed a bit, but maintained one of those miraculous masculine silences that women can never quite understand.

After lunch, Anita played and sang for us. Her playing was a surprise. I didn't know that she was an accomplished musician, but Mama Stewart tells me that she studied the piano and voice culture from the time she was a child until she went into pictures, and not only that, but that she gave lessons as well.

Yes, it may be an awful blow to the fans, but Anita is a wonderfully nice girl to her family.

"Anita has always been an awfully good little girl," said Mrs. Lee. "When she was a child and a very young girl, I worked hard to give her a musical education. One day when she was only 13, I came home and Anita looked up to say: 'Ma, I got two piano pupils today.' She felt she must pay me back as much of the money I had spent on her as she could. She always seemed to have a big sense of responsibility. Out here she went and got me this nice little bungalow and maid, though I wouldn't have minded a bit doing the housework myself."

As for brother George—

"Well, sis is a peach," said George. "Even if she won't always let me take her car when I want to. Anyhow she gave me a car of my own."

Anita Stewart and her brother, George, are indeed the greatest of pals. Maybe nothing illustrates this better than the story he tells about how a policeman—oh, well, let George tell it.

"'Nita gave me that car, as I say. It was red and a pip. One day I got it, we took a ride. It was evening, and I had my arm around her.

"Just as we rounded a curve in the road near Beverly, out jumped a constable.

"'Hey, there!' he yelled, 'Take your arm from around that girl! We don't allow no goin's on 'round here!'"

PLAYS :: FAMED :: BARRIE :: ROLE.

In Film Version of "Sentimental Tommy."

May McEvoy.

A BARRIE GIRL AND HER CHARM.

Australia and the set too, through his strenuous objections.

ABOUT "PETER PAN."

Miss McEvoy has been considered lately for the role of Peter Pan in the Barrie Fantasy that is shortly to be made by Famous Players-Lasky. She herself is a great lover of Barrie's works, and found endless delight in playing the role of Grizel. The picture of "Sentimental Tommy," was, of course, made before she came west under the direction of John S. Robertson, at the Paramount studios in Long Island.

"It is such a pleasure to work under Mr. Robertson's direction," she said. "He entered into the spirit of the picture so thoroughly. "He laughs with you, and cries with you, and makes you feel that he is with you in everything you do, and that is such a satisfaction."

Miss McEvoy is now playing in her second picture for Realart. "I was only featured in the first," she said, "but I have a starring part in this."

Prvided she does not go back east to play in "Peter Pan" she will probably remain in Los Angeles for about a year.

Tells How Tastes Improved.

That the pictures have done wonders to develop a critical taste on the part of the general public is a fact emphasized by Rod La Roque, who appeared during the past week in "Thy Name is Woman," at the Mason. Mr. La Roque has been an exceptional opportunity to make a comparison, as a considerable space of time intervened since his previous stage tour and the present, during which he himself played in the films.

One of the most curious evidences of this growth in taste is cited by Mr. La Roque in connection with a visit to Pittsburg on the way west.

"I was talking with a manufacturer of furniture in the Pennsylvania city, who makes a business of supplying the homes of the inhabitants of the mining districts in the vicinity," said Mr. La Roque. "You know the population of those districts is made up to quite an extent of foreigners. Czecho-Slovaks, Poles and the like.

"The manufacturer told me that formerly these people were not at all particuler about the kind of furniture he sold them. In fact, their taste all ran toward the showy types of plush chairs, and cheap bric-a-brac. But now. Could he sell them such furniture? Not on your life. They want ondy the most artistic sets, mission furniture, Italian, and all the finest handicraft. He ascribed this to nothing outside the influence of the films.

"Originally, he said, they used to ask me for furniture like they had seen in a certain picture. Now, they can tell me not only what they want, but can describe its origin and everything."

Mr. La Rque, in addition, asserted that people have become keener students of the drama through the pictures. "They have given a closer attention to detail and to the why and the wherefore of various bits of action in a film, because their attention is undisturbed in the darkened film theater. Consequently they have learned a lot about drama in its artistic aspect that they never had known before, and this shows its effect in the nature of the reception given plays on the stage."

Mr. La Roque hopes to return to this city next season to make some pictures. His present trip is his first to the West, and he has many friendships he would like to renew here during a visit.

THE GREAT SILENCE.

How William A. Taylor Became a Writer for the Screen.

Can deafness be converted into a blessing?

Charles A. Taylor, the veteran dramatist, who adapted and directed Oliver Morosco's first picture, "The Half Breed," offers striking proof that it can. Living for years in the great silence, he bravely made his affliction serve him.

Taylor's loss of hearing progressed gradually through torturing months following an injury in a railroad accident. Finally he became absolutely deaf.

He saw a parade moving along Broadway, headed by a large brass band. Edging to the front row he set his electric telephone and listened. Not a sound. Even the booming bass drum was as in pantomime.

"Now I know I am deaf," admitted Taylor. He jerked the device from his ear and dashed it to the pavement. Accepting deafness then as final, he philosophically set about to make the best of it.

"I had the world to myself from that moment," he later explained. "There were no distracting noises. But, ironically enough, I found myself unconsciously seeking out the quiet places. I haunted the moving picture theaters and here I found a new enjoyment. I could see as well as anyone, and 'hear' more, for I was studying lip reading. The whole world had become a moving picture to me in its silence.

"I began to apply the lessons to the screen. I saw the need of building pictures that would 'talk' for themselves. So I quit writing for the stage and devoted my entire energies to pictures."

RUDOLF FRIML OPERA TO SHOW AT MASON.

"THE FIREFLY" AND "THE MIKADO" WILL BE GIVEN BY THE NEW CALIFORNIANS.

"The Firefly," first of two light opera productions to be staged by the California Opera Company at the Mason a week from tomorrow night, was written about five years ago by Rudolf Friml.

Like some other of the music-dramas and musical comedies, "The Firefly" was made famous greatly through the melodic beauty of one or two theses or songs. In Friml's popular composition the "Sympathy" song became such a rage a few years back that one could hear it in nearly every theater, cafe and hotel lobby in the country. The charm of its strains is felt to this day quite overpowering.

The "Firefly Song" is perhaps next in importance in its catchy, clever musical value. Three noted prima donnas have sung "The Firefly," Trentini, Florence Weber and Irene Pavloska, the latter having scored a splendid success in the role with the St. Louis Municipal Opera last season.

Miss Pavloska's appearance in the role here is looked forward to with unusual interest, especially as she will have with her in the cast Roy Atwell, the comedian and former co-star with Trentini in the original production of the Friml work.

Mr. Friml first came to Los Angeles eight or nine years ago, a more or less obscure musical personage, yet a brilliant pianist. His career turned rather to the compositional side, and realizing that he could not devote his time to writing and concertize as a pianist at the same time, he chose the former, and in this connection it may be said that by his decision the soloistic world has been deprived of a most extraordinary artist.

His three-act opera soon to be heard here is accredited, perhaps, the nearest thing to grand opera possible to create and yet remain outside the circle of the great standard works.

As sung by the newly formed Los Angeles company, the cast at the Mason will be as follows:

Sybil Van Dare	Suzanne Keith
Suzette	Sybil Bacon
Pietro	Rolfe Sedan
Mrs. Oglesby Van Dare	Marie Horgan
Jenkins	Roy Atwell
Geraldine Van Dare	Ethel Jenks
Jack Travers	John Westervelt
John Thurston	Lawrence Tibbit
Papa Franz	Philip Ryder
Antonio	Athel Atwell
Correlli	Fred Holmes
Nina	Irene Pavloska

Hans Linne is the musical director of the organization, and Miss Sybil Stone general understudy. The chorus numbers sixty voices, and William G. Stewart, managing director, states that it is a real Los Angeles beauty chorus, equal in personal charm, as well as vocal and dramatic ability, to his once-famous New York Hippodrome Beauty Chorus.

"Mikado," the Gilbert and Sullivan favorite, the offering for the second week of the engagement, will also be sung by a brilliant cast, involving a few changes.

Among the interesting additions to the personnel that week are Basil Ruysdael, the splendid basso; Edwin Stevens, the singing comedian, who scored high in the "Iolanthe" production a few weeks back, when he played the "Lord Chancellor," and Lady Lo Wah, the Chinese prima donna.

Miss Pavloska, Mr. Atwell, Miss Horgan, Mr. Westervelt and others of "The Firefly" cast will also be among the principals in the second week's offering.

GRAUMAN'S NEW SONG.

Advance copies of Sid Grauman's latest song, "Sweet Little Bon-Bon," which is about to be released in musical circles throughout the United States and England, arrived here last week. It is regarded as one of the best of Mr. Grauman's musical productions. While for the past several years, Mr. Grauman has composed extensively as a hobby, it was not until the present instance that publishers were successful in persuading him to issue his work professionally. The words of "Sweet Little Bon-Bon" were written by Harry D. Kerr. It is being published by Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., of New York.

Marion Warde Entertainment.

The Marion Warde players will appear in a production of "Tempest and Sunshine" for the Los Angeles Parlor, No. 45, Native Sons of the Golden West, Tuesday, at the Gamut Theater. Scenery, costumes and stage settings will be of the period of 1860. Those in the cast are Misses Dorothy Keeler, Sara Cooley, Nell Fletcher, Ruth Tweedy, and Messrs. J. Newton Thompson, Hugh Griffin, Leonard Zellers and William Newell. A male trio, featuring Cornelius Buckley in southern melodies, Paul Jones and Paul Murdy in banjo numbers and eight dancing pickaninnies from the Marion Warde school, will take part during the action of the play.

READS DUNSANY AND BOOK OF JOB.

As a part of her series of reading hours for lovers of literature, Miss Ida M. Leonard, presented four one-act plays, two of them by Lord Dunsany, at her studio, 2516 Fourth avenue. Miss Leonard has exceptional gifts of power and versatility, and she handled with equal skill the rapier-like satire of Dunsany, the clever, cutting comedy of "Shams," and the intense emotion of the Romney play. She has also given reading from the book of Job. The final program of the series will be Friday afternoon and evening of this week. It will be made made up of new verse, in part by local writers.

KIRKWOOD FEATURE READY.

The first of the Lasky productions featuring James Kirkwood has been shipped to New York and will be released shortly for Broadway showing. It is "The Wise Fool," developed from Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Money Master." This was directed by George Melford, who now has Kirdwood in a second production, "The Great Impersonation," from the novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Bebe Daniels,

Who appears as the star in "Two Weeks With Pay" at Clune's Broadway.

BORROWED PLUMES.

Clune's Will Present Bebe Daniels in New Comedy.

In "Two Weeks With Pay," Bebe Daniels, at Clune's Broadway this week, is said to have a comedy-drama of unusual charm.

The picture presents this vivacious young screen star in a role that gives her unusual opportunities for her talents, and at the same time the story is one of compelling interest, with a delightful turn at the end that reminds one of an O. Henry classic.

Miss Daniels, in the character of Patsy O'Donnell, clerk and model in the shop of a fashionable modiste, is chosen by her employer to visit a famous summer resort to exhibit some of his most beautiful creations.

Following a head-on collision en route, she meets the stalwart hero, portrayed by Jack Mulhall. At the hotel Patsy accepts the character of Marie La Tour, a famous prima donna, unwittingly forced upon her by a group of society leaders, and impersonating that distinguished celebrity, whom she strikingly resembles, she becomes involved in all sorts of complications which lead her into a serious predicament. In the end, however, all ends happily.

The story is by Alice Eyton. The cast includes Jack Mulhall, Walter Hiers, James Mason, Frances Raymond and George Periolat.

KANSAS RABBIT FIGHT

Periodical Debate in Legislature Over the Bounty to be Paid.

The Kansas Legislature has staged its biennial rabbit fight. For many years the jackrabbit regularly and invariably has produced one row in the Legislature that is worth going miles to see and hear. It is the usual scrap over the jackrabbit bounty.

The jackrabbit is one of the institutions of the prairie. Such effete easterners as have up-to-date zoos may go out and look at a jackrabbit in captivity, and the rabbit will not awe or inspire anyone. But in Kansas, where the jackrabbit is on his native heath, he is a fearsome, voracious and destructive animal, in addition to being the speediest thing on four legs, or on wheels, on all the prairies.

Kansas has spent many thousands of dollars exterminating the prairie dogs and it has spent many other thousands trying to get rid of the festive jackrabbit, a strict vegetarian, and during the winter months rather destructive. He eats the bark off fruit and shade trees, kills the alfalfa and does serious damage to growing crops. There are many counties in which it is estimated that jackrabbits do damage aggregating $50,000 every winter season.

So the jackrabbit gets into the pest class. Kansas has all sorts of laws to eradicate noxious insects, and has had laws to eradicate noxious animals, including the prairie dog. But the movement to eradicate the jackrabbit goes by fits and starts. At one session of the Legislature a bill is passed making it mandatory upon the county to pay a bounty for jackrabbit scalps. The next Legislature comes along with a group of representatives from eastern counties, who get the law changed to make the payment of the bounty discretionary with the county commissioners. Sometimes the Legislature puts it up to a vote of the people in each county as to whether they "shall" or "may" pay the bounty.

For the last two years the law has been discretionary with the county boards. During the coming year it will be compulsory. The bounty is onl 10 cents for each pair of jackrabbit ears brought in. The rabbit, of course, must have been killed within the boundaries of the county where the bounty is to be paid.

No one ever offers any objection to paying a bounty of $5 each for the scalp of a lobo wolf or a coyote. These animals kill chickens, sheep, pigs and even calves. The jackrabbit never attacks any other animal or fowl unless, as has happened, that a jackrabbit has been fed a little silo juice. In that case jackrabbits have been known to spit into the face of a bulldog and even tackle windmills and the wheels of motor cars and motorcycles.

The ordinary jackrabbit is a docile creature, whose chief activity is the girdling of trees and the eating of the roots of wheat and alfalfa and other winter crops. During the debate on the bounty bill in the Legislature it was urged that bounty payments should not be made compulsory, because it might compel the payment of a dime per scalp of members of the legislative rabbits, those members who dodge votes, and it was officially decided that the scalp of a legislative rabbit isn't worth even a dime

But, anyway, the counties are going to have to pay the 10 cents bounty upon the high-speed jackrabbit for the next two years. It only costs 7 cents for a shotgun shell and a lot of time and energy to kill a rabbit. But by collecting the dime from the county, shipping the carcass to the Salvation Army in eastern cities for distribution to the poor the Kansas boys are able to have a lot of fun and pay their own hunting expenses.—[Correspondence Boston Transcript.

FILM INVASION STILL GOES ON.

haps not a very great picture, but is interesting, sincere, unstrained and beautifully directed. I think it will rank very high among the pictures of the year.

"Wild Goose" made from the Gouverneur Morris story is at the Rialto this week. It is one of those pictures in which the wife kisses somebody else and the best friend warns her too late. You know—one of those "my Gawd, Mary, remember your che-e-ild" kind of pictures.

"Deception" is still running at the Rivoli and "The Birth of the Nation" is still at the Capitol, to the great wrath of the colored population, who have been picketing the lobby and getting arrested.

The "Last Waltz," the newest opera by Oscar Straus of "Chocolate Soldier" fame had its premiere on Sunday of this week. With Eleanor Painter in the chief role—that of the princess of a mythical Balkan country—beautiful costumes and the loveliest of music—the piece had an auspicious start.

"Phoebe of Quality Street," made into an opera from the Barrie play, also was shown to New York for the first time this week. Maude Adams's old role was taken by Dorothy Ward, an English comedienne who was unmercifully panned by the New York papers for her lack of finesse and Maude Adams-y qualities. It was rather a cruel test. Everybody can't be Maude Adams.

Another girl is going to try to be. May McAvoy has been selected by Mr. Lasky for Miss Adams's part in the forthcoming film version of "The Little Minister." When "Peter Pan" is filmed, it is not impossible that a boy will be used instead of a girl for the title part. It is said that Barrie originally intended the play for a boy.

REGARDING BARTHELMESS.

Dick Barthelmess has celebrated the week by having an operation and signing a contract. As the result of a severe cold Dick developed an abscess in his ear. It looked for a time as though he would be obliged to submit to a dangerous mastoid operation, but he finally escaped with a lesser operation.

He is now able to sit up in bed and has signed a contract with the Inspiration Film Company which is backed by Charles H. Duell, formerly a protege of Theodore Roosevelt and a cousin of Elihu Root.

Dick's salary is said to be about the size of the German indemnity or the United States naval budget.

The New York papers are authority for the report that D. W. Griffith has abandoned his plans for making a picture version of "Faust" and will produce "The Two Orphans," with Lillian and Dorothy Gish as the orphans. They will be supported by a notable cast of actors.

Henry Arthur Jones, the English playwright, who, at 70, is studying the motion-picture business, sailed back to England this week, leaving New York giggling at a brilliant quip. Speaking of Sir James Barrie, he said, "Ah, yes—poor Barrie. He does so long to be a mother."

Mme. Nazimova and her husband are among the afflicted. Someone broke into their house in Port Chester the other day and took not only madam's jewels, but also the jewels of the cellar. They even rubbed it in by taking the keys of the cellar.

Anna Q. Nilsson has sailed for her old home in Sweden for a vacation.

Betty Blythe has been selected by the annual vote at Princeton as the favorite actress of that highbrow institution.

"Liliom," the strange Hungarian fantastic play, which in two weeks has jumped into position as the favorite show of New York, was peddled around Broadway for more than fifteen years before any manager could be found to take a chance. It was the theater guild which finally made the experiment. One scene of the play takes place in heaven, where the hero is tried for his sins.

LAST PICKFORD COMEDY REMAINS AT MISSION.

Mary Pickford, in "Through the Back Door," is entering on her third week at the Mission.

It has been a long time since "Our Mary" has had so congenial a part, and that she makes the most of it is attested by the record-breaking audiences that are daily occupying all the available seats at this cosy playhouse.

While the picture runs the gamut of fun and brings shouts of laughter from a delighted audience, a tear yet creeps in occasionally on account of the tremendous heart interest that permeates a number of the most impressive scenes.

THOSE WHO FLY.

Pleasure Resort Pilots Discuss Various Types of Passengers.

Why do people fly?

Would you care for a spin in the air so much as to spend $15 for a twenty-minutes' flight. If so, what is your motive?

Interviewing a half-dozen commercial aviators along Miami's water front on this subject brought the following facts to light:

About 60 per cent of all passengers carried on the short twenty minutes sightseeing flights are women.

Acording to aviators the types to whom scraping the clouds appeals are:

The wealthy man—the business man. He wants to see what flying is like. He sees the future of commercial aviation. The short flight offers also a novel method of entertaining friends.

The "sport." He flies for the excitement of the thing. He usually insists on stunt flying. Then, too, an occasional flight provides a way of demonstrating to his friends his sporting self.

The average man. He finds in the short flight at $15 for himself or $25 for himself and a companion a method of realizing the thrill and pleasure of the air. He is presented with an opportunity of realizing an overwhelming desire at a minimum expense.

The large percentage of women passengers is considered something of a slap at those reveling in the thought that women were too timid to fly. According to pilots, in most cases, women accept an offer of an aerial spin on the direct dare of their masculine companion.—[Miami (Fla.) Herald.

Went Over the Rough Places.

Outlook: "Terribly rough, isn't it?" said the stranger on the ocean liner, as reported in Everybody's.

"Wal," replied the man from the farm, who was going across for the first time, "t'wouldn't be so rough if the cap'n would only keep in the furrows."

WHAT ARE DRAMATIC CRITICS GOOD FOR?

Do you believe, as we do, that the dramatic critic is the friend of the theatre going public — The honest, thoughtful, trained and efficient writer who gives of his time-and experience that the Public may be advised of the merits or demerits of theatrical productions? —— Do you believe that the critic, who long after the performance is over toils at his work, into the wee small hours of the morning, that the public may be protected from a poor production or inspired to attend a good one, serves a great and useful purpose in the Community?

All are absolutely guaranteed to be in perfect condition in every point, excepting those especifically pointed out by our salespeople.

The allowance made for these imperfections vary from $30.00 up to $66.00.

The Elks' Ladies Card Club played bridge and five hundred Thursday afternoon at the Elks' clubhouse.

ALHAMBRA.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rogers were hosts to a jolly company on Friday evening, when they entertained at dinner for members of the first team of the High School Baseball League. The evening was devoted to games, including pool and billiards. Those present were: F. A. Rankin, coach; Pete DuPuy, William Penny, John Fox, Fred Houser, Nelson Davis, Walter W. Wine, Walter Dugan, Albert Gautier, L. Kane, Lloyd and Wyman Rogers.

Annual luncheon of the San Gabriel Woman's Club was held at the Methodist Church last Friday with a large attendance. The tables were beautifully decorated in Shasta daisies, the club flower. Johnson, former president of the Wednesday Morning Club, Los Angeles.

The home of Mrs. James S. Lowry of 420 North Electric avenue was the scene of a pretty wedding last Saturday, when their daughter Mabel became the bride of A. C. Wilson of the U.S.S. Wyoming. The home was profusely decorated with roses and carnations. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Baham, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Carlton Kirk of the First Baptist Church. WHITTIER.

Mrs. W. A. Williams entertained a company of little folks Tuesday afternoon at her home in South Milton avenue, in celebration of the sixth birthday anniversary of her winsome little daughter, Miss Ruth Williams. The floral and other appointments for the pleasant informal affair were all in pink and a cluster of Cecile Brunner or more commonly called "baby roses" was at each plate at the delectable luncheon served after the games.

Members of the Baptist Church assembled in the social rooms of the church Tuesday evening in what they designated as a "mystery" meeting, but which was in reality more of a reception in compliment to Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Hulett, who are just entering upon their sixth year in the Whittier church. The "mystery" developed late in the evening, after the various heads of the departments of the church activities had spoken informally. It was then that Mr. H. S. Berkey, on behalf of the congregation, presented Rev. Mr. Hulett with a new fully equipped automobile.

Announcement was made of the betrothal of two formerly well-known Whittier young ladies, when Mrs. Max Goheen entertained at her home on North Greenleaf avenue Friday afternoon; the brides-to-be are Miss Thelma Fox, who is engaged to marry Gordon Suess, June 15, and Miss Hazel Lark, whose marriage to Walter Smith is announced for May 25. Both young girls were formerly students at Whittier High School and both enjoyed a pleasing popularity.

One of the merriest of the many pleasant affairs for which the social section of the Whittier Woman's Club has stood sponsor during the past year, was the springtime dancing party at the clubhouse Friday evening. A generous invitation list had been compiled and the response was accordingly good. The clubrooms presented a springtime appearance with myriads of beautiful spring blossoms and greenery, and the music and the floors were in excellent condition. Mrs. Raymond B. Dodds was hostess in charge and had as her very able assistants, the Mmes. George Nelson, Charles R. Little, M. B. Whyers, George Stanford, Glen Earl and Warren Johnson.

Mrs. William Braucht was hostess to the members of the Postoffice Social Club, at her home, 404 North Comstock avenue, Monday afternoon. Mrs. Hugh Steele was an assisting hostess. An alphabetical contest was presented for the entertainment of the guests and late in the afternoon an attractive collation was served. The next meeting of the club, which will be in June, will be at the home of Mrs. Earl Brooks on Via Del Palma.

EAST WHITTIER.

In celebration of the eleventh birthday of Eleanor Wheatland, the beautiful Wheatland home in East Whittier was transformed into a fairy bower of blossoms, the fairies themselves being none other than the lovely children who came in response to the invitations to the party. After a happy afternoon of games and friendly contests, an attractive luncheon was served, the piece par excellence being the big, beautiful birthday cake, illumined with the light from eleven small candles. A souvenir piece was given each guest.

Mrs. J. W. Rodiffer was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the members of a card club that meets semi-monthly at the homes of the different members. The ladies played five hundred and Mrs. George Nelson of Whittier won highest score; the guest prize was awarded to Mrs. Henry Warren of Buena Park. The next meeting of the club will be an evening affair at the home of Mrs. George Nelson, and to this the husbands are bidden.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George McWhirter was the mecca for many visitors Sunday, among whom were: Mr. and Mrs. A. M. McWhirter, son Van, and daughter Miss Dorris; Mrs. Nellie Van Buskirk, Donald McVicker, all of Van Nuys; Mrs. Frank Perry and son Earl of Los Angeles.

Of interest to a large number of friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Lucille McCowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McCowan of Stanton, to Mr. Carson G. Ervin, a yeoman in the Navy. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Richard Haworth, Miss McCowan being a niece of Mrs. Haworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester G. Baldwin of Huntington Beach were recently house guests in the home of Mrs. Baldwin's mother, Mrs. George Karges.

SOUTH PASADENA.

For the members of the Ways and Means Committee of the Women's Improvement Association, of which committee she is the chairman, Mrs. Thomas W. Bishop entertained at luncheon on Friday at her attractive home on Meridian avenue and Oak street. Roses of several varieties were used in the decoration of the living-room, while blossoms in pastel shades ornamented the dining-room and beautifully appointed dining table. Besides the eighteen members of the committee and the hostess, there was present Mrs. O. B. Manchester, president of the Woman's Club. Seated around the luncheon table, the hostess and her guests discussed plans for the future work of the organization, especially the garden fete which this committee is arranging as the last entertainment for the benefit of the association which will be given during the present club year. The after-luncheon hours were spent in looking over the spacious grounds and the surroundings of the Bishop home. The affair was a most delightful one, characteristic of all social functions over which Mrs. Bishop presides.

Miss Bess Pickle, whose marriage to Lieut.-Gen. Aron will be an elaborate social event the last week in May, has been the motif for a number of prenuptial courtesies during the past week, as well as being the incentive for several which will occur this coming week. The sewing club of which Miss Pickle is a member honored her with a theater party at Morosco's on Tuesday night. On Saturday night of next week Miss Helen Blattner, who will attend Miss Pickle as maid of honor, entertained with a handsomely-appointed dinner party given for members of the bridal party, twenty in number. This was given at the palatial home of Miss Blattner's parents on Oak street. On Saturday night of next week Miss Pickle's bridesmaids will entertain

Frock Day

100 Fine Frocks Reduced

Many Styles—Many Prices

On Monday, various groups of Misses' and Women's Dresses, mostly of Taffeta and Canton Crepe, will be greatly reduced.

Lack of space forbids entering into detail about all of these groups. One allotment has the very low price of $23.75; another, $35.00, and others are higher. All are extra values. Many are half their former price.

In general, the low prices are possible only because the Dresses are in broken sizes and colors.

Featuring $49.50 Frocks

These comprise Street, Afternoon and Evening Frocks in styles with the forward look, styles that will be smart the summer through.

Materials are taffeta, Morocco crepe, Canton crepe, lace, Poiret twill and satin, in light and dark colors.

Though the sizes are broken, there are plenty from which misses, small women and larger women may choose.

Basques, the lengthened waist line and straight line frocks with sashes or the narrowest of belts are the modish styles—embracing sheer comfort—in these dresses for warm days.

The simplicity of this season's Sports Frocks is evident in a model of beige silk eponge. This has cuffs, small pocket and bordered hem of conventional embroidery in blue and beige.

SECOND FLOOR

They are of French inspiration, beautiful in coloring, the Night Lamps, Mirrors and other Boudoir Novelties offer a panorama of loveliness.

2000 of these Dressing Table, Night Stand and Chaise Longue Accessories will be shown for the first time on Monday.

The sale is of such dimensions that a very low price is possible on each piece. This is a great deal less than goods of this high standard has ordinarily sold for — and a great deal less than if there had not been so large a quantity.

$5, for example, although less than half the usual figure, will now be the price for a Comb and Brush Set, mounted in taffeta and gold braid, complete with standard for the Comb.

A Boudoir's Chief Charm Its Coloring

Court ladies in the time of Louis XIV had the color schemes of their boudoirs carried out in silk pillows, silk and gold glove boxes, matching scarfs for the dressing table and so forth.

The modern woman finds that taffeta silk, fine gold braid and gold lace, adapted to the dainty furnishings of the boudoir, greatly enhance its beauty.

The diversity of the Boudoir Accessories offered for Monday is remarkable. There is everything—literally everything—that one could imagine, and the beauty of the collection is simply beyond imagination. That has to be seen.

RIVERA.

One of the interesting social affairs of the week at Rivera was the "tin wedding" which Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Meller of Passons Boulevard gave Tuesday evening, in celebration of their tenth wedding anniversary. The tin motif was successfully carried out in many of the appointments, and a picture that created much interest, was that of the bride and groom taken in their wedding garments ten years ago, the picture being framed in tin. Mr. and Mrs. Meller presented five hundred for the entertainment of their guests and the prizes given were of tin. High scores were made by Mrs. W. D. Spencer and Mr. J. T. McGaugh. Consolations were bestowed on Mrs. J. G. Swain and Mr. Joe Jones. During the evening the card tables were cleared and an attractive collation served, a vase of orange blossoms centering each small table.

Local interest centers in the coming competetive examination for the office of postmaster at Rivera, which is to be held in Los Angeles June 22, according to statements given out this week by the United States Civil Service Commission. As the compensation is but $1300 per year the competition is not likely to be very keen.

CORONA.

Mr. and Mrs. Perle T. Glass entertained about 140 of their friends Tuesday evening with a May party. Scores of May baskets were used in decorating the parlors and corridors of Hotel Kinney, where the delightful affair was held. It was the most beautiful affair ever given in Corona. In the main hall a miniature May-pole dance was staged in the center of a large table and six kewpies were in the act of winding the pole with bright-hued ribbon. Five hundred was played at thirty tables until a late hour, following which Mrs. A. E. Lang was awarded the ladies' prize of a handsome cut-glass basket filled with Cecile Brunner roses. Mr. O. A. Vanderhoof received a leather case filled with a deck of cards and "500" score cards as the gentleman's prize. Supper was served in the dining-room, which was opened for use at this occasion for the first time. Refreshments were served on plates with woven handles upon which dainty flowers reclined, which transformed the tables into fairylike beauty. Several out-of-town guests were present.

Mrs. Klement Todd of San Francisco is the guest of her mother, Mrs. W. H. Jameson. She returned from the northern city with Mrs. Jameson, who has been a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Todd for the past few weeks. Mrs. Todd will remain here while her husband, Lieut.-Commander C. J. Todd, is on a government cruise to Alaska, Bering Sea and other Arctic region points.

A brilliant May dance was given Monday evening by the Elks at the Woman's Clubhouse. The clubhouse was radiant with a profusion of flowers, pink and green streamer festoons and with the soft-shaded lights gave a home-like touch. Pink and green balloons and bells were given the dancers as favors. Music was furnished by Bobo's Orchestra of Riverside. Miss Olga Hammond, an aesthetic dancer of Riverside, gave a beautiful interpretation of "Oh Joy of Spring."

A delightful trip was enjoyed Sunday by Mr. Melvin Yerian, Mr. and Mrs. William Max Miller, Miss Amelia Ehrenhart of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Mabel Kelbaugh of Baltimore, who motored to Santa Barbara. Among the pleasures of the outing were visits to the missions at Ventura and Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Frank Griffin and Mrs. Vern Dumas of Los Angeles, cousins of Mrs. F. H. Allen, were entertained Sunday at the Allen home. The occasion was an exceptionally joyous one, as hostess and guests met after years of separation, having by a happy chance become aware that their homes were but a few miles apart.

Mrs. S. W. Burrows was out from Los Angeles Wednesday to attend the meeting of the Fortnightly Bridge Club at the home of Mrs. F. H. Olds of Dewey avenue.

Members of the Wednesday Club varied their usual day of meeting and this week were entertained at luncheon at the ranch home of Mrs. Frank E. Good, El Rancho Bueno, where Mrs. R. Petrie assisted the hostess in entertaining.

Old residents of this valley will be made special guests of the pioneer and landmarks section of the Ebell Club at the annual picnic to be held on Tuesday on the loggia of the clubhouse. This is a yearly institution observed for many years, and is an important date on the club calendar.

Mrs. Blanche T. Reynolds, county superintendent of schools, gave an address on home management before the high school group of the P.-T.A. on Tuesday afternoon in the high school auditorium.

Mr. J. W. Johnston of the Congo, Africa, arrived on Saturday, accompanied by her baby, at the home of her mother, Mrs. D. G. Gailey. EAGLE ROCK CITY.

The local chapter of the Eastern Star entertained about 200 guests on Monday evening, when the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Rose Fellows, and Worthy Patron, B. Frank Bourne, entertained the Matrons and Patrons of the Los Angeles district. It was in the form of a colonial garden party, with the platform forming the piazza to a colonial home, the windows, curtained with white drapes and a simulated front door. The "form" around the piazza was beautifully decorated with roses and vines and the garden in front had long tables attractively decorated with flowers and candles. During the banquet there were cabaret entertainers. A colored quartet, namely: Messrs. Ward, Gibson, Tepper and Leake, who sang, danced, and cracked local hits and jokes. Mrs. Tepper, very sweetly sang "Down in Carolina," and for an encore, "Mighty Lak' a Rose." Virgil Drenberg, accompanied by Miss Margaret Stuckwish, gave a pleasing number with violin and piano. The Russian and Egyptian dances were interestingly interpreted by the daughter of Worthy Matron Naudain of Glen Eyrie Chapter, Glendale. Besides these diversions, there was dancing in the center of the floor by those who wished to indulge. At a late hour the merry party disbanded, hoping at some later date to again be the guests at such a happy affair.

Mrs. George Hutchins and the Misses Hutchins entertained on Tuesday with a garden party and musicale in compliment to the ladies of the southwest section of the Presbyterian Church and their friends. The living-room and hall were decorated with May baskets of roses, while iris and fragrant spring flowers adorned the other rooms. The lawn and rose garden were gay with festoons of bright-colored lanterns. Assisting the Hutchinses were Mrs. Palmer Weberg, Mrs. J. H. McLennan, Mrs. D. F. Wadsworth, Mrs. A. B. Clapp, Miss Florence Sturgeon and Miss Lydia Kemman. Mrs. L. R. Peck gave the musical program, which was thoroughly enjoyed, and Mrs. Meade and Mrs. Parker contributed readings. About seventy guests enjoyed the delightful affair.

FULLERTON.

Mrs. Fred Porter entertained the Thursday Afternoon Club in her home at 116 Ellis Place, Miss Anna Nelson and Mrs. James Green being guests of honor. Five hundred provided the diversion of the afternoon, followed by a luncheon, and a delightful musical program.

At the close of their last regular session, the Rebekahs staged a surprise party for Miss Beck, Noble Grand, about eighty members being present to enjoy the program, dancing and refreshments. As a token of their interest in her approaching marriage, the lodge members presented Miss Beck with an electric coffee urn.

Miss Brahm of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. L. Meyer of Kansas City and Mrs. L. V. Crowe of Rosedale, Kan., who have been spending the winter at the home of Mrs. Crowe's son, E. H. Crowe, on Ellis Place, will start on their return trip East by motor, early next week, accompanied by James Johnson, who recently arrived from Wichita, Kan.

On Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. William Starbuck on South Highland avenue, a jolly crowd of young women gathered in response to invitations to a shower honoring Misses Butterfield and Roth, whose engagements were recently announced. At the conclusion of appropriate games, little Marion and Rebecca Marsden, nieces of Mrs. Starbuck, arranged two chairs in the center of the room. The little girls were dressed in pink and blue dresses, carrying canes with tulle bows attached, to match their costumes. The one dressed in pink escorted Miss Roth to one of the chairs, the one in blue escorted Miss Butterfield to the other chair. The little girls then brought in the gifts, carrying one at a time on the crook of their canes, the gifts for Miss Butterfield being tied in blue, those for Miss Roth, in pink. After presentation of the gifts, refreshments carrying out the color scheme were served.

On last Friday, Mrs. Albert Launer was hostess at a delightfully arranged luncheon given to twelve members of the Los Angeles Shakespeare Club, assisting hostesses being Mrs. Convas, Mrs. Roy Davis and Mrs. S. Salveson. Yellow was used both in decorating and as the predominating color of the menu. Immediately following the luncheon the party attended the Ebell Club, a Shakespeare program being rendered.

Mrs. Hartwell Bradford and Mrs. Frank Morse, delegates of the Ebell Club, will attend the State Federation of Women's Clubs in Yosemite, May 24 to 28. While in the north, Mrs. Bradford will visit her father, L. W. Potter, head of one of the railway departments.

UPLAND.

In compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Evert B. Reynolds, who are soon to remove to Fullerton to reside after fifteen years' residence in Upland, friends and neighbors to the number of forty assembled Monday evening for dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher H. Manker, 603 Second avenue. Pink roses and white carnations predominated in the decorations. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. William Churchill Cline, Mrs. Charles Marsden Sikes, Mrs. Charles Allen, Mrs. Arthur H. Johnson, Mrs. Anna Myers and Mrs. Lyman Clark.

Miss Margaret Swan of Ontario, whose marriage to E. Joseph Sandford, vice-president of the Ontario National Bank, is to be a society event of May 31, was the honor guest Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. George Byron Ford, Jr., entertained with a kitchen shower and tea at her ranch home on West Tenth street. In an amusing guessing contest, Mrs. Guifford Meredith captured the prize. The bride-elect received many gifts for her kitchen.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Kennedy were hosts at dinner Friday evening at their home on Second ave-

SALE OF ART WARES, HALF PRI

It is perhaps the most notable collection of rare wares as has ever been presented in Los Angeles at so tremendous a price reduction!

It was simply a question of going through Hamburger's notable and extensive stocks and making selection from the groups of finest pieces for this event.

The result is that the people of Southern California may choose from Italian marbles, bronzes, Dresden lamps, Majolicas, small potteries, Bohemian glass—wares both large and small—yet pay just half of their actual worth.

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

IN SPITE of the pleadings of recognized authorities on landscape gardening, the purchaser of a city lot will accept the restrictions placed by real estate agents who have no more conception of art or garden attractions than may be found in a 7-year-old child. "Thou shalt not build nearer to the street than —— feet; nor shalt thou have a tree or shrub on the front lawn, nor fence, wall or hedge on front, or on side line back to opposite front line of building, etc., etc." A recent authoritative work by a well-known American expert has the following to say on the subject: "Thus, limited by custom and convention and the lack of a single degree of independent, individual thought, each average house is practically like its neighbor and is located on its plot of ground in practically the same wasteful way, and each average dooryard has the same features—or lack of them.

"Of course there are restrictions imposed upon the purchaser of improved suburban property, for his protection as well as his guidance, and it is right that there should be. But all of this, be it noted, is quite apart from these restrictions and regulations. Beyond the building line and the character and minimum cost of the buildings to be erected, there is usually little that is arbitrarily fixed in either the opulent or humble colony. And these offer no insurmountable obstacle to doing what is really best in disposing both house and grounds—although the former comes very near doing so, without doubt. The elimination of the fixed building line, however, is not, of course, possible or even desirable perhaps under our present system of suburban building; but the system itself is wasteful, vulgarly frank and ostentatious, and utterly destructive of garden opportunities as well as of the fine instinct of home reserve and privacy that is such a priceless human asset.

"We have not grown old enough as a nation, however, to shrink from personal publicity; we still cherish the infantile instinct to cry "hello" to the passer-by, to lift up our possessions to his gaze—which will be flatteringly covetous if these are striking enough—and shake them triumphantly before him with an exultant 'see!' So we have the veranda-stage, whereon our little dramas are to be played before this audience; and we plan all the settings around about to capture the admiration of the street.

"Consequently the suburbs of American cities are said to be the most beautiful in the world—to drive through. Could there be a more eloquent qualification of praise than that final clause? I think not. These are colonies of homes, not public parks. They are not for the man who drives through, but they are for the man who stays there and for his wife and his sons and daughters. Yet the streets are the most attractive part of them. There are few at the present time, however, who would have the courage to break away from what has come to be a traditional style or plan here, even if convinced of its advantages, both ethical and material."

Autumn Asters.

The China aster is essentially an autumn flower, and we should not seek to force it ahead of its season and to make it compete with flowers of midsummer; June sowing is usually very satisfactory. The soil should be rich—a good loam—and the plants grown on with vigor; and every variety will give profuse blooms. There are two or three insects which prey upon the China aster, but they do not appear to be widespread. The most serious difficulty with them is the rust, a fungus (Coleosporium Sonchiarvensis,) which attacks the underside of the leaf and raises an orange-colored pustule. Bordeaux mixture discolors the plants, and it is therefore better to spray with ammoniacal carbonate of copper. Spray it upon the plants before the fungus appears, and repeat every week or ten days; spray upwards so as to strike the under sides of the leaves. When planting, it is well to thoroughly mix a little lime into the soil. It cannot fail to benefit and may be the means of saving the plants.

For Street and Roadside.

Shade trees are not so necessary in California as many would have us believe, who have but a superficial knowledge of the charm and sufficiency of our almost cloudless summers. We do not have the extreme summer heat more or less common to every other State in the Union; in our soft and balmy atmosphere, the heat of day is tempered by the cool nights, so that except for a few hours in the middle of the day, we have no need of shade. What we should look for in street planting is ornament, with as much or as little shade as we are forced to accept in order to secure effective beauty and embellishment, which means, in its final analysis, harmony with existent and anticipated surroundings. In a country so naturally treeless and with almost perpetual sunshine, the lights and shadows of street trees with their softening and harmonizing effects in mellowing into the landscape the harsh, monotonous lines of architecture, and broad expanse of pavement and sidewalk, is fully as gratifying as the shade they provide. Recognizing this fundamental requirement, we should have an eye to beauty when choosing subjects for street planting, rather than seek, as many do, the tree which will make the heaviest growth within a specified lapse of time. Our most common faults in street tree planting lie in the use of too many trees and too many sorts.

There is no better form of outdoor exercise than gardening.

This little girl has her own wee garden.

Changing Plant Sex.

May plant sex really be changed? Such changes are occasionally brought about in plants that bear the two sexes of its flowers on different plants. Cases are reported from Northern Africa, where there has been an excess of male date palms; the natives pull out the first flower spike, in the hope that the the next one will prove female, and they are not always disappointed. The second, and all subsequent flower spikes, bear nothing but female blossoms and of course bear a resultant crop of dates. This change is infrequent, however, and therefore not to be depended upon for control of date orchards. The tropical papaya or pawpaw is more often changed by the same method or by cutting off the whole top of male plants. Such changes are well authenticated, having been vouched for by government plant experts.

Garden Millipedes.

Millipedes, erroneously called "thousand legged worms," are a great pest in any garden, for while they feed largely upon decaying vegetation they are not slow to attack any plant organism, more especially roots and bulbs. Where they are common, it is better to poison them—if poison may be safely placed where children, domestic animals, birds, etc., will not come in contact—with a bran mash. Use a total of ten parts—one of Paris green, two of sugar and seven of bran, shorts, cornmeal, or any old "breakfast food." To drive them from the soil use one ounce of bichloride of mercury in ten gallons of water. This will cause any worm or insect in the soil to move on to the next place.

Weeds in Walks.

Rock salt or blue vitriol is a cheap and effective agent for destroying weeds in walks, garden paths, etc. The best method is to boil the salt or blue vitriol in water, one pound to the gallon, and applying the solution boiling hot, with a watering pot that has a spreading nozzle. This will keep the weeds and worms away for two or three years. Put one pound to the square yard at first; afterwards a weaker solution may be applied when requried. Gas liquor is another cheap medium, but has an offensive odor and may injure the roots of trees if carelessly used.

Plants for Shade.

Just now one of the finest plants flowering in the shade is the cineraria, which comes in a great variety of metallic colors, from white to crimson and from white to purple. For general garden planting in shade in almost any range of climate, the following old-time plants may be depended upon: Begonias, caladiums, centaureas, coleuses, fuchsias, forget-me-nots, lily of the valley, lobelias, pansies, phloxes and violets.

Dwarf Cocos.

The hardiest cocos palms we grow belong to the dwarf section, not to the lofty cocos plumosa section of the family so popular throughout Southern California. These dwarf hardier types come from nearer the South Pole than the plumosa section of the genus, hence are native to almost temperate climes. The correct name of the species used here is in some doubt. By a few quite competent authorities it has been referred to as cocos eriospetha. It may be a variety of that species, but is not the type.

Tree Peonies.

Government plant explorers who have visited China declare that tree peonies (Paeonia moutan) should thrive in the semi-arid Southwest, where the herbaceous peonies so common on the eastern coast do not thrive except under special conditions. Local experimenters have found that a very deep and free sandy loam, with the addition of leaf mold, makes an ideal soil for this class of peonies, and that if such soils are kept moist at all times, yet never wet, the tree peonies may be grown to perfection in local gardens.

"Fumigation as Usual"

-:- The Productivity of Your Grove Demands It -:-

Scale Control is essential to the greatest production and highest quality of citrus fruit.

Fumigation the surest and most economical method of keeping your groves clean—is a form of insurance.

Neglect of fumigation results in a tremendous handicap to overcome later, and an enormous and useless expense.

INVESTIGATE AERO BRAND Hydrocyanic Acid and Appliances.

We have established a large and successful plant for the manufacture of AERO BRAND Hydrocyanic Acid at Azusa in the heart of the citrus belt, and with the assistance of our laboratories, able chemists and engineers, we are constantly at work on your problems—pest control by fumigation. We have made remarkable developments pertaining to application for this season.

Care Required in Feeding of Baby Chicks.

DON'T GIVE THEM TO MUCH. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

BABY chicks should not be fed for from twenty-four to thirty-six hours after hatching, and will not suffer if given no feed until the third day. The yolk of the egg which is absorbed by the chick when hatching furnishes all the nourishment required during that time. After the third day they should be fed four or five times daily for the first week or ten days, but they should be given only what they will eat up clean each time. Overfeeding will do more harm than underfeeding. Greater care must be used not to overfeed young chicks that are confined than those that have free range, as leg weakness is apt to result in those confined.

The first feed should consist of johnnycake or hard-boiled eggs mixed with stale bread crumbs or pinhead oatmeal, using a sufficient amount of the latter to make a dry, crumbly mixture. These feeds or combinations of feeds may be used with good results for the first week; then gradually substitute for one or two feeds daily a mixture of equal parts of finely cracked wheat, cracked corn, and pinhead oatmeal or hulled oats, to which may be added a small quantity of broken rice, millet, rapeseed and charcoal, if obtainable. This mixture makes an ideal ration, say poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture. If corn cannot be had, cracked kafir corn, rolled or hulled barley may be substituted. A commercial chick feed containing a variety of grains may be used instead if desired.

Here is a Department of Agriculture expert's recipe for johnnycake:

Corn meal, five pounds,

Infertile eggs (tested out from sittings or from an incubator, six.

Baking soda, one tablespoonful.

Mix with milk to make a stiff batter and bake thoroughly.

Note.—When infertile eggs are not available use a double quantity of baking soda and add one-half pound of sifted meat scrap.

When the chicks are from ten to fourteen days old a dry growing mash composed of the following is recommended by the same authority:

Two parts, by weight, of bran.

Two parts middlings.

One part corn meal.

One-half part, or 10 per cent, sifted meat scrap.

When the chickens are eight or ten weeks old add one part of ground oats and increase the meat scrap to one part. This mash may be placed in a hopper, where it will not be wasted, and left before the chicks at all times.

As soon as the chickens are old enough and will eat whole wheat, cracked corn, or other grains, the small-sized chick feed may be discontinued and the larger-sized grains fed instead. In addition to the grain feed they must be supplied with grit, oyster shell and charcoal at all times, and the better way is to place these in a hopper, hanging it in a convenient place where the chicks may help themselves. If chicks are kept in confinement, they must be furnished a liberal supply of tender, green feed like lawn clippings, lettuce leaves, and such other things as may be available.

Whenever possible, however, chicks should be given grass range, when they will supply their own green feed, catch bugs, worms, etc. Chicks that are allowed to run on a grass range are usually strong and thrifty and will grow much more rapidly than those that are kept in confinement. In addition to other feeds, the chickens' growth may be hastened considerably by giving them sour milk to drink. Chickens are very fond of milk in any form and will eat and drink a liberal supply of it. It may be fed either sweet or sour, but the latter is more desirable. Sour milk will help to keep chickens healthy, and is one of the best things that can be fed to promote rapid growth and development. When milk is fed the amount of meat scrap in the mash may be reduced one-half or left out entirely.

The A. P. A. and the Coast.

Since Seattle has secured the annual convention of the American Poultry Association, breeders and fanciers of Washington, Oregon and California will be put on their mettle to secure large delegations from each: for (be it remembered) these three States constitute the leaders in poultry farming west of Denver. There will be individual Coast features of more than passing significance come up for consideration, not the least of which will be the egg from the Orient and a permanent and adequate protective tariff on all poultry products. Another factor in which our egg farmers are vitally interested will be the report of the Committee of Forty (headed by Grant M. Curtis) giving its findings on the formation of a standard that will tentatively describe the laying type of hen, with a view to harmonize it with standard qualifications—surely some subject. The attainment and results achieved by co-operation among California poultrymen place them in a strong position to influence the work of the convention along commercial and economic lines; for this reason it is desirable that the two co-operative organizations in this State send strong delegations to Seattle. The matter of exploiting the food value of hen fruit in the human dietary has been more or less a subject of discussion at annual conventions of the national body; let us fervently hope that it will take tangible form at Seattle, and that a practical publicity campaign for the greatest breakfast food on earth will be put into action at Seattle. Wider markets and a higher appreciation of eggs as human food will certainly help some to strengthen and stabilize the industry. This has been accomplished with other farm products and it can also be done with the goods of the poultry farmer.

An open front poultry house and scratching shed.

The Importance of Beauty.

In spite of all that has been said and written touching on productive values in breeding birds, the fact still remains that appearance has a great deal to do with the saleability of breeding stock, much as it controls in other products of the farm. Indeed, it may almost pass as a proverb that beauty counts first; if the stock pleases, the sense of sight the desire to possess is thereby materially strengthened. Nothing appeals more strongly than the beautiful, be it a picture, a garden, a flower, a fowl or an animal. When to this craving is added economic values, the article under consideration may be said to sell itself, the only consideration being the price—what the buyer is willing to pay and the seller demands. These two factors being decided, a sale usually follows. There is no question but correct color markings, symmetry, good head and leg points (in short, standard qualifications) have a selling value quite as important as prolificness—indeed, it is the one element that maintains type in breeds and "points" in varieties. For, after all, the average person wants attractiveness in his birds—a fact that no breeder can afford to overlook.

Information on Turkey Culture.

S. H. Sherman writes for information on a rather large subject as follows. "Will you kindly publish in the Farm and Tractor Section the best method of raising turkeys?"

Now, really, if the writer were a real turkey sharp and had mastered a really "best method" for doing anything from running a hotel to editing a newspaper, he would follow the good lawyer and ask a retainer before divulging. As with chickens, turkey practices are somewhat modified by environment and prevailing local conditions. Some few years ago The Times Magazine published a series of articles on turkey culture under Southern California conditions, which covered the subject exhaustively, and to which we refer our correspondent. In a general way he will find cultural directions in the standard books on poultry culture, which can be obtained of the supply houses or any regular book store. Incidentally, we might remark that turkeys are not the kind of fowl for limited range; they have never become sufficiently domesticated to give up their proclivity to wander from home, hence they are not adapted to the requirements of back-lotters. Given a proper environment and intelligent management, turkeys can be profitably grown in the valley and mountain regions of this State, particularly in the grain-growing sections of the San Joaquin, Sacramento and Imperial valleys, and also in the foothill regions.

Two Feeding Experiments.

Nat E. Luce, poultrymen in charge of the Glendale (Ariz.) Federal poultry experiment station, reports two feeding tests that are not without interest to commercial poultrymen. In the first, known as No. 3, thirteen S. C. White Leghorn pullets are being fed a regular standard ration for egg production, consisting of dry mash fed in hoppers kept before the fowls at all times. Grit, shell and sour milk are constantly within reach. This pen had laid from Nov. 1, 1920, to January 31, 1921, 413 eggs.

In experiment No. 4, a pen containing the same number of S. C. White Leghorn pullets out of the same parentage and fed and brought up alike until Nov. 1, 1920, the date the experiment was started, have laid to Jan. 31, 1921, 176 eggs, or nineteen and three-quarters dozen eggs less than No. 3, showing a loss in productive value in cash of $11.85 as compared with pen No. 3. This pen is being fed according to the average farm way, viz., a grain ration all they will take, without a good laying mash. They were furnished grit and shell in hoppers, and a good large alfalfa run the same as pen No. 3, but are steadily losing ground in egg production. This experiment will be carried through for the year as a practical illustration to the farmer of the fact that it pays to feed intelligently and well.

Another experiment of equal value is pen No. 2, which consists of ten late hatched S. C. White Leghorn pullets selected for type and fine headgear. These have laid a total to Jan. 31, 1921, of forty-five dozen eggs for the three months, and are still keeping up their stride. The work carried on at this station is with the one idea of showing the farmers and poultrymen the value of standard-bred stock, selected as to type and egg production, and fed proper rations to promote egg production and vigor.

Is a Laying Type Possible?

We do not mean along lines laid down by Hogan and the modern culling systems, but as to conformation, color of plumage, head and leg points. For, be it remembered, the Committee of Forty of the American Poultry Association is aiming at something of this sort of thing, the slogan being to make the beautiful more useful and the useful more beautiful. Good alliteration we admit, but can it be made to work? Commenting on this, so good an authority on poultry culture as Prof. James Dryden says: "Among other things, I decided that high egg production was due more likely to heredity than high tails. I found that I had good layers with high tails, and equally good or better layers with low tails. The same with combs. A good layer would attract my attention to a high comb, then another bird would come along with a smaller, or what might be called a small comb, and lay just as good or better, and the same appeared to be true with body, size and conformation. They laid well with long bodies, with short bodies, with big bodies and with small bodies. No one has yet set me straight on these matters. My mind is still open for convincing facts." Fecundity is evidently not wholly a matter of outward appearances; though particular matings and strains will produce certain external characteristics, nevertheless, these distinctions do not always insure excessive egg production. As we have already intimated, this committee has "some job." The results of their deliberations, to be presented at the Seattle convention next August, are certainly awaited with interest.

Stolen Turkey Nest.

A quick and easy way to find stolen turkey nests is to confine the birds from early morning to late afternoon. The laying hens will then go straight to their nests to lay the eggs which they are holding. When turkey hens have free range they nest usually in obscure places, and often wander a half mile or more from home before they find a nesting place that suits them.

If attractive nesting places are prepared about the barnyard, the turkeys sometimes lay in them. Such nests are easily made from boxes or barrels, or by scooping out a little earth in the shape of a shallow bowl, piling brush round it to satisfy the hen's desire for seclusion. The nest most preferred by turkeys consists of a barrel laid on its side, in which straw or hay is placed. When confined to a breeding pen, several turkey hens may lay in the same nest, but on free range each bird usually makes her own nest.

THROWING AWAY FOOD.

LOMPOC.—Hundreds of tons of onions have been taken from warehouses in this district and dumped in the Santa Ynes wash by ranchers who do not desire to pay warehouse expenses on the product any longer. In the wide bed of the river near Baroda Crossing can be seen piles of sacked and unsacked onions, abandoned. At present prices it does not pay to ship the onions.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

A Mixed Blessing.

UNSEASONAL weather usually occasions more harm than good for the farmers and the recent rains of May 6 to 8 have proven to be no exception to this rule, although the general deficiency in rainfall has been such during the past four years that the inch and a half which came during the recent storm was greatly welcomed by those for whom it occasioned neither inconvenience nor injury. Fruit growers in particular have expressed pleasure for this unexpected addition to the year's precipitation, as it will mean delaying summer irrigation for several weeks.

But for certain important crops May rains always mean injury and loss. The hot weather of the last week in April for many grain men meant the difference between making grain and making hay. As a result the haying season was advanced fully ten days in an already early season. Consequently the recent storm found thousands of tons of hay cut. All this must be turned and dried if it is to be saved, entailing a considerable expense and a certain depreciation in value, since the color must inevitably be bleached out.

The past two or three weeks have witnessed the planting of thousands of acres of lima beans. Every bean grower knows that cold, damp weather immediately following planting means nothing less than the rotting of the greater part of the seed, with the necessity for replanting. The activity of Rhizoctonia wireworms and stalk borers and failure to germinate are all intimately tied up with cold weather following planting.

On the other hand, for late grain, the additional rainfall will mean sacked grain instead of hay, and for beans not yet planted it will mean much more certainty of a crop. For beet growers and truck crop raisers it means less irrigation and better crops. Weather records show that not for twenty years has as much rain occurred in May as during the recent storm, which emphasizes the fact well established during the past five years, and particularly so during the present season, thet "nothing is unusual in California."

Some Queer Logic.

ARE we to become a food-importing nation, instead of a food-exporting nation, as Herbert Hoover asks, thus permitting agriculture, our chief reliance, to break down, or is agriculture in this country to be protected from foreign aggression and encouraged to keep its dominant position among the food-producing nations of the world? There are many men in Congress who seem to think that the former course would be the best thing for the American people. They are voting against an adequate protective tariff in order to "bring down the price of food," knowing well that food prices, in so far as the actual producers are concerned, have dropped to an abnormal level, far below proportionate prices of other commodities. These Congressmen believe that they are expressing the sentiments of the manufacturers among their constituents. As a matter of fact, an adequate protective tariff is more important to industrial sections than to the farmers themselves, for the farmer's prosperity is quickly reflected in increased orders for all sorts of commodities. The farmer can raise enough food for himself and get along, but the worker in the city is absolutely dependent upon a demand for his goods, and economists have shown that this demand primarily emanates from the farmer.

There is a great demand for the Nancy Hall and Porto Rico varieties of sweet potatoes this season.

NOTABLE EXHIBITS PLANNED FOR OCTOBER NURSERYMEN'S MEETING.

BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG. Secretary California Association of Nurserymen.

THE eleventh annual convention of the California Association of Nurserymen will be held in Exposition Park, Los Angeles, October 2v, 21 and 23, on which occasion the association will put on a State flower and horticultural exhibition that promises to be just a little the best thing that has ever been attempted in the way of an exposition of California's horticultural resources and possibilities. In this laudable ambition the association has secured the co-operation of the citizens of Los Angeles city and county in the way of material support and financial assistance which will insure the success of the undertaking. Originally it was designed to hold this meeting in Pasadena in conjunction with the fall flower show of the Pasadena Horticultural Society; but after looking over the field it was found that local accommodations there for a show of the character and magnitude the association has in contemplation were hardly adequate, hence the change of location. In this connection the Pasadena society has waived its fall fixture for this year, merging its exhibition with the greater effort of the State Nurserymen's Association, which will consist of a big display of economic and horticultural products under cover, and a great display of flowering and ornamental plants in open garden effects.

This area, consisting of about seven acres of ground, admirably situated in the center of Exposition Park, faced by the Armory and Exposition buildings and the Art Museum, will be planted solid to flowering and ornamental foliaged plants, work on which is now in progress under the direction of the Los Angeles Park Commission. These plantings will be so timed as to be in full bloom during the period of the convention. The dahlia, chrysanthemum, rose, annual and perennial plant displays promise to furnish a blaze of color rarely equalled in effect. In addition, there will be interspersed handsome groupings of rare shrubs and trees, both ornamental and economic. Space in the open garden is free, and plantsmen wanting to avail themselves of this opportunity to show rare varieties and perfectly grown specimens should make reservations at once, as time is limited for securing good growing effects by next October. Already there is a promise of 5000 dahlias from the State association, a large and comprehensive display of chrysanthemums, roses, and certainly a representative planting of rare shrubs and trees. Allowing for the fact that the State Nurserymen's Association (in its personnel) represents fully 75 per cent of the annual output of commercial plants and flowers in this State, aggregating millions in value, it is obvious that this exhibition will be out of the ordinary and one of the largest ever staged in America.

In addition to the outdoor garden, which of itself will constitute an exhibition of plant life, there will be an indoor exhibition literally covering the ornamental and economic horticultural products of California. The nursery, seed, florist, orchard and vineyard products will here find an exemplification that will not only typify our basic industries by reason of extent, quality and variety; but prove an object lesson in horticultural development and possibilities surprising even to the oldest inhabitant. This portion of the exhibition will be arranged along technical lines, all exhibits to be properly labeled and classified and shown on a uniform plan, thus giving it an educational value. Exhibits are already promised from all sections of the State.

In order to get the several divisions of so large an undertaking under way the following committees have been appointed, all of which are now in active operation:

Fred H. Howard, finance, Ninth and Olive streets, Los Angeles.

Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, publicity.

Walter Armacost, cut flowers, 221 East Fourth street, Los Angeles.

Charles F. Gutting, dahlias, 1417 East Fifty-ninth street, Los Angeles.

Albert Goldenson, florists, 229 West Third street, Los Angeles.

W. H. Rapp, Pasadena Horticultural Society, 800 East Villa street, Pasadena.

William Hertrich, ornamentals, San Gabriel.

O. W. Howard, gardens, Ninth and Olive streets, Los Angeles.

R. M. Teague, citrus and tropical fruits, San Dimas.

J. S. Armstrong, deciduous fruits, Ontario.

D. F. Reichard, seeds and appliances, 439 South Main street, Los Angeles.

T. H. Wright, premiums, 224 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.

Paul J. Howard, entertainment, 1550 West Seventh street, Los Angeles.

John C. Bodger, concessions and admissions 1427 Ridgeway street, Los Angeles.

John J. Reeves, housing and decorations, Beverly Hills.

The association is now devising rules and regulations to govern the exhibition, cash awards and special premiums, and such other preliminaries as occasion may demand. In due time its literature will be ready for mailing. It may be had either from Roy F. Wilcox, president, Montebello, or Henry W. Kruckeberg, secretary, 236 Court street, Los Angeles.

Breaking up the garden soil on a suburban acre.

AN UNDERSTANDING OF SOILS IS IMPORTANT IN GARDENING.

BY ROSS H. GAST.

THAT the amateur gardener should know the nature and peculiarities of his soil is imperative. To obtain the best results from its tillage, he should be equipped with certain simple facts concerning soil formation, classification and soil moistures. These are the most important factors in any agricultural activity, from a gardon plot to a plantation, and without an understanding of them, it is impossible to prepare the seed bed properly.

Our elementary geographies and agricultural text-books taught us that the earth's surface was at one time uniform in shape, and composition, and that the present formation is due to subsequent shiftings, and chemical changes. Rocks were broken up and powdered by the action of the heat and the cold, the wind, water, and the slow grinding of the glaciers. Many generations of minute plants flourished and died, and as they decomposed, added "humus" to the powdered rock, thus making it possible for the higher plants to grow. Humus is decayed vegetable matter, and it contains many valuable properties, and plant foods. It will lighten heavy and soggy soils, while its presence in sandy soils aids in the retention of moisture. So in spading under a quantity of vegetable refuse each year, we keep up the normal content of humus in our soil, and make it richer in plant foods.

In and about the city of Los Angeles, we have seventeen kinds of soils. It is not necessary for the home gardener to be familiar with all of them, nor even the commercial grower. It is sufficient that we know the general characteristics of the clay, the loam and the sand soils, with a few of their most important mixtures. And we should be especially interested in that type of soil which we are to cultivate.

Soils that contain over 30 per cent clay, together with silt, are called clay soils. They vary in color, according to the mineral and organic matter present. The red clays which are commonly called "adobe" have their color from the iron that was present in the rocks that went toward their formation. Clay soils are heavy and compact and take water and air slowly, nevertheless they are considered strong soils. When wet, they "puddle," and in drying they "bake" or form a hard crust that is impossible to break up into a desirable mulch.

Of all soils, clays are the most expensive for the farmer to cultivate, as he must hit upon that certain point between wetness and dryness, when all clays crumble easily, to do his plowing, or cultivating. It is impossible to state the exact time that the home gardener should cultivate after a rain, or an irrigation. He must experiment and find out for himself. The sooner he learns the oddities of his particular soil, the sooner he is successful in producing good crops.

The real adobe is a clay soil that has typical qualities, as shown by a peculiar stickiness, when wet, and a tendency to break up in cubes when dry. We have more of this type in Southern California, than the true clay soil. Adobes are usually poorly drained, on account of their low positions, but can be improved by frequent cultivations and the addition of a liberal amount of humus. In the home garden, some sort of an artificial mulch will help a great deal toward bringing the plants through the soil. Some gardeners use grass cuttings, straw, and on small plots, even strips of cloth or paper.

THE LOAM SOILS.

The loams are the most desirable of all soils. We have more of the sandy loam type in our locality than any other of the loams, and they are the most valuable, and important soils in our State. They are smooth, open and have high capillary power, rendering them desirable for the home gardener. Those who wish to go in for diversified farming will find the sandy loam best suited for their purpose. The acre farmer had best put the nature of the soil before the desirability of location, when he fares forth with the checkbook.

Sand soils are not as rich in plant foods as the other types, but if they have not been abused, will prove good garden soils, especially if they can be irrigated frequently. They do not hold moisture well, and where the subsoil is not heavy, only fertilizers that act quickly can be used. The reason for this is that the fertilizers are carried down beyond the reach of the roots before the plants can benefit by them.

Sand soils are improved by a judicious application of well rotted humus, or, in small plots, a load of heavier soil. Frequent irrigations during the summer months are im-

WALNUT IMPORTS.

The United States imported 31,890,832 pounds of walnuts valued at $8,497,838 during 1920, compared with 31,496,977 pounds, valued at $9,302,603 during 1919. Of the total quantity imported during 1920, 15,818,025 pounds [illegible] shelled and 16,072,807 pounds, unshelled. France, China, Italy, Japan and Spain were the chief source of imported walnuts during 1920.

The following table shows imports of walnuts by countries during 1919 and 1920.

Imported from—	1919 Pounds	1920 Pounds
France	8,519,292	14,718,220
Italy	6,360,433	5,411,393

China	7,080,192	6,701,431
Japan	2,092,933	2,630,600
Other countries	1,378,108	1,096,148

During 1920 the United States re-exported 736,658 pounds of foreign walnuts and 341,566 pounds during 1919.

several big canneries of Southern California. The letter says that the warehouses of the canneries are stocked to the overflowing with canned goods for which there is no market. Canned goods are now being sold at prewar prices and yet they are not moving fast enough to insure emptying the warehouses before the next crop comes in. Unless the wholesalers and the retailers co-operate in a campaign to move these stocks, the fruit grower and farmer will suffer loss. No contracts will be made for the fruit and produce he grows because the canneries, having big stocks on hand, will not be canning fruit. If these stocks can be moved, then the contracts will be made. The apricot growers have already learned this for very few contracts are being made for fruit by the canneries this year and many of the growers are planning to dry their fruit. The merchants here agreed to join the movement, which it is hoped will be State-wide, in an effort to move the fruit which is now being held in storage.

MILK PROVES UP WELL.

BAKERSFIELD.—Seventeen dairymen of Kern county are producing milk of less than 10,000 bacteria count per cubic centimeter, it was reported here by County Dairy Inspector G. P. Penfield, who, during the past month, inspected 122 dairies, making milk tests and investigating sanitation conditions, which he reported are very good here.

SOLVE LABOR PROBLEMS.

BANNING.—The Banning Drying Company is proceeding to equip its plant on the acreage bought recently from J. R. Fountain. To the drying equipment purchased with the site has been added that of the Gilman Home Company and Parker Rose. The directors of the company have ordered through the Prune and Apricot Growers Association 5000 new three-by-six trays and 2000 new forty-pound boxes. The members of the company own 250 acres, one-third prunes and two-thirds apricots. Their present plans are for the drying of prunes only, as the demand for apricots, green and canned, will take care of Banning's crop this year without drying more than a small proportion of the crop. This pooling of the drying interests at a central location will help largely in solving the labor problem, which is a serious difficulty of the small rancher who lives far out.

BUREAU HOLDS MEETING.

YORBA LINDA.—The Orange County Farm Bureau recently held a mass meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Day of Yorba Linda. About thirty members, and others interested were present. Cake and sandwiches, with coffee, were served by the hostess during the evening. A. L. Lovelace of Berkeley, State organizer of the Farm Bureau Federation, was the speaker. Mr. Lovelace said he had a message for everyone on public utilities, which subject he handled very ably, C. S. Millican of the Fruit Growers' Exchange, and Mr. Kellogg of this city each had a message. Murry Horne of Huntington Beach, president of the county federation presided.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

COSTA MESA.—At a recent meeting of the Costa Mesa Farm Center the following chairmen of committees were chosen: J. W. Wherry, project and demonstration; W. W. Middleton, roads; H. B. Woodrough, light and telephone; H. M. Halliday, public utilities; L. P. Bauman, boys' club; E. V. Minor, packing-house. George Gardner has offered the Farm Center the use of his building as a community hall.

TALK HOG POOL.

VENTURA.—There is a movement on foot among hog raisers of the county to form a selling pool, plans having been formulated by Farm Adviser Staunton. Among the leaders in the movement to sell pork cooperatively are Edward R. Maier of Santa Susanna, Gwyn Thurmond of Saticoy and Mr. Helms, a breeder of fine Hampshires at Del Rio.

GIRL FATTENS PIG.

SANTA PAULA.—Josephine [illegible], aged 13, member of the Briggs Boys' and Girls' Pig Club, bids fair to take the prize for quick fattening of a porker. In 121 days, her pig gained 143 pounds. A pig fattened by Gordon Clow of Santa Paula weighed 258 pounds last week, an average daily gain of 1.4 pounds, and John Knight, the Ayres boys, Billy Mills and Fallman Kelsey also report great gains in weight on the part of their pigs.

APPLES UNDAMAGED.

YUCAIPA.—No damage whatever has been done to the apple crop in the Yucaipa district by recent frosts and only the early varieties of apples in the Oakglen district suffered. The Oakglen crop will, therefore, be close to an average one, as the crop promised to be exceedingly heavy. In Yucaipa there is a 300 per cent crop as compared to last year. It is believed that there will be fully 1,000,000 boxes in the valley this year. The work now before the apple grower in Yucaipa is the thinning out of the fruit, so that the trees can carry the crop. One grower took an average tree and, after thinning, he found that the tree bore more than 800 apples. This means at least five boxes to the tree, and it is believed that the average will be close to that. It is too early to make an estimate of the entire amount of fruit from the valley this year, some damage having been done to cherries and peaches, but there will be at least 2500 cars of fruit.

POULTRY EXCHANGE FORMED.

BRYN MAWR.—This is to be a great season for the poultry ranches of this section, it is believed. Egg production for the spring months has been heavier per hen than for several years, the poultry men claim. The price of eggs has dropped, but the growers claim that they are getting better feed and getting it for about half what they paid eighteen months ago. The spring has been open and the little chicks have had the very best chance to grow. Because of the warm days lice have been more prevalent, but they are being controlled. The poultry men believe that egg production will continue to be good. A poultry exchange has been organized and hen fruit is being disposed of at less cost to the poultry ranchmen.

FARM CENTER FAIR.

ONTARIO.—Plans just announced by the Chaffey Junior farm center for holding a farm-center fair on the Chaffey High School campus here June 3 and 4 are attracting widespread attention in the farming and ranching districts hereabouts. Many exhibits showing the various lines pursued by the students in agriculture at Chaffey College will be placed on the grounds and there will also be booths for the sale of refreshments. Among the exhibits will be goats, rabbits, swine, sheep, poultry, while truck farming and citrus culture will be represented by displays. Among the important features of the fair will be an exhibition of Guernsey, Jersey and Holstein cattle.

GINNING SEASON CLOSES.

BAKERSFIELD.—The cotton ginning season is at its close in Kern county. Approximately 6000 bales were ginned in this county during the season in four gins, two of which were co-operative, one operated by a company of growers and one, the largest in the county, by a private company. The Magunden gin of the Kern Cotton Gin Company, three miles east of Bakersfield, handled 3700 bales during the season, discontinuing operation this week. The seed crushing mill at this gin will continue to operate until the season's run of seed is crushed and the remaining stock of cotton seed cake for cattle feed is marketed.

TEXAS MELONS COMPETE.

BRAWLEY.—Growers and shippers of cantaloupes in the Imperial Valley are concerned over the reports from the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas that several cars of well-netted cantaloupes were sent out of the valley to market the first week in May, an early record never achieved by Imperial growers, who are sending only small express shipments as yet. In the district around San Benito and Santa Maria, Tex., there will be 200 cars this season, it is reported, and hundreds of growers are reported to be preparing to go into the business next year.

Reports from Egypt indicate that the cotton acreage in 1921 will be considerably smaller than in 1920. It is stated that in some instances less than one-fourth of the usual amount of planting seed has been sold.

Farm News of the Great Southwest.

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

RIVERSIDE.—A committee appointed by the Riverside Chamber of Commerce to investigate the carob as a feasible crop for this vicinity (as was being advocated for a certain large tract) has filled a lengthy report of its findings. Conclusions which may be drawn from the report are decidedly unfavorable to the carob as an investment. The report includes a survey of the carob industry in Palestine, Algeria, Portugal and the Hawaiian Islands, where the tree is grown on a commercial scale, showing yields obtained, prices received and general growing conditions. While climatically Southern California is a suitable locality for the carob, probable yields and annually returns, in the opinion of the committee, do not justify it as an investment on good land.

The Riverside cannery of the California Growers Association will not operate this summer. Frost has destroyed so much of the fruit in tributary districts that what remains is insufficient to run the cannery. Nuevo and Covina report practically no apricots and peaches; Hemet has a 25 per cent apricot crop and a peach crop only 50 per cent normal.

LATE FROST DAMAGE.

BANNING.—A late and unexpected frost spotted the lower sections of this district with blighted fruit. The freeze came Monday morning, April 25, following in the wake of a cold west wind. Prunes and apricots suffered most. Damaged areas were small and scattered throughout the lower parts. Grapes, even in the warmer foothill district, were blighted, but apples and pears, just at the tender stage of bloom, on the mesa escaped untouched.

VINEYARDS PROJECTED.

WINCHESTER.—This district has been under investigation as a possible location for the establishment of an Italian vineyard colony. New York interests, through their agent, Mr. Mauhetti, have been making studies of soil, climate, water and availability of tracts of large size. None of the findings have been made public, but Mr. Mauhetti expressed himself favorably toward the Winchester Valley, stating that the first year some 500 acres would be set out by way of experiment, to be followed, if successful, by the planting of several thousand acres.

TO SUPPORT CHAMBER.

PERRIS.—The local farm center voted recently to give full support to the Chamber of Commerce in its protest against the filing on 1000 inches of water in the San Jacinto River by the Temescal Water Company. County Farm Adviser R. E. Nebelung suggested the extension of farm center activities to include civic programs and a committee was appointed to outline such a program for the coming year. O. H. Cash was re-elected director for the ensuing year.

REPORTS ON CHERRIES.

BEAUMONT.—A report of a brief survey of the cherry industry by R. L. Wilson, horticultural inspector, contains the following facts: There are 600 acres of cherries in the Beaumont district. Last season's crop is estimated at over 200 tons, of which about 30 per cent was sold direct to the consumer. Of the table varieties, Bing, Lambert and Black Tartarian were shipped without precooling as far as El Paso, Tex. The Royal Ann is the leading canning variety, though the sour or "pie" cherry is increasing in demand.

PRUNING DEMONSTRATION.

LA CANADA.—Deciduous fruit growers will assemble in the orchard of B. J. Kirst, on Michigan avenue, on May 16, to witness a deciduous pruning demonstration by Farm Adviser Hodgson and Assistant Farm Adviser Blanchard. The proper method of summer treatment of deciduous trees will be shown and general problems of opruning and care in summer will be discussed.

FARM CENTER PICNIC.

DOWNEY.—The Downey farm center has decided to hold its annual picnic on June 11 at the Los Angeles County Farm, near Hondo. An elaborate program has been arranged for the picnic, including a livestock judging demonstration, a tile-laying lecture and a demonstration on the reclamation of alkali lands. Music will be furnished by the high-school orchestra and a male quartette. Talks will be made by agricultural experts.

SUMMER CITRUS INSTITUTE.

WHITTIER.—Citrus growers of Los Angeles county will be interested to learn that the Board of Directors of the California Citrus Institute have accepted the joint invitation of the Whittier Chamber of Commerce and the Whittier Farm Bureau center to hold the summer meeting of the institute at Whittier. The date for the meeting has not been set as yet, but will be some time in the latter part of June.

WANT TO SELL HUGE RANCH.

BAKERSFIELD.—David Brown, secretary of Miller & Lux, holding corporation for the vast empire left by Henry Miller, land baron, who rose from a butcher boy to the largest individual land holder in the country, has announced that the California lands of the company are for sale. These are valued at $40,000,000, the acreages being as follows: 500,000 acres in the San Joaquin Valley and 500,000 acres elsewhere in California and Nevada. According to a statement made during Mr. Miller's lifetime, other holdings have included seven million acres in Oregon, one million acres in Fresno county and three and one-half million acres in Nevada. Miller & Lux recently petitioned the Kern county Board of Supervisors to form a large reclamation district in this county, but the petition was denied and the land company has taken the case to the State Supreme Court to compel the Supervisors to grant the petition.

GOOD RECORDS REPORTED.

WASCO.—A herd of milch cows belonging to J. L. Sebastian of this community has established a high record among Kern county milk producers, it was disclosed through an inspection conducted by Dr. C. H. Searr, county live-stock inspector. Zilda Segis Walker, eighteen months old, in seven days yielded 315 pounds of milk from which 13.70 pounds of butter was made. Amelia Segis Pontiac, mother of Zilda, a three-year-old, in a week gave milk which produced 24.56 pounds of butter. The heifer, Alpha Aggie DeKol, twenty-two months old, yielded in the hebdomadal period 381 pounds of milk, from which fifteen pounds of butter was made. Duchess Elizabeth Victoria gave 574 pounds of milk productive of twenty-six pounds of butter in the seven-day period. The cow, Thornless Cactus 2, produced 686 pounds of milk that yielded twenty-three pounds of butter in the single week.

GOOD QUALITY HAY.

RIALTO.—In the neighborhood of 1000 acres is being devoted to the growing of oats and other hay crops around Rialto this season. While the ranch growth of last season is not in evidence, the quality is thought to be finer and with better supply and a market of falling prices it is quality that counts. Most of the hay is now being harvested, although some later fields will be left standing for a week or two yet.

A GROWING INDUSTRY.

ONTARIO.—"Ontario Brand Home-Made Orange Marmalade." Under this label the fame of Ontario is being carried afar by the delicious products of John L. Belden & Co. A few short months ago Mr. Belden, with Mrs. Belden as "chief cook and bottle washer" and using the kitchen of their home at 714 South Euclid avenue as an embryo factory, decided to launch forth on the manufacture of orange marmalade. Already the plant has outgrown the kitchen, for it is now housed in a small but well-equipped preserving plant, just erected, adjoining the Belden residence. From a small beginning with orange marmalade the Beldens have already branched out into orange jelly and strawberry jam and later they expect to put up blackberry and loganberry jams and jellies and loquat jelly. In the new factory Mrs. Belden is still the "chief cook," though she leaves the "bottle washing to others and she knows exactly what goes into every jar filled.

SURPLUS HURTS GROWERS.

REDLANDS.—The merchants of the city, at a recent meeting, went on record as willing to do anything possible to help the farmers and fruit growers who are fearful of a heavy loss due to the great stocks of canned fruit now on hand in the canneries. A letter was read from a committee from

GROWERS ORGANIZE TO MARKET FRUIT.

VICTORVILLE.—The fruit growers of Victor and Mojave Valley have organized an association for the purpose of packing and marketing the fruit of this section. They have incorporated as a co-operative non-profit association, under the name of the Mojave Valley Fruit Association, with seven directors. The officers are: A. W. Foster, president; C. H. Godshal, vice-president, and John Christenson, secretary-treasurer. Headquarters are at Victorville, a building on the railroad tracks at Victorville having been secured for a packing-house. It is well suited for that purpose and will be used until the association can build a packing-house of its own. It is the intention of the association to affiliate with the California Fruit Exchange as a selling medium. It is believed that nearly every fruit grower in this section will join the association.

It was estimated that at least seventy-five cars of fruit would be shipped out of this section this ser but frosts have done some damage to fruit here, peaches and pears having suffered most. The extent of damage is not known at this time. Apples promise a good crop.

About eighty-five acres of grapes have been planted in the Victorville section this spring, mostly Muscats and Thompsons Seedless. Former plantings have proven that a good quality of grapes can be grown here.

BLACKBIRDS SPREAD ENTRITIS.

PRESCOTT (Ariz.)—Necrotic entritis, a disease akin to cholera, has caused the loss of about half the hogs of Yavapai county and veterinarians are at work trying to save the remainder by serum treatment. Infection is said to have spread largely through infection carried by blackbirds

PREPAREDNESS

In time of low prices and slow demand for farm products, prepare for the brisk demand that must follow as surely as day follows night, or sunshine follows storm. NOW is the time to clear that idle land and have it ready to raise a crop when there WILL be a demand for it. I have had years of experience in the use of dynamite in farm and orchard work; blasting out stumps, breaking boulders, blasting drainage and other ditches, breaking up hard-pan, etc. I know the how and the why of it and, moreover, I will not advise you to have work done that I think will prove unprofitable to you, for the sake of the few dollars I might make from it. Dozens of my satisfied customers will tell you this. I am not afraid to refer you to any of them.

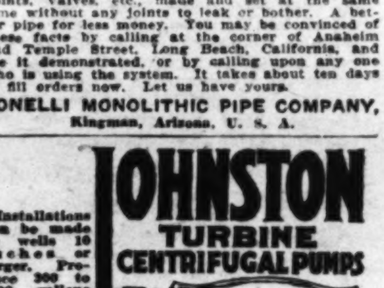
Bonelli System Monolithic Concrete Pipe for All Purposes.



PATENT ALLOWED.

Concrete when properly mixed and poured wet between two forms as contemplated in the Bonelli System, and then allowed to remain contained between the forms for from twenty-four to forty-eight hours before removing the outside forms, makes a concrete pipe that will not leak at all after a few days' time, and will stand a pressure according to the thickness of the wall you make and the reinforcing that is put in it. We pour as many feet or miles as are desired making a continuous jointless pipe with all Ts, Crosses, Elbows, Outlets, Gates, Stand Pipes, Plugs, Expansion Joints, Valves, etc., made and set at the same time without any joints to leak or bother. A better pipe for less money. You may be convinced of these facts by calling at the corner of Anaheim and Temple Street, Long Beach, California, and see it demonstrated, or by calling upon any one who is using the system. It takes about ten days to fill orders now. Let us have yours.

HOME-MADE POULTRY HOUSE IS EFFICIENT.

Editor Farm and Tractor:

Very likely there are many people in Southern California who would like to have a small, neat, convenient chicken house. For the benefit of those who have not yet "doped out" anything definite I am glad to tell of my experiences along that line.

Successful Poultry Horse.

It is on the place of S. D. Barger in Alhambra and is described on this page.

The place I first rented when we came to California had the usual makeshift chicken house made of old store boxes and roofing paper. The next place had no chicken house at all, but a nice-sized yard, so I proceeded to make a small house by building a skeleton of small boards and covering it with roofing paper. When I moved onto a place of my own I decided to have something more satisfactory than either of these.

From two Government Bulletins, one entitled "Poultry House Construction" and the other "Simple Trap Nests," I figured out what I thought would be about right for my requirements. The result of my plans has proven extremely satisfactory after nearly a year's use. The enclosed kodak picture of it will give you an idea of how it looks.

My lot faces east and is fifty feet wide. My chicken yard is on the rear twenty feet of my lot and extends more than half way across the lot, about twenty by thirty feet in all. In the northwest corner of my chicken yard (just as close to both the west and north fences as the building permits allow) I built a chicken house eight feet wide by ten feet long, five feet high in the rear and seven feet high in front. The ends and back are solid, and the door is in the south side, thus avoiding all chances of drafts through the house. After taking the door space out the lower half of the balance of the south side was boarded up and the upper half covered with poultry netting. A canvas curtain is dropped over this open netting whenever weather conditions require it.

Against the north side is a roosting platform, three feet wide, supporting two roosts ten feet long. Under the roosting platform, hung to it by hooks and eyes, there are eight trap nests made in two units of four nests each. The roof is of rough boards covered with three-ply roofing paper.

Now to answer the universal questions of "How many chickens can you take care of?" and "How much did it cost?" It will easily house twenty-five to forty chickens, according to breed. We have thirty-five R.I. Reds and they have plenty of room. The entire cost of material, including nails, hinges, hooks, etc., was $27.80, and this about a year ago. No labor charge has been figured, as I built it all myself during my "spare time." However, I kept fairly good count of my time and feel sure that thirty-six hours' work covers everything from the time I laid the foundation till I had the triggers fixed on the trap nests.

If you should feel disposed to publish any or all of this letter, and there should be any readers who might like more detailed information or who might like to personally give my product the "once-over" (especially the trap nests) I can be found at home nearly every day between 9 a.m. and noon and will be glad to give anyone any assistance I can.

Your magazine has been of considerable help to me in my work of caring for my place, and I am always glad to hear what others have actually done here in this soil and climate.

REMARKABLE RECORD OF TEST ASSOCIATION.

The report of the western office of the Dairy Division of the United States Department of Agriculture on cow testing work throughout the western part of the United States during the month of March shows Los Angeles county cows again well in the lead in all classes.

The most notable instance in which Los Angeles county cows lead is in the average production for the month of all cows in the association. There were 3285 cows tested in the Los Angeles county association during March, with an average production of 39.2 pounds of butter fat per cow. The nearest competitor in this average was one branch of the Ferndale Association in Humboldt county, with only 127 cows under test during the month, with an average production of 39.1 pounds of fat, a slightly lower production, but with a much smaller number of cows. It may also be noted that the Ferndale Association has been operating for thirteen years while the Los Angeles Association has been operating less than three years. There are no other associations, testing a number of cows comparable with the number tested in Los Angeles county, that even approximate the production made by the cows in the Los Angeles Association.

A Los Angeles county herd was also first in herd average. The herd of Fred Hartsook, at Lankershim, returned an average of 60.3 pounds of butter fat per cow for the entire herd of forty-one cows. The nearest competitor was in the Ferndale Association, with an average of about five pounds less than that obtained by Mr. Hartsook, and with a smaller number of cows.

Another notable record made by Los Angeles county cows was in the class for the first five cows in each association. In this class Los Angeles county led with an average of 112 pounds of butter fat per cow, for the best five cows. The nearest competitor was the Ferndale Association, in which the best five cows produced an average of 92.7 pounds of butter fat, almost twenty pounds of butter fat per cow less than the Los Angeles county cows produced.

THE POSSIBILITIES IN BEE-KEEPING.

BY G. W. BERCAW.

The possibilities in bee-keeping, for the beginner are measured by the limitations of one's zeal and energy of application. A man or woman with ordinary intelligence and physical ability may handle bees and make a success of it if he or she will really work at the business. The investment is small as a rule by comparison with the net results that are possible. An apiary, however, should be regarded a business and must have due care and attention, at the proper time and season, by someone who is interested in bees.

Bees are subject to the ravages of disease, and also have natural enemies, similar to those found in other insect life. These diseases are easily detected, and readily controlled if taken in time. On every trip a bee makes to the fields of nectar it must face its enemies, sometimes in the air, and again in the blossom. Many are called to the fields—never again to return to their homes.

A beginner should start with a few colonies, and the natural increase will occur as one's enlightenment and knowledge of bee habits grows. Of course, bees will sting; it is their natural weapon of defense, provided for them in nature's great plan. Study their habits and ways, and this fear of stings will gradually pass away, and handling them will become fascinating, and an interesting study as well, whether they be kept for pleasure or profit. Do not consider that a complete knowledge of bee-keeping is absolutely necessary for the successful handling of bees, although it is advisable, if a person is suitably located, to engage for a season with some good practical up-to-date bee-keeper and get a lot of practical knowledge of the industry before venturing personally into it.

California is the largest honey-producing State, and ships annually several hundred cars of honey to other markets, besides, exporting considerable of the product under normal business conditions. It would seem that the possibilities, at the present time, are fully as good as they have been in past years. The environments of the industry have changed some in the past ten years in California, and constant changes are taking place in the economic situation. In many localities some few years ago, large bee yards were prospering there, now towns and cities are to be found. This has naturally compelled the bee-keeper to seek other pastures and locations. In all lines of industry we find new, improved equipment, machinery and appliances and it is the same in the bee industry. Bees are now transplanted from place to place by truck, gasoline power runs the honey extractors and there have been many changes. The successful bee man, like others, must be up to date.

DAM NEARS COMPLETION.

VAN NUYS.—Activity is manifest at the site of the Stone Canyon dam, back of Encino Acres. A large number of teams and over 200 men are at work throwing up the embankment. The dam is being built by the city of Los Angeles to provide additional summer storage, and it is believed that it will be ready for the summer irrigating season.

Uncle Sam has counted the hens on the ranches and farms in this country, also the number of eggs that farm-raised hens lay in 12 months' time—it is 69.

Compare this with the returns in eggs, per hen, from the properly fed, bred, and housed hens here in Southern California, where records of 310 eggs per hen per year are an actual fact, established, not merely by one single hen, but by several hens, all with actual trap nest records for every day in the year.

These as well as more than one-half million OTHER HENS in Southern California, are fed each and every day in the year on

QUALITY OF WORKMANSHIP AND MATERIALS EVERYTHING IN PIPE.

THERE are some 25,000 miles of concrete irrigation pipe in use in Southern California at the present time, it is estimated. Rapid developments in machine methods of manufacture have facilitated the making of good concrete irrigation pipe to the point where today the fabricating of such pipe is recognized as an industry of considerable importance.

The use of concrete pipe for the conveyance of irrigation water dates back to the early days of the citrus industry in Southern California, thirty-five or forty years ago. Following the first decade of its use, it fell into more or less disrepute, owing to the many failures which showed up on the first systems installed. With improved methods of manufacture and increase in knowledge concerning the proper mixing of concrete for pipe making, concrete irrigation pipe has come back, and this time to stay. The past decade has seen its use become almost universal, particularly as a means of conveying costly irrigation water to the thousands of acres of citrus and deciduous fruit orchards of the Southland.

For the manufacture of satisfactory concrete pipe there are a number of essentials that should be borne in mind. By good irrigation pipe is meant that sort which lasts practically indefinitely improving with age, and which will withstand considerable internal pressure and resist external disintegration. It is possible to so manufacture concrete irrigation pipe that these essentials are achieved. It is also possible to put together cement, sand and gravel to form irrigation pipe in such a manner that at the end of four or five years disintegration has set in and the pipe is valueless.

USE ONLY GOOD CEMENT.

Of considerable importance is the quality of the cement used. Most of the cement now placed on the market by reputable manufacturers is of good quality. However, no cement should be used except that passing the standard specifications set by the American Society for Testing Materials. Cement which has been stored under improper conditions and has hardened should not be used.

In the selection of the aggregate lies much of the success in the manufacture of concrete pipe. The sand used should be clean. It is in the use of sand which is not clean, but which contains considerable quantities of silt and organic matter that one of the commonest mistakes is made in the manufacture of concrete pipe. Such pipe does not last. Washing all sand used will prove a profitable investment.

Up to standard.

Good concrete when broken up shows breakage through the stone particles in the aggregate as well as in the cement itself. In other words, it is as solid throughout as the stone.

Either crushed rock or good hard, clean gravel may be used. While tests have shown that the former gives as strong a concrete as the latter, crushed rock is given the preference by many manufacturers. No matter which is used, however, of greatest importance is the proper proportion of different sized material in the mix. By the proper grading of the various sizes of rock or gravel and sand, the densest concrete is obtained and it has been found that the strength of concrete hinges upon its density, as it does also upon the class of materials used. Because of the deficiency of fine material in the natural sand, the addition of from 5 to 10 per cent by weight of rock dust is desirable to increase the density of the pipe. The size of the rock used depends upon the thickness of the shell of the pipe. In no case should it exceed one-half of the thickness of the shell.

Thoroughness in mixing is a highly important item in the strength of concrete pipe. Mixing should be done in a batch type mixing machine, which has been found to give the most uniform mix. Sufficient water should be added to give the consistency of damp sand. Care should be taken, however, to see that all material is thoroughly wet, else lack of uniformity in setting occurs and poor pipe is the result. An advantage claimed for the machine-tamped pipe is that in this method of manufacture the concrete is on the average somewhat wetter than in the case of the hand-tamped article.

CURING IS IMPORTANT.

Curing is of great importance in determining the durability of cement pipe and failure to properly cure pipe is one of the most common causes of poor pipe. For proper curing, the pipe should be kept wet until the mortar has not only set, but has hardened. This usually requires a minimum of seven to ten days, but two weeks or longer is preferable. An occasional wetting is not enough; the pipe must be kept wet. For the first twenty-four and preferably forty-eight hours the pipe should be protected from the sun. A much better job of curing can be had where the pipe is exposed to saturated steam for twenty-four to thirty-six hours. Pipe cured in this manner can be loaded and shipped within forty-eight hours after manufacture. Premature setting is occasioned where pipe is improperly cured in too dry an atmosphere. The importance of curing cannot be overemphasized, for it is in this field of pipe manufacture where the most neglect is apt to occur. Unless properly cured, cement pipe never attains the strength of which it is capable.

RECORDS TO DATE IN SANTA CRUZ CONTEST.

In the short month of February the fifty-four contesting pens of ten hens each entered in the California Farm Bureau egg-laying contests at Santa Cruz made an average of 69.2 per cent, while the March production went to 70 per cent. This is an increase of slightly better than 22 per cent over the January production of 47.2 per cent and over 10 per cent higher than the February production of the 1919-1920 contest, which was 59 per cent.

The average feed consumption for February and March was 10.7 pounds of grain and 14.2 pounds of mash, or a total of 24.9 pounds of grain and mash per 100 hens per day. Electric lights are used in the morning only and now go on at 5 a.m. They will continue to be used till daybreak advances to the 5 o'clock hour. The morning feed of grain is fed in the litter after dark each night and the morning lights are turned on by an automatic alarm clock.

Highest February honors were won by the Oregon Agricultural College pen of Barred Rocks, which established a new monthly record by laying an average of 8.25 eggs per day for each of the ten competing hens, or 82.5 per cent for the month. This pen also won first ribbon for highest hen for February, one hen laying twenty-seven eggs in twenty-eight days. This hen also tied for first place in January, with a hen owned by J. H. Hansen of Corvallis.

The O.A.C. Barred Rocks could not continue to hold their lead during March, but dropped back considerably, a Leghorn pen owned by Hollywood Farm, Hollywood, Wash., again taking first place, with a yield of 252 1-3 eggs, after holding the lead the first two months of the contest and losing out in January and February. A pen owned by Geo. Gray of Santa Cruz won second place for March with a yield of 251 eggs and a pen owned by D. B. Walls of Petaluma stood third with a production of 250 eggs.

For February, in addition to the O.A.C. Barred Rock pen which won first ribbon, a Hollywood Farm pen came second with a monthly production of 229½ eggs, while the third ribbon was won by a pen entered by J. H. Hansen, Corvallis, Or.

The leading hens for February were a Barred Rock hen entered by the Oregon Agricultural College, first, with a yield of twenty-seven eggs, a hen owned by D. B. Walls, Petaluma, a hen owned by Alex. Stewart of Santa Cruz, a hen owned by Warren Wood of Santa Cruz and a hen owned by Hollywood Farm, Washington, tying for second place with yields of twenty-six eggs each. A third place was so easy for this aggregation of superlative layers that nineteen different hens tied for third ribbon.

[illegible] in March, a hen owned by J. H. Hansen of Corvalis, Or., won the first ribbon, with a score of thirty eggs in thirty-one days, a Barred Rock of the Oregon Agricultural College and a White Leghorn entered by D. B. Walls of Petaluma, tied for second ribbon with a score of twenty-nine eggs each, and eight other hens tied for third ribbon with scores of twenty-five eggs each.

At the close of the fifth month of the contest the five high pens had averaged 66 per cent in production for the period. Such records indicate what can be done by skillful breeding in the production of heavy layers.

The five high pens to April 1st are owned as follows:

Following are the records for individual hen entries to April 1st:

J .S. Conrado, Santa Cruz, 121 eggs; Hollywood Farm, Hollywood, Wash., 120 eggs; La Rita Trapnest Farm, Santa Cruz, 119 eggs; Charles Lehman, Santa Cruz, 118 eggs; George Gray, Santa Cruz, 118 eggs.

All birds, except where otherwise indicated, are Single Comb White Leghorns. Fractional figures in pen yields, due to floor eggs, are equally divided among the three entries in each pen.

GOATS NOT IMMUNE FROM TUBERCULOSIS.

For the information of those who regard the goat as being nonsusceptible to tuberculosis infection, the California Department of Agriculture calls attention to the following citation taken from an article prepared at the Department of Veterinary Investigation, of the Iowa State College, at Ames:

"The goat has long been considered highly refractory to tuberculosis infection, a supposition based on limited observation and experimentation. On the basis of the assumption that the goat is rarely tuberculous, the substitution of goat milk for cow milk has been extensively made as a prophylactic measure against human tuberculosis.

"The fact is, that tuberculosis in goats is not nearly so rare as has been thought, and the false security felt by those using goat milk because of the belief that there is no possibility of transmission of tuberculosis is a dangerous thing! While it will have to be admitted from the evidence at hand that the disease is probably far less prevalent among goats than among cattle, nevertheless its occurrence must be recognized, and a warning should be sounded. Physicians, who have given unqualified recommendation concerning the use of goat milk as a product wholly free from tuberculosis infection, should bear in mind the possibility of the transmission of the disease through that agent."

QUEER EGG MARKET.

TULARE.—With the announcement of the Poultry Association here that prices of eggs were 19 cents for "firsts" and 15 cents for "seconds" came the realization that this was the lowest price in more than five years. In March, 1916, the price of eggs dropped to 14 cents for "firsts" and 12 cents for "seconds." This year the market is going contrary to precedent, it is stated, in that, instead of rising after the March low level, prices have continued to fall. This condition is accounted for by heavy production and a flooded market in the East. The California market is slightly better than the eastern market.

Keep young chicks apart from the mature fowls; they will develop faster.

The Livestock Bulletin.

While the estimated value of the herd had been placed higher, the figures at which the animals sold were deemed good, considering the unfavorable conditions of the livestock and agricultural business at the present time. In arranging for this sale the Oregon Guernsey Breeders' Association announced that its primary object would not be financial, but rather to supply the demand for good Guernsey breeding stock for the founding or building up of young herds in the Coast country.

Morris C. Allen, manager of Winsor ranch of Bonita, informs us that this popular Southern California ranch is adding new equipment for its growing dairy department. This will make the output easier to handle and will make the plant the last word in modern and sanitary appointment. The wholesale milk sales from the ranch are increasing daily, so rapidly, in fact, that it has been found necessary to purchase more additional stock to meet the demand. Pure-bred Jerseys make up this high-class herd of dairy cows. In the hog department optimism also reigns. A fine crop of pigs, with very good average litters from the big herd of Duroc-Jerseys, forecasts a successful season. Sales at Winsor ranch have been good, shipments having been made chiefly to California and Arizona points. The most notable were to Mr. Myers of Chula Vista, Cal.; L. L. Brentner of Carpinteria, Cal., and to J. E. Franklin, Somerton, Ariz. Mr. Myers, who is now making extensive experiments with citrus by-products, took thirty-four pure-breds last month, while Mr. Brentner purchased several prize-winning gilts to put in his Carpinteria herd. Mr. Franklin purchased the year-old boar, Winsor Sensation, a son of the fine show sow, Model Defender Lady, for use with his Somerton ranch herd. He is very much interested in getting good stock into the valley and believes the only way to do this is to select good registered boars. Mr. Franklin expects to raise hogs quite extensively, as he is in a position to raise his own alfalfa and corn. Mr. Allen also reports that the large citrus plantings at Winsor ranch are in excellent condition, the lemon crop for the summer being the best yet seen on this ranch.

On Alfalfa Pasture.

Registered Hampshire hogs at Rio Hondo Ranch, Compton.

At the Toyon farm dispersion sale of Holsteins, on April 20-21, an average of $397 was made on the entire offering. The top price was paid for the good bull, Sir Aaggie Mead, grandson of Aaggie Acme of Riverside, the famous cow with a record of 1331.7 pounds of butter from 24,690 pounds of milk in 365 days. W. J. Higdon of Tulare and Borror & Son of Tipton secured this bull for $9250.

Following is an interesting communication from Orison Bragg, a 14-year-old pig club boy of El Centro:

"In 1919 a number of boys at the High School in Corona (Riverside county) formed a pig club, and with the help of the Pig Club Adviser, we each picked out two hogs, one registered sow for breeding and one ordinary one for pork. We borrowed the money at the bank to pay for the hogs and to pay for feeding them, and when I sold my porker I had enough money to pay for both hogs and for what it had cost to feed them. I kept the brood sow; she is of the famous King Big Bones type of Poland China hogs. Later on the W. H. Rough ranch at Riverside held a pig show, featuring the Big Bones Poland China hogs. I entered a contest, guessing the weights of hogs of all ages and sizes, and won the prize—the best four weeks old pig they had on the ranch, also, of course, of the Big Bones type. The things that I like about the Big Bones type is the fact that they get much bigger than other Poland Chinas, and their closely set bones makes them show better. My prize pig weighs about 300 pounds at a year old, and has been valued by expert hog men at $500. I showed her in the Los Angeles County Fair last year, getting her ready and taking care of her myself. The Pig Club adviser told me how to get her in good condition, and she took several prizes. With a good line of hogs started, my two years' experience and what I learned from the Pig Club, I think I will be able to raise some good show hogs here.

ORISON D. BRAGG.

Ferdinand R. Bain of Los Angeles has only recently purchased Gamboge's Majesty's Falcon, the nine-months-old bull calf sired by the great Jersey sire, Gamboge's Royal Majesty, who was third prize two-year-old bull at the 1918 National Dairy Show, and a bull that carries 75 per cent of the same blood as Sybil's Gamboge, the Jersey bull that sold in 1919 at public auction for $65,000. This youngster is a line-bred double great grandson of Imported Oxford Majesty, the first prize bull at the Royal Show in Jersey in 1913 and the sire of the grand champion cow at the National Dairy Show of 1917 and 1918. Gamboge's Majesty's Falcon has for a dam, the good cow, Imported Golden Lustre, the first prize two-year-old at Syracuse and Brockton in 1919. She was sired by Fern's Oxford Noble, first prize bull at the Royal Show at Jersey in 1917 and sold by the Thomasville Livestock Company of Thomasville, Ga., to P. H. B. Frelinghuysen of Morristown, N. J., for the reported price of $25,000. Fern's Oxford Noble was sired by Golden Fern's Noble, a bull that has sired seventy-seven tested cows and thirty-one producing bulls, besides winning first in a class of twenty-nine entries at the Royal Chow in the Isle of Jersey in April, 1921. Mr. Bain purchased this calf from David O. Mills, proprietor of Inderkill Farm of Staatsburg, N. Y., and will place him in his select Jersey herd on his ranch at The Palms.

STAGE ALL SET FOR BIG VALENCIA SHOW.

ANAHEIM.—The stage is all set for the opening on Tuesday of the first annual California Valencia Orange Show, an event that its backers hope will bring the Valencia orange before the world as never before and one that will be a fit companion for the great National Orange Show, held at San Bernardino each year. The mammoth tent, 130 feet by 340 feet, which will house the citrus and many of the industrial exhibits, has been in place two weeks and the final touches are being made upon the displays. The big show is now in the final making and everything will be in place by 12:13 on Tuesday, May 17, when President Warren G. Harding is scheduled to open the citrus exposition by transcontinental telephone from the White House in Washington.

At 3:13, Washington time, the Chief Executive will take the transmitter in hand and speak the words which will open the show at 12:13, Pacific Coast time. Chairman Herman Stern of the show committee and Mayor William Stark will be on the receiving end of the wire, in the orange show tent, and will transmit the President's congratulatory message to the assemblage, officially opening the show. During the ensuing days approximately 100,000 people are expected to enjoy the orange show attractions. The show will open at 10 o'clock each morning after Tuesday and remain open until 10:30 p.m. The hours on next Sunday, the closing day, will be from 1 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. only.

From all over California have exhibits been gathered for this great exposition, and Valencias, lemons, grapefruit, avocados and all the other fruits now in season will be shown in settings most attractive, in numbers most inspiring and amid decorations unusual that cost nearly $10,000 to install. An exhibit of nearly 100 fine canvasses by well-known artists, a baby show and free checking nursery for babies, a fashion show, music by the best orchestra and singers obtainable, and a broad midway with many amusement attractions are among other features arranged for the week.

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR THE BEE INDUSTRY.

BLYTHE.—Palo Verde Valley has for the past five or six years shipped out honey in carload lots. The 1920 season credits the valley with about 125 tons of fine-grade honey. To date there have been no crop failures among the bee-keepers that have devoted their attention to the bees. While the honey is of high grade, however, this is not a district of large yield. Experience has proven, too, that in this district very large apiaries are not a success and that from 100 to 150 colonies is enough for most localities.

The native wild blooms of the Colorado River districts are willows, mesquites and arrow weeds. This wild bloom produces a greater yield than the cultivated crops. During the season of 1918, however, a good crop of cotton honey was produced. Alfalfa and the other cultivated crops are not allowed to bloom long enough to give the bees the benefit. The prospects for the coming season are brighter than ever for a heavier yield, due to the ideal spring the valley has witnessed.

Understand Soils.

perative, and with no other soil is the preparation of a good mulch as important.

Sand soils are especially valuable for early truck crops, as they hold the heat well and have good drainage. Many acres of sand soil, formerly thought to be worthless, have been found capable of producing a large variety of crops. The orchards in the vicinity of Wineville are an example of this.

Good Cultivation Brings Results.

But whether your soil is the clay, the loam, or the sand, you must know the rudimentary principles that govern all soil preparation and tillage.

SPRINKLING EXTRAVAGANT.

Fully nine-tenths of the home gardens that I have visited are being sprinkled—usually once daily. As the primary object of the home garden is economy, any saving in water alone is to be considered. Sprinkling is extravagance. The idea is all wrong. It is like paying blackmail for a past mistake, the past mistake in this case being the improper preparation of the seed bed, and the neglect in the conservation of moisture through subsequent irrigations.

An intelligent foundation is imperative in any activity. Gardening, however humble, is not exempt. When the plot is first laid out, it should be thoroughly soaked to a depth of three or four feet, insuring a reserve reservoir beneath the surface that will suffice for many days. As soon as the soil is workable, it should be spaded up, raked level, and laid off in rows that can be irrigated.

After the seed has been planted and carefully mulched our reserve supply of moisture begins its work. Through the minute soil spaces the moisture rises to the surface like oil in the wick of the old style oil lamp. Coming to the surface, some of the water passes off into the air, but if the soil has been carefully mulched, most of it is retained. The moisture that is held will be sufficient to germinate the seed, and to nourish the plant until it is large enough to irrigate. During this time, the plant will seem in need of water, throughout the day, but the next morning will find it fresh enough. If the seed bed has been properly prepared before planting, the small plants should not need an irrigation for two weeks after the seed is placed in the ground. In sand soils, it is usually advisable to irrigate after the first week. This is not a theoretical system that has been tried out only on paper, but the system the farmer is taught by actual experience.

After the plants are large enough to cultivate, the water should be applied between the rows. The water absorbs the plant foods, and the roots absorb the water. A good cultivation the following day increases the value of an irrigation. Any practical gardener will tell you that one cultivation a tthe proper time is worth two irrigations. The practice of sprinkling daily should be avoided. As it packs the soil, the air does not have a chance to penetrate to the roots. Such vegetables as sweet corn, potatoes, beans and tomatoes are injured by the spray of the hose upon the foliage and the injudicious application of water around the base of the plant. Sweet corn is easily stunted when small, and potatoes will be scabby and ill-formed, if the hills are saturated with the sprinkler. String beans rust, and mildew, and the blossoms of the tomato will fall, when the gardener goes a-sprinkling.

If sprinkling is absolutely necessary, it is best to water the plants thoroughly one day, and follow up with the cultivation, then it will not be necessary to sprinkle for several days. It costs only a little elbow grease to cultivate, and if the sprinkler is applied incessantly, the result is apparent when the bills come rolling in.

Then study the ways of your soil. Experiment with it. Ascertain how soon you may safely cultivate after an irrigation. Intelligent application will bring satisfying results. Plan your garden so that it may be irrigated easily, and if it is already on its way, throw the sprinkler in the ashpan, and furrow the garden for irrigating. Then if the garden does not improve, the writer will agree to ship a load of ice free to any Eskimo tribe the gardener may name.

To irrigate with the hose, tie a piece or cloth over the nozzle end, then set it in each row in turn. And do not forget the value of the subsequent cultivations. It is upon the conscientious and timely duties with the hoe, that your success depends.

RHODES GRASS TEST, IN CLEARWATER DISTRICT.

CLEARWATER.—A test of Rhodes grass on land heavily impregnated with alkali, is being made on the McClure ranch, near this town, and is being watched with interest by farmers who want some sort of grass for their alkaline pastures. A. L. Musser of Los Angeles, who is making the test, declares that Rhodes grass will give a permanent meadow pasture, and that it is suitable for conditions found in this district.

Many ranchers are considering the merits of Australian rye, Phalaris stenoptera and Paspalum dilatatum for an all-year-ro und pasture, and researches by Prof. Kennedy of the university farm at Davis, seem to show that the grass would do well here. An abundance of water is necessary for starting Rhodes grass, but once it is started, according to those who have planted it, the grass has great resistance to alkali, and will thrive in both heavy and light soil, spreading rapidly by stolons from the ent plant.

To destroy grasshoppers scatter poisoned bait at the rate of from seven to ten pounds per acre.

STATE MILK PRICES REPORT INTERESTING.

Milk producers are paid more for their milk on the San Francisco market than dairymen receive for their product in Los Angeles, yet the San Francisco consumer pays less than the Los Angeles consumer. At least this is concluded from the April fluid milk report made by the Federal Bureau of Markets.

The report gives the dealer's cost price in San Francisco, per hundredweight, on a 3.5 per cent basis as $3.60. The dealers' cost in Los Angeles is $3.50, and in San Diego, $3.67. The dealer's selling prices to the retail trade per quart in San Francisco is 15 cents, in Los Angeles 16 cents, and in San Diego 17 cents. To the wholesale trade, the San Francisco dealer delivers milk in dozen bottle cases for 12 cents per quart, while the Los Angeles dealer gets 15 cents per quart from the wholesale trade.

SWINE PRICES DROP.

TULARE.—Middle western swine, shipped into the markets of this State, is reported as one of the reasons for a local break in swine prices, noted at the last bi-weekly sale of the California Farm Bureau Marketing Association. Five cars of hogs were offered by local producers, who received a top price of $9.45 and from that to $8 for all except rough heavies. This was a considerable drop since the previous sale.

WANT A BUFFALO BULL?

It is announced that the Federal government will give away twenty male buffaloes, now on range in Oklahoma. The number of bulls in the herd of 150 in that State is increasing more rapidly than the cows and one buffalo bull each will be given to individuals or institutions that can care for them, as long as the supply lasts. These males must be surrounded by a twelve-foot double-ply wire fence.

NIGGARDLY FEEDING DEVELOPS THE RUNT.

Niggardly methods of feeding and caring for farm live stock are unprofitable. Seventy-five per cent of undersized and undeveloped animals, according to a summary of more than 700 opinions advanced by live-stock owners, are due to inferior breeding, inadequate or unsuitable feed, and pests, such as parasites and insects.

The remedy is the better care of better stock, and the cost of this remedy, in the opinion of practical farmers, is much cheaper than the expense of continuing to raise undersized and slow-maturing domestic animals. Better raise one good cow than two poor ones—a runt is nothing but expense all its life.

The growing of onions requires more work for man and horse per season than any other crop.

GROWERS TO UNITE FOR BETTER RATES.

That the citrus, vegetable, apple and deciduous fruit industries of the Pacific Coast will combine in a battle to obtain radical amendments to the Transportation Act of 1920 was the statement made public recently by C. C. Teague, president of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange and of the California Walnut Growers' Association. Characterizing the act as the "most vicious Federal statue ever enacted," Teague stated that it had brought the heavy tonnage producing industries of the Pacific Coast to the verge of ruin.

The Transportation Act of 1920 authorizes the Interstate Commerce Commission to establish railroad rate schedules which will earn 6 per cent on the combined railroad properties in the United States.

"By this act the Interstate Commerce Commission is charged with fixing rates on the shippers of the United States that will produce an earning on billions of dollars of worthless property," declared Teague, "roads which should never have been built, roads which on account of improper location or lack of business tributary to them, do not, never have and never can, produce an earning that would pay interest on their cost.

"This iniquitous Transportation Act pools all these worthless railroads," he continued, "with the good roads of the country and decrees that the shippers must pay freight rates that will produce 6 per cent earnings on this combined capital.

"In an attempt to produce this earning, rates were advanced while the roads were under government control, 25 per cent in 1918 and again 33 1-3 per cent by the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1920. The result is that these rates are prohibitive to many classes of freights and the whole scheme is an absolute failure, both from the standpoint of the railroads and shippers.

"The tonnage of the carriers has so fallen off that they are not doing business enough to produce the 6 per cent. Industry in many cases is paralyzed due to the excessive rates."

DELEGATES SELECTED FOR FARMERS' JUNKET.

President Robert H. Neely of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau announces that the annual Farm Bureau Conference excursion will be held this year May 23 to 28 inclusive. The participants will leave Berkeley at 8 o'clock a.m., May 23, the trip ending at Bakersfield, Saturday evening, May 28. Los Angeles county will be represented on this trip by three delegates. The delegates as appointed by President Neely, together with the alternates selected are, W. S. Rosecrans of Gardena, Claude Stone of Pasadena, Ralph McNees and Walter W. Wood of Whittier, William R. Harriman of Downey and Mark Grimes of Van Nuys.

BLACK PEACH APHIS CONTROL IS URGED.

In a number of peach districts the black peach aphis has recently shown up. This aphis is one of the most destructive insects attacking the peach, and is particularly difficult to control, on account of the fact that it has two distinct forms; that appearing on the leaves and fruit in early spring, and an underground form which carries the insect over from season to season. Where this insect becomes prevalent in large numbers, injury is frequently very severe. Sometimes the entire crop is destroyed.

For the control of the above ground forms, dusting with 5 per cent nico dust is advised by the Agricultural Extension Service, or liquid spraying, using one and one-half pints Blackleaf 40, six pounds of whale oil soap, and water to make 200 gallons, is generally effective. Dusting with nico sulphur dust, containing 5 per cent Blackleaf 40, is a combination material advised to control both peach aphis and red spider, where the latter also exists. For control of the underground form, the best method yet known consists of the use of carbon bisulfide. Four or five holes, eight to ten inches depe, in a radium of from eighteen inches to two feet from the trunk of the tree are made, into each of which is poured from three to four liquid ounces of the carbon bisulfide, the holes then being covered. It is important that the liquid does not come in contact with the roots, however, as it is likely to kill them.

CALIFORNIA POTATO BARRED FROM OREGON.

California potato growers and shippers must devise some method of fumigation at the time of shipment to Oregon points, according to opinions expressed at a conference held monthly at the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce by representatives of the County Horticultural Commission, potato growers, shippers and quarantine officers.

The meeting was called for a discussion of new quarantine regulations issued by the president of the Oregon State Board of Horticulture, known as the Amendment to Quarantine No. 3. This is a prohibition against the entry of California potatoes which have not been properly fumigated and certified before shipment. Oregon fears the tuber moth, and amended its quarantine regulation to exclude California tubers, to prevent the introduction and spread of this pest.

The meeting was not called to take definite action, but to have Charles A. Park, president of the Oregon State Board of Horticulture, present the situation, with reference to Oregon and California. The meeting followed a similar one recently held in Sacramento.

Shippers and growers present voiced the general opinion that while they could not take exception to Oregon's action, potatoes would not be shipped from this State so long as the present regulations exist. It is believed that this conference, followed by others, will arouse interest in some method of fumigation at the time of shipment which will assure the destruction of the designated pest, and protect the grower or shipper from loss by confiscation.

KIDNEY BEAN EXPERT EXPLAINS HIS METHOD.

CHINO.—As a result of the success of A. W. LaForge in growing red kidney beans last season scores of farmers are planting them this year, and the Chino section promises to become an important kidney bean growing district because of the evident adaptability of this crop to the soil and climate of Chino.

Mr. LaForge first started growing kidney beans in 1917, when he planted but three pounds of seed. He saved the 150 pounds of seed of the 1917 crop and planted them against the advice of the State College of Agriculture and the local bean buyers. Last year he secured a yield of 1300 pounds per acre and sold the beans f.o.b. Ontario at 10 cents per pound. This year he will increase the amount of seed sown per acre to forty pounds and set the beans closer together, in twenty-four-inch rows. After the plants are large enough to be ditched out so that they will not be covered up they should be irrigated and ditched out again, with the soil thrown well up to the plant, he says. The soil should be kept quite moist until they ripen. After the leaves start to fall they should be cut and shocked.

The Livestock Bulletin.

By Robert T. Evans

The College of Agriculture of the State University reports that 372 cows entered in the State dairy cow competition produced during the month of March an average of 1233 pounds of milk and 49.87 pounds of butter fat (average distance from freshening 100 days.) Two Holstein cows owned by the Palo Alto stock farm produced over 100 pounds of butter fat during the month. These were Alta Pappoose, 118.93 pounds, and Alta Johanna Princess, 107.72 pounds. The former yield is equivalent to nearly four and one-half pounds of commercial butter for each day of the month—a very remarkable production. It is stated four cows produced between 90 and 100 pounds of butter fat during the month, fourteen between 80 and 90 pounds; and twenty-three between 70 and 80 pounds. The "California Cultivator" prize for March was won by F. F. Pellissier of Whittier for average production by five grades of 75.70 pounds of butter fat. Grades in nineteen herds in the State competed for this prize during the past month, ranging in average production from 75.7 to 26.7 pounds. Entries in the competition closed on March 31 with total enrollment of 1325 cows, of which 764 were entered in the competition for monthly or ten-month records and 561 for yearly cow-testing association records. The different breeds were represented as follows: Among the pure-breds—Ayrshires, 6; Guernseys, 36; Holsteins, 130; Jerseys, 98; Shorthorns, 15. Among the grades—Ayrshires, 6; Guernseys, 69; Holsteins, 225; Jerseys, 600; Shorthorns, 22, and common or "scrub" cows, 113. The cows were owned by seventy-one different dairy farmers or breeders located in twenty-one widely scattered counties, from Del Norte in the north to San Diego and Imperial counties in the south.

Imp. Cherry III of the Effards.

Top-priced animal at recent Hollow Hill Farm dispersion sale. She was purchased by Dr. W. Wessels of San Diego for $1325.

Caledonia Farms of West Sacramento will hold its third public sale of registered Shorthorns at the farms on May 25. This sale of fifty head of Shorthorn cows and bulls offers the cattlemen of today an opportunity to select breeding material of prominent blood-lines that will help to build up high-class stock farms, and to those who are now engaged in the production of grains and hay it will offer an opportunity to get well-bred cattle for turning these crops into cash. Caledonia Farms has built up a wonderful herd of Shorthorns and has for its leading herd sires the good bulls, Imp. Caledonia, Gainford Matchless and Pine Grove King. Imp. Caledonia is one of the most valuable bulls that has been imported in recent years. He is by the Duthie bred bull, Proud Emblem, and out of the wide, deep, low-set cow, Rosewood 105th. Gainford Matchless is a son of the great sire, Gainford Marquis, for ten years winner of the get-of-sire class at the Canadian National Exposition, and out of a Matchless dam. He was first as a senior yearling at the Chicago International, and grand champion at San Francisco in 1919. Pine Grove King was sired by King Cumberland and he by Cumberland's Last by Cumberland. The forty cows that go into this sale are bred to one of these three good bulls or have calves at foot to the service of one of them. Included in the sale will be ten head of young bulls. Charles L. Hughes, manager of the California Breeders Sales and Pedigree Company of Sacramento, will conduct the sale, while the auctioneers will be Col. Ben A. Rhoades of Los Angeles and Col. John A. Davis of Manteca.

On May 27 the Finnell Stock Farm Company will sell its entire herd of ninety-eight head of registered Hereford cattle on the Finnell farm at Galt, Sacramento county. In the offering will be found twenty-nine cows with calves at foot, twelve of these calves being sired by the well-bred bull, Beau Blanchard 37th, and sixteen by Sir Thomas. There will be a total of sixty-two cows and heifers in the sale, eighteen of them being daughters of Beau Blanchard 37th, twelve by Freighter 8th and eleven by Sir Thomas. The thirty-six bulls which sale are an exceptionally good lot of rugged individuals, nineteen of them being sons of Beau Blanchard 37th and fourteen being by Sir Thomas, and all of them should prove adaptable to range conditions. Owing to a general change in the plan of operating the ranch through the planting of a large acreage of grapes and fruit trees, it has been deemed advisable by the Finnell stock farm to dispose of its herd of registered stock. The sale will be under the management of the California Breeders Sales and Pedigree Company of Sacramento and the auctioneer will be Col. Ben A. Rhoades of Los Angeles.

A Good Shorthorn Heifer.

She is owned by F. L. Hall, Perris, and was exhibited at the recent Riverside County Farm Bureau Picnic on the Sierra Vista Stock Ranch.

George M. Brown announces that Burr farm of Los Angeles and Agee Bros. of Rivera will hold a combination sale of registered Holstein cows on June 9 at Burr farm. Further particulars in regard to this high-class offering will appear in the next issue.

William R. Harriman, superintendent in charge at the Los Angeles County Farm, reports the sale to J. J. Rebai of La Mirada of the bull, Prince Gerben Abbekerk Mead, out of a young A.R.O. daughter of Beryl Luecke DeKol and sired by a thirty-four-pound grandson of DeKol of Valley Mead 2d, former holder of the world's record for two successive years' butter production under full age. DeKol of Valley Mead 2d will also be remembered as the dam of Miss Valley Mead DeKol Walker, with 36.8 pounds of butter in a year at the age of pounds of butter ni a year at the age of three years. This sale is of particular interest to the County Farm, as Mr. Rebai bought another bull from this herd on Aug. 3, 1917. This was King Clifton DeKol of Los Angeles county, a son of the former herd sire, King Jones Homestead. Mr. Rebai is now milking about fifty-five cows, including fifteen heifers sired by King Clifton, which he says are the most persistent milkers he ever handled in thirty years' connection with the dairy business. This fact is directly responsible for this second purchase from the County Farm herd.

In the death of J. Henry Meyer of San Francisco at his country home in San Mateo, Cal., in the early part of April, the Ayrshire breed lost one of its latest but most enthusiastic adherents. His little herd at Elkhorn Farm, recruited originally from the Willowmoor herd, Highland Farm and Canadian sources, has during its relatively brief existence taken a leading position among Ayshire herds on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Meyer was an enthusiastic showman but was no less interested in the ability of his cows to stand high on the rolls of the advanced registry. More than this, he was interested in a broad way in the development of Ayrshire interests on the Coast where he felt that, as a breed, they had not yet come into their own. In the business conduct of his herd it was not so much the immediate profit that concerned him as the laying of a foundation for the development of a wider interest and fuller appreciation of the breed in a comparatively new field. Mr. Meyer's son, J. Hillegas Meyer, who shared his father's ambitions to make the Ayrshire better known and appreciated throughout the West, will carry on in the development of the Elkhorn herd.

Keen interest and lively bidding marked the Peer sale of imported Guernseys which was held at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition pavilion at Portland on April 26. Breeders from California, Washington and Oregon attended the sale of the fifty fine imported animals offered. The top price of the sale was $1125, paid by Clyde E. Niles of the Riverview farm at Grants Pass, Or., for the heifer Lady Jane's Beauty II. Two other animals went to the $1000 mark, or above, one of these being Lady Gay, a seven-year-old cow bought by R. B. Magruder of Clatskanine, Wash., for $1065, and the other Lady Richmone II, for whom A. D. Calkins of Battleground, Wash., paid $1000. The average for the sale was about $535, and the total sales reached $26,210.

THE MEAT SITUATION IN THE PAST YEAR.

There was less meat produced, less exported and less consumed in the United States last year than in either of the two previous years although the consumption in 1919 and 1920 varied but little, the great change being in the exports. These and other facts are brought out in a series of tables recently compiled by the Bureau of Animal Industry showing the annual status of the meat situation for the calendar years 1907 to 1920 inclusive.

Beef growers made their supreme war effort in 1918 and during that year sent to market 15,750,400 animals, which yielded slightly over 7,500,000,000 pounds of dressed beef. This number has never been approached before or since. In two years the cattle slaughterings have fallen to 12,176,400, with an accompanying decline of 1,500,000,000 pounds in beef production.

The exports of beef products fell from 728,000,000 pounds in 1918 to 164,000,000 pounds in 1920. This was to be expected as the United States for several years before the World War was not a beef-exporting country. South America and Australia are now the great sources of cheap beef and mutton.

Ten years ago the consumption of beef per head of the population in the United States is shown to have been 78 pounds; last year it was not quite 56½ pounds. Beef consumption in the American household has undergone a great change during this time, especially in reducing waste.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the drastic meat situation in recent years has been the increase in the production and use of veal, the per capita consumption of which increased from 5.3 pounds in 1916 to 8.5 younds in 1920. The demand for calf products has caused a steady increase each year for the last six years and calves marketed in 1920 more than doubled the number sold in 1914 and 1915. True, the consumption of veal in 1920 was little more than one-seventh that of beef and one-ninth that of pork, yet the fact remains that it is the only class of domestic meat that has made a consistent annual gain in recent years.

The table showing sheep and lamb slaughtered is marked by considerable irregularity. The slaughter was greatest from 1911 to 1914, after which it declined for three years, then increased for two years and in 1920 again declined.

Exports and imports of mutton and lamb have been almost negligible until last year when New Zealand frozen lamb carcasses were imported in large quantities, making an epoch in the trade. The total weight imported during the year was 101,000,000 pounds, nearly one-fifth of the total domestic production of both mutton and lamb. It is not to be assumed, however, that this is the beginning of a permanent trade of such magnitude. The importations, in a sense, were merely an incident due to the war.

The New Zealand product, as well as that from other sources, normally is absorbed by the English market, but the unusual conditions following the war caused the British last year to be overstocked and the meat found an outlet in this country. This quantity of lamb, it may be remarked, is of somewhat less significance on the other side than it is here, since, according to figures previously published, the average Briton consumes relatively about seven times as much mutton and lamb as the average American, while the average for France is nearly four times as much.

Consumption of mutton and lamb in the United States is only about six pounds per person per annum and is very small compared to beef and pork. It is smaller even than veal, of which about eight pounds per person is consumed.

Pork production in 1920 fell considerably below the high record made in 1919 when marketings were unusually large, owing to the high prices prevailing during a part of that year, including the highest ever paid for live hogs. Nevertheless, the consumption of pork was slightly greater in 1920 because of the heavy decrease in exports. The exports of bacon and hams fell off more than one-half, the totals for these two items in round figures being 1,787,000,000 pounds sent abroad in 1919 and 822,000,000 in 1920. The exports of lard, however, almost held their own, decreasing only 20 per cent. This was because Germany, our second-best customer for this commodity, was again in the market for quantity and took 128,000,000 pounds, which was within less than 1,000,000 pounds of the total taken by United Kingdom, always the chief consumer.

The highest recorded production of all meats combined occurred in 1918, when slightly over 18,000,000,000 pounds (excluding lard) was prepared for home consumption and export. In the two succeeding years the production declined at the rate of 1,000,000,000 pounds a year. Owing to decreased exports the consumption in 1919 and 1920 was nearly stationary

MODERN IMPLEMENTS REDUCE THE LABOR OF HANDLING HAY CROPS.

BY ARTHUR L. DAHL.

OVER $1,000,000,000 worth of hay is grown in the United States each year, and it costs over one-tenth of this amount to harvest the crop, for hay is one of the bulkiest and heaviest of the feeds grown on our farms. American farmers have the reputation of doing more of their work by machinery than any other people on the globe, and a lot of labor, time and money can be saved if the most efficient methods are followed in putting up the hay crop.

In a survey of hay-making practices made by the Department of Agriculture it was found that a great deal of labor is annually wasted in hay harvesting. This does not mean idleness, but rather wrong methods, improper management or imperfect implements, for when all these conditions are right a saving is effected all along the line—a saving in the physical efforts of man and animal, in time consumed in the operation, and in the cost of the work. When tractor power is used, a greater efficiency still is accomplished.

By using the proper implement at every stage of the hay harvest, the maximum of work can be performed with the minimum of labor. This was demonstrated last season in the South, when an agricultural agent saw, on the same afternoon, a crew of twelve negro laborers turning by hand, a heavy yield of alfalfa and Johnson grass hay. With their pitchforks, these men did not accomplish as much work in a day as a single individual, with a two-horse team pulling a hay tedder, did in an adjoining field.

MOWING AND CURING.

The first stage in harvesting hay is mowing, and here a considerable saving can be effected by using the proper size of mower. By far the larger number of farmers use a machine that makes a five-foot cut, and with this size it is possible to cut but about nine acres in a day. If the size of the mower is increased to cut an eight-foot swath, the same man can do two-thirds more work in a day than with a five-foot blade, and his labor charge will be reduced from 50 cents to 30 cents per acre, according to the department's findings, or more than enough to justify the investment in the larger implement. It is true that the larger size will require more power to operate, but with the almost universal use of tractors this power requirement can be met on the average farm, or if animals are depended upon an extra horse can be added to the team in order to save the man power.

The quality of hay depends largely upon the way in which it is cured, and in this cur-

Quality in Pipe.

There are two methods of manufacture in general use, the main difference being largely the method of tamping, hand tamping and machine tamping. Equally good pipe can be made by both methods. Machine tamping is perhaps the more desirable, however, on account of less dependence upon the human element. For this reason, together with the fact of a somewhat wetter cement mix being facilitated, machine-tamped pipe is usually given the preference.

STANDARD SPECIFICATIONS.

For the purpose of improving the standards and quality of concrete pipe, an organization of Southern California pipe manufacturers was effected a little over a year ago. This association maintains a field department for the purpose of furnishing accurate information to prospective pipe users concerning their needs in the way of pipe, as well as for the laying out of irrigation systems. The department has testing equipment and makes tests on all sorts of concrete pipe on request, there being no charge attached to this service. Every member of the association is required to manufacture concrete pipe measuring up to the standards set by the association and which have been adopted by the American Society of Civil Engineers.

The standard specifications adopted by the association for reinforced concrete pipe are as follows:

Quality—All pipe shall be first quality, free from cracks, or other imperfections that are detrimental to the work, and shall be dense and tough.

Dimensions—All pipe shall be designated by their interior diameters. The length and thickness of shell shall be optional.

Materials—All pipe shall be made of first quality Portland cement, sand and rock. Gravel or broken stone shall all pass a one and three-fourths inch screen, but in no case shall exceed one-half the thickness of the shell of the pipe. All cement used shall conform to the latest specifications of the American Society for Testing Materials. The materials composing the aggregate shall be graded to fill voids as nearly as practicable and shall be clean and suitable for the work. No hydrated lime, alum, soap, asphaltum, oil or waterproofing compound, or any materials other than cement, sand, stone and water, will be permitted in the manufacture of the pipe.

Mixing—Mixing shall be done by a machine of the batch type and shall be continued for at least one minute after all the water is added. The amount of clear water to a one-sack batch, aggregate being dry, must not be less than three gallons for machine-made pipe, and not less than six gallons for hand-tamped pipe.

Curing—All pipe shall be kept thoroughly wet for a period of seven days. It shall bear the date of manufacture and shall not be sent to the trench until of an age satisfactory to the engineer in charge.

Testing—Hydrostatic test. Pipe thirty days old of the dimensions given in the following table shall withstand a momentary hydrostatic pressure in pounds per square inch as follows:

Diameter in inches	Thickness of shell in inches	Pressure in Pounds per square inch
6	1 1-16	71
8	1¼	63
10	1⅜	55
12	1½	50
14	1⅝	46
16	1¾	44
18	1⅞	42
20	1⅞	38
22	2	36
24	2¼	38
26	2¼	35
28	2⅜	36
30	2½	33
32	3	38
34	3	35
36	3	33

If the thickness of the shell is other than that given above, the pressure to which the pipe shall be subjected shall be determined by dividing the radius into 200 times the thickness of the shell.

The pipe irrespective of its diameter, shall show no leakage under a hydrostatic pressure of fifteen pounds per square inch maintained for a period of five minutes. Water merely penetrating the shell of the pipe and adhering to its surface shall not be considered leakage.

Facilities for testing—The pipe manufacturer shall provide, without charge to the purchaser, all necessary labor and equipment for making the tests specified for testing. These tests shall be made under the supervision and at the request of the purchaser or his engineer.

In co-operation with the agricultural extension service of Los Angeles county, during the first week in May some eight field demonstrations were held in various farm bureau centers, where concrete pipe testing was done by the field department of the association. The two classes of pipe, wet mix and dry mix, were tested and the importance of good irrigation pipe was emphasized.

In testing done at these demonstrations some very interesting results were brought out. Very good looking hand-made pipe showed heavy leakage at a pressure of less than two pounds and burst at five pounds, while some less attractive appearing machine-made pipe did not show leakage until under forty pounds pressure and resisted bursting until a pressure of seventy-five pounds was reached. The variation in the two classes of pipes as shown by the tests, however, is probably not entirely because of the different methods of manufacture, but is more likely attributable to the quality of sand and rock or gravel and the amount of cement used.

LARGE ACREAGE IS PLANTED TO GRAPES.

BAKERSFIELD.—A total of 4760 acres of vines have been newly-planted in Kern county during the current planting season, as compared with 1200 acres planted during all of 1920, according to County Horticultural Commissioner Harold Pomeroy. Thompson seedless were the favorites in this year's planting, 3275 acres being set to Thompsons; 645 to Emperors; 555 to Malagas; 230 to Muscats and 65 acres to miscellaneous varieties, including Rose of Persias, Alacanters and Sultanas.

Kern county is declared by authorities to be entering on a great era of development in viticulture. Among the largest planters are: The Earl Fruit Company, with 1920 acres under improvement in the Weed Patch district; Wylie M. Giffen, president of the California Associated Raisin Company, also cultivating 1920 acres in the Weed Patch; and Herbert C. Hoover and Ralph P. Merritt, who are devoting a large portion of their 2500-acre farm near Wasco to vines.

Prof. Frederick T. Bioletti, head of the department of viticulture of the University of California, has just completed a series of demonstrations in planting, pruning, pinching, use of sulphur in preventing mildew and training of young vines held in various sections of the county.

VAN NUYS.—The half-rate for irrigation in the San Fernando Valley expired April 30. During the short period it was in effect the department sold over $40,000 worth of water to the farmers in the annex. The greatest amount of water was used in the Owensmouth district, where the sales totaled about $17,000. In the San Fernando district the sales were $13,000 and in the Van Nuys district, $10,000. The total number of applications received for water was about 3000. During the month of April the volume of water used in the valley was three times greater than in the same month in 1919 and 1920. It is estimated by W. B. DeNure, in charge of the Van Nuys water office, that about half the water was used for flooding the lands, while the rest was used in growing crops and young orchards.

Fifty-one gallons of strawberries for market from a patch of forty-eight "Trebla" plants set out in June, 1920, is the record reported by R. W. Huntley on his ranch on West Sherman Way. This amount is only up-to-date, and Mr. Huntley expects to secure at least 100 gallons before the season is over. The record also does not include the berries consumed at home or given away.

A new garlic-producing section has developed in the San Juan district, eighty miles south of San Francisco, having an area of about 400 acres and yielding, perhaps, seventy-five to eighty-five sacks per acre. Most of this crop probably will be shipped as car lots and may fill 150 cars.

Handling Hay.

ing process two important changes take place in the plant. It must throw off a considerable amount of surplus moisture, and it must undergo a chemical change known as heating or fermenting. To the extent that the farmer controls these changes can he govern the quality of his hay.

Where a tedder is part of the farm equipment it can be used to great advantage in kicking up the hay and allowing it to cure evenly. To get the best results, the tedder should follow the mower from two to six hours later, and before the grass has dried out, for then it is apt to break off the dry leaves. Where wind and other conditions are favorable for quick drying, some farmers ted the hay twice in the same day.

SIZE OF RAKE.

The size of the rake used will have a decided influence upon the amount of work performed by a single individual. An eight-foot one-horse rake might be the proper implement to use on a small acreage, but for a larger one an increase in its size will effect a considerable saving in time. Thus a twelve or fourteen-foot rake, drawn by a tractor or a heavy team of horses, will cover more than 50 per cent additional ground under the same supervision.

Sufficient unto themselves.

Dairymen who will survive with flying colors the present low prices and under-consumption of milk and milk products are those who grow their own alfalfa. The hay field at the Handorf dairy ranch, near Puente.

Under ordinary circumstances, most of the hay cut is cured almost entirely in the swath, and the practice of hauling to the stack is commenced immediately after it is raked. Where the weather is bright and hot, however, curing can best be done by raking it into windrows just after it is well wilted and before the leaves become dry enough to break off when raked. In making these windrows the side-delivery rake, pulled by a tractor or a heavy team, will handle a large acreage in a day, and it has an advantage over the sulky rake in that the wagon crew can start taking the hay from the windrow as soon as the side-delivery rake has made one double windrow across the field.

Although it is not so well known in the East as in the extreme West, the sweep-rake is coming more and more into favor on farms where a considerable area is devoted to the growing of hay. With this implement about 50 per cent of the hand labor can be eliminated in harvesting hay, and it is comparatively inexpensive and costs little for repairs.

The sweep-rake consists of several long wooden teeth lying almost flat on the ground, pointed at one end and fastened to a strong framework at the other. The teeth usually are about eight feet long and placed about one foot apart, the implement having twelve or thirteen teeth, giving a surface of approximatedly eight by twelve feet on which the hay can be loaded and carried. The rake is ordinarily operated by a team of powerful horses, as it takes considerable power to push the sweep when gathering large loads. The animals are hitched in the rear of the sweep-rake, and small wheels are often placed at the rear of the rake to facilitate its movement over the ground. As the outfit moves forward over the field, the loose hay is caught on the teeth and carried along until a load of from 800 to 1000 pounds is secured, when the front of the rake is raised and the load carried to the stack. Here, if an overshot stacker outfit is used, the hay is dropped directly upon the stacker, thus avoiding considerable hand labor in transferring the hay.

LOADING AND STACKING.

The use of a hay loader will often pay for itself in a single season where sufficient hay is being harvested to require considerable labor. Where a tractor is available, a hay loader can be used to advantage, for sufficient power is at hand to operate the outfit. There are two types of hay loaders, one which picks up the hay with a revolving drum studded with spurs of spring wire about six inches long, and the other which takes up the hay by means of a fork-like arrangement fastened to long wooden or steel arms. With either type of hay loader, a crew of men can perform at least a third more work in a day than when pitching hay by hand, and they need not work so hard.

Stacking hay is another step in which labor-saving implements can be used to good advantage. There are a number of different kinds of stackers, but the overshot and swing-around are the most common.

The overshot stacker consists of long wooden teeth, similar to those of the sweep-rake, and it is mounted on a wooden frame with wheels provided for moving it from place to place. The hay is deposited upon the stacker, which carries it up over the frame and deposits the hay on top of the stack. The disadvantage of this type of loader is the fact that all the hay is delivered at one spot, requiring considerable moving by hand on top of the stack, but in the West this outfit is largely used with the sweep rake for putting up large quantities of hay.

The swing-around stacker has the advantage of being able to deliver hay at any part of the stack desired, and it, too, is mounted upon a frame which supports the stacker and counterbalance placed at the other end.

The cable stacker is one of the simplest and most easily made of the hay stackers, and many home-made outfits are in use on American farms. A cable is supported by wooden poles and along this cable a double harpoon fork or grapple fork is operated on a carrier which travels back and forth as required. The height of the stack to be made will depend upon the height of the poles used. Various other types of hoist and derrick stackers are in use, all of which can easily be homemade and will prove very effective in performing the work required.

RAIN HELPS GRAIN.

BANNING.—A precipitation of .35 on May 5 and 6 has been an immense advantage to grain crops nearing maturity in this pass. Fruit is also greatly benefited. The Banning Water Company began its irrigating season on May 1 with twenty-one heads of water going at the same time in various sections of the colony. The three lower wells are being pumped, while well No. 1 is held in reserve. The flow of water is good and prospects are that it will be sufficient during the irrigating season.

It is easier to kill a hundred young weeds in May than a dozen old weeds in August.

Your hauling capacity is greatly increased with no additional investment in motive power. Your car is saved from wear and tear. The small-haulage problem is solved.

Well-Placed Windbreaks Pay on California Farms.

BY ARTHUR S. DAHL.

A windbreak is a valuable asset to any farm.

TRUSTING in Providence is all right in some cases, but all farmers should remember that God helps those who help themselves. We must all rely upon the natural forces of sunshine and rains to grow our crops, but the same winds that blow the storm clouds from one part of the country to another, often possess such power that they do more harm than good to growing crops. There is a way, however, in which a farmer can regulate, to a large extent, the weather conditions on his farm.

A well-placed and well-formed windbreak will be virtually a crop insurance on any farm, for it will protect the growing grain against destructive wind storms, and the hot winds of summer, and in winter the presence of this band of trees will materially modify the temperature near the farm dwellings, if not too far away. Windbreaks are to be classed as a farm asset, for they conserve the moisture in the soil by checking the movement of drying winds, and they have a material effect in preventing high winds from mechanically injuring growing grain or fruit trees. They provide welcome shade for live stock on hot days in summer, and by utilizing the thinnings for fuel, the grower may add comfort to the farm home. In many parts of the country, cultivated fields are only possible when protected by a band of trees for otherwise the sweep of the heated air in summer will burn up the growing crops, and in some of the orchard sections of California, windbreaks of eucalyptus or other species of trees, stand as sentinels to protect the fruit trees.

Eucalyptus windbreak.

A properly placed windbreak will be a good investment for practically every farm, and in this sense, any body of trees that gives protection to buildings or crops may be called a windbreak. Often farm woodlots serve in this capacity, though strictly speaking a windbreak consists of a narrow strip of trees planted with a view to influencing the prevailing winds in a locality. To be effective a windbreak should consist of from six to eight rows of trees planted for a distance of from a quarter of a mile to a mile or more in length.

Since the effect of a windbreak against air currents is purely mechanical, the more compact or dense the trees are the greater will be the stoppage of hard winds. By planting trees of various species, so that the taller growing trees are in the center, and the shorter but more dense trees or bushes are on the outside, a windbreak will develop a form which tends to divert the winds upward and thereby break their force before the cultivated fields are reached.

In order to produce the desired effect, windbreaks should be so placed that they will protect the farm from the prevailing winds. Often times, a farmer will go to the trouble of planting an elaborate windbreak along the public highway or on his property line because it is thought the land can best be spared at these places, whereas, they are wrongly situated so far as obstructing the prevailing winds that blow in that locality. If the prevailing wind is from the south, the windbreak should run east and west and be placed at the south end of the field. If the prevailing wind is from another direction, the windbreak should be grown to bar its passage.

As a protection to orchard trees, the windbreak is even of greater value than for field crops. By preventing too rapid evaporation of surface moisture, the windbreak maintains a uniform temperature in the orchard, and often prevents loss by freezing or frost when the weather changes suddenly in the early spring, when the trees are budding or in bloom. During the time when the trees are heavily laden with fruit, the diverting of heavy winds will protect them from being broken down by the force of the wind, and the mechanical effects of the limbs brushing against each other, and rubbing off immature fruit, will be reduced to a minimum.

In planting windbreaks, trees which grow rapidly should be chosen, even though their wood is not as desirable as the slower growing species. The slower growing trees fill up the spaces under the branches of the taller trees, and thus make a more effective barrier to the wind.

Until trees used in a windbreak have reached a sufficient height to be uninjured by stock, all live stock should be kept away from the windbreak, as they are apt to browse on the tender leaves and injure the limbs. When more mature, however, the windbreak will prove a welcome shelter for live stock both in the summer heat and the winter storms.

While the effectiveness of a windbreak depends largely upon its density, yet there are times when enough thinning can be practiced in older breaks to provide material for the home fuel, and often fence posts and other rough timber needs of the farm. A good practice is to plant a new tree or two for every old one cut down, and in this manner the effectiveness of the windbreak will not be impaired by such cutting of trees as may be necessary to supply local needs.

The orchard of Martin J. Jacobs is one of the most interesting in the Julian district in San Diego county. Julian is a mountain country in which gold has been mined and apples grown for a generation and the Jacobs orchard is one of the oldest in the region. The photograph shows the Julian man in one of his comparatively new plantings, a five-year-old Bartlett pear orchard.

Here is a bit of really old orchard, the tree in the foreground being forty years old and the others almost as venerable. There are around 800 acres of young and old deciduous trees in the Julian section, including apples, pears and a limited area of cherries.

Recent city visitors to the Jacobs place were delighted to find the Spitzenbergs in blossom. Julian has real eastern winters, with snow n'everything, and is a popular all-year-around resort for auto touring parties. The winter "snap" puts the color and flavor in the fruit.

Raisin Industry's Progress Celebrated in Pageant

The Horn of Plenty, in the Fresno District, overflows with the raisin harvest, which the recent Raisin Festival anticipated. Float of the Selma Chamber of Commerce.

Raisins drying in a field near Fresno. In the recent fete, held on April 29 and 30, the people of the San Joaquin Valley rejoiced over the harvest that is to come.

Before the sober work of garnering and drying the crop occupies their attention, the people of the raisin country yield to the spirit of Recreation, depicted in the float of the Fresno Musical Club.

The Reedley Chamber of Commerce pictured in its float, Aurora, Goddess of the Dawn. The Reedley beauties on this float attracted great attention in the pageant.

Biola, which is near the center of the "Garden of the Sun," featured one of the city's beautiful daughters as the "Goddess of Love."

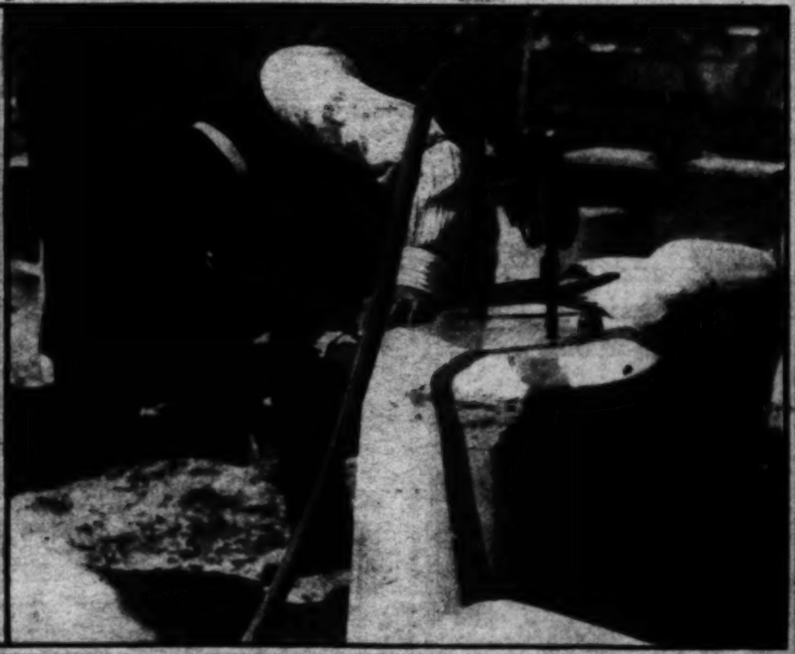
Cupid was not forgotten in the pageant. The Commercial Club of Fresno arranged this beautiful float.

Farmers [illegible] Between [illegible] Pipe.

Exhibit A, at a recent Farm Bureau concrete pipe demonstration at Downey, consisted of two rows of pipe. The ones on the left were made by the "dry mix" method; the others by the "wet mix" system.

Discussing good pipe and bad; left, W. A. Neibel, director of the Downey Farm Center, which presented the demonstration, and H. W. Hansen, concrete pipe manufacturer, at whose yards the event was staged.

In making pressure and seepage tests, water is run from a near-by faucet into the pipe, which is closed at both ends by water-tight drums.



Fred F. Foster, field manager for the Associated Concrete Pipe Manufacturers of Southern California, watches seepage test of capped pipe. Seepage showed at joints at thirty pounds pressure.

The hydrostatic test of a "wet mix" pipe showed seepage at 40 pounds pressure, and breakage at 75 pounds. Pressure under field conditions is seldom greater than 20 pounds.

This dry-mixed, hand-tamped pipe showed seepage at 2 pounds, and broke at 5 pounds pressure. Although the breakage was partly due to adjustment of testing apparatus, this sort of pipe is unsuited for general use.

Is your skin pale and sallow?
—How you can rouse it

If your skin is pale and sallow, it shows clearly the need of a more stimulating treatment than you are giving it. A pale, sallow skin means inactive blood-vessels—pores that do not throw off quickly enough the waste matter that accumulates.

Don't let this condition become chronic. To give your skin the soft, clear color every healthy skin should have, follow once a week this special treatment:

Just before retiring, fill your basin full of hot water—almost boiling hot. Bend over the top of the basin and cover your head with a heavy bath-towel, so that no steam can escape.

Steam your face for thirty seconds.

Now lather a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into the skin with an upward and outward motion.

Then rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold, and finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

The other six nights of the week cleanse your skin thoroughly in the usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter, and begin tonight this special steam treatment. A 25-cent cake of Woodbury's lasts for a month or six weeks. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario

A frequent cause of skin disorder

Lowered vitality, due to lack of vitamine, is often the cause of pimples and boils

SKIN specialists say that we often get "danger signals from the skin" that something is wrong with our health which we may not yet be aware of.

Pimples and blackheads (acne) and boils are often the signals of a falling off in health. "A bad acne may indicate profound debility," writes a physician connected with a number of leading New York hospitals, and "the repeated occurrence of boils should always be looked upon as an indication of lowered vitality."

It has been found from actual clinical tests that yeast yielded "surprisingly satisfactory results" in the treatment of boils and acne (pimples)—complaints which affect large numbers of people and which often come with lowered vitality.

Yeast is recognized today as a valuable "conditioner," correcting the underlying causes of these minor ailments. Almost magic results have been obtained by physicians and food specialists merely by adding yeast to the diet.

Those who wish to assure a proper amount of the health-protecting vitamine in their meals will make Fleischmann's Yeast a part of their regular diet.

People ask: "Won't yeast when taken have the effect it has in raising bread?" No. It is highly digestible, and assimilated just like any other food. Eat it before or between meals—from 1 to 3 cakes a day. Those who are troubled with gas should first dissolve it in boiling water. Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast.

To get the valuable booklet telling more about what yeast has done for others and can do for you, address The FLEISCHMANN COMPANY, Dept. 110-F, 701 Washington St., New York, N. Y.

To clear up pimples and boils

In 42 cases of pimples and boils treated in leading hospitals Fleischmann's Yeast proved to have properties of great value. Every case showed improvement or cure, taking from a week to two months. To clear up pimples and boils and to protect your health from the lowered vitality which often leads to them, eat 1 to 3 cakes of yeast daily. In acute cases of pimples and all cases of boils be sure to consult your doctor.

LOOKING BACK FROM THIRTY.

WE STRIKE a pose that's a cross between Rodin's "Thinker" and that of a college girl at ease over a malted-milk—and look back from twenty-nine plus.

"College graduate"—what is there of magic in those words that gives them their envied position? What hokus-pokus has pushed them to the foreground? Fifteen letters of the alphabet arranged in a pronounceable sequence! Meaning—what?

In The Times office the other day we ran into Jack Caldwell (this isn't his real one, of course.) Jack was paying for a want ad in the Sunday Situation Wanted columns. He had just returned from Java where for three years he represented a New York importer at $5000 per.

"There's one thing that reconciles this job of looking for a position," said Jack. "It's these two little words 'college graduate.' When you run them in, you have something definite to offer."

We agreed at the time, but later smiled at Jack's remark. His Want Ad ran like this:

> COLLEGE GRADUATE, 27, three years' business experience abroad, knowledge importing, exporting, desires opening with advancement first consideration. Apply, etc.

The one definite item in Jack's advertisement was the figur "27"—the rest of it was bluff. "College graduate" was, without doubt, an asset to the appeal; but beyond indicating that the young man, 27, was educated above the average, and therefore was susceptible to further knowledge, represented nothing positive.

For Jack, we remember, had been a college "aviator," hitting only the high places.

He had always been an interesting chap; bright, sometimes exceptionally clever; not a digger, but a plugger. The difference is simple; the digger moves under his own power and is a self-starter, so to speak; the plugger must be primed; with sufficient urging, he works hard.

Four years of university life had rounded off Jack's rough edges, had converted the puerile high school senior into an easy-going adult. When he came out of college he had learned thoroughly all the non-educational fundamentals.

Jack was a good hand-shaker. That is, when you met him you would get a firm grip and an unflinching look.

He had learned to keep thoughtful silences when among his fellow men.

He had learned the art of wearing soft white shirts with soft white collars attached, with the utmost grace at even the highest social affairs. Only a college man can get away with a negligee collar and a negligee slouch in the tea-room at the Biltmore.

In short, Jack had acquired poise. He had learned how to be at ease under all circumstances.

We are going to attempt to explain this quality, as we believe that it is the One Big Thing that college gave us. For poise alone, it is worth a man's time to live on a campus four years.

In a young woman, poise (as the new generation knows it) is the art of repartee and unconcernedness. Let a man approach a woman to whom he has been exceptionally attentive. Let him say suddenly, without warning,

"Betty darling, I love you! You are the most beautiful girl I have ever known. I love you, love you, love you!"

Betty will look straight into his eyes, and with an expression as meaningful as that of a china doll, say,

"Oh, do you!"

Poise is an insidious quality, and its value should not be undervalued. It is something every young woman should know. A college graduate who has not this characteristic is a failure. Through poise, which perhaps can be defined as a visible reflection of self-respect and self-confidence, Jack Caldwell landed the position he sought.

Not because he was a college graduate, but because he knew how to look the corporation president squarely in the eye, because he talked straight and to the point. Jack sold himself not on what he gained from books and lectures, but on what he had gained from association with other college men, and from doing things with them and for them.

The college life is an inefficient life; in fact, as inefficient a life as we can conceive. We must agree with Charles M. Schwab (the varsity captain of big business) in his remark that the only education worth while is self-education. Schwab believes that a man's school or university training can do little except teach the man how to think. Our four years of it taught us to think—and in thinking back from twenty-nine plus, we conclude that college gave us approximately 50 per cent of what it could and should have given.

There can be self-education within the walls of a university just as well as within the doors of a business house.

The writer, like Jack Caldwell, was a college aviator, hitting the high places. Only in a few courses that represented subjects of special interest, and were therefore comparatively simple, did we dig deep. It was a great deal more pleasurable to grind out a score of jokes for the college comic monthly than to read as many pages of economics. A few columns of news matter for the Daily was work, but it always won priority over logic or history.

In reflecting, it would seem that we were always reluctant to take college work seriously, until the final fortnight of each semester. It is to be regretted that so many young Americans (assuming our own case to be typical of a fair proportion) spend their own time and some relative's money on a four-year vacation.

How much fruit goes unpicked in the colleges because college aviators have no further ambition than to break altitude records! It is not difficult to understand this desire to "rise." We feel genuine satisfaction—perhaps a bit of pride—in the knowledge that we aviated with success. "Making" the staff of every college publication, six all told, was very much worth while. Yet how much fruit remained on the tree after the diploma had been rolled out!

Four years of college and a paper-mill sheepskin are but symbols of intangible material. College bestows advantages which can be made valuable only in direct proportion to the seriousness of purpose that inspired the student during his training.

Briefly, a man gains from his university life no more and no less than he puts into it. When lectures are considered secondary; when examinations are looked upon as annoying incidents—when college appears a grand and glorious feeling—then it is not being taken with any degree of sane seriousness.

It is not higher education, but hire education.

. . . .

Strangely, we are not ashamed to admit that we absorbed considerable from books and lectures. There were a few big-souled, wide-visioned men in the faculty, and acquaintanceship with them was stimulating. There were others of barbaric cruelty (actually, merely unsympathetic) and some of pitiable stupidity (actually, merely uninteresting.) But it was from the association with fellow "students" and from the so-called "outside activities" that the greatest benefits were derived.

The man who leans toward drama, journalism, debating, etc., will gain sufficiently from the energies he transfers to his chosen field to pay more than once for what he loses by the divergence from books. Even the athlete, if he does the thing well, will gain more than strengthened sinew by his activities.

But even if the student takes the maximum from his favorite activity, he is "passing up" the real stuff that can be taken from books, lectures and association with the big men of the faculyt. There is a compromise position, a half-way road that should be found and followed.

To the list that contains professors, lectures, books and student activities, add this item: women. College dances, the social whirl, unproductive items (officially) have put a dull polish on many a creature who has never shined in the company of the fairer sex and imparted an enviable luster to those whose preschool polish and hair-parted-in-the-middle architecture had made them good fraternity material.

But as with his studies, so with his women—the college man rarely takes them seriously. He seldom knows what he wants or where he is going.

There is a remedy to recommend. It might be advisable for the college student to plan his terms with an interval of a year or more in the business or professional world. The foresighted university student will know by the end of his sophomore year (at the latest) what his life's work will be. He will then spend a year in his chosen field between college semesters.

With such a routine, he can go through college with a definite object.

"Our Boy"—you can bet your last dollar on this—will do it just that way.

—and so it seems at twenty-nine!

Enough Against It.

Thank heaven it is no disgrace to be poor; poverty has enough discomforts without that one.—[Boston Transcript.

"When I'm Grown Up."

A Soliloquy.

It's awful hard to be a child—
  They have no show at all;
It seems to me I'm all the time
  At grown folks' beck and call.

Right in the middle of a game
  Ma sends me to the store;
An' sometimes she forgets some things
  An' sends me back for more.

Just see the hours I waste in school—
  I think it is a shame;
I'd have a lot more fun outdoors
  Or playing some nice game.

An' then the things I love to eat,
  Like candy, pie and cake,
I don't get much of, 'cause Ma says
  They'll make my tummy ache.

Just wait till I'm grown up and see
  The things I'm going to do;
I'll have a house just full of toys,
  And keep a pony, too.

I'm going to have a candy store;
  An' mornings when I wake
I'll have the nicest breakfast brought—
  Jus' pink ice cream an' cake—

I'll never look at mush and milk,
  Or common food like bread;
But eat nice things like pumpkin pie,
  An' jelly roll instead.

I'll let my dogs come in the house—
  I guess I'll keep 'bout four—
And never scold them when they drop
  Their bones upon the floor.

Ma makes me go to bed at eight—
  One thing I've always said—
When I'm grown up and have my way
  I'LL NEVER GO TO BED.

AN UNKNOWN LAND.

BY J. M. SCANLAND.

AN EXPLORING expedition from Los Angeles recently visited the almost "forbidden land" of Tiburon, an island in the Gulf of California. They reported having seen no Indians but evidently did not go far inland, for there are about 200 on this quarantined island. Another expedition of eastern capitalists cruised in the gulf and around the island in exploring the coast line for oil. No report has been heard from them, but it is not believed that they landed upon the island.

This island, practically an unknown visitors, generally, but parties are permitted to land at the principal village, and are given the privilege of going a short distance inland, but always under guard.

This island practically an unknown world, is situated in the Gulf of California, about ninety miles north of the city of Guaymas, and a few miles from Hermosillo, the capital of the Mexican State of Sonora. Spanish explorers, who sailed up the gulf 350 years ago in search of gold and pearls, named it "Tiburon," because of the sharks that were seen there. The Spaniards stated that the Indians "were hostile," used poisoned arrows, and opposed their landing. They estimated the "savages" to number 3000. The Indians called themselves "Seres" (now written "Seris,") and said they came from "over the water." There is a tribe of "Seres" in China, and these Indians have a Chinese cast, and a "slant" in the eyes.

Spain sent numerous armed expeditions against the islanders, and so did Mexico, but they have never been conquered. Owing to these numerous wars and their isolation from other tribes, their number has been reduced to about 200—perhaps less. Recently, according to reports, they have changed their creed of "unmixed blood," and are intermarrying with Mexicans on the mainland, opposite the island. The braves come in their canoes, steal the senoritas, and take them to the island. The Indians have a peace treaty with the Mexicans and trade skins, game, curios, etc., for arms, ammunition and before the dry law, whisky. This latter is one of the causes of their decrease in numbers. Formerly they used bows and arrows, but later, when commercial relations were established with the more civilized Mexicans, they adopted the more deadly weapon. A great deal has been written in the magazines and newspapers about Tiburon Island, and the "savages," mostly by those who have never visited it. About twenty years ago L. E. Robinson, a newspaper writer of San Francisco, and an assistant landed upon the island, and have never been heard from, except that it is known that they were killed. And it is also known that their bodies were not eaten, as reported. Their canoe was "confiscated." A few years later, one Johnson, a curio dealer of San Diego, and companion landed upon the island, and met the same fate. Several years ago, also, a party of young men, styled "sports," of Los Angeles, got a concession from the Mexican government for the playing of every game known to an international gaming preserve—that is, for the playing of every game known to "sports," with horse racing and a bull-ring. It would be the Monte Carlo of the West. They chartered a yacht, loaded it with arms and provisions, and ballasted it with champagne. Then they sailed for the "island of delight," as they thought it would be. But, they had not considered the Indians. The news of their coming to take possession preceded them, and as they neared the landing, at the main village, they were confronted by the chief and his army, who motioned for them to leave, and fired a few shots across the bow of their yacht, and it exceeded the speed limit in leaving those inhospitable shores. An appeal to the Mexican government for the return of the concession money met with a chilling rejection. The government then forfeited the concession.*

The main village is on the northeastern end of the island, which is the better landing. Here, Mexicans, traders and pale face visitors are expected to land. If they land at other points they may never return, as in the cases above cited. The chief and his guard speak a little Spanish, but only grunt and make signs for English. It is not known what language their dialect is derived from. Some ethnologists hold that they are a seceding off-shoot from the Yaquis; others believe that they are from the Polynesian Islands. No one knows nor when nor how they came to the island. Or, whether their ancestors selected the island from choice or were driven to it by a more powerful tribe. They wear few clothes, not because of the high cost, but they follow the fashion of their ancestors, and it is more suitable to the climate. The men wear a shirt of cotton and an excuse for trousers. The squaws wear a skirt of the same material, a trifle shorter than that worn by their pale face sisters.

The Gulf Coast is alive with fish and game of all kinds. Bears are numerous, and wild hogs have been seen. These are the reports brought to the mainland by the Mexicans, and the very few scientific expeditions which have been permitted to land at the "port of entry." It is not believed that there is gold in large quantities in the foothills as stated by visitors, for they were not permitted to go very far inland, and then under guard. Vessels have cruised around the island and report "beds of pearls," but none of them has been brought to the surface. None of the visitors saw poisoned arrows, stone idols, nor silver bullets, as some of the writers report having seen.

There is a tradition of a sunken treasure ship near the island, and many expeditions have, during the past few centuries, sailed up the gulf in quest of the treasure. A pirate named Cromwell, brother of Oliver, the Protector, plundered Spanish ships of their treasure, also the churches, and sailed up the gulf. At Guaymas, a broadside from a French man-of-war put the pirate vessel out of commission, and it sailed away as far as Tiburon, and there it sunk.

A BIT OF GOSSIP.

BY DORA OLIPHANT COE.

HE IS a cute, little, red-headed duffer. We've been friends for years. It might be more truthful if I said that I have been his friend for years, since his perennial indifference to my presence is something truly magnificent. I may be within my arm's reach of him, yet, as far as he is concerned, I simply am not there at all.

This morning, though, I thought it was going to be different. He was sitting on the railing of my porch and it seemed that he was looking at me, actually seeing me! I was tremulously eager to show him that I appreciated his condescension, but when I bent toward him I saw that his gaze was not directed upon me at all. He was looking at the vines behind me, above me, at my right and at my left. He was looking for a home site!

It's house-hunting time for linnets!

Always they select places close to where humans live and pass. That is what gave the nick-name 'house-finch' to the linnets of California.

Wherever dooryard vines grow thick and shadowy, watch for them—the little red-head and his grayish-brown mate. Watch for them both, but listen for him! Your heart will grow warm and glad in your breast when you hear the linnet sing his mating and nesting song. There is no sweeter bird song. Bobolink, meadow lark, nightingale—not one has the thrill, the verve, the sweet, rollicking gladness of the linnet's nesting song.

And that's one thing that made me his friend and for a reason which you never would guess unless you know all about the home life of the little songster.

Now I have pried into his home life and am quite willing to gossip about it a bit. I have unblushingly spied upon the little homes which have been swung under my window or beside it, almost as if they invited surveillance, and I know just what a downtrodden, henpecked husband and father the heavenly little singer is. Perhaps that is why he sings so divinely. We have been told, world with end, that no one can sing, really sing until he has suffered, and the linnet—

But listen!

I don't know whether the male linnet builds the nest or if his wife does. Perhaps they work together on it, but I have never caught him in builder's togs though I have seen him—as I did this morning—testing out locations for the small structure.

Anyway, whoever builds the nest, it is the little lady bird who does all the incubating after the proper number of eggs have appeared in the nest, generally there are four, though sometimes there are as many as seven. I don't know why she does all the setting. Perhaps she does not trust him. He sings so wonderfully it may be that she fears he is too temperamental to be depended upon, but I don't believe that is the reason. I think she finds it easier to sit and sit and sit and let him rustle for the food. That's the way it works out, anyway, and she certainly keeps him rustling for said provender.

Perched on a twig near the nest where his mate is sitting or setting on his embryo family, the linnet sings that wonderful song of his and while he sings he watches his wife. I know he watches her because I have watched him. He sings until she gives an impatient little chirp and tilt of her head and then he flies away in a terrible hurry and comes back almost immediately with some delicate morsel for her to eat. He feeds her until she is satisfied. I have seen him make as many as five of those hurried little trips to the market or pantry or factory, whatever he calls the place where he finds the food she likes. Then, having satisfied her hunger, he perches again on the nearby twig and pours out another flood of melody till she is hungry again when the program, in detail, is repeated. I have never seen him take time to get anything to eat himself. He must endanger his digestion by gulping, but I have heard him sing for hours and hours, till you'd think he would drop with fatigue, yet all the time that song has the same rollicking sweetness that it had when he began.

That isn't all, though. Little red-head does that same thing every day till the babies hatch. Then he keeps right on, with the one change that he not only continues to feed his wife but he feeds all the babies, too, and their food he administers by regurgitation!

[illegible] her own food, until the babies are as big as he himself. Once I got desperate and took a stick and drove out of the nest three great, hulking youngsters who did nothing but cry for food until their poor little father was worn to a frazzle trying to satisfy them. In their fluffy new feathers they looked about twice as big as he did.

Just once in many years have I seen a papa linnet grow impatient. Two grayish birds had followed him from bush to bush and from tree to tree; from the pergola to the corner of the porch and then to the telephone wire. There they perched one on each side of him and sat with fluttering wings and wide-open mouths which they thrust into his face. I watched him and hoped he would give them one good whack, or whatever stands for a whacking in bird-land.

Finally, after they had pestered him until I was about ready to kill them, he gave to each one a savage peck and then flew to the very tip of a eucalyptus tree where he sat and let the wind swing him lazily to and fro. Never a note did he sing and the two youngsters on the telephone wire drooped their wings and slid close together in what appeared to be dismayed silence!

I missed that linnet's glorious song—but I gloried in his spunk.

COURTHOUSES AND JAILS OF LOS ANGELES.

BY J. M. SCANLAND.

FOR a long time the Courthouse and jails of Los Angeles were on the "move" yet they were permanent institutions. And it seems that they must again soon change locations, or be enlarged. The same overcrowded conditions of the jails existed from the earliest settlement of the pueblo, and also the inconvenience of the rooms where justice was handed out. It seems that in respect of these buildings the city never built for the future, or was short-sighted in its estimate. Consequently, the Courthouses and jails were moved from time to time in order to accommodate the increased business. The next move should be made with a long look forward.

It is interesting to compare the succession of jails and Courthouses of this city, from the pueblo days of the Spaniards, and those intervening to the present, when it is shown that newer and larger buildings are necessary.

The first jail in the pueblo of Los Angeles was a "cuartel," or guard house, built in 1786, at the northeast corner of the plaza, at Main and Marchessault streets. It was used as a guard house by the Spanish military garrison, and as a jail by the civil authorities. It was a one-story adobe, with a tiled roof and iron-barred windows. Political prisoners were also confined in the jail, for revolutions were frequent. At such times, the "cuartel" was over-crowded, and it was necessary to put the prisoners to work. They could sleep in the yard under guard. The alcalde, or Mayor, dispensed justice from an adobe on the opposite side of the Plaza, north of the church building. This jail lasted for many years, until about 1840, when, owing to increased population and consequently more crimes, the jail was removed, or rather another one built against the hill overlooking the pueblo and just in rear of the building occupied as the St. Elmo Hotel, on the west side of North Main street. It was a one-room adobe, flat tiled roof and had no cells. The alcalde's office was in close touch, situated on the lot which was many years afterwards occupied by the City of Paris store building. This jail was too small to accommodate the increasing number of criminals, and so the authorities also put them to work by day, and at night some of them slept outside under guard. The most desperate criminals were chained to a log inside, and to prevent them from walking away with the log, and burrowing through the wall, a guard was placed over them. There was also a small smooth bore cannon planted near the door. One dark and stormy night, Dec. 9, 1847, the sentinel thought he saw a plot for a jail delivery, and it was ordered that the cannon be loaded. At the moment, the soldier fired at the moving object coming down the hill, and there was a roar. The bull fell dead. But, there was a tragedy. The gun-wadding ignited a box of cartridges and these exploded, together with the powder chest, killing four men, wounding twelve, and blowing part of the adobe wall into the street. These soldiers on duty at the jail were a detachment of the First California regiment.

Another jail was built on the same spot, being a two-room adobe structure. It was not long before this one was over-crowded, and the same method of treating prisoners was followed. There was plenty of room outside, and if there was a rain, so much the worse for the outside prisoners. There was no paroling prisoners on probation and the illegal practice of giving them into the custody of their attorneys was unknown.

Another jail was built at San Pedro and First street, of two rooms and of adobe. The jailer was named Samuel Whitney, and his name should be handed down as an economical official. His salary was $7 a day, and he was allowed 5 cents a day for feeding each prisoner. The food consisted of meat and bread, or rice. This seems to be a slim diet for an able-bodied man, but that is all the prisoners got. He was not permitted to have a boarders' private table, nor receive extra pay for furnishing the rooms, nor were fancy bed sets, flowers and saxophones permitted. This jail had a tragic history. It was indicted by the grand jury as a "nuisance," one of the specifications being that it obstructed the road leading from the Indian village near that place to San Pedro. The records do not show whether the jail was given a suspended sentence and paroled, or committed for contempt.

The next jail was built on the Phillips block, northwest corner of Spring and Franklin streets. Franklin street was given the name of "jail street." It was a long adobe, one story. The prisoners were turned loose in the back yard, there being no cells. The jailer lived in the front part of the building, the Mayor's office and the clerk's office were also in the front. The jailer's boarding fee was now increased to 11 cents for each prisoner, with no perquisites. The "old Courthouse" was also in an adobe building on this street. Court street takes its name from the Courthouse.

In 1859 John Temple, one of the wealthiest men of the city, built a brick house on the southeast corner of the present Temple block. It was intended for a public market. It was of two stories, of brick, the second building cost $30,000. The jail was also Angeles. The first floor was used for a market, the second for a "Courthouse," and there was a beer saloon in the basement. Court was held here until the new Courthouse was built on the hill. The Temple building cost $30,000. The jail was also moved up on the hill.

The Bar Sinister.

ONE evening when the day's work was done and the Millionaires Club was holding a meeting on the steps of the postoffice in the green Verdugo Hills, and the newspapers had come up from the roaring town, there were big pieces in the papers about putting up the bars against immigration from foreign lands.

It seems that the idea was that the United States should put up the bars and not let any more people come here from other parts of the world.

The arguments made in the papers were read over and then a motion was made that the Millionaires Club take the matter under consideration and decide what was the right way of it.

At first glance, as the saying is, it looked all right to shut the rest of the world out. Maybe those foreigners that want to come here just now are not desirable, said the man who lives in the little gray house in the hollow that has the lilac bush in front of it and the two big rocks behind.

And that was a strange thing for the man who lives in the little gray house in the hollow to say when you come to think of it. For, he is a man who never closes his own door against anybody, no matter who it is. The doors of the little gray house in the hollow are never locked; its windows are always open. And any wanderer, by day or by night, can enter that house and make himself at home, as though it were his own house.

But, said the man who lives in the little gray house in the hollow, maybe it is what is called "the scum of Europe" that wants to come in, and maybe we ought not to let them in.

Well, sir, who should come out of the postoffice then but the honorable postmaster, himself. He had locked up; all the mail was put away snug and safe in the pigeon holes, and it was time for the honorable postmaster to wend his way through the chaparral to the place where he has his abode, as the saying is.

But, the president of the Millionaires Club, which is no less a person than the man whose house is beside the road—the man we call Homer's friend—he said, hey, postmaster, what is your idea on this subject of putting up the bars and shutting the scum of Europe out?

Well, I was thinking of that, too, when I read the pieces in the papers, said the honorable postmaster. And I was thinking of the time, long ago, when I was a boy in New England, and the Irish first began to come there from the old sod.

By gollies, said the honorable postmaster, they were not welcome. The New Englanders looked on them as scum, all right. And they were poor as Job's turkey, and pretty tough customers, too. They drank whisky and would pick a fight with the first man they met. And they killed a man one time, and when the dead man's folks buried him they put on his tombstone the words, "Killed by an Irishman," so that the world and all the descendants of Cotton Mather would know that he died a martyr.

But, look at the sons and the grandsons of those same Irish in New England today, the postmaster said. They are at the top of the heap, as the saying is. One of them is a United States Senator from the old rock-ribbed Puritanical State of Massachusetts, another is Mayor of the city of Boston and sitting in his chair in the Town Hall under the sign of the sacred codfish; another is a cardinal in the Roman Church, and they are some folks all over, believe me, said the honorable postmaster.

Well, what about it, asked the man who played the flute; what has that got to do with the present discussion.

It will be the same with the sons and grandsons of those emigrants who want to break in on us now, said the honorable postmaster. They will breathe the free air of America, they will kiss the folds of the flag, they will have pictures of George Washington on the walls of their houses, and they will be firstclass citizens ready to die for the republic if need be.

Have a Saint.

YOU all will remember that we have a man in the Verdugo Hills who knows about the saints. You will remember that he has often spoken about them, and that it is a favorite topic with him when the neighbors are gathered together for a powwow.

It seems that he likes Saint Francis best, and that's only natural because Saint Francis was also friend to all animals and wild things, and a lover of every flower that grows. And our neighbor who knows the saints sings his canticles to the sun as Saint Francis did.

Now, there was a talk about the saints again, just a few nights ago, when we were in the house of the man who lives on the mesa. And it was then that the man who knows about the saints said that every man ought to have one of his own.

By gollies, we all thought that it was a funny thing to say—that every man should have a saint of his own.

And the man who lives in the little gray house in the hollow said then for us to wait a minute until we had all filled our pipes again before we tackled a weighty subject like that.

And so we did all fill our pipes again and set them to going, and soon the room was in a blue haze. And then the man who lives in the little gray house in the hollow said to the man who knows about the saints, you can go ahead now; the atmosphere is just right for talk about ghosts and things that are mysterious and the like of that.

But, said the man who knows about the saints, this is no mystery. There is no mystery at all about the saints, he said. And every man ought to have a statue of one of them in his house, he said.

By gollies, it would be like sleeping in the Mission Inn at Riverside, said the man who has the phonograph. And I never could understand why a Quaker like Frank Miller should be so daffy over the saints, said the man who has the phonograph. And the man who knows about the saints said then maybe you can't, but you see that it is a fine hotel that Frank Miller keeps and it is filled with people when other hotels are empty and their windows and doors are nailed up. The saints help Frank Miller because he loves them, said the man who knows about the saints, and they will help anybody that loves them and asks them for help, he said.

And that's how he came to say that we should each have a saint—every man one for himself. And that there are plenty of them, and enough to go around, and that, anyway, it makes no difference if a million people at once all claim one saint; the saint can attend to the job because he has all eternity to himself and is always close to God, and can talk to God any time, up there, and God can gather all the peoples of the earth in the hollow of His hand and do with them as He wills.

And the man who plays the flute said then, well, let us choose tonight, right here and now, a patron saint for the green Verdugo Hills. And which saint shall it be?

And the man who knows about the saints said then, why, it shall be the good Saint Ysidro, of course, and no one else, for it is he who is the protector of little homes and little lands. Every saint has his own particular sphere, but it is left to Saint Ysidro to look out for folks such as we who live in little rooftrees and whose lands are bounded within sparse metes and measures.

And so it was then moved and seconded and voted unanimously that we would send a letter to Frank Miller over at Riverside and ask him to send us out of the vast collection of the saints that he keeps in his big inn a statue of the good Saint Ysidro that we might set it up in a niche of our hills to guard the little homes of our happy valley by day and by night.

A Road of Ireland.

From Killybegs to Ardara is seven Irish miles,
'Tis there the blackbirds whistle and the mating cuckoos call.
Beyond the fields the green sea glints, above the heaven smiles
On all the white boreens that thread the glens of Donegal.

Along the roads what feet have passed, could they but tell the story,
Of ancient king and saint and bard, the roads have known them all;
Lough Dergh, Doon Well, Glen Columcille, the names are yet a glory,
'Tis great ghosts in the gloaming remember Donegal.

The harbor slips of Killybegs saw Spanish poop and sail
In days when Spain sailed round the world and held the half in thrall.
And Ardara has writ her name in the great books of the Gael,
Though sleep has fallen on them now in dream-lit Donegal.

Well, time will have its fling with dust, it is the changeless law,
But this I like to think of whatever may befall:
When she came up from Killybegs and he from Ardara
My father met my mother on the road, in Donegal.

War With Japan.

WE HAVE a man in the Verdugo Hills that the neighbors worry about considerably. He has what we call "the reading-the-papers disease." He goes to the postoffice every day an hour before the mail is due and frets and fusses around like a hen with a brood of chicks until he can get the paper, and then he sits down on the postoffice steps and tears through it like mad.

Well, sir, that man is always in a state of mental excitement, and nervous about everything, and when it isn't one thing that bothers him it is another.

And the other evening when we were all sitting on the stone fence watching the sunset on the Ventura Mountains, and no man saying a word because the glory and the peace of God was upon us, what does this man who has the reading-the-papers disease do but break out and say, I tell you, folks, we are going to have a war with Japan. And you may just as well get ready for it, he said.

And he said now won't it be the dickens to see hordes of Japanese troops marching down the Calabasas road and camping right here in the Verdugo Hills and tramping on the rutabagas in the gardens and shooting up the landscape and all that sort of thing.

Well, said the man who used to be a statistician, it may come to pass, although I can't just hardly believe it yet. But, if it does come to pass, there will be just one thing that will happen, and that will be that Japan will be wiped forever from the map of the world.

And it would be a pity, too, said the man who used to be a statistician. It would be a pity, he said, to wipe out a race and a nation that might just as well live and be happy.

And the Parson spoke up then and said, let us pray God that somehow in some way the heathen in his blindness may see the light.

No Change.

"THE government at Washington still lives," to quote a famous saying. And we suppose one reason it still lives and continues in apparent good health is that it pursues its regular habits.

For instance, the Indian Bureau goes right along employing 7000 persons to look after the 250,000 Indians we have still left in our midst, as the saying is, which the same is a large number when you consider the rapidity with which we have been shooting them and starving them.

"The rendezvous of the incompetents," the Indian Bureau has been called. It is the dumping place of wooden-heads who have earned jobs as ward heelers in politics.

The new administration may be doing very well, and we must take it for granted that it means well, but we will bet a dollar against a doughnut that it will never give the Indian Bureau the "once over," even and that it will permit it to go right on in the same old way—a disgrace to civilization and a crime against humanity.

And we have no doubt also that thousands of such offices as the office of fourth assistant to the third auditor of the Department for Dumping Waste Baskets are still being occupied at Washington.

By gollies, if a man has a sense of humor, and is not subject to taxation, and goes fishing on election day, he can get a lot of fun out of the pastime of sitting on the fence and watching a republic go by.

A Tree in Athens.

A FRIEND h told us a wonderful thing concerning a tree in the town of Athens in Georgia.

There was a man in Athens who had a beautiful tree on his land—a tree that he loved. And, one day, the man made out a deed of the ground on which the tree stood. And the deed stated that the ground on which the tree stood was to belong to the tree as long as it lived. And he had the deed recorded in the Courthouse on the records of the county so that never, so long as the tree lived, would anyone be able to take the tree away from its native soil.

Now, here was a man that we would have liked well to know. Not only must he have been a kindly and a loving man, but he must have been also a man with a great soul. He must have been a man that John Burroughs would have loved, and St. Francis, and the Druids who dwelt of old within the narrow seas.

And how Joyce Kilmer would have loved this man. And maybe Joyce Kilmer never knew him at all. Dear, dead Joyce Kilmer—dead under the poppies of Flanders—who said the most beautiful thing that was ever said of trees:

"A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair—"

That's what Joyce Kilmer said; that and more. And we wish that these twain shall meet somewhere on the pathways of the stars where they are now wandering—Joyce Kilmer and the man of Athens.

Indian Slaves.

WE ARE often asked if it were true that the Franciscan padres who founded the twenty-one missions in California made slaves of the Indians.

If it be meant by the question that the padres put the Indians in chains and whipped them at posts, we answer that we are not able to see how a few gentle friars, say twenty of them in all, could have been able to subject 100,000 savages to slavery, especially in view of the fact that the padres had neither guns nor swords and that the Indians were armed with bows and arrows and spears.

If the padres did enslave the Indians they enslaved them with love and Christlike gentleness.

The Married Life of Helen and Warren.

Helen Has the Thrilling Experience of Seeing Herself Upon the Screen.

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

"HUH, these big dinners bore me stiff," grumbled Warren, lowering the window to air out the odoriferous taxi.

"But, dear, we'll see all the literary celebrities," enthused Helen.

"Don't mind seeing 'em—if we don't have to listen to 'em. Good Lord, hope they won't ring in any poets—to read their own stuff!"

"I think it was wonderful of Mr. Colby to invite us. Tell me about him! You said he was the editor of some trade magazine."

"Yes, a stationers' journal. He asked me the other night at the club. Couldn't very well turn him down, but I don't see why he wanted to drag me to any pen-pushers' blowout."

But Warren's grumpiness could not dampen Helen's enthusiasm. She was a-thrill at the prospect of an evening within the radiance of literary stars.

Their cab was now drawing up before a canopied entrance. The next moment they swung through the revolving door into the hotel rotunda.

By the elevators was a large placard:

"AUTHORS' LEAGUE
BANQUET—GRAND BALLROOM, SEVENTH FLOOR."

"Now check your wrap and meet me here," instructed Warren as the car let them off at the seventh floor. "Then we'll look up Colby."

The ladies cloak room presented a colorful, animated scene. Women waiting to check their wraps, preening before mirrors, talking in vivacious groups.

Helen felt strangely in awe of them. How many of these were well-known authors? That woman powdering her shoulders, and the one beside her with the lip-stick—were literary lights given to such feminine foibles?

When she rejoined Warren, Mr. Colby was with him.

"Well, Mrs. Curtis, I've a surprise for you," was his greeting. "We're all going to see ourselves in the movies."

"You can count me out of that," grinned Warren.

"No, we'll all have to pass before the camera as we go into the dining-room. They're to show the finished film at the end of the evening."

"How wonderful!" murmured Helen. "How can they develop it so quickly?"

"They've rigged up a developing room right here—going to rush it through. That's the big stunt of the evening. Oh, how are you, Berkeley? Mrs. Curtis, I want you to meet Alfred Berkeley. You know his magazine stories, I'm sure."

"Oh, yes," lied Helen, trying vainly to place the name.

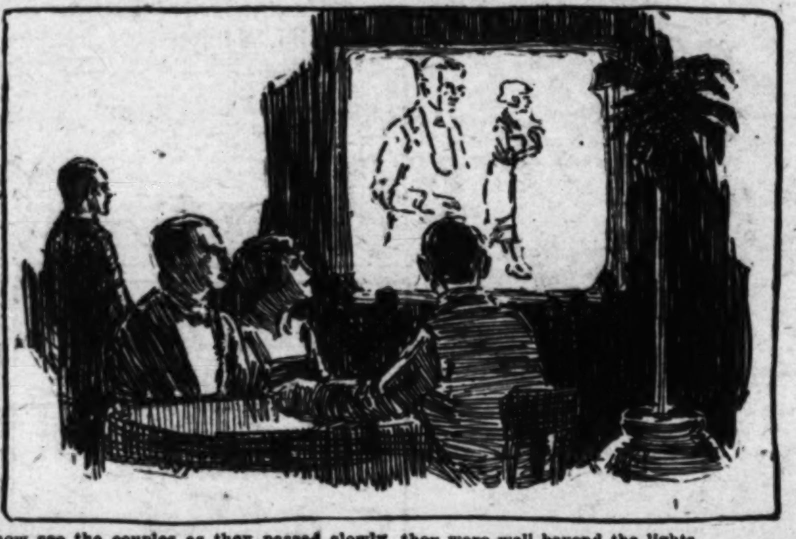
As they made their way down the crowded corridor, Mr. Colby introduced them to half a dozen almost-celebrities, none of whom Helen recognized. But she managed a look of eager interest as though each name was familiar.

Already they were in line for the camera. They could see it ahead—the operators mounted on a platform under a blaze of high-powered lights.

"Expensive stunt," observed Warren. "Who's putting up for it?"

"One of the big film companies. It'll cost them over a thousand—but it's good publicity. And they can run some of the film in the news-reels."

The line moving forward, Helen could now see the couples as they passed slowly before the camera. Some laughed and talked, some posed, and others were painfully self-conscious.



"There goes Ralph Haddock, the playwright," as a man strode nonchalantly through the blinding glare. "Takes more than a movie camera to feaze him."

"Oh, yes, we saw his 'Guilty Saint' last winter," glowed Helen.

"Rotten play," was Warren's comment. "Nothing but sex stuff."

As they drew nearer Helen's heart beat fast. How would she look? She knew she could not talk or laugh naturally—she had better not try. If only she had brought a fan—something to hold. Her hands felt so awkward.

Her profile was best with her chin up. And she must make no jerky movement. She had read that film artists were trained to move smoothly, fluidly.

"Come back here, Borden. You've got to do that over," was the laughing command as a man scurried by making grotesque faces at the camera.

"Jack Borden—the baseball writer?" was Warren's first show of interest.

Only four couples before them! Helen was furitively applying her powder puff.

"Yes, that's important," jeered Warren. "Everybody'll notice your nose."

With shrinking reluctance, she approached the blazing lights. How ghastly the faces looked under the pitiless glare!

Only one more couple! She was now by the man who directed them through. He smiled encouragingly as she passed.

"Not so fast!" he coached. "Take your time. Walk slow."

Of the next few seconds Helen had only a blurred consciousness.

"Dear, how did I do?" breathlessly, when they were well beyond the lights.

"You put about twenty feet of film on the bum. Shied away like a frightened rabbit. That camera wasn't going to bite you. Why in blazes didn't you act natural?"

They were in the banquet hall now—a long, gilt-balconied room.

"We're at number 37—it's over here," Mr. Colby led the way, past the jazzing orchestra, to a table at which six people were already seated.

The ordeal of the introductions over, Helen tried to forget her fiasco before the camera in the brilliant scene about her.

"That's Miles Stuart—dramatic critic of the Evening Planet," Mr. Colby indicated a tall, lanky man at a near-by table. "That woman in green on his left is Howard Valentine's new wife—she was Julia Hansen, the actress."

"Who's that gorgeous woman in rose velvet—the tea gown effect?"

"I don't know her. But the one next to her—she writes those married life stories."

"Oh, is that Mary Grant Chester?" Helen leaned forward for a better view. "Why, she looks so little and demure—not a bit literary."

"She doesn't have to be literary to turn out that stuff," grunted Warren. "Of all the bunk—"

"Well, she knows how a man acts with a toothache," interrupted Helen.

"That last story was just like you."

"There's Marlowe, the poet," Mr. Colby nodded to a man just coming in.

"Has the hungry look, all right. Hope he's not going to read to us." Warren forked into his "String Beans Fleurette."

Throughout the six-course dinner, Mr. Colby continued to point out celebrities, real and near, until the chairman rose to open the evening's program.

The first number he humorously prefaced with the announcement that since all authors complained that the illustrators never read the stories they illustrated, this evening the process would be reversed. The pictures would be drawn first and the stories woven about them.

Four prominent artists now mounted the platform and each drew on a huge cardboard a colored crayon sketch.

Four well-known authors were then called upon. The stories they told about the pictures were drolly fantastic and, of course, ludicrously remote from the drawings.

Then a moving-picture scenario was enacted, a versatile writer, supported only by three hats, taking the part of the hero, heroine and villain.

At last, after other clever and unusual stunts, came the big event of the evening—the showing of the film taken only a few hours before.

All chairs were turned to face the screen at the end of the room. Helen was a-quiver with excitement as the lights flashed off. What would she look like? How would it seem to see herself in this detached way?

The first few pictures were received with a shout of approbation. They were surprisingly clear. Each figure stood out distinct.

"That's G. R. W.," announced Mr. Colby, as a man, grinning broadly, stalked across the screen. "He writes that cynical column in the Record."

Applause and laughter greeted the various celebrities as they appeared. Most of the men were good-humoredly at ease, but the women were more self-conscious.

"See here," Warren glanced at his watch. "It's after 12 now. There're over 800 in this bunch—it'll take all night to run 'em off."

"Oh dear, we don't want to go yet," protested Helen.

"Want to see your own mug, eh? Well, you'll be happier if you don't. I told you you acted like a scared rabbit."

"That's right, Mrs. Curtis. You stay," championed Mr. Colby. "We can't see ourselves on the screen every day—and we don't want to miss it."

Another twenty minutes of the seemingly endless procession, and she clutched Warren's arm.

For a breathless period Helen gazed upon herself! It was a weird sensation. Her gown—herself!

The very fact that she had shied away from the camera made a better picture. Instead of the large half-length of those who had walked too close, she saw all of herself—small and slender beside Warren's looming height.

"Fine, Mrs. Curtis! You ought to be pleased with that."

"Oh, I am," fluttered Helen. "I didn't think it would be half so good."

"You'll want to be a movie star next," ridiculed Warren. "We'll never hear the end of it. Come on, let's blow out of here—it's after one."

"Dear, you and Mr. Colby were splendid," feeling she had been remiss.

"Huh, you didn't see either of us—too busy lamping yourself. Now scoot along and get your wraps out of hock—before this mob starts down."

When later they said good-night to Mr. Colby, Helen for once really meant her over-worked phrase. "Oh, I've had such a wonderful evening!"

It had been a wonderful evening. The sensation of seeing herself as others saw her would long be a thrilled memory.

In the taxi, homeward bound, in spite of Warren's sleepy inattention, she could not keep from the all-absorbing topic.

"Dear, I did look well, didn't I?"

"Might've been worse," with a yawn.

"Warren, you know I was better than you thought I'd be," insistently.

"Well, you can keep on handing yourself bouquets—I'm going to sleep," elevating his gleaming patent-leathers. "Wake me up when we get there. One good thing about these public dinners—they're a sure cure for insomnia."

The Omitted Name

BY Frank B Elser

JAMES JOSIAH RANDERS had attained what folks sometimes call the apex of finance. He had reached that altitude by means of his own ladder, which he purposed to drag up after him, silently. If he chose he would up-end the ladder and balance thereon like the sailor equilibrist at the circus, thereby attaining a plane one better than the apex. But if he did so it would be without summoning the press. What, if anything, he had to confide to the public about his vast affairs reached the newspapers in the form of a meager typewritten statement distributed through his private secretary by messenger. From his luxurious office, reporters, one and all, were barred for all time. Mr. Randers called them "vipers of the press," and he meant it.

Yet it was a rare day when the name Randers did not appear in print. His power was so potent, his influence so great, his fortune so swollen that without it few chronicles of events in the financial world were complete. Moreover, there was the socially important Mrs. Randers and a particularly lovely daughter, Helen. Concerning them much appeared in the social columns. To Mrs. Randers this had at first been gratifying; but now she lamented with her husband the increasing tendency of the press to hound the wealthy. And when he said, as he often did, that he wished there was some way of enjoining the whole kit and boodle from ever printing the name Randers again, she breathed a fervent amen. Upon these outbursts Helen Randers usually smiled, a bit indulgently for a girl of 21.

Richard Bibley Van Kleeck had never done anything in particular. He didn't have to. Having that name and a decent income he had tried nearly all of the quasi-professional occupations so popular with young New Yorkers of his type; and his popularity had increased as his business ventures dwindled. In the opinion of his many friends he had seen so much of life in his twenty-five years that if death had yawned at him he would have yawned back.

Not that he was yawning just now. He was standing by the desk of Burton, the city editor, in the local room of the New York Star, waiting like the cubbiest of cubs for his first assignment. They had known each other—he and Burton—for years.

"Well, Van," the city editor queried dryly, "how in the name of Peter Stuyvesant did you ever get the newspaper bug?"

"You are more or less wrong,'" answered Richard Bibley Van Kleeck; "I haven't got the newspaper bug. I've simply got a hankering to put one over without trading on what my folks were during the Van Buren administration."

"I get you," said Burton. "You sound like Frank Ward O'Malley or Irvin Cobb, or some other illustrious expatriate of Park Row."

"I never plagiarize," said Richard. "What am I to do?"

"Your first duty," said the city editor with serious frivolity, will be to skip down to the southwest corner of Wall and Nassau street, take the elevator to the seventeenth floor, and obtain there an interview with our popular fellow townsman, Mr. James Josiah Randers."

"Don't kid me," said Richard. "I know the old gentleman. In fact, I know his daughter."

"Of course you do," retorted Burton. "That's why I'm giving you the assignment."

A frown touched Richard Van Kleeck's clean-cut face. "That's the sort of stuff I wanted to get away from," he said after a while. "You see, Burton—"

"Don't be foolish," broke in the city editor. "You'd sell him a bond, wouldn't you? Transact any decent sort of business with him, wouldn't you? Why balk at an interview just because you happen to know him socially—and his daughter? This g-r-e-a-t profession of ours must not stop at—"

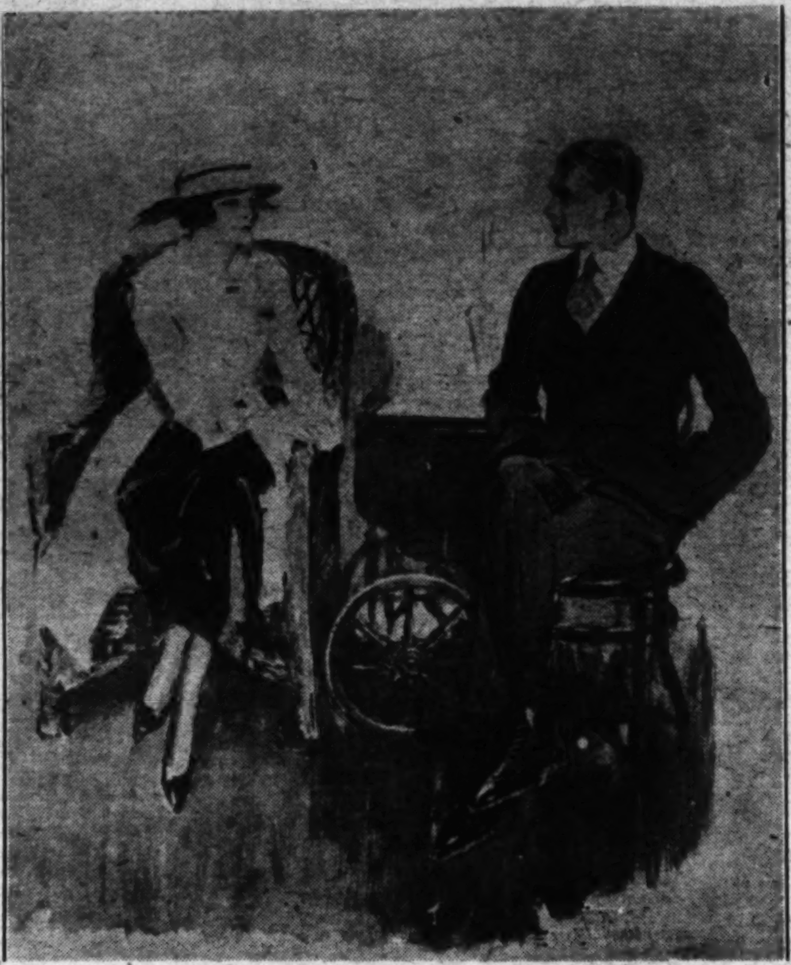
Richard held up his stick as if to ward off a blow. "You're conning me something terrible, Steve," he said, grimacing. "But I'll go. What shall I talk to him about?"

"About Consolidated Suburban Traction." Burton handed him a clipping. "Read this on your way down; it's interesting."

Richard saluted with his stick, and was gone.

Now, it was one thing to have intimate pleasurable knowledge of the changing blue of Helen Randers's eyes, and quite another thing to know the idosyncrasies of her father's business life. Of the rebuffs veteran reporters had met at the hands of James Josiah Randers in the past Richard knew nothing. His chief concern, as he swung southward along Broadway, was whether Helen, with her keen sense of humor, would interpret to his credit or discredit this latest tack in his career.

Arrived at that great pile of white stone a hundred yards east of Trinity Church, a racing-car of an elevator shot him skyward, and before he had framed his questions he had passed the outer corral of mahogany and entered the great man's office.



"Helen," he said abruptly, when tea and English muffins and marmalade had been wheeled to them, "your father hates me."

"Mr. Randers," he began after they had shaken hands cordially, "whether your secretary told you or not, I came here to interview you for the New York Star."

The great mahogany chair built especially for James Josiah Randers creaked as he leaned forward. "Richard," he said impressively, "to my knowledge nobody ever gained anything by practical jokes. Now what is it?"

Richard drew from his waistcoat pocket the clipping Burton had given him, and spread it between his fingers. "What I should like to get," he explained, "is a chatty little interview with you on the Consolidated Suburban Traction situation. My city editor would appreciate a good talk."

Mr. Randers had always liked Richard, and for probably a quarter of a minute he regarded him calmly and hopefully, waiting for the smile that would brand it all a joke. But Richard did not smile. He merely stood there, the clipping between his fingers, waiting for Mr. Randers to reply.

The great mahogany chair creaked again. James Josiah had risen to his feet. His face was the color of a Harvard pennant. His right arm was raised menacingly.

"Young man," he roared, "are you crazy?"

"Not that I know of," replied the young man.

"Then, why this unheard-of impertinence?"

"This is business," protested Richard. "I came here to interview you. This g-r-e-a-t profession of ours—"

"Rats!" snorted Mr. Randers. "If you've really become a reporter for that yellow rag of a Star, you've got less sense than I credited you with. I have standing orders here that no reporters are to be admitted on any pretext. If you are in earnest you know where the door is."

Richard thrust the clipping carefully back into his pocket.

"I'm downright sorry you take it so hard," he said. "I'll be up to see Helen Wednesday night, and maybe when you've had your dinner and are feeling better we can discuss the ethics of the situation."

"In my house," shouted James Josiah Randers, "reporters are as unwelcome as they are in my office. If you have an engagement with my daughter for Wednesday night you will consider it broken.'"

Richard bowed and backed toward the door. His face was a bit flushed.

"You will do me a great favor," Mr. Randers fired after him, "to keep my name out of your publication. If consistent, pass the word along."

Half an hour later Richard sat swinging a leg off of the city desk at the Star.

"Burton," he said, "I have obtained from our fellow townsman, Mr. James Josiah Randers, one of the hottest little interviews ever pulled off by a New York reporter."

"What! You got away with it?"

"I got away."

"With any facts at all?"

"With the fact that I'm queered with Randers."

"Shucks," grumbled the city editor. "I thought you knew him so well!"

"I know him better now," Richard assured him. "On what joyous little errand would you have me journey forth next?"

"I don't think of anything else in your particular line this afternoon," drawled Burton—"that is, unless you can suggest some other interview."

"I am in deep thought," said Richard. "It occurs to me that there is another member of the Randers family whom I might—"

"Beat it," laughed The Desk.

. . . .

From a corner settee in the tea room at the Ritz, Richard Van Kleeck rose at one minute after 4 o'clock that afternoon to greet a girl who was a girl. When Richard had met her three years before they had looked at each other strangely and smiled. And when they had found a window seat they had again looked at each other strangely and smiled. Then each had repeated, way down where one repeats that love-at-first-sight formula; "Well, I didn't know exactly how you'd look, but this is you."

"Helen," he said abruptly, when tea and English muffins and marmalade had been wheeled before them, "your father hates me."

"Why?" she queried, puzzled, smiling.

"Because I have become a viper of the press."

"You're making fun of him," said the girl, coloring. She had often heard her father use the words.

"No, I'm not. I took a job with the Star today."

Helen let her hands fall helplessly into her lap and regarded him with a faint, quizzical smile.

"Dick, won't you ever settle down?" she asked rather tremulously. "You owe it to me. Surely you're not going to be an ordinary reporter on a New York newspaper?"

"Ordinary? I went down today to interview your father."

"Dick, are you crazy?"

"You and he have been comparing notes," he commented, mildly.

Helen flushed. "Don't you know he eats reporters?"

"I do now," said Richard grimly. "Until today, I had only a vague notion of the intensity of that appetite."

"And are you angry and hurt?" she asked.

"No," Richard spoke slowly. "If your father doesn't want his name in the papers that's his business." He paused. "Are you angry and hurt because I did it?"

"That's a foolish question, Dick. I was disappointed at first. But if you're sincere—" She gazed at him questioningly.

"Helen, no man knows what he can do best until he tries," he said earnestly. "I'm not sure of anything in this world except that I love you."

The girl leaned toward him and impulsively placed a little hand in his. "No matter what happens," she whispered, "I'd rather have the tiniest chair in a Harlem flat with you than every seat on the Stock Exchnage with any other man I ever saw. But please hurry up."

He squeezed her little hand until she winced and withdrew it.

"Tell me," she said, "why do the newspapers—'hound us,' as father expresses it?"

"Because the name Randers means potential news. It's one of the curses of being powerful and socially important and, in your case, wonderful and beautiful and sweet and lovely, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Josiah Randers."

She pursed her red lips in thought. Then, "If I were a newspaper editor," she said simply, "and father treated my men as I know he treats all reporters, I'd get hopping mad myself and never print his name again."'

Richard smiled. "The editor's revenge," he said, "is not in silence but in screaming headlines."

"Then you'll try again to interview him?"

"The only thing I ever expect to interview him about again is a girl named Helen."

She blushed prettily and fingered her furs on a chair beside her. Then: "It's nearly 6. The car is waiting I must be going."

Radiant she faced him as he stood hat in hand, by the door of the limousine. "Wednesday night," she said gaily, "we'll map out plans that will make Mr. Hearst look like the editor of a farmer's almanac. Come early."

Richard's breath whipped in sharply. Wednesday night—he had intended telling her all her father had said. Obviously the sidewalk was no place to do it now. "Helen, mine is a morning paper," he said in some confusion. "I'll probably have to work Wednesday night. Besides, before I call again, I think you'd better have a talk with your father."

Before she could protest he had bowed and swung off toward Fifth avenue.

"Well," she gasped. "Home," she said to

CARE OF THE BODY.

what is this symptom of ill health, called measles. Just one of the various and manifold visible signs of general toxemia.

"Suppose the child develops a case of mumps. The glandular system has stored up toxic material to the limit of tolerance, and the salivary glands, in this particular instance, having, for some yet-to-be-discovered reason, suffered the most irritation, become inflamed and lodge their protest against abuse in the only way nature has to enlist aid and attention. Is this disease mumps? Yes, it may be called mumps. Is it a disease? No. It is toxemia—plus a warning.

"Why does one attack confer immunity against a future like attack? Nature is wonderfully wise—wise as her years are innumerable. Imagine, if you will, what would happen were she to permit the same glands to be her instruments of elimination, or victims of her just wrath, every time there was a supersaturation of toxic material in the system. Repeated attacks of inflammation would first impair function, then weaken the glandular structure, and finally destroy its usefulness by hardening the tissues or cause their death, with consequent suppuration.

"To save us from ourselves and maintain at least partial efficiency in the organism, nature sees fit to try another outlet next time. What does she do? She gets rid of surplus toxin by bringing on an attack of scarlet fever, by which process she causes the skin, the mucous membranes of the throat and intestinal tract, and the kidneys to throw off the irritant poisons. It takes nature, by her methodical ways, a definite period of time to clean house properly. Therefore this and other diseases are called self-limited diseases.

"Do doctors ever cure these self-limited diseases? We have yet to hear of one who makes such claims.

"Is there any known means of aborting the attack, or lessening its duration or severity? I used to endeavor to persuade myself to think that what I did for these cases was helpful. Just in what way it was helpful I did not know. Nevertheless, I was there, and I was doing something. I cannot recall one case that would not have recovered if left entirely alone. Truly, it seems to me now that most of them got well in spite of me, and drugs, and 'good, nourishing food.'"

"Liberty Under Law."

COMMENTING on the persecution of chiropractors by the State Board of Medical Examiners, and urging a licensing board for that school, the Porterville Recorder says:

"Until we, too, pass such a law, our conscience must brand us 'guilty'—guilty of the injustice of not permitting qualified practitioners of an acknowledged healing system 'liberty under law.' No one material remedial system should seek to monopolize or rule, for no one is infallible or perfect. One succeeds where another fails. It is said that the American Medical Association is backing the prosecution of the chiropractors. If this is the case, their action in this instance is acting as a sort of boomerang, for instead of halting the growth of the chiropractic system, the attention of the public is being drawn to this system as never before, through the publicity of these trials, and is thereby gaining many adherents for the cause."

Foreign Languages.

BY A VOTE of 89 to 28 the lower house of the Nebraska Legislature passed a Senate bill which forbids the teaching of any foreign language in the grade schools.

Eat Less and Weigh More.

MANY thin people by cutting their food consumption in half might increase their weight and strength, and improve their health, especially if, at the same time, they select natural foods that have not been tampered with.

It is not what you eat, but what you digest and assimilate that nourishes you.

Doctors and Diet.

FOLLOWING is from Mrs. A. Wean, a trained nurse:

"One great trouble with the doctors is that they do not tell us which foods are antagonistic to each other. I feel that this is the key to the great question of diet. We, in our ignorance, are trying blindly to do the right thing about combinations, but do not know how. In the study of materia medica the student learns which drugs are antagonistic, but they get little about foods—in fact, that is something which seems to be lost sight of in medical schools, and the wonder to me is that as many people get over illnesses as they do, in spite of the treatment given them, especially diet, and particularly in hospitals. Being a graduate nurse, and having seen the most extraordinary food given to sick people, it certainly surprises me that more do not die."

Starvation Food.

WHOLE wheat contains over twenty-three parts of mineral elements to the thousand parts of water-free food.

White flour contains less than six parts, or about one-fourth as much.

The rest has been removed in milling, to be fed to hogs.

Most of the so-called vitamines are also removed.

What a waste!

And we are sending such "near food" to the starving children of Europe, with condensed milk, in which the life elements are also destroyed.

Human Nature.

C. W. DAYTON of Owensmouth, writes: "You cannot understand human nature until you are 50 to 60 years old. At about 50 the mind begins to gain power over the flesh. Young persons might gain many years' experience over nature by listening and learning from persons older than themselves."

One of the weakest things about creation seems to be the fact that all human beings must go on making the same blunders as their parents and ancestors.

X-Rays.

CROWLEY'S bill to restrict the use of X-ray machines was passed by the California Legislature. Under its terms only licensed physicians and dentists, persons who have been operating the machines for two years, and others who may pass an examination to be given by the State Board of Medical Examiners can use the radium rays.

X-rays and radium are dangerous, even when used by experts.

Increase of Insanity.

A NEW YORK correspondent of The Times recently wrote:

"Several well-known savants have expressed bewilderment at the sudden increase of insanity in New York, especially among former service men, who are said to be going crazy at the rate of 250 a month."

There is nothing mysterious or remarkable about this, to those who have noted the ill effects of interfering with the delicate mechanism of blood circulation by the injection of foreign matter.

Personally, I know of several cases, in which a slight mental aberration has in this way been developed into insanity.

Every disease that afflicts mankind is a constitutional possibility, developed into disease by more or less habitual eating in excess of the supply of gastric juice.—[Dr. Edward Hooker Dewey.

Cantilever Shoes

Importance of Being Comfortable

Physical discomfort is contrary to Nature's plan; and if the cause is not removed, the ultimate effect may be anything from a local pain up to a breakdown in physical vigor.

Shoes are a particular source of discomfort, because the average human foot is taxed more than any other part of the body. We all walk—some more than others—but we all do walk and are glad of it.

Some walk in intermittent pain. Some chuggle along like a motor with two cylinders not working—because the efficient human foot is hindered and restrained by inhuman shoes.

Some walk along briskly, with enjoyment and "pep." These are the ones who wear good shoes like Cantilever Shoes, with room for the toes, with lines shaped to the natural foot, with flexible shank which fits up snugly and bends with the foot arch. Thus the arch muscles, being unrestrained, help along and gain strength through exercise (a cheap way of keeping the foot well.)

The Omitted Name

By Frank B Elser

JAMES JOSIAH RANDERS had attained what folks sometimes call the apex of finance. He had reached that altitude by means of his own ladder, which he purposed to drag up after him, silently. If he chose he would up-end the ladder and balance thereon like the sailor equilibrist at the circus, thereby attaining a plane one better than the apex. But if he did so it would be without summoning the press. What, if anything, he had to confide to the public about his vast affairs reached the newspapers in the form of a meager type-her father's business life. Of the rebuffs veteran reporters had met at the hands of James Josiah Randers in the past Richard knew nothing. His chief concern, as he swung southward along Broadway, was whether Helen, with her keen sense of humor, would interpret to his credit or discredit this latest tack in his career.

Arrived at that great pile of white stone a hundred yards east of Trinity Church, a racing-car of an elevator shot him sky-

"Rats!" snorted Mr. Randers. "If you've really become a reporter for that yellow rag of a Star, you've got less sense than I credited you with. I have standing orders here that no reporters are to be admitted on any pretext. If you are in earnest you know where the door is."

Richard thrust the clipping carefully back into his pocket.

"I'm downright sorry you take it so hard," he said. "I'll be up to see Helen greet a girl who was a girl. When Richard had met her three years before they had looked at each other strangely and smiled. And when they had found a window seat they had again looked at each other strangely and smiled. Then each had repeated, way down where one repeats that love-at-first-sight formula; "Well, I didn't know exactly how you'd look, but this is you."

"Helep," he said abruptly, when tea and English muffins and marmalade had been

His night assignment covered, Richard and his city editor lunched together in the restaurant for employees on the fourteenth floor of the Star Building.

"Still sore about Randers?" inquired Burton.

"Me—sore? Not at all. You fellows are the goats," said Richard. "From what I gather the old gentleman has been booting you out for years, and you not only go back for more but cling to the delusion that no story below Fulton street can be written without his name. Know what I'd do?"

"No, what?" Burton checked a sandwich in mid-air.

"Cut him out absolutely. Put an embargo on the name Randers for six months—a year—two years, if necessary."

Burton put the sandwich carefully back on his plate, and shot Richard a look of pity. Then he laughed good-humoredly.

"Revengeful youth," he said melodramatically, "I thought you weren't sore."

"I'm not, and the idea isn't even original."

"And it would be about as popular with the newspapers as evennig dress in Canal street at high noon. Might as well suggest cutting out baseball."

"In reply to which," returned Richard, lighting a cigarette, "I say tommyrot. It can be done.'

"How?"

"Get together. Quarantine him. All papers agree not to print the name Randers till he hollers 'nough. Stick to it, and I'll guarantee results. Teach him once and for all that this g-r-e-a-t profession of ours—"

Burton hit the table a whack with his open palm. "By thunder, Van," he cried, "I believe it'll work! If there's any sand in the rest of the papers we'll have the man without a country looking like an also-ran."

'You boil quickly'" Richard remarked. "On the level, you'll try it?"

"Try it? Do it! Great conference of editors at luncheon. As father of the idea you are invited. I outline the plan, tersely, lucidly. Cheers. The question: 'Shall the New York press, crushed for years under the heel of James Josiah Randers, turn and sting him in his only vulnerable spot—his bump of importance?' More cheers. The vote: Ah! The ayes have it overwhelmingly. The embargo is on!"

Burton stopped, out of breath. "And Miss Randers?" He raised his eyebrows.

"I'll be tickled to death," replied Richard. "It is her suggestion."

. . . .

Only those whose privilege it has been to gaze behind the headlines into the field of the Fourth Estate, where the public cow seldom grazes, know anything about the famous luncheon at which an amused, albeit determined, set of editors voted unanimously not to print the name of James Josiah Randers, nor his wife, nor his daughter, nor his stocks, nor his bonds, nor anything that was his. The plan went into effect forthwith, a decision happily timed, for that night Mrs. Randers gave at her town house a reception and cotillion of unusual elaborateness.

We'll skip the cotillion, mentioning only that Richard Bibley Van Kleeck was not present, and, if you are not fastidious, will enter the boudoir of Mrs. Randers on the following morning.

The breakfast tray removed, she settled herself comfortably among the pillows to read with inward satisfaction and outward protest what the writers on social affairs had to say of her as hostess. In her hands was the Herald. Sh ewas subtly familiar with every division and subdivision of its society page; her practiced eye took in seven columns at a glance. Therefore she ahemmed impatiently and turned to the page following. Doubtless, she reasoned the affair had been given so much space that it had been put on a page apart from the society items. But as she scanned the next and the next and the next page a queer look came over the lady's face, and, squeaking chagrin, she threw the Herald to the floor, laughed nervously and rang for her maid.

"Bring me the other morning papers," she commanded: "all of them." The maid did so quickly and left the room.

Mrs. Randers opened the Times, only to discard it with a gasp, as if it had stung her. In truth it had. Her breathing was a bit labored now, and with fingers that trembled she began searching the other papers. In her desperation even the want ad columns did not escape her. But the quest was fruitless. The name Randers did not appear once. The cotillion had been ignored.

"Mother, what in the world is the matter?"

Startled, Helen Randers stood in the doorway.

Something that might have been a homeopathic groan came from among the pillows. Helen, now quite alarmed, ran to the bedside. Her glance caught the jumble of papers on the floor.

"Oh, mother," she exclaimed, "why do you let these newspaper articles get on your nerves? Let them print what they want."

"Have you seen the papers?" This from the pillows.

"No."

"Well, we're insulted—insulted by every paper in the city." Mrs. Randers sat up by way of emphasis.

Helen snatched up the Herald. "What have they printed?" she cried.

"Nothing!" This weakly fro mthe pillows.

Helen Randers gasped. "Nothing?"—she queried incredulously—"the papers have printed nothing—about—the—cotillion?" Her face had the look of a child challenging a fairy tale.

Mrs. Randers nodded.

The Herald slipped from Helen's fingers. Her eyes were flashing mischief. For an instant she turned her face away. Then she bent over her mother.

"No wonder you're overcome," she said. "They've let us alone at last. We're free—free from the vipers of the press. Hooray! won't father be happy! How gratified you must be."

Mrs. Randers sighed. "I'm most gratified, my dear," she said. "And your father will, of course, be greatly relieved."

. . . .

When James Josiah Randers reached his office that morning, an hour before his wife was awake, he saw things with the exaggerated clearness that comes with loss of sleep. Today he saw with particular vividness that the time was at hand for floating the $50,000,000 bond issue of Consolidated Suburban Traction.

In a two years' secret campaign Mr. Randers had acquired control of 500 miles of tottering street-car lines tributary to New York. Scattered through a dozen different companies, with most of which passing a dividend had become a habit, the securities had in the past been kicked about among the cats and dogs of the curb. But when Consoliated Suburban Traction was born with a capitalization of $100,000,000 common and $50,000,000 preferred stock, there was a scramble of the minority to swap old lamps for new—at a ratio satisfactory to Mr. Randers. Pending the bond issue no improvements had been made, but the common, first offered at 75, had risen steadily from the moment of its listing on the exchange. The magic name Randers had worked wonders.

"When the common hits par and the preferred 125," mused Mr. Randers, as he entered his office, "we'll put out the bond circulars."

He went straight to the stock ticker. C. S. T. had opened strong at 98. His brokers had been instructed to put it up to par before the close. At wash sales they were experts.

Mr. Randers smiled as he sat down at his broad desk. He pawed over some papers. Then, "Dunwoodie," he called sharply to the secretary, "where are the clippings?"

"On your desk, sir, in the usual place."

"I don't mean the business clippings, but that social rot."

Mr. Dunwoodie came nearer, cautiously. "I can't understand it, sir," he said. "There weren't any. May I ask, was the er—a—cotillion postponed?"

Mr. Randers wheeled like a locomotive on a turntable and stabbed Mr. Dunwoodie with a glare. "Dunwoodie," he inquired crushingly, "haven't you read the papers?"

"Thoroughly, sir," replied the secretary, getting red. "There was nothing about the affair."

"What!"

"Nothing," repeated Mr. Dunwoodie, doggedly.

The face of James Josiah Randers was a study. A hot wave of anger swept from his gaitered feet to his massive head. Yet, save for a fleeting compression of the lips his heavy features gave no hint of his emotion.

"Well," he burst out after a moment, "for once those papers have let us alone."

"I'm afraid they have." Mr. Dunwoodie spoke earnestly.

"Afraid!" Mr. Randers fairly sprawled on the opportunity to let the jacket of his anger burst. 'Afraid, you simpleton! Don't you know I have been fighting for

Mr. Dunwoodie said something inarticulate to show that he had been hep all along, and withdrew. He was glad to get away from there.

Left alone, Mr. Randers seized the stack of clippings—the financial clippings, minus that "social rot." Here, at any rate, in the Wall Street reviews, the name Randers would recur with satisfying annoyance. He chose from the lot a column article on Consolidated Suburban Traction. As he ran his eyes down the clipping his face grew grave. Something was surely wrong. Instead of the name Randers speckling sentence and paragraph, there appeared such watery phrases as this:

"A well-known banking house;" "a financier of international reputation;" "an operator known for his foresight and astuteness;" "a prominent interest heretofore identified with this undertaking."

Mr. Randers laid the clipping down with a deliberateness unusual to him. He picked up another. A glance showed that it was likewise mysteriously expurgated. Beads of perspiration popped out on Mr. Randers's forehead.

The telephone rang. "Hello, Randers." It was the voice of an old associate in the street. "Who's sick at your house?"

"Nobody," snapped Mr. Randers. "Who said there was?"

"Nobody." The voice was cheerful. "I thought maybe that was the reason your wife's affair was called off last night!"

"Who said it was called off?"

"Nobody. But hte papers haven't got a line about it, and my natural inference was—"

"Hang the papers," bellowed Mr. Randers.

"It is an outrage." The voice was sympathetic.

"Get me right," shot back Mr. Randers, unconsciously slangy in his fury, "I don't want my name in the papers. Good-by."

He swung fiercely about from the telephone and glowered at the heavy rug on the floor. Panics, he knew, had followed the wake of illness in a capitalist's family. Many a bear raid had sprung from a germ less fertile than the omission of his name in connection with C. S. T.

It was an oversight, of course. The next sheet of typewritten flimsy issuing from his office would be seized upon and played up by the newspapers as in the past. That he had been right in his attitude toward the press admitted of no argument. The man who talked much lost his power of emphasis; the biggest headlines were built over scant material from potential sources usually dry. Witness the case of his friend down the street, who regarded all reporters as pirates and was besieged by forty of them every time he departed for or returned from Europe.

Debate of this kind, however, is not satisfying. James Josiah Randers rose guiltily fro mhis desk, and looked gloomily out the window.

Mr. Dunwoodie re-entered, cautiously. There was a white ring around the young man's mouth. Apparently he had something to say. But Mr. Randers dismissed him with a scowl. Closing his huge right fist until the knuckles popped protestingly, he crossed over to the stock ticker. C. S. T. was down three points

Mr Randers was on the point of rushing to the telephone to demand of his brokers why his orders had miscarried when the financial news ticker at his elbow rasped nervously and clicked a purple line of "Testing, Testing, Testing" across the broad white ribbon of paper Irritated, he was about to turn away, when the spinning lettered wheel swung back to marginal alignment and printed out a word that held his attention. The word spelled, letter by letter, was J-A-M-E-S. Following quickly then J-O-S-I-A-H, and inevitably, R-A-N-D-E-R-S. It was the next word, however, that caused the financier to snort. It was H-E-A-L-T-H. The ticker always omits the apostrophe. The full subhead was—

JAMES JOSIAH RANDERS HEALTH.

Under it came this:

"Rumors of the sudden illness of Mr. Randers, although met with prompt denials at his office today, caused market uneasiness in the Stock Market. This coupled with rumors that there was some change in the plans for financing C. S. T. brought a sharp decline in that stock."

Mr Randers did not wait for more. He jabbed viciously a mother-o'-pearl button labeled "Stenographer," and when a young man hurried into the room it was to receive a rapidly dictated statement, also under a subhead. The subhead, worded by Mr. Randers himself, was "To the Press." This was the statement:

"Based apparently on the omission by the newspapers of accounts of certain entirely private social affairs at the home of James Josiah Randers, malicious rumors have sprung up regarding Mr. Randers's health and the management of certain properties with which he is identified. Mr. Randers, when seen at his office today, was in the best of health. He took occasion to deny that there had been any change in the plans for reorganizing and financing Consolidated Suburban Traction, and added that he would soon issue a statement giving full details of the proposed bond issue."

"Tell Dunwoodie to give that to the reporters," he directed. "Make plenty of copies and see that they all get it."

Less than ten minutes later telephone bells were jangling in the financial bureaus of fifteen newspapers. Mr. Dunwoodie was announcing that an important statement from James Josiah Randers - then on the way by messenger. He had always enjoyed making these announcements; but the first comment he heard now made him wince. The second he interpreted as a joke. The third left him stunned. "Randers, you say? Thanks, old man. No hurry about it, though. Don't bother with a messenger. Mail it to the office."

. . . .

Meanwhile the market was breaking badly. In Wall Street rumor does the hundred in ten flat. Mr. Randers had been variously assassinated, sent to Matteawan, killed in an elevator smash; had died suddenly of apoplexy, eloped with Norma Talmadge. His brokers, instructed to take every share of C. S. T. offered, braced themselves for the onslaught only to be swept off their feet by the flood of selling orders that poured on the floor. Lambs and professionals alike were unloading. Before Dunwoodie had stumbled from the telephone booth, the last of the reporters' languid comments stinging his numb brain, the stock had dropped ten points.

Mr. Randers stood at the stock ticker, feeding the tape through his fingers. Before his eyes Consolidatd Suburban Traction was resuming its former junk-pile rating. In his vaults were $50,000,000 in bonds to be floated on a rising market. They wuold float now—like mad.

Dunwoodie entered. He was making a queer noise in his throat. Mr . Randers looked up, a question in his frown.

"I—I—notified all hte newspapers," faltered the secretary.

"Those were my instructions," returned Mr. Randers coldly. "Why annoy me further about it?"

Mr. Dunwoodie looked at his employer helplessly. His throat hurt him.

"Speak," boomed Mr. Randers

Mr Dunwoodie swallowed "They don't want it," he said bluntly. He had intended saying something else, more diplomatic; but, after all, that was the simplest.

A mass of ticker tape fell, writhing at James Josiah Randers's feet.

"What did you say?" he demanded hoarsely.

"They turned your statement down." Mr Dunwoodie spoke hollowly. He recoiled as he spoke. He had never seen Mr. Randers look as he looked now. The great mans' cheeks were ashen.

A statment from James Josiah Randers refused by the press It was impossible. More than that—it was uncanny. Mr. Randers blinked a moment in dazed perplexity, and then, as the color returned to his face, he clenched his jaw in firm resolve. Let 'em throw C. S. T. overboard—the fools! He'd stem the deluge, if it cost him $5,000,000. Orders to this effect on his lips, he reached for the telephone. Yet he hesitated. The bonds—what a black eye for them! He might as well get at the root of the evil now. Something was surely rotten in the Fourth Estate.

"Dunwoodie," he asked suddenly, "did you 'phone all the papers?"

"Yes, sir; all of them."

"The Star?"

"Yes, sir."

"The downtown bureau or the main office?"

"The financial bureau down town."

Mr. Randers lowered his gaze, something he seldom did. He moistened his lips. "Call up the Star's main office," he said heavily. "Ask for Mr. Richard Bibley Van Kleeck. Put him on my private wire."

As Mr. Dunwoodie bolted through the door Mr. Randers turned again to the stock ticker. C. S. T. was sloughing off between sales. The ticker rasped hard to keep up.

"C. S. T., 1000-80; C. S. T., 500-79 7-8; 2000-80; 1500-79 3-4; 5000-79; 3000-78 1-4; 5000-76; 3000-74 1-2; 1000-70.

Mr. Randers groaned. It was slaughter.

Mr. Dunwoodie was back in a minute and a half. "Not in," he said briefly.

Mr. Randers scowled. "Where is he?"

"I didn't ask, sir."

[illegible] would [illegible] take a great deal of talk in newspapers to start it. Many people would seize any pretext to escape the daily grind, especially that of housework.

"More than one woman would like to stay in bed till noon, also some men would like it. Necessity drives the most of us out of bed earlier than we like especially in winter.

"Sleeping sickness might become as popular as some other ailments, who knows? It is one thing after another in ailments the same as in fashions in dress. It has been highly fashionable to have appendicitis. It is almost a social requirement.

"When there is excessive drowsiness, it is a warning that something within the body is not right. Warnings are given for slight derangements. That is the time to attend to them, when they are at the beginning. The way to correct them is to watch what we are doing. It is time to stop bodily extravagance, and practice health conservation.

"Sleeping sickness represents a state of derangement of the body that has its source in the digestive system. The place to direct the treatment is the stomach and bowels. Cleanse them, repeat the process, eliminate, watch the diet, almost stop it for a few days, and give some cold water to drink, no hot drinks, no other drinks."

Sugar and Sickness.

FOLLOWING is a dispatch from Coblenz, Germany:

"American soldiers whose predilection for sweets has often caused Frenchmen to gasp with amazement are still world champions in this respect, it is shown by figures compiled at the Cafeteria, the largest restaurant in Coblenz, under the management of the Y.M.C.A.

"During the past year American doughboys ate at that restaurant alone 233,138 puddings, 475,843 tarts and cakes, 310,874 cookies and doughnuts, 63,151 cream puffs and eclairs, 624,906 dishes if ice cream, 366,351 chocolate sundaes, 61,378 pies, 223,787 apples and other fruit, 282,741 glasses of lemonade, and 43,792 oranges."

This partly explains why America has more physicians, and dentists, and hospitals and patent medicines, than any other country.

Military Hospitals.

MILLIONS and more millions are being demanded and granted for military hospitals, where the treatment prolongs sickness and retards recovery. Why not devote, say one per cent of these great sums to establishments where the nature cure quickly restores health?

In an Arizona military hospital patients suffering from incipient tuberculosis are forced to sleep—or to try to sleep—four hours a day—two in the morning and two in the afternoon. Then, when they can't sleep at night, they are injected with morphine, so that they may "rest." As a consequence, many of them have become confirmed "dope fiends."

Poison Ivy.

I RECENTLY published my sure preventative for ivy poisoning. As I said, there are many methods of relief, after the poison has been absorbed. They all depend on an alkali, to counteract the acid of the poison. The simplest alkali is baking soda. A Hollywood correspondent offers this, which he says he has used for more than fifty years:

"To one-half pint saturate solution common baking soda and vinegar add one-fourth pint ammonia. Mix soda and vinegar in a large bowl or bottle (as it foams when mixed) and then add the ammonia. It is also especially good for bites, or stings of insects."

Another "Drive."

ANOTHER of those multitudinous "drives" was recently announced. This time it is a "Milk Drinking Drive," the same to be conducted by the California Milk Producers' Association, in the public schools of Los Angeles. School authorities are to be asked to co-operate. Prizes are to be offered for the highest records of milk consumption in one school.

Commenting on this, a correspondent of The Times pertinently wrote:

"It is claimed by the California Dairy Council that not enough children drink milk regularly. Very well, if there is so much milk to be consumed that the mass of chil[illegible] but at the price it is (and has been for some time) many children who would dearly love to have it must be denied. And yet, the children of the rich and poor alike will be solicited to drink more milk. The one could have it and perhaps does not want it—the other craves it, but the parents cannot afford it. There may be one or two children in the rich family while the poor family has five or six.

"Why should such a one-sided proposition be brought into our public schools simply to supply funds to the milk producers' association?"

Milk is not a natural food, except for the young of the animal that gives it, when sipped directly from the nipple. When sterilized, or pasteurized, it is further objectionable, as the life elements are killed, and the organic mineral salts largely disorganized.

Why not a candy drive, and a coffee drive?

How far are the schools to be used as a field for propaganda by political medicine and commercialism?

"Children's Ailments."

SO-CALLED "children's ailments" are all unnecessary and preventable. J. H. Tilden, M.D., writes:

"What about the delicate child whose resistance is greatly below par? The clinical picture of this child, supposedly suffering from malnutrition in its commonly accepted sense, is familiar to all doctors, and most laymen. Practically every child of this type has food forced upon it, when every symptom exhibited cries out for a little respite—a little physiological rest; rest from food until nature can rally her forces sufficiently to re-establish normal secretions and be willing again to accept a rational diet in a rational amount. The mortality rate is very high in so-called malnutrition, and these cases do not reach the age when nature brings about a reaction in the form of an acute and distinctive disease. The abused organs of digestion take on inflammation from long-continued irritation, and the child has not the power to resist the resulting absorption of profoundly toxic products of intestinal decomposition. Does the child die from want of food? No. Dissolution is brought about through senseless and unreasonable efforts to force the organism to accept too much food and the wrong kind of food.

"Sooner or later every child that survives the first year of malpractice is expected to have measles, mumps, whooping cough, scarlatina, German measles, sore throat and the rest of the ailments. If disease is inevitable, and children must get sick, and the sickness confers immunity against further like attacks, the child might just as well have it and be done with it. Such is the general line of reasoning. But it is necessary that the child be immunized in this way? Positively no.

"What is measles? An acute and violent febrile outbreak by which the skin and mucous membranes of the bronchial tubes assume the burden of throwing off irritant poisons that have been gradually accumulating over a shorter or longer period of time. Is this measles? Yes and no. As a symptom of something it may just as well be called measles as any other name. But

The Wild Flowers of Southern California

BY FRANCIS M. FULTZ

(ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS BY THE AUTHOR.)

Gathering Wild Roses in the San Bernardino Mountains.

WILD ROSE AND HER COUSINS.

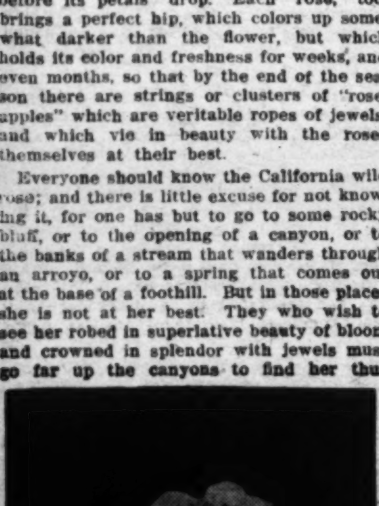
OUR wild rose has no sister in Southern California, and but one in the State, the Redwood Rose (Rosa gymnocarpa) of the North Coast. And there seems to be only one other west of the Rockies, Fendler's rose (R. Fendleri.) These three make up the list of western wild roses—quite in contrast, as to number of species, with the fifteen east of the Rocky Mountains. But if wild rose has no sisters in our region, she has enough cousins of the first and second degrees of removal to fully make up the deficiency in the matter of nearer relatives.

Rosa Californica, as the botanists call our wild rose, is well-named, for she is found in every nook and corner of the State. Although she grows more exuberantly in the moist canyons where there is good soil, yet all she really asks is a little moisture and some place to bury her roots. Some of the finest displays I have ever seen were where the bushes clung to the face of a rocky cliff, sinking their roots into narrow crevices that were kept damp with moisture oozing dows frmo above.

Absence of Rain Makes Perfect Roses and Strings of Jewels.

ON ACCOUNT of the absence of summer rains in Southern California, the buds of our wild rose are almost always perfect, and open without blemish—so that each flower presents a spread of spotless pink. For the same reason, each rose lives long before its petals drop. Each rose, too, brings a perfect hip, which colors up somewhat darker than the flower, but which holds its color and freshness for weeks, and even months, so that by the end of the season there are strings or clusters of "rose-apples" which are veritable ropes of jewels, and which vie in beauty with the roses themselves at their best.

Everyone should know the California wild rose; and there is little excuse for not knowing it, for one has but to go to some rocky bluff, or to the opening of a canyon, or to the banks of a stream that wanders through an arroyo, or to a spring that comes out at the base of a foothill. But in those places she is not at her best. They who wish to see her robed in superlative beauty of bloom and crowned in splendor with jewels must go far up the canyons to find her thus adorned. In the higher parts of the Sierra Madre, and in the San Bernardino and San Jacinto Mountains, she makes wonderful displays, but I have found her just as resplendent high up on the mountains which look out over the Pacific at close range—in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties, and even in the Santa Monica Mountains.



California Wild Rose.

As I hve already remarked, wild rose has numerous cousins which make their home with her in Southern California. These are various in name, and some of them are so very different in appearance from their pink-clad cousin that only a botanist would guess they were members of the rose family—one of the three or four plant families most useful to man.

Wild Strawberries Grow on the Higher Mountains.

IN THE first place, there are the "berry" cousins, four of them, strawberry (Fragaria Californica) raspberry (Rubus leucodermis,) blackberry (Rubus vitifolius,) and thimbleberry (Rubus parviflorus.) The wild strawberry is shy and retiring, and consents to mature its fruits only well up on the higher mountains where there is plenty of moisture. At least two mountains that I know of here in Southern California are called "Strawberry Peak" because they nourish wild strawberries on their slopes. (Strawberry Peak at the head of the Arroyo Seco is not one of these. It seems to have got its name from the shape of its summit.) Anyone who has gathered the sweet, juicy strawberries—small though they are—which grow in some of the meadows of the Sierra Nevada, would be sadly disappointed in what they found here on the southern mountains. The vines bloom profusely enough, and are quite pretty and attractive in their white dress; but as far as fruit is concerned, they do not live up to their early promise.

Our wild blackberry and raspberry are not quite so disappointing in the matter of fruit, but by no means live up to the expectations of easterners as to what wild berries should be. In lower altitudes on the mountains along the sea the blackberry fruits fairly well, and if one knows just where to go, one may bring in enough berries for a pie—after an hour's diligent picking. For raspberries you must go pretty well up in the interior canyons, where you are almost sure to find some in everyone you explore, but you will grow hungry with the job of gathering enough to make a glass of jelly. Both the blackberry and raspberry may be classed as successes in the flower line, for they produce plenty of bloom. But very few persons ever think of them as flowers—they are mostly brambles which encumber the way.

The thimbleberry is the real "flower" of the berry sisters here in the Southland—notwithstanding its botanical name of parviflorus, which I think is not well applied. No one who knows it denies it a place in the floral list, and some even gather bouquets of it to adorn the table of outing camp or mountain lodge. But as a fruit-producer it must be classed as a complete failure. There are some berries, to be sure, and apparently of large size; but when you inspect one, you find it made up mostly of "hollow interior," and you see at once where the berry gets its name. Then what there is of the berry has a flat, insipid taste—and without further argument you vote the thing a fraud. Yet its viny bushes are always welcome neighbors to our high mountain camps, because of their floral beauty. The pure white flowers are almost as large as wild roses, and seen against the tangled mass of vines that covers some high sloping bank, they make a fine and pleasing display.

The Service Berry is a Second Cousin of the Rose.

ANOTHER "berry" cousin of the rose that we sometimes come across in the higher mountains is the service berry (Amalanchier venulosa.) It is only a second-cousin, however, and is placed by some botanists in the apple family—all the flowers of which, by the way, are really roses. Although the service berry is a common shrub in Northern California and throughout the Northwest generally, there are only a few places here in the South where it grows. One locality is on the north slope of the San Antonio Mountains. It is also to be found at a number of places in the San Bernardino Mountains.

This rambling dissertation on the cousins of the wild rose necessarily takes me into the realm of the chaparral, where we find them liberally represented. Although I have elsewhere—in my articles on the "Elfin-Forest"—treated of several of them, yet it was from the standpoint of forest-cover, and there still remains much to be said concerning their floral accomplishments. Some of them are first cousins, belonging to the rose family, while others are now rated as second cousins. All originally belonged to the rose family, but some have been placed in the more recently established peach and apple families. To the ordinary observer, however, their flowers are all built on the same plan.

One of these cousins is the holly-leaved cherry (Prunus ilicifolia)—the "Islay" of the Spanish. Most persons who are familiar with it call it "mountain cherry." Its leaves are so holly-like, however, that "holly-leaved cherry" would seem to be the more distinctive one to use, unless we were to adopt the one given it by the Spanish. The shrub in bloom is a thing of beauty, forming a solid mass of white, and in fruit is almost as much of a joy—to look at. But the cherries are pretty nearly as much of a delusion and a snare as thimbleberries; not entirely, though, nor what flesh there is has something about it, that, while it may not altogether please you, nevertheless is quite apt to make you want to try it some more—and in the end make a cherry addict out of you. The cherries are often as large as an Early Richmond, but they are all pit and skin, with just a suspicion of very juicy flesh between; so a person may eat long and diligently and still never get enough to satisfy him.

Catalina Island Has a Cherry That is All its Own.

THE holly-leaved cherry has a twin sister (Prunus Lyoni) that is found only on Catalina Island. The two seem identical in flower and fruit, but the island shrub has smooth-edged leaves which are quite in contrast with those of the mainland form.

Another cherry cousin of the rose is the chokecherry (Padus demissa.) It, too is a generous bloomer; and, as it grows in thickets, it presents billows of white about April or early May on some of the mountain flats in the upper part of the chaparral belt. The trim little trees, seldom over six or seven feet tall, are no less attractive along in September or October, when they are loaded with shiny black fruit.

Sveral of wild rose's first cousins among the chapparal shrubs have such small flowers that their rose-structure does not make itself manifest to the casual observer. On most of these, however, the bloom comes forth in such countless numbers that the floral display is both showy and pleasing. The most widely-spread, and also the most plentiful, of these shrubs is "chamise" (Adenostoma fasciculatum,) or "greasewood" as it is frequently called. This elfin-tree of five, or six-foot stature often covers square miles at a stretch, with scarely any other shrub included, whitening the mountainside as with a fall of snow—in June, which is its blooming time.

"Redshank" (Adenostema sparsifolium) is the chamise's only sister. The shrub is more robust, but scantier of leaf, than the chamise. Redshank gets its name from the color of its trunk and branches, which are covered with loose, stringy shreds of old bark that is continually falling away and exposing the new warm-reddish growth beneath. Although its flowers are somewhat larger than those of the chamise, they seldom make such a solid spread of bloom. The shrub occurs only in the southern part of the chaparral belt, and is not nearly as plentiful there as the chamise. It is found only in one or two places north to Orange county—one place being near Saddle Peak in the Santa Monica Mountains. It is a later bloomer than the chamise, being at its best about July.

Even Our California Holly is a Cousin of the Rose.

OUR "California holly" is cousin to the rose. Although everybody is familiar with its bright red berries, and through them easily recognize the shrub during the late fall and winter, yet very few know it in the spring and summer, after the berries are gone. And when it comes into flower about June or early July, many persons wonder what the shrub is that is so generously covered with white bloom. Scarcely anyone, other than botanists, dreams that the flowers are roselike in structure. While the flowers are small, and individually are not conspicuously endowed with beauty; yet the "ensemble" effect of the cluster is pleasing; and often for a brief period the whole shrub is exceedingly attractive. However, the shrub is quite apt to have one reprehensible habit—that of not opening its flowers simultaneously, but straggling along for several days, or even weeks, thus presenting a rather untidy appearance. Altogether, however, take it the year round, it is a distinct addition to our foothill and lower mountain landscapes. Its botanical name is Heteromeles arbutifolia.

"Mountain mahogany"—so-called from its dark heart-wood—is another chaparral shrub of the rose family. Its blooms are small, inconspicuous, and lacking in beauty—and are never included in the list of wild flowers, in the common acceptation of the term. Cercocarpus is its generic name, and there are two species common throughout the south, betulaefolius of the foothills and lower parts of the mountains, and ledifolius of the higher altitudes. The two look alike to common folks, however, and neither attracts any attention, until the seeds develop their long plumy tails—when every tramper of the trails takes note of the shrubs.

The Wild Spiraea as Beautiful as a Garden Shrub.

SCATTERED throughout the upper parts of the chaparral belt in the San Gabriel Mountains there is a slender shrub some five or six feet tall that comes into bloom in May or June with a wealth of very small light-lavender-rose flowers. It is a first-cousin of the rose, with the long botanical name of Sericotheca franciscana. In hte older botanies it will be found under Spiraea; and it is commonly called "mounttain spiraea" by those who know it at all, but I have found very few persons who are acquainted with it. It is a beautiful shrub, however, when in bloom, and is worthy of a wider circle of friends.

ive they frisked about in their old happy fashion. At the end of the week, they were a band of optimists. Continuing the experiment, it was found that they could be made into optimists or pessimists at will, merely by a change of diet."

Yet prisoners, and the insane, and hospital patients, and sufferers from tuberculosis, are fed in a way that makes monkeys sick and miserable.

A writer in the Kansas City Star thus contrasts the fighting qualities of apes and men:

"Embody in one man the size of Willard, the fighting fury of Sullivan, the lightning adroitness of Corbett, the terrific punch of Fitzsimmons, the strength of Mike Dorilas and the wrestling skill of Frank Gotch. Put him in the ring with any ordinary gorilla, and he would have no more chance of victory than a child against a grown man.

"Incidentally, he would be stone dead during the first round, unless rescued by his seconds, and the seconds would be stone dead, too, unless they used explosive bullets on the gorilla.

"But terrible as is the gorilla, the championship of the jungle is not for him. It goes to the chimpanzee, in proportion to his weight."

Remember that the diet of these remote cousins of ours is the same as that of primitive man, namely, fruits, nuts and grain "in the milk"—green corn.

As man has deviated from his original diet, so has he deteriorated in strength, health and endurance.

"Psychological Experts."

FOLLOWING brief editorial from The Times is entirely in line with what I have frequently said, namely, that "psychological tests" are a bad joke:

"Half a dozen high-priced alienists were paid $100 each a day as witnesses in the Carl Wanderer murder trial in which the plea of insanity was raised by the defense. After the evidence had concluded the judge called the experts to him separately and asked each to define a moron. The answers were about as varied as they could well be. To one a moron was an arch-imbecile whose intelligence was blunted on its moral and emotional side alone. Another described a moron as a clod with a dwarfed intellect of a 7-year-old. None of the experts indicated a hundred dollars' worth of ability in their own research, but they got the money just the same. Naturally, they split even. The experts for the defense were all sure the defendant was insane, while those for the prosecution were equally as certain that he was sane and shrewd."

In so-called "psychological wards" and "psychological clinics," instead of finding out what ails your mind, and prescribing nature's remedies for a mind diseased—rest, and cleansing of the internal body—they proceed at once on the assumption that you probably have syphilis, that being the prevailing medical fad. They give you the unreliable and misleading Wassermann test, and then, if your body happens to be in an acid condition, and the guess from the test shop comes back "positive," they proceed to pump more poison into the blood, interfering with the circulation, and often transforming nervousness into insanity.

These "experts" also have the assurance to say that about 85 per cent of us have the mentality of a 14-year-old boy.

Well, I think the average 14-year-old boy would have enough sense to prescribe rest for the nerves and physical work in the open air for a man who is run down by the unnatural life of a city.

Curing Criminals.

THERE has been a discussion in Los Angeles of the relative importance of a new jail and an industrial farm. We need both, but the value of the latter should not be overlooked.

Another striking evidence of the effectiveness of rational treatment of prisoners is furnished by the Newcastle County Workhouse near Wilmington, Del., of which an account was recently published in The Times. It is a prison where every man is on his personal parole day and night, where guards are few and rules are rarely broken; where life-termers work unguarded outside the prison walls, and where punishment, when needed, is decided on and administered by the prisoners.

Mordecai Plummer, the warden, believes that crime is a mental affliction. He might say a physical disease. No man can be mentally normal, while his liver is congested and his colon foul; and no man can overcome these ailments while confined in an ill-ventilated cell, and fed in a way to

I repeat that, under a system of physical work in the open air, rational diet and ample facilities for cleanliness, two-thirds of the inmates of our reformatories and jails and insane asylums might be cured within six months.

Sleeping Sickness.

"SLEEPING sickness," like diabetes and several other popular ailments, is not a disease, but a symptom of a sick condition of the body. Elmer Lee, M.D., writes in Health Culture:

"Have you heard of the latest in fashionable disease? Have you heard of sleeping sickness? When I was a young doctor and living in Chicago a friend of mine told me that his wife had it. He said she had sleeping sickness. He told me that she never got out of bed till noon.

"It was the first time I had ever heard it said that anyone had sleeping sickness. This woman was not sick, she was lazy. She complained to her husband that she was tired, always tired, and that she needed sleep, always more sleep. She staid in bed till noon and often later.

"It became a habit that was hard to break. I am not certain that she ever became free from it. Nothing could induce that woman to get up before noon. She was dead to the appeals of her husband and those of her children, also dead to her friends in their efforts to get her out of bed. Some days she would stay in bed all day, sleeping most of the time.

"Since then I have known of similar cases

Yale Calls Western Man for President.

BY M. F. CUMMINGS.

THE acceptance by James Rowland Angell of the presidency of Yale University means the beginning by the West of the repayment of its educational borrowings from the East, which have extended over a long period—say, since Horace Mann migrated to Ohio.

James Rowland Angell is distinctively a Middle West product, although he was not born there, but came as a lad to Ann Arbor, Mich., when his father was made president of the State university there situated. Then Harvard and Europe proceeded to broaden his outlook and assist in developing his undoubted talents.

Upon returning to America he took up his life work at the University of Minnesota. Then the University of Chicago called him. There he advanced rapidly from professor to dean and then to the vice-presidency of the university. In 1915 he was exchange professor at Sorbonne. For several terms he was president of the Psychological Association. For one year he was chairman of the National Research Council, where he performed distinguished service, later being called to the Carnegie Corporation. In this latter position he remained until "Old Eli" curved a wistful finger and invited him to Yale, the first westerner to be so honored.

There is no doubt whatever that James Rowland Angell is in himself quite worthy of the position he now occupies and that he will fill it to his own honor and the intellectual and moral enrichment of the fine old seat of learning at New Haven. But there is no doubt that the opportunity to prove himself in this manner came to him more readily because he is the son of James Burrill Angell, formerly president of the University of Vermont and later of the University of Michigan. He came to the latter State in June, 1871, and retired from office in February, 1909. For a portion of this time President Angell was also in the diplomatic service of his country as Commissioner to China, Minister Plenipotentiary and member of a commission to Turkey, and also served in the same way in Canada. In all of these places he distinguished himself as a successful negotiator of treaties and diplomatic agent, so gaining wider fame than he could have earned even by his superior accomplishments at home.

Dr. Angell is Not Dependent on His Father's Achievements.

TO BE "the son of one's father" is sometimes an embarrassing honor. While it is an advantage by way of opening wide the doors of opportunity, it at the same time invites and even challenges critical comparison of ability and character between the generations. In this case the son is said to be the more brilliant man of the two. But whether he possess an equal share of diplomatic ability, or as it has often been expressed in the parlance of rural Michigan, "the knack of getting the things he wants out of all kinds of folks and leaving them in good humor," is yet to be demonstrated.

This "knack" was so highly deceloped in James Burrill Angell that it reached the height of genius. In a less upright and right-minded individual such an endowment might easily have become a social menace but President Angell was as just as he was shrewd, as fair and considerate as he was keen and determined, as patient and reasonable as he was inflexible. He was, however, anything but a guileless individual, in spite of his facial expression of candid simplicity. Instead, he had the cunning of the serpent, but his wiliness was employed only in self-defense, never for the purpose of wronging a human creature. If the son equals the father in these respects and is also as brilliant and scholarly as he is credited with being, he will speedily have Yale at his feet and will have vindicated the right of the West to enter into and possess its share of the highest executive and administrative positions in the land, by virtue of quality.

It has become the custom of those who believe themselves to be the socially elect, to sneer at our system of State universities, as well as at those educational institutions founded by religious bodies. Those modern seats of learning which are not the result of united civic or religious effort, but were built and wholly or partially maintained by the charity of some newly-rich individual, are, in the estimation of such decadent critics, of a decidedly higher caste than all others. Harvard and Yale are of course excepted from the gibes of these persons by reason of their age. Also they probably do not know that Harvard was founded by the State authorities of Massachusetts, and Yale by a group of clergymen, whose primary object was to provide for the broader and better education of young men wishing to enter their profession. The latter institution was thus given a somewhat theological bias which it has in a measure retained.

Yale's New President Is Not Descendent of Clerical Family.

BUT its new president has little of the clerical element in his ancestry. His paternal great-grandfather owned a farm near Scituate, R. I., which had been held by the Angell family since 1675. The Providence and Rhode Island turnpike, built about 1800, traversed this farm and in 1810 the great-grandfather of Angell built a roomy tavern for the accommodation of the travelers who passed over this road on their way to and from the flourishing town of Providence. During the War of 1812 most of the travel and transportation between Boston and New York went over this route, and the Angell Inn became locally famous. Upon the death of its founder his eldest son, Andrew Aldrich Angell and his wife and remote relative, Amy Aldrich Angell, took over the management of the inn as well as that of the ancestral farm. There James Burrill Angell, future diplomat and president successively of two State universities, was born and carefully yet hardily reared. His parents were highly respected members of the community and the orderly, comfortable place of rest and refreshment over which they presided was a real godsend to the traveling public. That competent boniface was then as now a very rare article is illustrated by the old folk-saying, "It takes an uncommonly smart man to keep a hotel."

James Rowland Angell, new President of Yale University.

In the "Reminiscences" of James Burrill Angell, that eminent educator and useful citizen says of his early environment: "Compared with the seclusion of the ordinary farmer boy's life it will readily be seen that my life was very stirring. I have always felt that the knowledge of men I gained by the observations and experiences of my boyhood in a country tavern has been of the greatest service. Human nature could be studied in its every variety, from that of the common farm laborer to travelers of the highest breeding and refinement. Eminent political speakers were always entertained at our table and some of them were very helpful friends in my later life. If, as I have sometimes been assured, I have more than ordinary power of adaptation to the society of different classes of men, I owe it in no small degree to the varied associations of my bodhood."

It is reasonably certain that President Angell's early associations greatly stimulated his faculty of social adjustment. But there is as little doubt that the qualities which made him notable were his by nature. Executive ability, firmness, tact, patience and amiability were as necessary to his ancestors' success as to his own, and were probably his by inheritance. A wide knowledge of the varying types of humanity was an advantageous but by no means an indispensable corollary.

His Father's "Reminiscences" Tell an Interesting Story.

THE volume of "Reminiscences" already referred to, also records the important fact that after completing his academic education, and before entering college, James Burrill Angell worked for two years as a laborer on his father's farm. Thus he entered Brown University with a much more adequate knowledge of life than is possessed by the average college freshman. He says in his autobiography; "most of the details of farm work I had previously learned during summer vacations. But I now learned thoroughly how much backache a dollar earned in the fields represents. I was also able to see how the world looks from the point of view of the laboring man. Often in later years, when weary with study, I was inspired with new zeal by recalling how much severer were the fatigue and monotony of the work of the farmer's boy. It is a good fortune for a boy to have known by experience what hard and continuous manual labor means."

There is no doubt that the experience of which Mr. Angell speaks made him a better citizen. And it doubtless materially affected the decisions given by him when, as president of a great university, he was called upon to mediate in certain disputes between capital and labor. But what neither Mr. Angell nor any other individual who has been given opportunity for a thorough education can ever really know, is the dull despair of such ignorant louts as the English miners of today, for instance. These are forced to labor from childhood with no hope of a respite, no opportunity for self-development, or for social contact with those wiser than themselves. Small wonder if such blind Sampsons seek to pull down the pillars of the temple wherein those more favored by early opportunity and environment dwell. More than most men of his class President Angell recognized his debt to the toiling masses and wished to pay it by conscientious public service.

The particular early influences which the elder Angell believed to have had so large a part in shaping his character have never touched the life of his son, for the father had achieved success in his chosen vocation ere the son was born. Nor will the president of Yale know aught of the difficulties which beset the path of the head of a State university. The task of wringing a sufficient allowance for his institution out of the reluctant fists of a bucolic legislature will never fall to him.

When James Burrill Angell became president of Vermont University the State Agricultural College had not yet been called into being and he therefore had the opportunity of organizing this latter institution and uniting the two into one harmonious whole. Thus the task of raising the necessary funds for carrying on the work was also unified and the problem made a comparatively simple one. But in Michigan the farmers and lumbermen who at one time comprised a great part of the population were willing to give with both hands to the institution which the students of the university irreverently referred to as "The Lansing Cow-College." But they counted and recounted every dollar advanced for the maintenance and expansion of the older university. Therefore time after time when the State Legislature was in session and the annual grant to the university in danger of being pared down almost to the vanishing point, President Angell journeyed to the Seat of the Mighty Demos and by his personal influence and skill in "beating the bushes" succeeded in securing all necessary funds. Following such experiences with the shrewd and intelligent but narrow-visioned and undeniably frugal men of Michigan, it is small wonder that he was found competent to deal with such comparatively pliable material as Chinamen and Turks, or even hard-headed Canadians.

Dr. Angell's Father Combined Journalism With Other Qualifications.

IN CONSIDERING the sources of the senior Angell's power it must be borne in mind that while a professor at Brown University he also did considerable journalistic work. During the crucial years of the Civil War he left the university and acted as managing editor of the Providence Journal, which paper at that time had a very commanding position. The practical knowledge of public affairs both at home and abroad thus gained, added to his previous intensive study of foreign policies and ambitions, was to be of much use in later years.

In comparison with the varied and often difficult and perplexing activities of James Burrill Angell his son has "supped on the roses and lain on the lilies of life." Whether the diversified or the purely academic career can contribute most to the enrichment of the individual consciousness remains an open question. But that the man who in Browning's pungent phrase "hurls from change to change unceasingly" does not thereby impair his mental powers or shorten his life seems certain. No one who had the privilege of observing President Angell in his later years can doubt that his mind remained perenially young and his love of beauty unimpaired to the end. Released as he was from mere routine work he had more leisure than ever before for that which an old Irish friend felicitously described as "makin' his sowl." In the summer of 1916 an Ann Arbor lover of that dignified flower, the hollyhock, had in his barden, in the university district, a wonderfully improved and highly diversified display of these "dear common flowers." And scarcely a day passed but that the familiar figure of "Prexy," bearing a white umbrella to shelter his honored head from the sun's fierce rays, descended the street leading from the campus to this garden, for the pure delight of observing its beauty. In his outdoor rambles about the town he passed neither man, woman nor child without a courteous salutation or word of greeting. Such men never die, but merely join the invisible host who keep watch and ward over our planet until time shall be no more. As has been said of Dr. Charles Eliot, the nobleness of such a life helps us to master the despair we are fain to feel adorned. In the higher parts of the Sierra Madre, and in the San Bernardino and San Jacinto Mountains, she makes wonderful displays, but I have found her just as resplendent high up on the mountains which look out over the Pacific at close range—in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties, and even in the Santa Monica Mountains.

As I hve already remarked, wild rose has numerous cousins which make their home with her in Southern California. These are various in name, and some of them are so very different in appearance from their pink-clad cousin that only a botanist would guess they were members of the rose family—one of the three or four plant families most useful to man.

elsewhere—in my articles on the "Elfin-Forest"—treated of several of them, yet it was from the standpoint of forest-cover, and there still remains much to be said concerning their floral accomplishments. Some of them are first cousins, belonging to the rose family, while others are now rated as second cousins. All originally belonged to the rose family, but some have been placed in the more recently established peach and apple families. To the ordinary observer, however, their flowers are all built on the same plan.

One of these cousins is the holly-leaved cherry (Prunus ilicifolia)—the "Islay" of the Spanish. Most persons who are familiar with it call it "mountain cherry." Its leaves

CARE OF THE BODY

CONDUCTED BY
HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N. D.

What to Eat.

DIETISTS differ greatly in the advice they give the public. Thus, those who have made no study of the subject become confused, and perhaps say: "Oh, what's the use?"

Food, as it affects the human body, in health and disease, has been my main study for more than fifty years. I have learned more during the past five years than I had during the preceding fifty. And I am still learning.

These four simple facts stand out, like rocks in a turbid stream, to all who have devoted to the subject of food long and conscientious study:

(1.) All natural foods harm the system, by gradually unbalancing its functions. Unnatural foods are those that have been deprived of part of their constituents, as white bread, or refined cane sugar, or vegetables from which the juice has been discarded.

(2.) You should eat only when you are hungry, not when you merely have a "good appetite," which is usually a bad appetite, due to an inflamed condition of the stomach.

(3.) You should eat only enough to satisfy real hunger. Every ounce eaten over the amount is a slow poison, upsetting the digestion, if it is weak, or storing up waste in the body, if the digestion is strong.

(4.) There is no "specific" food that will "do you good," any more than there is a "specific" dope, that will make you well, after you have become sick by breaking the laws of nature.

I have in my library over a hundred books on diet, of which perhaps two or three are satisfactory. Most of them are strong on "calories" and "proteins" and "carbohydrates," but are of litlte use to those who wish to learn how to eat, so as to build health and strength.

"Right Food; the Right Remedy" is a book of 315 pages, by Charles C. Froude, B.Sc., just published by Ed Malmquist. Dr. Froude is a broad-minded chiropractor, who realizes that diet is the most important factor in restoring health. He has had this book in preparation for several years. It is intended, not only for the general public, but also for physicians, so many of whom are now seeking to obtain knowledge that is denied them in medical colleges.

The comprehensive scope of this book may be gathered from the titles of a few of the chapters: Fasting; Overeating; Auto-intoxication; Food Salts; Devitalizing Foods; Raw Foods; Food Combinations; Menus; Eating When Traveling; Diet for the Overweight; Diet for the Underweight; Diet During Pregnancy; Children, Baby Feeding. There is also a cook book.

There is a short chapter on meat, and another on cooking meat, but the whole book is based on a non-flesh dietary.

This volume certainly fills the time-honored designation "a long felt want." I can safely recommend it to readers of the Care of the Body, so many of whom are continually asking me to recommend them a good book on diet.

• • •

"Preventive Medicine."

PLANS for the establishment in Los Angeles of a great medical school, which will make of this city a Mecca for those seeking knowledge in "preventive medicine" and the care of the sick, were discussed before the Committee of Education of the Los Angeles County Medical Association by Dr. J. M. T. Finney, professor of clinical surgery in Johns Hopkins Medical School.

There are many thousands of people hereabouts who believe that in the Care of the Body Los Angeles has a "school of preventive medicine" that really prevents, by teaching its readers to cease doing that which makes the sick—the only way in which health may be restored.

• • •

The Wassermann Test.

AN INCREASING number of physicians, writing in medical journals, are calling attention to the unreliability of the Wassermann test for syphilis.

The right of persons arrested to refuse to submit to medical examination for the purpose of determining if they are suffering from communicable diseases was upheld recently in Los Angeles by the District Court of Appeal, Department One, when it ordered the release from custody of a woman brought on a writ of habeas corpus.

Not only will one drop of blood, sent to two test shops, often bring different guesses, but an acid condition of the body, caused by wrong diet, will give a Wassermann positive, and will give a negative, after a few weeks' fast, or corrective diet.

One physician is quoted as saying that he can change the Wasserman reaction by giving the patient a glass of beer.

Furthermore, the regular treatment of syphilis is worse than the disease. Instead of purifying the blood they pump more impurities in, thus making a cure impossible.

To forcibly subject people to this fallacious test and harmful treatment is something that would scarcely be endured in Russia, under Lenine.

Tree Surgery.

ROLAND CASAD of Covina, Cal., has written a pamphlet on "tree surgery." He claims that disease and light bearing or barrenness of fruit trees is largely caused by too severe cutting of roots or limbs, so that there is a restriction of the sap flow, between the bark and the trunk.

This condition, he claims, may be remedied by making slits with a pruning knife in the bark of the limbs and trunk. This should not be done in the fall of the year, as the wounds would not have time to heal before cold weather.

Unnecessary Noises.

A WRITER, distracted by the noises of a city, says he has often wondered why nature did not provide us with earlids, as well as eyelids.

Some of these raucous noises are unavoidable, but others are not. As, for instance, the sounds often emitted by those devilish contraptions, the motorcycles.

These continual noises gradually impair the nerves, already worn to a frazzle by the unnatural life of a great city.

Let us have a campaign for the abolition of unnecessary noises.

Boys and Girls.

A LOS ANGELES pastor recently caused a mild sensation and adverse criticism by preaching on immorality in high schools.

That there is some immorality where young people of both sexes are thrown together is not surprising, considering the lax morality that prevails in society nowadays. Marriage ties are loosening, and home influence is waning.

More attention should be paid in schools to the formation of character, and less to the stuffing of immature brains with facts that are soon forgotten.

However, the school can never take the place of wise, healthy home influence.

At a meeting of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association, in Washington, D. C., it was stated that, in 1920, 65,000 girls disappeared in the United States, without leaving a trace. The great majority were lured to the big cities from the small towns and farms. Resolutions were proposed, demanding the abolition of checking of corsets by school girls and older women when attending dances, also the knee length dress, diaphanous attire, rouge, suggestive dances and objectionable movies.

This is all very well, so far as it goes, but as I have said, nothing can take the place of good home influence and example. It is the parents we must reform, before we attempt to reform the boys and girls.

Medical Tyranny.

FOLLOWING is from the Chicago Tribune:

"The white plague tore a mother from her two children yesterday and in the struggle the coats of two health department quarantine officers were ripped to shreds.

"The mother is Mrs. William Gallagher, 3518 North Dobley street, wife of the cashier of the sanitary district. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, health department epidemiologist, diagnosed her disease as an 'open' case of tuberculosis. She was invited weeks ago to go to the municipal tuberculosis sanatorium, but she refused to be separated from her two children, 8 and 15 years old.

"Yesterday Quarantine Officers Harry Rand and William Wesley, who had been attempting for more than a week to put Mrs. Gallagher in a hospital, seized her on the rear porch of her home. They told her she must go with them to the county hospital.

"Without a word Mrs. Gallagher grabbed Rand's coat. Her fingers caught in an upper pocket and ripped it from top to bottom. She tore several chunks out of the clothing of the two officers.

"Then her 15-year-old son joined the melee, and when the boy and the woman were finally subdued the inspectors were more in need of the shelter of the ambulance parked around the corner than was Mrs. Gallagher."

This sort of thing is being done all over the country, by hirelings of politico-medical boards.

The boasted liberty of the American people is rapidly disappearing.

And remember that the "curative" methods of the dominant school of medicine are being more and more questioned, even in their own ranks.

Original Inhabitants.

THE first full-blooded Indian ever admitted to citizenship in the United States was given complete naturalization in Cheyenne, Wyo. He is Thomas Blackbird, 23 years old, of the Sioux tribe, and a veteran of the World War.

Blackbird was admitted under an act of Congress passed November 5, 1919, by the provisions of which any Indian of legal age, who has served in the war, may, upon application, be admitted to the rights of citizenship without first making any formal declaration.

We have been rather slow in recognizing the original inhabitants of this country, whose land we appropriated, while we grant citizenship freely to the scum of Europe.

Our Indian record is not such as patriotic Americans may regard with pride. Gen. Crook once said that in every trouble that he knew of between red and white men, the latter were to blame.

In the closing hours of their convention at Riverside, Cal., the Mission Indian Federation adopted resolutions asking that Indians' affairs be transferred to the Department of Agriculture, where more humane treatment may be accorded.

Nephritis.

FOLLOWING is from Kelly's "Practice of Medicine:"

"In chronic nephritis the diet is of the utmost importance, the duration of life probably depending more upon discretion in eating and drinking than upon any other factor."

He adds: "Drugs are not of much value."

That is quite true. And what does the writer say, on this important subject of diet?

"In general the diet should be sufficiently varied to be attractive, it should be free from irritating qualities and readily assimilable, and the nitrogenous constituents should be relatively reduced. The meat allowance should not exceed 100 grams daily; a diet of ample fuel value should be constructed by adding sufficiency of fats and carbohydrates; an excess of meat is said to favor the development of uremia; red and white meats are of equal value, and may be allowed in accordance with the patient's desires. As a rule, alcohol should be prohibited, although in some cases a little of the lighter wines appears to do no harm."

Following such superficial piffle, it is no wonder that this medicinal "authority" promises only "in many cases amelioration of the symptoms."

Under a rational dietary, nephritis, like other ailments, is cured. "Amelioration of symptoms" is all that "medical science" can promise.

Too Much Proteid.

EXCESSIVE eating of meat, or other proteid food, not only fills the blood with poisons, but it makes you heavy, pessimistic and unfit. Following is from an article by Martin Edwards, M.D., in the American Magazine:

"In a series of laboratory diet tests on monkeys, the results were remarkable. For one week the monkeys were fed upon a proteid diet, heavy with meat and beans. At the end of the first three days the monkeys began to be ill. They swung about the cage very little, life seemed to weigh heavily upon them. In another two days they slumped down, held their heads in their paws, and took very little interest in anything that was happening.

"By the end of the week the cage was filled with a band of melancholy pessimists, who took no exercise, were willing to look at nothing offered to them, and regarded the world with sad and dreary eyes. Then the diet was changed. For a week they were fed only vegetables, cereals and fruit. In three days they had brightened, and in

Fabled King Solomon's Mines Uncovered.

BY RENÉ BACHE.

EXPLORERS backed by British money are digging up the ruins of King Solomon's ancient citadel in South Africa, the center of the mining district from which his huge stores o fgold were derived. They are the most mysterious, as well as the most interesting, of all memorials of antiquity, and are known today, in the native language, as the Great Zimbabwe—meaning "Here is the Great Kraal."

The Great Zimbabwe was in Solomon's time a large and populous city, as may be judged from the fact that its recognizable ruins cover an area of more than three square miles. Doubtless its extent was much greater, inasmuch as outside of this area are scattered remains of many important structures, and mounds hundreds of yards in circumference which have been found to contain conical towers, traces of walls, etc.

The city was formidably fortified, and must have been garrisoned by regiments of troops. In the middle of it rose an isolated granite "kopje" two hundred and fifty feet high, which was crowned by a fortress. The latter was probably in its day the mightiest stronghold in the world, an unassailable citadel, its south side being defended by ninety feet of sheer precipice, while massive labyrinthine walls rendered approach to the summit possible only through narrow passages easily blocked.

The mines of King Solomon were worked by a multitude of captive Negro slaves, and all of the gold output was brought to the Great Zimbabwe to be converted into ingots for shipment. It was thence that caravans departed eastward for the seaport now called Sofala, a journey of 200 miles, carrying under armed guard gold, ivory, and other precious merchandise destined for Palestine and Arabia.

The city stood in the midst of a hostile country, and for that reason the site chosen for it was strategic. Along the road leading from it to the seacoast were placed at regular intervals of a few miles small granite forts, ruins of which are still to be seen, and which were manifestly designed as stopping places for the caravans.

In the Great Zimbabwe are found extensive workshops for the handling of gold, in which objects of that metal (as discovered by excavation) were strewn over the cement floors "as thick as nails in a carpenter's shop." There were also furnaces for melting the gold, soapstone molds into which it was poured to make ingots, burnishing tools, etc. The manufacture of gold jewelry seems to have been pursued on a considerable scale, judging from the number of bangles and other ornaments recovered from the ruins.

The region here described is now believed to be the Havilah of Scripture, which speaks of "the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold." The seaport of Sofala (on the East African coast, close to the twentieth parallel of south lattitude) is almost undoubtedly the Tarshish of the Bible. When the latter mentions Solomon's "ships of Tarshish," it refers to his fleet of sailing vessels which voyaged southward through the Red Sea and down the African shore to Sofala.

If these inferences be correct, there still remains the puzzle of Ophir. Where was Ophir, whence the "gold of Ophir" came? The notion formerly entertained was that Ophir was somewhere in India. When it was proved that Southern Rhodesia was undoubtedly the source of Solomon's wealth in the yellow metal, it was assumed that the location of Ophir had at last been found. But archeologists are now of the opinion that Ophir was a seaport on the south coast of Arabia—that it was merely an entrepot from which gold was distributed over Arabia, Palestine and Egypt.

One should realize that the gold mines of Rhodesia were not worked only by King Solomon. They were operated by the Arabians (Sabaeans and Himyarites) for several centuries before the monarch called The Wise was born. Of this fact there is plenty of evidence furnished by the workings themselves, of which, in quartz reefs, there are at least a thousand miles (in widely scattered areas) to be seen today.

The Bible tells us that David, the father of Solomon, got gold from Arabia When the Queen of the Sabaeans (whom we call the Queen of Sheba,) made her historic visit to Jerusalem, she brought with her as a gift for the king nearly half a ton of gold. But the Arabians, themselves of Semitic race, were in a way kinsfolk of the Israelites, and apparently, after Solomon went into the mining game, the gold-seeking enterprise which had its headquarters at the Great Zimbabwe was pursued on a co-operative plan. This continued, however, for less than a century; for (as the Bible informs us) the fleet of the Israelites was destroyed about 900 B. C. at Ezion-Geber, near the head of the Red Sea—a disaster which, occurring in the time of Jehosaphat, is understood to have put an end to their activities in the Indian Ocean.

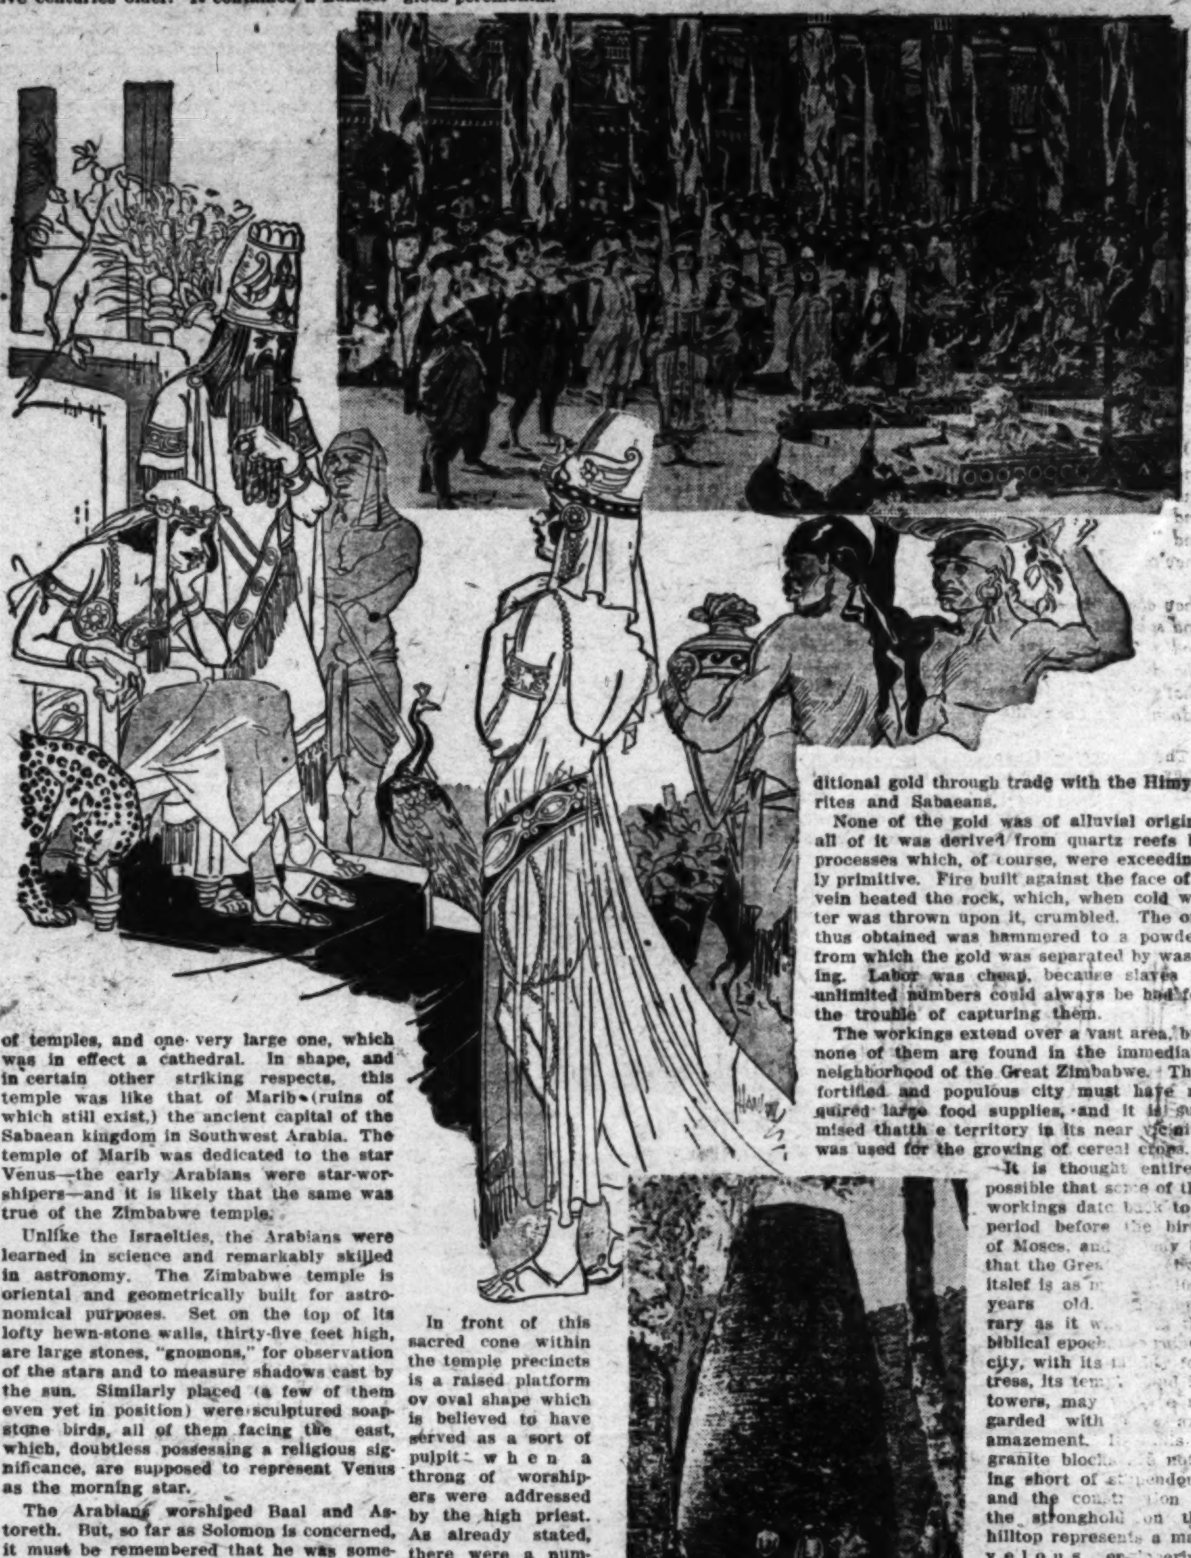
Solomon was born about 1000 B. C. The Great Zimbabwe is believed to be at least five centuries older. It contained a number of temples, and one very large one, which was in effect a cathedral. In shape, and in certain other striking respects, this temple was like that of Marib (ruins of which still exist,) the ancient capital of the Sabaean kingdom in Southwest Arabia. The temple of Marib was dedicated to the star Venus—the early Arabians were star-worshipers—and it is likely that the same was true of the Zimbabwe temple.

Unlike the Israelties, the Arabians were learned in science and remarkably skilled in astronomy. The Zimbabwe temple is oriental and geometrically built for astronomical purposes. Set on the top of its lofty hewn-stone walls, thirty-five feet high, are large stones, "gnomons," for observation of the stars and to measure shadows cast by the sun. Similarly placed (a few of them even yet in position) were sculptured soapstone birds, all of them facing the east, which, doubtless possessing a religious significance, are supposed to represent Venus as the morning star.

The Arabians worshiped Baal and Astoreth. But, so far as Solomon is concerned, it must be remembered that he was somewhat eclectic in matters of religion, taking up with "strange gods" (as the Bible avers) on occasions. Furthermore, Southern Rhodesia was a long way from Jerusalem, and it may be imagined that he was more interested in the gold derived from that source than in the forms of worship adopted in so distant a country.

The great temple was elliptical in shape and 873 feet in circumference. Along its outer wall were placed small conical round towers at regular intervals. A particularly weird and romantic aspect is imparted to the ruined structure by a narrow passage through which, from outside the temple, the ancient priests could reach unobserved the sacred inclosure in the middle. The passage is very long and deep, being flanked by walls thirty-five feet high on one side and twenty feet high on the other.

In the middle of the sacred inclosure is a conical tower of masonry which was thirty-five feet in height, with a circumference of nearly fifty-eight feet. It seems to correspond to the sacred tower of the Midianites, called by them the Face of God, which (Judges viii:7) Gideon destroyed. Allusions to such towers are frequent in the Bible. They were the "high places" into which priests went up on occasions of religious ceremonial.



Top) A revival of Solomon's glory: Dancing Girls and Peacocks. A scene in the film version of Sir Rider Haggard. (Bottom) The conical tower, elliptical temple great Zimbabwe.

In front of this sacred cone within the temple precincts is a raised platform ov oval shape which is believed to have served as a sort of pulpit when a throng of worshipers were addressed by the high priest. As already stated, there were a number of other temples in the city, but this was the principal and most hallowed shrine. Obviously, utmost interest must attach to whatever can be learned about such a structure, inasmuch as it relates importantly to the evolution of religion. The orientation of our ecclesiastical buildings, the spires of our churches and the very candles on our altars are derived from a remote antiquity. In the Roman Catholic churches of today one witnesses forms of ceremonial that were familiar to the ancient Arabians and Babylonians, and even the costumes worn by the priests are probably much the same.

Mining engineers, as a result of careful study of the ancient workings, have estimated that at least $400,000,000 worth of gold must have been taken out of them before—rather suddenly, it would appear—they were abandoned. Solomon's share was doubtless large, judging from the plentifulness of the precious metal in Jerusalem, as described in the Bible, where, as we are told, "silver was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon," and was "made to be as stones." Very likely he obtained much additional gold through trade with the Himyarites and Sabaeans.

None of the gold was of alluvial origin; all of it was derived from quartz reefs by processes which, of course, were exceedingly primitive. Fire built against the face of a vein heated the rock, which, when cold water was thrown upon it, crumbled. The ore thus obtained was hammered to a powder, from which the gold was separated by washing. Labor was cheap, because slaves in unlimited numbers could always be had for the trouble of capturing them.

The workings extend over a vast area, but none of them are found in the immediate neighborhood of the Great Zimbabwe. That fortified and populous city must have required large food supplies, and it is surmised thatth e territory in its near vicinity was used for the growing of cereal crops.

It is thought entirely possible that some of the workings date back to a period before the birth of Moses, and [illegible] be that the Great [illegible] itself is as [illegible] 000 years old. [illegible] rary as it w[illegible] the biblical epoch [illegible] city, with its [illegible] fortress, its tem[illegible] its towers, may [illegible] regarded with [illegible] and amazement. [illegible] granite blocks [illegible] nothing short of stupendous, and the construction of the stronghold on the hilltop represents a marvelous engineering achievement, built as it was of thousands of tons of hewn stones, which were lifted to the summit without the aid of machinery.

The fortress had two paths of access, one on the west side and the other on the east, and the walled entrance to each, at the foot of the hill, was guarded by a pair of small forts. An enemy, if sussecceful in getting past the latter, would have been obliged for further progress to go in single file through a winding maze of passages leading upward, while exposed to attack by the defenders from above.

One may easily picture to himself the scene when a crowd was assembled on the

THE BUSINESS OF MOTHERING.

BY RACHEL DAVIENY.

IN A HOUSE scarcely bigger than a shoe, lived a woman who had so many children neither you nor I would have known what to do, but she did.

Such a tiny place you wonder how it could ever shelter fourteen children, but there they are, in South Pasadena, Cal., fourteen husky, happy little boys and girls given over to Mother Groner by the county. A children's home is a sad place at best, but the causes are usually legitimate, family misfortune or the death of parents. A home, however, created almost solely for children whose parents have gone far astray is backed by tragedy. Mrs. Groner's work, for the most part, is to care for these little ones whose parents have had their troubles settled by the courts; whose parents are on probation for failure to provide, for delinquency.

She began the work in 1909, when conditions made some work imperative, by taking a few children into her own home. Later the appeal of such work on a larger scale could not be resisted and for ten years Child Welfare work has claimed her.

In the beginning she was merely Mrs. Groner, but soon the children, out of their love, instituted the use of mother, and though children may come and children may go, she has remained Mother Groner. The children do not need to declare their love. It shows as a child slips up to squeeze her hand, to pat her dress, or sings about his allotted work. She is the first real mother many of them have ever known. Her arms yearn for children, her lap is always ready to hold a wee one and her spirit guides them wisely.

A sign on the front door of this home warns the public to state its business briefly—the matron's time belongs to the children. Once inside, however, Mother Groner announces, "I'll probably talk you deaf and dumb before you leave." Dumb you are in wonder.

Her first principle is that whatever your work is, you must care more for that one thing than anything else; then give your best to that work. In her case it is doing for the good of humanity. She is heart and soul in her work and because she is a real mother, she has succeeded in a wonderful way. There is always a waiting list for Mother Groner's.

She believes, too, that good health guards against and overcomes many faults. Many a little one has received a new lease on life here. As graduate nurse she is able to care rightly for the little ones, as the children's looks testify, much roundness and hard little limbs. Each child has individual attention, diet watched and daily life regulated. Thus they are able to throw off disease. During the scourge of influenza all escaped, though for weeks the house bore a quarantine sign to keep off the careless public. A bit of Mother Groner's resourcefulness.

She finds the bigness of little things. When I asked her how in these days of expense, she could make ends meet on her small allotment, she assured me it had been hard. She had succeeded by making the most of what she had and through the goodness of friends. The best gift of the year had been a box of metal buttons, the kind that could be left on overalls, wash in and wash out, with never a break or a crack. The county pays Mrs. Groner $12.50 a month per child—a sum wholly inadequate in these days. Often the children come destitute of clothing, ill, or hungry. Frequently most of the first month's payment is used directly for the child—shoes, clothes, medical care. During the past year three older girls, 12 and 13, have been completely outfitted.

Mother Groner is a good manager. Not a cent does she owe. "We pay for what we get, when we get it. It is the only way when you never know how large or how small your family is going to be."

As the door sign states, her time is the children's. Her day begins long before theirs. It ends long after she has tucked her babies in for the night. She cooks, sews, "makes over," talks, hunts friends, all for them. She has taught them how to be useful, how to co-operate, how to respect authority, and as a result she has not pathetic asylum children that do their tasks grudgingly, but normal children that coax for a "piece" like many an every day child. She has simply a big, happy family where everyone has his own place. To hear a wee one cry, "I want to go back to Mamma Groner," is recommendation in itself.

Sentenced to the Garret.

KING SOLOMON'S MINE.

hilltop, or on the lower slopes of the kopje, to watch the departure of a caravan eastward for the sea coasts—a long train of Negroes carrying gold, ivory, and other export products of the region. The Bible tells us that Solomon obtained from Tarshish apes, parrots and quantities of spices. Thence also came slaves in large numbers. Doubtless ostrich feathers and the plumes of other birds were included in the consignments bound for Palestine.

The people in the crowd were dressed in short armless tunics, and wore on their arms, legs, wrists and ankles massive gold bangles, exquisitely made and chased in Zimbabwe designs, with chains of heavy gold beads around their necks. Some of the men bore in their hands rods of office, with beaten gold sun images at the tops while others held battle-axes of gilded copper and spears with heads thickly plated with gold.

It was all so very long ago! But the story is always of gold. In the temples of the Great Zimbabwe have been found considerable quantities of gold dust, just as it came from the mines. Also crucibles, in which the precious stuff was melted, gold cake and bar gold. Among the most curious objects recovered from the ruins are large [illegible]

The glories of the Great Zimbabwe—the wonderful city of Solomon and the Arabian kings—have long passed away. Its ruins are literally the haunt of the snake and the owl. The Rhodesian natives of today believe them to be infested by ghosts. But enough of them remain to furnish for many years to come an invitation to further exploration by archeologists. About them lingers an atmosphere of mystery, and of them it may be said that none other of the important relics of antiquity, not even the Great Pyramid, possesses for us moderns an interest so romantic and picturesque.

A Washington mother was not particularly pleased by the willingness of her daughter to proceed upon various excursions with a young man from another city.

"I would much prefer," said mother, "that you would not go sailing with that young man, Marie; I don't believe he knows a thing about a sailboat."

"Oh, but he does, mother!" was the quick response. "He showed me a letter of recommendation from a firm for which he worked and they speak very highly indeed of his salesmanship."—[Philadelphia Ledger.

THE POTTERS

by J. P. McEvoy

ILLUSTRATIONS—BY—J. H. STRIEBEL

The Homeric Fight For a Home.

PROLOGUE.

The Potters have defied their landlord to do his worst. They won't pay the increase and they won't take down the "unfair" sign and they won't move. Meanwhile other tenants are coming through the apartment to look it over—and the First of May, or Renthog Day, as the Potters have come to call it—approacheth with unseemly haste. What to do! What to do!

OVERTURE (by request.)

I do not like the gentle Spring—
To me it doesn't mean a thing
But pests who snoop around our flat
And look at this and finger that
And question us on things that be Peculiar to our family tree.

All day they gawp at me and mine,
And criticise and carp and whine,
And open every private door,
And pass remarks about the floor,
Or rummage through the pantry shelves
And wonder how we feed ourselves.

"Do you get heat and lots of air?"
And "Will they put new paper there?"
And "What's inside that other room?"
And "Ain't the kitchen like a tomb?"
And "How many children have you got?
They're such a care"—and all that rot.

They count our silver, lift our rugs,
And speak of roaches, flies, and—other forms of animal life,
And when they leave they send their friends—
The damn procession never ends.
That's why I sadly rise and sing—
I do not like the gentle Spring.

SCENE I.

The prospective tenants are being shown through the flat. They are as welcome as Henry Ford in Palestine.

1ST TENANT: Aren't the bedrooms small,
And what a dismal hall!
And isn't it awful dark and drear?
I'm sure I would never like it here.

"I am sure I would never like it here."

2ND TENANT: You certainly have no light to spare—
What did you say you had in there?
(Opens door and peers in.)
I'll look and see, if you don't care.
Ma (sarcastically:) Oh, not at all; just help yourself.
1ST TENANT: What have you got upon that shelf?
And is this another closet here?
It certainly needs some paint, my dear.

"I always stack things up at night."

2ND TENANT (to Ma:)
I'll look at the kitchen now, I think.
(Aside to 1st Tenant:)
I wish you'd look at that woman's sink. . . .
MA: Doesn't this kitchen look a fright?
But I always stack things up at night.
2ND TENANT: Now, don't you worry . . . that's all right. . .
This place could stand a lot more light . . .
Maids are so hard to get these days,
And you have to stand for their slipshod ways.
1ST TENANT: Well, I guess we've seen most everything.
Flats are so hard to find, this spring,
And when you find one half way nice
They ask you such an AWFUL price.
2ND TENANT (to Ma:)
Where are you going to move this year?
MA: I'm not going to move . . . we'll stay right here.
1ST AND 2ND TENANTS:
You'll stay right here?
MA: We'll stay right here!
1ST AND 2ND TENANTS:
But your flat's to let . . . you can't, my dear.
MA: Who said we can't? . . . We can, don't fear!
We can't refuse to show you through:
You can lease it, too—that's up to you . . .
But there's one thing that you needn't doubt,
You can't move in until we move out;
And we're not going to move—we're going to stay
If we have to stick until Judgment Day.
1ST TENANT: Well, I wouldn't lease if you feel like that.
2ND TENANT: Neither would I; you can keep your flat.
(Exit.)

SCENE II.

Pa and Ma may be worried, but they are not the only ones. The landlord is getting a little gray around the gills. This is a fight to the finish. As the farmer said to the hen, lay on, MacDuff.

PA: Well, won't the landlord be surprised
To find the building's organized?
I've signed up every tenant in it
To stick and fight until we win it.
We'll all refuse to move the first
And let old Shylock do his worst.
MA: Something seems to tell me, dear,
(Knock.)
He'll soon be calling on us here.
There he is, I'll bet a pretty.
PA: Welcome to our merry city.
He might just as well come in right now
And finish up our little row.
LANDLORD: Well, well—the Potters; how de do?
MA: Doing nicely . . . how are you?
LANDLORD: Can't complain . . . What's this I'm told
That all my tenants are enrolled
And pledged to stay here after May?
Is this your doings, Potter? . . . eh?
PA: That's my idear, all right, all right.
I told you I was going to fight,
And all the rest of us will stick . . .
We're going to make you pretty sick.
LANDLORD: Just what do you propose to do . . .
What makes you think you'll bluff this through?

"Is this your doings, Potter?"

PA: Well, we will tie you up, old dear, .
In trials and suits for at least a year;
And meanwhile you won't get a cent
Of anything that looks like rent,
And meanwhile you'll have taxes, too,
And mortgage interest omnig due,
And none of us will pay a sou. . . .
Is that perfectly clear to you?
I think it's clear
And a grand idear.

"And he'll decorate, too."

LANDLORD: (visibly worried:)
'Twould cost us all a lot to fight.
Couldn't we compromise this right?
Suppose I cut this new increase
Fifty per cent . . . would you—you sign the lease?
MA: You'd have to decorate, this spring.
LANDLORD: I'll do no such a gosh-darned thing.
MA: Well, suit yourself . . . if you don't we'll fight.
LANDLORD: If you'd sign at the old increase, I might.
PA: Well, we won't sign; we'd rather fight.
LANDLORD: Well, then, all right, but it's just for you.
PA: This goes for the other tenants, too.
LANDLORD: Goes for the others? Aren't you bright!
MA: Well, suit yourself . . . if it don't we fight.
And you can kiss your rents and your flats good night.
LANDLORD (surrendering:)
All right, you Gyp-the-Bloods . . . all right!
Sign your lease at one-half the increase
And I'll decorate, too, and get some peace.
(Exits.)
MA (triumphantly:)
Well, what do yuo think of our little scheme?
PA: (dazed:) It can't be the truth . . . it must be a dream.
Our own little flat . . . at one-half the increase.
And he'll decorate, too . . . come over here, Lease.
(And that's that.)

The First Relic of Man.

The first unmistakable relic of man in Europe is a human lower jaw found in the Mauer sands near Heidelberg. It seems to belong to the second or Mindel-Riss interglacial epoch and its age is estimated by Osborn at about 250,000 years. Remains characteristic of the oldest paleolithic epochs occur between thirty and forty-five feet below the surface. If we are to find an archeological name for this epoch, there seems to be no better one than eolithic, the dawn of the stone age, when European man had hardly more than begun to chip a stone implement, although we must recognize the unreadiness of many or most archeologists to find a place for such rude products.—[John M. Tyler in Scribner's.

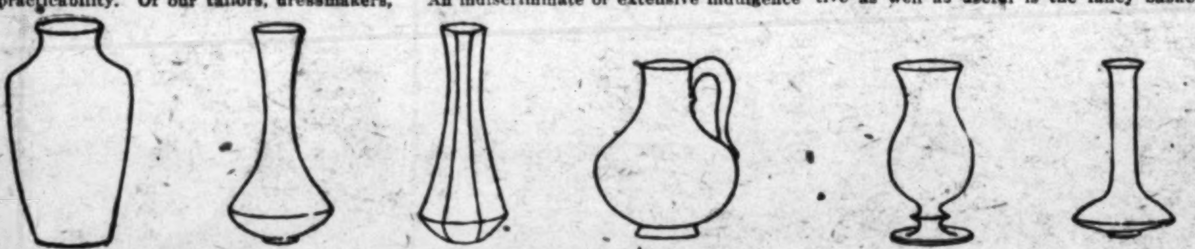
THE HOW IN HOUSES

HOW TO PLAN HOW TO BUY HOW TO SAVE

IF DEMAND controls supply, then the manufacturers of much so-called art pottery and of glass vases of multicolor and of multishape are exonerated from the charge of being responsible for perverting the artistic sense of the public. And just as it is true that artists who wish to live by the product of their brushes must paint pictures that can easily become popular, so manufacturers must consider the public taste. They must even make a close study of it. It is quite natural that if they receive a greater income from the sales of homely objects than they do from the sale of those that their own judgment tells them are on higher artistic value, they will increase the output of the unlovely article.

Just at the present time there is not a large proportion of vases on the market, except among the very high-priced ones, that could pass muster in line, color and practicability. Of our tailors, dressmakers, milliners, shoemakers we demand results that will please the eye. And we get what we demand. Why should we not do as much for our art pottery and glass manufacturers? They would be glad to show us that we cannot demand too much of them. In fact we should demand more of them than we do of those producers of articles that change with the season. It is no little thing that the more permanent things of our lives should delight us with their beauty. Estimating from what I see in homes, as well as from those articles I see in the stores that are destined to go into homes, fully one-third of all vases should be consigned to the deepest and darkest limbo. This will be so until we see, not "darkly, but face to face," in the matter of good line and good color.



Some excellent vase forms.

Inexpensive Duplicates of High-Priced Vases Are Plentiful.

ONE of the easiest ways to learn what is good and what is bad from an artistic viewpoint is to look at the highest class of wares that can be found in stores or elsewhere—even pictures help much—and then in buying for our own homes, if we cannot afford the expensive articles, at least purchase their nearest duplicates in the cheaper article. Remember that simplicity is one of the first requisites of beauty. Long sweeping lines, not lines that continually change their direction, are best. As a rule, avoid vases with big, earlike handles, and with relief decorations. Both of these features are usually stuck on with joyful abandon, producing a result that is calculated to keep a whole generation in the abysses of an artless Hades.

Everyone should be able to own a vase charming in form and also in color. There is no reason why pottery vases should not be used to decorate a room as much as a painting placed on the wall. A table, a stand, the top of a bookcase or of a desk, and a mantel-piece call for something to hold quite as insistently as does a wall for a picture. In fact I am not sure that there is not a greater need for vases and decorative figures then for pictures. This is especially true where people insist upon having figured wall papers. At any rate I am sure there is a great need for the vases. Also I feel that people are appreciating the great thought that is being given to color in the manufacture of pottery and glassware. Very beautiful blues, greens, yellows and flame color may be obtained, which, when used with care, give exactly the color spot that is needed in some section of a room. Be sure in placing such a colored object that, no matter how beautiful it may be, it is not rendered undignified, or the color scheme of a room spoiled by a jarring note. Bright spots of color must be adjuncts, not pivotal points. If you have not exactly the right place for it put your treasure away until you move, or until the character of the room has been changed.

There Are Many Kinds of Beautiful Vases.

THE plain colors of American or European pottery are usually most desirable for decoration, but some of the blended colors of the Dutch and Danish wares are exceedingly beautiful, as are also Japanese and Chinese vases. If either of the latter is bought and the bottom of the vase is not glazed, and many of them are not, paint them inside before using them. Otherwise the water will gradually seep through and spoil the top of your table.

An indiscriminate or extensive indulgence in oriental pottery is unfortunate in a room of occidental furnishings. Frequently it is as much out of place as is a Japanese print in an American frame, though each in itself may be excellent.

Buy vases with a thought toward practicability as well as toward line and color. As a matter of fact few vases are beautiful that are not practical, although I am sure we all know exceptions to this. Doubtless we are sometimes not able to see the beauty in a vase that is not practical because we buy with a visualization of it as a holder of flowers. This is as it should be. Yet, at the same time, I do not agree with those interior decorators who advocate the removal of a vase when it is not in use as a receptacle. As I have already stated, a vase has an art value all its own, and is legitimately used as an ornament. On the other hand, it is obligatory upon a genuine vase that it may be used as a receptacle for flowers. (Not in any case as a holder of that horror of horrors—artificially colored eucalyptus leaves.)

The Adaptation of Means to Ends is Always Important.

IN CONSIDERING the practicality of vases many things are to be thought of. How unfortunate to have a vase with a large bowl, and a neck so small that it will receive only a few stems, throwing the whole object entirely out of balance with itself when a tiny bunch of flowers is placed in it. This gives it an even more ridiculous appearance than a small vase presents when it is outbalanced by an immense bouquet.

Many vases are made with bases so small that they are easily overtipped. Of course this difficulty may be obviated in opaque ware by the use of buckshot. But it is better to avoid the difficulty rather than try to remedy it. Structurally a top-heavy vase is as bad as is a top-heavy house. It is due to bad judgment on the part of the designer.

Again, some vases are so made that although they pass muster in every other way they hold so little water that flowers placed in them need an undue amount of attention to keep them from withering.

In your collection it is well to have one single rose vase. The most attractive ones are of glass. Not many of those with wooden holders are so attractive as are those made entirely of glass. The market is overcrowded with bowls of all sizes and colors. Most of them are of oriental make and are largely artistic. In both Chinese and Japanese wares we have the best of examples of what manufacturers will do if the public demands what is good. The cheapest wares of these countries are artistic. There, artistry is not a luxury that may be enjoyed by the wealthy alone. If we insist we may have as much.

Glass baskets, if of not too grotesque a shape, are charming for short-stemmed flowers. Very inexpensive ones may be obtained.

Vases of Cut Glass Express the Spendthrift Mood.

IF, ON some bright day, an orgy of spending money overtakes you, buy an elegant cut-glass vase, or a cut-glass bowl and glass frog. Nothing you could buy is more charming for dress-up occasions. But do not let your joy of possession tempt you to keep such a vase on exhibit when not in use. Glass vases, no matter how beautiful they may be, cannot be dissociated from their utilitarian purpose.

Another flower holder that is very effective as well as useful is the fancy basket, especially those with large, graceful handles. There is a large variety of splendid ones on the market. In general they are so artistic that one would almost have to try in order to buy an ugly one. There is nothing so well suited to a bunch of so-called "spring flowers."

One should always have an assortment of vases on hand, some tall and slender, some low and broad, most of them of medium dimensions. But no matter how attractive your collection, keep only a few of them on exhibit when not filled with flowers. Reserve a place for them on a closet shelf.

Even Makeshift Flower Holders Have Possibilities.

DO NOT forget that very simple holders may be made very attractive, and that it is better to use these than not to bring flowers into your home. I have seen tin cans and galvanized iron buckets so covered with green paper, with foliage or with ferns that the effect was delightful. In California it is not necessary that one day in the whole year go by without having flowers in our living-rooms and dining-rooms. No decoration takes the place of flowers in making our dwellings seem homelike.

If the amount of money you can spend on vases is quite limited do not make the mistake of choosing those that in all probability will remain in vogue for a short time only. Do not buy too hurriedly under any circumstances. Take some of your leisure time extending through a week or longer before coming to a decision. In this time visit as many shops as possible. You will get real pleasure from these excursions. Besides, at the end of a few days you will find your judgment maturing. Possibly what seemed attractive in the first days, in the end you would be embarrassed to have in your home.

Side Lights.

CHINESE POTTERY.

Most of the Chinese pottery is made of loess. This is an eolian soil that is finer than sand and somewhat coarser than clay. It is found in immense quntities in the northern part of China. Its peculiar structure causes it to form in steep-faced cliffs. In these cliffs the natives construct their houses. In many places these houses are as thick as swallow holes in a clay-bank. Loess is the best of agricultural soil. It is the yellow silt carried in such great quantities by the Hoang-ho.

A QUESTION.

The cheapest artistic pottery on our markets is imported. Why not train our own eyes instead of always allowing others to point the way for us?

WHAT ABOUT ANTIQUES?

Do not tolerate ugliness just because it comes in the form of an heirloom, or of an antique. Inaugurate an era of beauty all your own. In this way be a little arrogant and say with Napoleon, "Je suis un ancestre."

ARTISTIC FORMS.

Many pf the best models for vases originated in Egypt. The Indians of both North and South America have also contributed artistic forms.

SOURCE OF KAOLIN.

Up to the time of the World War all of the kaolin that was used in the manufacture of our best table china and many ornamental wares was imported from England. When this importation was cut off the Federal government assisted our manufacturers in experimenting with clays found in this country. They succeeded in obtaining very good results from a mixture of clays. As yet no one clay has been found that equals the imported material. France and Germany both produce high-grade kaolin.

THE OMITTED NAME

"Well, find out."

Mr. Dunwoodie was back in a minute. "At the Ritz," he announced, breathing hard.

"Get him!"

. . . .

A smartly dressed page moved gracefully in and out among the luncheon throng at the Ritz. He held a slip of paper in his right hand, and every now and then he looked at it. Then issued from his lips a sort of subdued cry or whine ending in a rising inflection.

A stunning girl raised her head. "Dick," she said, "that's for you. Aren't you important, though, since you became a viper of the press!"

"Publicity is a great thing," said Richard Bibley Van Kleeck. "I do this every day." He beckoned the boy to him. A coin and the slip changed hands as if by rehearsal, and Richard, with a murmured apology, stared at it, puzzled.

"Not my office," he said. He read aloud. "Call 2356 Rector at once. Important."

"Father's office number," exclaimed the girl.

Richard looked at her sharply. "I hope our meeting here hasn't caused any rumpus," he said.

"Rumpus over me? He probably wants to thank you."

"For what?"

A wisp of a smile touched Helen's lips; but she made no answer. "Anyway, hurry up and telephone," she ordered. "And if it's father himself be sweet."

Richard's face was so serious when he returned from the telephone that she rose involuntarily and asked:

"Is he ill?"

"No. It's the newspapers."

"Don't tease," she fretted. "Surely, he doesn't understand and appreciate—" She hesitated; her blue eyes met his squarely.

"He certainly appreciates it. He has asked me to come down to his office at once," Richard said soberly.

"Then, I'll go, too." She began drawing on her gloves.

It did not daunt her when Richard protested that the journey could be made quickest by subway. She was seated by his side as they roared out of the station. Richard picked at the cleats on the car floor with his stick. Presently he took a piece of copy paper from his pocket and wrote something on it. Then he folded it carefully and thrust it into his waistcoat pocket.

During the twelve minutes or less that the express rushed toward the over-weighted tip of Manhattan, James Josiah Randers stood by his desk, watch in hand. He had ceased to look at the ticker. There wasn't any use. The last C. S. T. quotation noted was 47, a drop of fifty-one points since the opening. There had been nothing like it since the Hocking crash. As each succeeding strip recorded further sickening descents, Mr. Randers spared himself the agony of looking.

He stood like a man the police had put through the third degree. On his desk was a pile of afternoon papers. He had combed them all. The name he sought was missing. Ponderously dejected rather than infuriated, he began pacing up and down the room. The door marked "Private" opened so softly that he did not see Dick and Helen enter, and he stopped only when the girl ran forward with a little cry.

"Father," she exclaimed, "you look ill."

At the sound of her voice Mr. Randers gurgled in astonishment, then, turning, caught her in his arms.

"Nonsense, my dear," he muttered as he kissed her. "Are these wild rumors to be credited by members of my own family?"

Helen laughed. "Wild rumors" had no significance for her. She was relieved; her father was not ill. "I just came with him," she said abruptly irrelevant. She nodded toward Dick, who stood aloof.

Mr. Randers bowed heavily in embarrassment.

"I asked Mr. Van Kleeck to come here on a matter of urgent business," he finally managed to say. "If you will excuse us, my dear—"

"I won't!" pouted Helen. "I left a perfectly good luncheon to dash down here. Besides, I want you to thank us for keeping your name out of the papers. I suggested it, you know."

Slapped with the suddenness of this, Mr. Randers blurted out the first ill-chosen words that came to his mind. "You!" he cried. "Why, my poor deluded little daughter, I sent for Richard to get my name in the papers." He looked at the young man appealingly. "Richard," he asked solemnly, "what do you know about this conspiracy? It will ruin me." He waved a hand toward a tangle of ticker tape.

While Helen's blue eyes widened, Richard Bibley Van Kleeck replied. "I wouldn't call it exactly a conspiracy, Mr. Randers. As I understand it, the editors thought it best not to molest your further, in view of your well-known antipathy to the press."

"And Helen?" Mr. Randers looked at his pretty daughter wonderingly.

"Mentioned casually that you would of course be pleased to have your long-cherished hope for privacy gratified. Helen nodded in naive ratification.

Mr. Randers's big hands fell at his sides. His mouth opened like an astounded youth's. Then, all pride having fled, there was suddenly born to him a sixth sense—humor. He threw back his head and laughed.

Helen and Richard laughed, too, until the great man laid a hand on Richard's shoulder. "Richard," he said, suddenly, "I need a press agent. Need him bad. Do you think you can get a statement from me in the next editions?"

Richard drew from his waistcoat pocket and handed to Mr. Randers a folded sheet of copy paper. It was the sheet on which he had written in the subway. "Here is a preliminary statement," he said simply, "which I believe will lift the quarantine."

While Helen, curious, looked over her father's shoulder, James Josiah Randers read: "Mr. nad Mrs. James Josiah Randers announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Elizabeth, to Mr. Richard Biibley Van Kleeck."

The girl looked up, face crimson. Her eyes, caressing Richard, were a blue he had never seen before.

James Josiah Randers looked grimly at his new press agent. There was a twinkle in his eyes. "If both parties have ratified this statement I see no reason why it should not go out at once," was all he said.

Some Newspapers With Odd Names.

The announcement that the Daily Eastern Argus, which was established at Portland as long ago as 1809, is to discontinue publication and be succeeded by the Portland Herald, is another reminder of the too-frequent passing of the good old picturesque newspaper names.".

The Argus got its name, of course, from the fabulous giant with a hundred eyes. There was another Argus until a few days ago, at Albany, but after a career almost as long as that of its Portland namesake—it was founded in 1813—it has been taken over by the Knickerbocker Press.

Within the last last few years the ancient Spy has disappeared from Worcester. The Palladium of New Haven is also gone. The Memphis Avalanche is no more, though in the same city the News-Scimitar and the Penny Bee survive. A Bee is still busy likewise in Omaha, and another in Sacramento. The New Orleans Picayune has been merged with the Times. The Toledo Blade continues to shine and the Burlington Hawkeye survives in a generation that scarcely knows the name of "Bob" Burdette.

Are there any Whigs left? It seems only yesterday that Bangor and Richmond dailies commemorated the vanished party of Webster and Clay. The Patriot has passed from Woonsocket, but there is still a Putnam Patroit beyond the Connecticut border, and a Barnstable Patriot in Massachusetts, where also we find the Cape Cod Item and Bee. Vermont clings to much of the old-fashioned terminology; Brattleboro has its Phoenix (as Bristol in this State has,) Woodstock its Spirit of the Age, Montpelier its Argus and Patriot, Bennington its Banner and Reformer, Bradford its United Opinion, North Troy its Palladium, Vergennes its Enterprise and Vermonter and White River Junction its Landmark.

The Laramie Boomerang is still in evidence in Wyoming, and so is the Tombstone Epitaph in Arizona. There are not as many Mercurys as there used to be, though the name is retained in New Bedford and Newport. And to close a list that might be indefinitely extended, the Rhode Island Pendulum maintains its clocklike regularity at Greenwich.—[Providence Journal.

The Original Gamaliel.

Gam-liel, from whom the new President takes his middle name, lived in the fifteenth century B. C. He was the son of Pedahzur and prince of the children of Manasseh, the son of Hezekiah, whose father, Amon, was King of Judah. When the Lord commanded Moses to number the children of Israel from 20 up that were able to go to war, Gamaliel was among those named to assist in the census. He was in the list of whom the Bible says, "These were the renowned of the congregation, princes of the tribes of their fathers, heads of thousands in Israel."

On the eighth day of the dedication of the tabernacle, Gamaliel's offering consisted of one silver charger weighing 130 shekels; one silver bowl of 70 shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, both filled with fine flour mingled with oil for a meat offering; one golden spoon and 10 shekels full of incense; one young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt offering; one kid of the goats for a sin offering; two oxen, five he-goats and five lambs of the first year for a sacrifice of peace offering.—[Detroit News.

when contemplating the woes and wrongs of this unhappy time. For these men are the prophecies and forerunners of a better age, when a majority of their countrymen shall have risen to their mental and moral stature and the stupid dupes or ambitious knaves who wish for their own mean ends to perpetuate disunion, discord and consequent world-suffering, shall have been evolved into more wholesome types of human kind.

Dr. James Rowland Angell is, it is generally conceded, a scholarly man with unusual executive ability, who is thoroughly democratic in his tendencies, has the broadest human sympathies, and is possessed of that sense of humor that helped his father to build up the greatest university of the Middle West during a period when funds were difficult to secure and obstacles to educational enterprises were many.

Dr. Angell married in 1894 Miss Marion Watrous of Des Moines, Iowa, so New Haven now has at its head a man of the Middle West, with wide connections in both Michigan and Iowa. His elder brother, Alexis Caswell Angell, is a prominent lawyer of Detroit, who has served that State in the capacity of Federal Judge.

The Old Oak Tree.

I dined today 'neath a giant oak,
  A wondrous oak on the great broad plain,
And the stately oak a message spoke
  Of long gone days that in sun and rain
It had stood in silent majesty,
  A creature of vital, sentient grace
That in nature's wondrous pageantry
  Had made for itself abiding place.

It whispered of days when red men came
  Stealthily stealing at dawn of day,
Huntsmen pursuing their flying game,
  Creatures now here, now far away.
It whispered of padres, travel spent,
  Who rested awile in grateful shade
And then in their prayers with reverence bent
  To God who in mercy all things made.

It told of the days of the pioneer
  Who had come to claim this favored land,
A man with prescience of ancient seer
  And hopes by dearest desire fanned.
It told of the days when fond hopes waned,
  A day when misfortune's greedy hand
Grasped all the settler's hand had gained,
  But abated not his love of land.

And then it whispered of latter days
  When the budding fruit of [illegible]
    vine
Were kissed by the sun god's [illegible]
  And fair homes rose in a [illegible] design,
So the ancient tree its vigil holds
  And of future's promise fair or ill
No hint will the silent old tree unfold,
  But stands in majesty strong and still.

Winning His Point.

"LIKE cures like," said Speaker Gillett, apropos of certain extortions. "Abuse may cure abuse, too!"

"I once knew a drummer for a chemical firm. This drummer would visit Pottsville four or five times a year. He would arrive late in the evening at the Pottsville Arms and depart after lunch the next day. He didn't stop a full day, you see; he got no dinner; nevertheless he was always charged a full day's board.

"The extortion got on his nerves at last; so one afternoon when his bill was brought him, he took out his pad and drew up an account against the landlady for a carboy of sulphuric acid.

" 'Take this to Mrs. Tompkins,' he said to the waiter, 'and ask her if she would mind settling up at once.'

"In a few minutes Mrs. Thompkins herself appeared.

" 'Why,' she said to the drummer, 'I never bought any sulphuric acid from you in my life. This bill is a mistake.'

" 'Neither have I ever eaten any of your dinners, ma'am,' said the drummer, 'but you charge me for them every time I come to Pottsville.'

"After that the Pottsville Arms never charged the drummer for things he hadn't had."

LORD ROSSMORE, who died recently, tells a story of two men who had been at an exceedingly lively dinner. They encountered each other the following morning. Both felt very cheap, but each thought it his bounden duty to endeavor to appear chirpy.

"'Mornin', old chap," said one.

"'Mornin'," replied his friend.

"Awfully jolly time last night."

"Ra-a-ther."

"Had any breakfast?" asked the first speaker.

"Of course I have," answered the other.

"What did you have?"

"Oh, the usual thing—a chop."

"Good heavens!" ejaculated the first diner out. "Anything else?"

"Yes. A brandy and soda—and a dog.

"A dog!" exclaimed the astonished questioner. "What on earth did you want with a dog?"

"Why, to eat the chop, you silly ass."

Faithful Student.

A GLENDALE parent had been making an earnest effort to have her son Johnny taught to play the piano. A few days ago she called upstairs:

"Why aren't you practicing your piece, Johnny?"

"I am."

"You are not. You haven't touched the piano in the last half hour."

"I've been practicing all the same. There are rests in this march, and I am practicing them over and over until I know them."

Theoretically True.

A SMALL boy in the Cambria Street School was having his first lesson in natural philosophy and his teacher had explained to him the existence of animalcule, the minute creatures too small to be seen by the naked eye, which are found in liquids. After the lesson he was asked to tell what animalcule were.

"They are animals that you can't see," he said.

"Well, that may do for an answer," said the teacher. "But can you give me an example of animalcule."

"The hippopotamus, the gorilla, the whale—"

"Stop! Why do you think those animals are animalcule?"

"Well, I've never seen one of them."

Promising.

A GIRL went into a Spring street drugstore the other day. "Give me something to cure a headache, please," she asked the clerk.

"Yes, ma'am," he answered.

He took a little of this, a dash of that, a pinch of something else—scratching his head between operations and seeming to put much mental stimulus in the work. At last he handed her a long, fizzy drink.

The girl looked at it dubiously.

"What's the name of this?" she asked.

"It has no name."

"Will it cure a headache?"

"That's what I'm trying to find out was the ingenously frank reply."

Great Place for Party.

EINAR ENGLANDER, first officers of the Norwegian liner Stravangerford, recently in New York, is firmly convinced that Americans are too thoroughly Broadwayized ever to make good Norwegians. He was under sail before he went out in steam, and his first experience with an American fixed his attitude for all time. Einar says:

"This countryman of yours was manager of a big compass maker here in New York. North we sailed, past Hjelm, and the sun shone at midnight. Two nights he walked the deck. His eyes were red and very heavy. He talked to himself.

" 'Don't you sleep?' I asked him. 'What's the matter?'

"Then he looked at me with a scowl all over his face.

" 'Why can't the damn thing set?' he growled, pointing to the sun. 'Can't sleep this way. I'd as soon think of going to bed in a cabaret.'

"It is Broadway always with you Americans, I think, even in your sleep."

"WELL, good-by, everybody!" during a recent visit to the Big Burg genially said the gent from Jimson Junction, as he debouched from the street car in which he had been riding.

"You seem to feel very kindly toward the people you just left," commented a citizen who got off from the car at the same time."

"Aw, shore," was the placid reply. "None of 'em didn't pick my pocket, nor nuth'n."

Vain Efforts.

"SIX years ago," said Naylor, "I made up my mind that I was smoking too much. It didn't seem to affect my health in the least, but I thought it a foolish waste of money and I decided to give it up."

"A very sensible idea," remarked Monk.

"So I thought at that time. I reckoned up as closely as I could how much I had been spending each day on cigars and tobacco. That sum I set aside each morning and started a bank account with it. I wanted to be able to show exactly how much I had saved by not smoking.

"And how did it work?" inquired Monk.

"At the end of six years I had $1000 in the bank."

"Good! Could you let me—"

"And a few days ago," interrupted Naylor —"last Tuesday, in fact, the bank failed. You haven't got a cigar about you, have you?"

Sure Indicator.

A VERY portly and important looking man found himself stranded for an hour or so at the railway junction of a very small town, and decided to spend the time by having something to eat.

He entered the only restaurant he could find in the place and called for the menu.

"There ain't one," retorted the waiter, who looked as if he had been a jockey for nineteen years and never had ridden a winner, "but I can tell you what's on."

"Let's have it then," answered the would-be diner.

The waiter bent his good old back and reeled off a long list.

"You have a good memory, my man," said the portly gentleman.

"No, sir," said the waiter meekly; "I just looked at the tablecloth."

He Knew Them.

SENATOR REED SMOOT was condemning a flagrant piece of political ingratitude.

"Why," he said, "it's as bad as the case of Mrs. Stanton's orphan.

"Mrs. Stanton interested a number of her woman suffrage friends in a boy orphan. The women raised this boy splendidly, sent him to college, and finally educated him for the ministry. They got him a good charge, too.

"Well, the first Sunday the young minister preached, his church was filled with a great many suffragists headed by Mrs. Stanton. These good women had put the young preacher where he was, and they were now turned out in their best bib and tucker to hear him say an eloquent word for the woman suffrage cause.

"Imagine their feelings, then, when the young man rose in the pulpit, surveyed them calmly and even sternly, and announced that his text would be from St. Paul:

" 'Let the women keep silence in the church.' "

His Bosses.

"HELLO, old man!" exclaimed the top-hatted traveler as he clutched the arm of the man in the shabby tweed suit.

"Why, it's Tompkins!" replied the tweed suit man. And they shook hands.

"How are things?" went on the man in the topper, affectionately, as they walked on together. "I haven't seen you for months! Who are you working for now?"

The man in the tweed suit sighed loudly. "Same old lot," he said sadly—"a wife and six kids."

"Why not keep your hat on it?" growled Willie Collier.

"I'm a-settin' in the rockin' chair now," answered Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark.

"But I read in the paper that an eclipse like this'n wouldn't happen ag'in for 210 years!"

"YES," proudly announced the ex-captain, who is manager of a new seaside hotel, "all our employees are former service men, every one of them. The reception clerk is an old infantryman, the waiters have all been noncoms, the chef was a mess sergeant, the house doctor was a base hospital surgeon, the house detective was an intelligence man; even the pages were cadets."

"And have you any former military police?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied joyously. "When there's a good stiff wind blowing we set them to clean the outside of the windows on the eighth floor!"

Vagrant.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN said at a dinner in New York:

"I am very glad that the government has seen fit to accept my London town house for its American embassy.

"Our Ambassadors in the past were put to great inconvenience looking for suitable houses—for an Embassy, you know, must be a very special kind of a house, and also a very expensive one.

"Joseph H. Choate used to tell a story to the effect that, when he first went to London as American Ambassador, he spent days and weeks looking for a house. One afternoon on this house hunt he was overcome with fatigue in the west end, and sank down on a bench in Kensington Garden and fell asleep.

"He slept till closing time. Then a London bobby shook him by the shoulder roughly.

" 'Here, my man,' said the bobby, 'what are you doing here? Why don't you go home?'

" 'Home?' said Mr. Choate. 'Officer, I have no home I am the American Ambassador!' "

A GIRL and music show was playing a small town in the Middle-West recently, and it suddenly was found that one of the properties was missing.

"Go out and buy us a lorgnette," the harassed business agent ordered the property man.

"A what?"

"A lorgnette—and hurry right back."

Two hours went past and the stage manager was dispatched in search of the property man. He found the latter looking abashedly in the window of a musical goods store.

"Hey—whatcha doing?" demanded the stage manager.

"I was wondering what kind of a musical instrument a lorgnette is."

"What difference does it make? Go on in and ask for one. The clerk knows his business."

A LANK, disconsolate-looking farmer stood on the steps of the Town Hall during the progress of a political meeting.

"Do you know who's talking in there now?" demanded a stranger briskly, pausing for a moment beside the farmer. "Or are you just going in?"

"No, sir; I've just come out," said the farmer decidedly. "Congressman Smiffkins is talking in there."

"What about?" asked the stranger.

"Well," continued the countryman, passing a knotted hand across his forehead, "he didn't say."

Too Much Progress.

PEABODY WILLOUGHBY, the Boston philanthropist, was making an appeal for the Children's Country Week Association of Massachusetts.

"There is a funny side, too," he said, "about the poor slum child's ignorance of the country's beauties and joys.

"I said one August day to a ragged urchin of 7 or 8:

" 'You've got a rare treat coming. We're going to send you to the country for a week.'

" 'Nix,' said the urchin, as he took a cigarette stub out of his pocket and examined it carefully. 'Nix on that, gran'pop.'

" 'Why,' I said, 'what's your objection to the country?'

" 'They got thrashin' machines there, aint they?' said the boy. 'Well, it's bad enough here, where it's done by hand, begosh.'

"And he lit his cigarette stub and lounged off."

Try It.

LADY GLENCONNER, whose book about spiritualism promises to make as great a sensation as Mrs. Asquith's book of scandal, is noted in London for her happy wit.

Lady Glenconner was talking one day at a tea about the art of flattery.

"To flatter a girl," she said, "the direct compliment should be rarely used. It is too knock-down in its effect. Like a sledge-hammer, you know.

"The indirect, the delicate compliment succeeds much better. For example, a young man should never tell a girl that she has pretty legs. The girl would probably be offended. But she would think him the nicest fellow in the world if he should say to her:

" 'Your new hat is simply lovely, but no one will ever notice it, unless you lengthen your skirts.' "

In Wrong Pew.

BISHOP BROWN said at a dinner in Richmond:

"Bigotry and religious intolerance are vanishing from off the earth. It wasn't so when I was a child.

"When I was a child a little girl cousin came to visit us. On Sunday morning my mother set out with her for church. When they passed the Baptist church the little girl seemed troubled.

" 'Where did you say we were going?' she asked.

" 'We are going to worship,' said my mother, 'in the house of God.'

"Presently they turned into the Episcopal churchyard.

" 'But this is not a Baptist church,' said the little girl.

" 'No,' said my mother, 'it is an Episcopal church.'

" 'Oh,' said the little girl reproachfully, 'but everybody knows that God is a Baptist.' "

WHEN OTHERS FAIL SEE ME

she had promised herself better days had begun. In the absence of other circumstances she would have been seeking bookings for recitals. Somehow, she could not bring herself to go. Her clothes, those that were left, were undeniably shabby. Furthermore, a great weariness had come upon her. She wanted to sit down always. Try as she would to go through the day, the weariness would go creeping through her body until late in the afternoon, when a restless warmth would follow it through her veins. The cold had not left her. She had not thrown it off. But the thought that her voice, which had now broken up into hoarse responses, would never return was one that she thrust away constantly, as one might brush aside an ever-increasing web of filaments. She dreamed once that the fine entangling strands of fate were being spun by a bright glowing spider, and the body of the spider, when she looked at it closely, was the Eye of Cleopatra. She asked herself if resistance were worth while.

One day she went to see a physician—a business-mannered New York diagnostician, who listened to her story, looking at the ceiling with an air of boredom. After that he listened through a stethoscope, pressing the cold metal against her beautiful neck and across her chest, marking dots upon her white skin with a blue crayon.

"Do you lose weight?" he asked.

"Yes."

"I find two spots up here in the right lung, Miss Taraffa," he said. "You need not let that shock you. You can be cured. Once really cured, you will be more immune than I am."

"Tuberculosis?" she whispered.

"Yes," said he. "I want you to go to some place where it is high and dry—some place, however, in this region, so that you will recover under the conditions in which you will live. Can you afford—"

"Nothing," she said.

"I will give you a note to Albers. He has a sanatorium near Lake Placid."

Perhaps it is useless to give an account of the fight that Dolores made. Such battles are without the slightest romance and are made of monotony. Emotion and drama are smothered by routine and the brave soul that bows to that routine and the virile will that goes forward yielding nothing to the enemy day after long day will prove the character of a being and will exalt it.

Dolores in a six months' span cured herself of tuberculosis, but her voice had gone forever. She had learned that human beings when driven to the test are mostly brave and true and kind, and can even die with considerable dignity and make of death a kind of noble event. Again, as when six months ago she had faced the necessity of getting some common job at a few dollars a week, she now faced that long prospect of being a working girl forever. One had to have clothes. Her own were falling apart, as one of the nurses said, and she had only enough money to buy a ticket to Detroit to get the position that had been offered to a professional waitress who had not left the sanatorium and now never would leave the sanatorium to take it.

The pearl was hers. The $10,000 pearl! The pearl with its evil history! The pearl with its baneful influence! She could sell it if she would! But it was the one thing left of romance, of love, of Robbie. And then there always seemed to be an undefined reason why she should not sell it—why she should never part with it. Why not? It was a fortune! And yet there was a reason. She hung the thing about her neck again before she left for Detroit. It had grown so lusterless and dull.

The job in Detroit had gone out of existence. It had been waiting for her—a position as caretaker of all the linen at a hotel. Unfortunately the hotel had been bought to clear the site for a new office building. The manager told her with brightening of his expression. "Why, there was a hundred thousand dollars for me in this big deal," he said, looking into her startled green eyes, that were still clear and large and beautiful.

Dolores found it difficult to realize that real extremity is real. In luxury and under protection of a kind life one reads of those who cannot pay for the three weeks of lodging-house dues after looking about for a position and one reads of going supperless. She could not believe it when it was happening to her. She wrote back to her friends at the sanatorium, unable to believe that the facts she put into the letter were so. If things like this happened to one they were all the more unreal when they happened in the soft and indulgent springtime.

It was spring! Neither the dingy rows of brick lodging-houses nor the smell of the metal works could suppress spring. It was there with its hurdy-gurdies and the shouts of children in the dusk, and from somewhere the faint whiffs of warm, moist loam from which bright green shoots were sprouting forth.

Dolores saw the arc lights come snapping on and later a man whose feet made less strangely emphatic beats on the pavement like the marching of Time over a sounding board, came and looked up at her lodging-house. She was joyful when she found he had come for her; she thought he had come to give her employment.

"I am Mr. Mondell's secretary," he said, leering at her satanically.

"Mr. Mondell?" she inquired.

"You might not know him," he said contemptuously. "He is known well enough usually. He is one of the largest traders in pearls in the world."

Dolores gasped.

"I tell you we have had a time of it hunting you up," the man said. "A chase from one address to another. And frankly we expected every day since we bagan the search that we would hear that the Eye of Cleopatra was on the market again. It was desired by a special client and the Japanese dealer put us on the track."

"Well?" said she.

"Well, where is it?" he asked.

Dolores at once was suspicious; she was not going to tell that it lay upon her white bosom.

"I have it in safe keeping," she replied.

"Ha," said the other with a sigh of relief. "We are leaving town tomorrow. Can you come with me to our suite at the hotel?"

Dolores, for the moment, felt that she had come to the end of her rope and now at the end was freedom from this bane of the evil Eye and $10,000 besides!

"I will go with you," she said.

They went in a taxicab.

Of the risks she was taking she was well aware, but she discounted them by saying to herself that nothing mattered much now in any case. She was at the end of her rope. She was relieved nevertheless to hear Mr. Mondell's voice as she was shown into the parlor of his suite at the hotel.

"Sit down, Miss Taraffa," he said, indicating a chair on the other side of a French gilded table decorated with hand-painted flowers.

"You can go, Nelson."

They were alone. Dolores and he faced each other under the light—a strange contrast, she thought, because in the long mirror between the windows she could see how poverty stricken she appeared compared to this well-dressed, well-kept figure before her.

He was a man not tall of stature and with the look of one who in younger days had been stouter. Now he had a little of that wizening of years and austerity which appeared rather pleasant than otherwise. His lips were thin, perhaps a little cruel, but there was a rather kindly and quizzical look in his gray eyes as he sat there calmly enough, studying her and waiting for her to speak.

She felt as if she had come to the end of a long journey, she said nothing.

[illegible] trusted, with her small right hand she reached down below her collar, undid the chain, and put the pearl upon the table.

"Ah!" said he, bending over it eagerly, and then after a moment of admiration he inquired:

"What is your price for it, Miss Taraffa?"

"I do not know," she said.

"Do not know! Do not know!"

She shook her head.

"Of course one does not trace a person as we have traced you in these few weeks without finding out—well, how shall I put it?—without finding out the course of circumstances under which you have lived for many months," he said. "It has not been a very well—well—prosperous course, has it, Miss Taraffa? It is a most astounding thing that you have not sold this pearl—astounding! Why?"

She shook her head.

"Its sale would rather relieve you from further difficulties, wouldn't it? Say $10,000 in the form of a certified check."

Dolores was staring deep into nothingness.

The other touched the Eye with his fingers. He said at last: "Well? What is your decision?"

"I shall not sell it," she said dreamily.

"Not sell! You must have some reason. Is it a sentimental reason?"

"Perhaps—partly—a little—but, just now I have thought of the real reason that I will never sell it."

"And what is it?" he asked anxiously.

"Do you know the superstition about this pearl?" she inquired.

"Why, of course. That is nonsense. I would not be buying it for a man to give his beautiful young daughter if—"

Dolores covered her face with her hands.

"You do not mean that you would refuse to sell it for that reason?" the man said with unbelieving, doubting tone, and spacing his words slowly.

She nodded.

"Because you think it would bring misery to some one else!" He was astounded.

She made no comment.

"But in that case you would throw it away," he suggested craftily.

She picked up Cleopatra's Eye and gazed down at its wonders. "Yes, I will throw it into the lake!"

"You don't mean that you would throw away your chance to save yourself because of the harm the pearl might take to some one else," he said.

"Yes," said Dolores wearily. "I never quite knew, but that is it."

"Is it?" he snapped. "Let's see if it is. I've an idea." He arose, walked swiftly to the door and called: "Nelson!"

"Yes, sir."

"Give me a piece of paper. That scrap will do. Go down to the drug store and get that. Pour it into a glass and bring it to me."

"Yes, sir."

"Now we will see!" he snapped in a challenging voice.

He paced up and down the room, now and then glancing at his visitor as if to be sure that, like the vision in a dream, she had not vanished; only when his secretary knocked at the door did he cease his pacing to take from the other man a glass half full of a clear liquid.

"If we are to have a romantic moment, let us have it romantically," he said, putting the glass before her. "If we are to test sincerity, let us do it with due regard for historical precedent."

She looked up at him, puzzled.

"You said you would destroy the pearl," he went on. "In all my peculiar set of experiences I have never seen one quite like this. It is not often that one in your circumstances will do as you say you will do. And will you?"

He paused.

"I say, will you? Cleopatra, it is said, destroyed a priceless pearl by dropping it into vinegar. She could afford that piece of bravado. Can you? The glass before you does not contain vinegar. It contains a much more powerful acid. If the pearl is dropped into it, it will foam like an effervescent lithia tablet, and it will dissolve like one."

Dolores smiled.

"Well?" said he. "Come now. Isn't it rather too much to pay—too much to pay for insurance that no one else may suffer from its possession?"

He laughed. At the end of this short, derisive laugh he heard the little splash as the pearl, twisted out of its setting, dropped into the glass. With an exclamation he came and, like Dolores, bent over the table, resting his weight upon his straightened arms, gazing down.

The Eye of Cleopatra, untouched and unmoving, giving forth no bubbles of disintegration, lay at the bottom of the glass, its [illegible]

"You have deceived me!" exclaimed [illegible]. "It was a cruel trick."

"Perhaps," said the other. "I have a reputation of being a cold-blooded man, Miss Taraffa. They say that of me. But you may think I am not without my romantic side when I tell you that the evil that you thought was in a pearl was the evil of fear that dwelt only in your own mind. You will not think I am lacking in my romantic side when I tell you who I am."

"Who are you?" asked Dolores. "I believe you are the devil himself."

"No!" said he. "But my name is not Mondell. My name is Slade. I am Robbie's father. He has come back from a long journey, and he has sent me to look for you and take you back to him."

"It is not so!" she exclaimed in her disbelief. "It couldn't be so! It couldn't happen to me, to the owner of Cleopatra's Eye!"

"Perhaps not," said Slade, with his face suddenly drawn into grave, hard lines. "But this isn't the Eye of Cleopatra. You never have been its owner. This thing in this glass is only a clever imitation by a Japanese skilled in such work."

"And there was no evil—?"

He answered after a moment's deliberation. "I said, only in the mind. Hidebushiro Ito was discovered over a month ago with a bullet hole in his head and a revolver in his hand. In his other fist they found the real Eye of Cleopatra."

WILD FLOWERS.

There are several herbaceous first-cousins of the rose in the south, but most of them are so inconspicuous and in some cases so rare, as to escap ethe eyes of anyone but the botanist. One of them, however, should be familiar to all who take any interest in our wild flowers. This one is the "silverweed" or "cinquelfoil" (Argentina anserina.) Its light-yellow flowers are about half an inch wide and are somewhat lacking in attractiveness—always seeming to me as a floral job not fully finished. The plant itself scarcely deserves full commendation, on account of its sprawling attitude—the main stems usually lying on the ground, and often rooting at the nodes. The leaves, however, go a long way toward redeeming the plant from obscurity. They are responsible for the name of "silverweed," because of their silvery-white under surface, which makes a striking and pleasing display when the foliage is stirred by a stiff breeze. The silverweed is a very common plant in damp places in the valleys and on the lower foothills. In looking it up in the technical botanies, it may be well to know that it will sometimes be found under the genus Potentilla—which some botanists consider the proper classification.

Nickels by the Million.

Twenty million dollars in nickels were dropped in the slots of pay station telephones throughout the United States during the first ten months of 1920, according to an estimate by A. E. Berry, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Telephone Company. This, Mr. Berry said, was an increase of $2,700,000 over the corresponding period of the year before. To illustrate graphically the $20,000,000 expenditure, he explained that the nickels, if placed edge to edge, would form a line from New York City to San Francisco and then extend 1000 miles into the Pacific Ocean.

The Eye of Cleopatra

By Richard Washburn Child

The Story of a Wonder Pearl and Its Strange Trail of Adventure, Tragedy and Romance

ENDLESS are the legends, rumors and stories of famous jewels that bring the possessor ghastly misfortunes. Among them all none but the record of one notorious pearl yields the true solution of the mysterious influence that lies behind the flash of some priceless diamond, the glow of a world-renowned ruby, the glittering lights of an emerald which has passed from owner to owner, leaving its trail of terror. Perhaps the story of the great Eye is the key of them all.

Dolores Taraffa, whose beauty was of that warmth, brilliance and light that may be found in a flower of a tropic jungle, was the sole offspring of a pure-blood Cuban father and the daughter of a Scotch sea captain. A convent had given her an education which contributed to her character that strange calm and poise that now are so rare, and nature gave her the voice of a non pareil as clear as crystal and as full of warmth as a Caribbean sunrise reflected in the beryl green shallows and dark purple depths of the Gulf.

From her mother she had inherited eyes that were the color of those green waters, clear, holding out the same invitingness, fit to reflect the sunlight of her hair; from her father she had inherited a skin and contour as smooth and delicate as carved ivory, but of the tropic tint that is only produced by marble white transparency through which glows the olive and pink of swiftly coursing blood.

Were it not for the strange fate that put into this little body a size of soul that might have been found in a Viking's daughter, it would not be necessary to know anything of Dolores before she came to New York. A mere accident of chance furnishes that brief picture of her early life; one Thomas Safford, a sugar speculator of Havana, who happened to be the employer of Taraffa at the time Taraffa died, says this:

"I had her father as superintendent of the Los Banos Plantation. His health was bad enough, heaven knows. It may have accounted for their poverty. As I understood it he was the outcast son of some family in Madrid. His wife had been named McLeod. What a mixture! Everybody frowned on them. I never knew why. They produced this miracle of a child. But squalor! Always behind; always broke. Then he died and the girl came back to her mother.

"She was beautiful and silent! That bodes no good. If one is to be beautiful let them be talkative. Her beauty was a positive load to carry. You know how it is? But her voice! Naturally enough such a voice—such a singing voice—such a contralto—! Her mother took her to Havana. Then the mother died. God knows how Dolores got to New York. Probably some theatrical man. No doubt he tried love-making. That would account for the girl fleeing from him—being adrift."

She was adrift. The first time any of our particular set heard of her was when Mrs. Tremayor Collier picked her up in the very imitation Bohemian place called The Belfry.

The Belfry was a coffee house of a sort—a smoky, tobacco-fogged, candle-lit atmospheric little bird house over a plumber's shop. They make a great to-do over the cobwebs that hang down from the beams there. A gray-haired poetess keeps the place; she makes ten thousand a year selling coffee and rice cakes to a mixed group of young and penniless graduates of western co-educational institutions who are in New York to write or play or dance interpretatively and to grand people from the land of social prominence uptown, who try to hide, when in The Belfry, their white shirt fronts and white shoulders under coats and wraps.

The poetess, who gave up verse for victuals, apparently, made a great gesture of being kind to the down-and-outs. She was generous enough to furnish a few fried eggs from time to time to Dolores Taraffa; the reason may have been that Dolores was a picturesque little figure in her raggedy attire, her penniless respectability, and her beauty. The girl could talk English, of course, and above all when the mood struck her she could croon Spanish gypsy songs in a way to make the riff-raff guests float off into dreamland.

Mrs. Tremayer Collier was there one night with Bobby Durant and two of her other well-iced admirers. Dolores had a cigar box banjo—literally made of a cigar box and a few strings on pegs, and lolling back in a corner she heard a lull in the chatter and struck a note. She struck a note with her fingers across the strings and with her voice across the world. It might have been, said pretty Mrs. Collier, the keynote of all human reminiscence and human aspiration.

It was only the beginning of a soft, low, almost whispered melody that took the eyes of those who were there far out into space. It was a magic. It was a spell. When the lady from uptown had recovered the consciousness of herself as a rich patron of the arts she said:

"Suppose that she could let that voice out into power. Great Scott, Bobby Durant, I intend to capture her and put her in musical circles!"

"Musical circles!" said Durant, who is an amateur composer as well as a scientist, "musical circles! That girl can cut figure eights all over our musical circles!"

That was the way, in brief, that Dolores was "taken from the gutter," as the widow of Tremayer Collier put it before she went off to Europe.

She knew perfectly well that Miss Taraffa had an education equal to her own and that her voice had begun already its training in the convent at Vedado, but she was a little vexed that Dolores, the silent and restrained, had not poured forth a lapful of gushing gratitude for the musicale at which Mrs. Collier had given her a "debut," for the lessons from Paranelli, for a launching toward that one season in which the girl, whirled away on the brilliant chariot of New York success, had advanced so far toward fame and fortune.

The spring of that year found Dolores in an apartment of her own, paid for by money of her own. She knew what thankfulness she owed to Mrs. Collier; she knew also what she owed to God and to herself.

"Your voice came from Heaven," said young Robinson Slade. "But the character to live the life you have led and to go on working as you have is chalked up to your credit, dear one."

Slade was 20 then and she 18, although there was that untouched youth in her deep green eyes that made her appear to be a child and made the old Frenchwoman whom she had engaged treat her like a child—in absurd contrast to several musical managers who competed in treating her like a queen.

It was ridiculous that she said to the son of the largest export house in America:

"Bobbie, you are so young!"

Bobbie, as she called him, was not so young in soul. He was a strong product, particularly if one considered his father, who was a case-hardened, steel-jacketed, metallic man of great ability. The boy did not look unlike him—a little too short, a little too well knit for grace or even for dignity, but with a vital forcefulnes of figure, face and movement. But the younger Slade, as Durant once remarked in his smart way, was a sheep in wolf's clothing. His father was said to be wholly practical; Bobbie was philosophical and had thought and considered and meditated himself out of practicability. When his father gave him $10,000 on his twenty-first birthday to practice investments the boy said this:

"You mean you want to see whether I can make this yield a great return?"

"Yes," said the elder Slade.

"I will," Robbie answered, knowing the extraordnary thing he would do.

Perhaps the reason that he had never told his father about his visits to Dolores or of his excursions with her, that knew no sense other than propriety, and often ended up in such absurdities as sititng together on a park bench at the Battery waiting for a fog to lift so that they could see the Statue of Liberty, or of his increasing love for her, was that sense of sacredness of relationship which shrinks from discussion with third persons, particularly if they are unsympathetc and lacking in understanding. Certainly it was not because he had fear.

He was fearless enough—inexperienced and fearless, and with an exaggerated notion of the value of honor and knightly behavior and gallantry as abstract ideals that he had never had the opportunity to apply to life.

If there was anything secretive about his attentions to this beautiful young singer, whose convent-bred poise and calm and silent moods and aloofness from that brilliant and lively world into which she had climbed so swiftly, that secretiveness came not from a sense of impending scandal, though he may have recognized its possibility, but rather from his joy in the world apart which he was creating with her and which might be smashed by the vulgarity of gossip.

Perhaps it was because of the absence of any critic of their high and finely felt relationship of youth that, with the fruitless disapproval of Annette, the French factotum, he came and went in and out of that luxurious little apartment that Dolores's increasing earnings had made possible.

A few weeks before his father had made him the gift of money Robbie was stretched out in the window seat of the little blue and gold living-room when Annette brought to little Miss Taraffa a card. The effect of this card was quite miraculous and alarming. Dolores, gazing at it, lost color, dropped it onto the table, and with her small hands clenched stared at nothing, her pink lips twisting as sometimes her Spanish blood made them twist with emotion.

"Who?" asked young Slade.

"Stuart Hotchkiss."

"And who is Stuart Hotchkiss?" he asked.

"The man who brought me to New York," said Dolores.

Robbie had never asked who the man was who brought her from Cuba. He knew that he was a mongrel soul who had supposed too much.

"He has been here often in the month," she said, wearily. "He says I owe him my success and that the least I can do is to reimburse him for his investment in me."

"Does he?" asked Robbie, climbing down from the window seat. He whistled. He looked at the card and strolled out to the hallway. Dolores heard voices and then the closing of the apartment door. When Slade returned, rather flushed, she said, "Well?"

"I thrashed him," he answered. "What else? We had rather something of a time out there on the tiled floor."

He looked troubled.

"Why?" she asked.

"He knew who I was. How do you suppose he knew? He threatened to get even with me. But let us forget it. Nothing in the world—"

"Nothing in the world can harm us," said Dolores, pressing the back of his hand against her cheek.

"Some day I want to kiss you—on the lips," said Robbie.

"Some day—of course, Robbie—some day."

They were young and neither realized the significance of this incident.

Within a month he brought to her the Eye of Cleopatra.

She had been singing—three short folk songs of Andalusia—at some Fifth avenue evening affair. The place is of no consequence to this account. He found her some time after in an evening gown of black relaxed against the vivid orange silk lining of her wrap in her favorite wicker chair.

"You will think I am a fool," he said.

"Of course," replied Dolores, "of course, Robbie. It is because you are so sweet and clean, and so far from these dressed-up males who are always out of breath chasing the nasty little dollars, that I love you."

"You never said that before," he replied.

"What?"

"That you love me."

"It went without saying," she said.

No doubt he felt a brimming in his eyes; it would be quite like him. He is a whole package of assorted and fine sentiment.

"Well, if you can understand how little I ever trust my ability to express myself—my real feelings— you will understand this. Something in the beauty and rarity of this will tell you," he said.

"And what is the thing you call this?" she asked.

Robbie, taking from his pocket a handkerchief of heavy Habutai silk, spread it upon the black of Dolores's lap. In the center of it reposed the extraordinary jewel which pearl experts have known for half a century as Cleopatra's Eye.

"Robbie!" exclaimed Dolores.

"It is for you. It is set in a pendant for you. If you can understand that it comes as a materialization of things I can't ever say myself! If you can understand that its beauty is a message from me!"

"I can, Robbie," replied Dolores with something of a whisper of reverence.

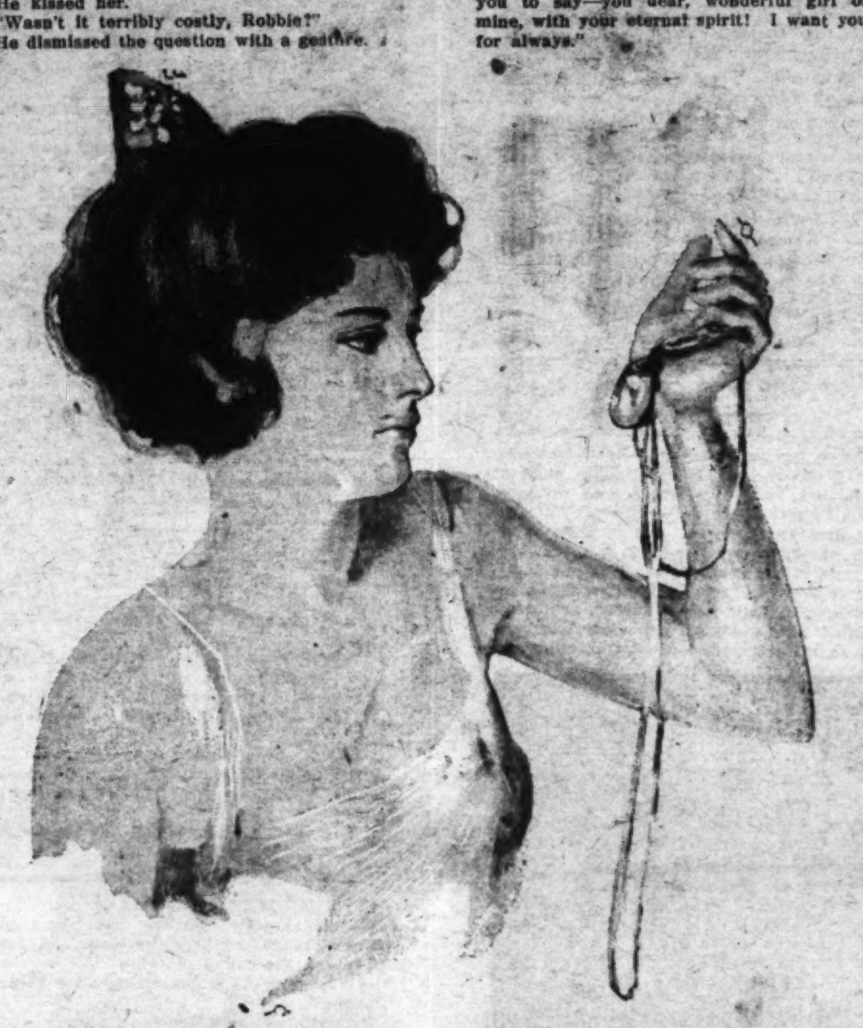
"May I kiss you?" he asked.

"I never forbade you, Robbie. I never forbade you from the first time we sat on the stairs at Mrs. Collier's dance. I love you, Robbie, and I think I will never love anyone else. But it is so strong now when all the rest of the world are worldly figures who would never miss me if I ceased to sing or ceased to be pretty."

He kissed her.

"Wasn't it terribly costly, Robbie?"

He dismissed the question with a gesture.



"She picked up the pearl and stared at it. suddenly, as she looked, she saw the lights in it fade out.

Together, cheek to cheek, they looked down at this marvelous pearl whose reputation and value come from the fact that it wears upon its surface the coming and going tints of a Mediterranean blue through which the rose of a spring dawn thrusts its lights.

"Cleopatra's Eye," said he. "That's its name. You know, of course, that Cleopatra was of Greek blood. Her eyes——"

They were silent as the Eye glinted.

"Do you know where I got it?" he asked. "I'll tell you. I bought it from a Japanese. You'll never remember his name—Hidebushiro Ito. He is famous—a trader in pearls. Used to be in Kyoto. Now in New York. A gloomy, silent man."

Suddenly he stepped away from her.

"I suppose there is something else I should tell you," he said.

"What?"

Robbie fingered the oriental brocade of the table covering as if considering.

"Well there is a superstition about Cleopatra's Eye," said he, almost reluctantly. "You see, the first of its history—the very first—was when it was found on the coast of Sicily in 1848. It was found by a sailor in the clenched hand of a young man attired in the costume of one of nobility. But neither his nationality nor his identity were ever known. He had committed suicide."

Dolores touched the pearl timidly with the tip of one of her forefingers. Then she gave a mock shiver and laughed.

"A graduate of one of the best of our American colleges who has taken honors in philosophy before he is 19 is above belief in such nonsense," Slade said, with a grin. "I tell you just so we can laugh at it, but it is said that bad luck pursues the owners of the Cleopatra's Eye. It is said that as time goes on when the pearl has not changed hands it loses its luster little by little and as it loses its luster so does the owner. They say it has often been owned by persons who have killed themselves."

"Pooh!" exclaimed Dolores. "I dare it!"

"Good for you!" Robbie almost shouted. "I knew you would say just what I wanted you to say—you dear, wonderful girl of mine, with your eternal spirit! I want you for always."

Nevertheless, when young Robinson Slade had left Dolores turned the pendant this way and that in the pink, moist palm of her hand. She tried then to assure herself that the great pearl had not lost something almost imperceptible of its brilliance. What nonsense! She put it down. Dear old Robbie! She ran to the window and pulled the heavy curtains apart to look down the street. He had gone.

He had gone, but there was a man's figure moving slowly out of the shadow of the iron park fence. She thought it must be Stuart Hotchkiss. Rain, dismal rain, with a dismal accompaniment of whining wind, had come and it was hard to see, but she concluded that it must be Hotchkiss after all.

Dolores was quite right. The man she had seen was Hotchkiss. He was no fool; he was over 40 and versed in low intrigue. He had known rather well that he could throw a bombshell into the office of Bertram J. Slade. The latter was not a man who would see his son become involved with a singer whom Mrs. Tremayer Collier had "picked out of the gutter."

Hotchkiss shrewdly guessed that the father did not know of young Robinson's attentions to little Miss Taraffa. He may have interpreted these attentions as one of his kind would naturally interpret them. If, perchance, he had correctly estimated the boy's purpose to make a lifelong alliance with her, he was all the more convinced of the shock this would be to a hard-headed planner like old Slade. He was in no hurry, for, out of luck and money as he was, he had been able to afford enough to corrupt Etienne, the worthless son of old Annette, and all the tales were brought to his ears. He wanted to accumulate all the details of the tale he was to bear.

When Dolores saw him he had not come particularly to see Robbie emerge from Dolores's apartment just before midnight. He had come because Etienne had left the apartment after visiting his mother and had telephoned to Hotchkiss that he had a tale which would "break his eardrum." That was why Hotchkiss had come, and the story of Cleopatra's Eye was now his!

Hotchkiss took it to Slade. When he had finally been admitted to the millionaire shipping man's office, he said with a gesture of nobility:

"You will wonder, perhaps, why I am coming to you in a matter of confidential disclosure. I will tell you in advance, Mr. Slade. It is because if I were a father I would thank the man who would do the same for me. It is a matter between gentlemen."

"My son?" exclaimed Slade, in a startled, anxious voice, for the father had as much faith in Robinson as he had in the South American trade. "What about my son?"

Hotchkiss told him. "I have a friend in the jewelry appraisal business," he concluded. "And I confess it was something of a shock to me to know the value—the price—of Cleopatra's Eye."

"What was the price?"

"Ten thousand dollars."

Hotchkiss had made good his promise to get even with Robinson Slade.

The export man did not go to see Dolores Taraffa to beg her to give up his son. "I have a distaste for Camille scenes," he said afterward. He merely wrote a letter. It was a brutal letter; not brutal in the sense of its phrases, for it was written with a fine manner of mock gallantry, but brutal in the exquisite thrusts he gave her.

He spoke of the shock it had been to him that his own son had not expressed to him the pleasure he had taken in her acquaintance; he said that it must be indeed only a persuading personality like hers that could make his own son spend the last cent he would ever get from his father upon a trinket for her to wear over her heart.

In Dolores there was finess of metal, well tempered, and under injury it could whip up like a broken hair spring. Robbie had no way of knowing the hours she had spent in bitter tears; she had effaced them and their traces with ice and many bathings before he came to see her on that memorable night.

At first when he came in he did not know she was in the room. She was standing by the heavy curtains in the shadow, and only after she had come forward, with her small head erect and as white as a marble bust into the light, did he realize that something was wrong.

"I have received a letter from your—father," she said. "Here it is."

He read it, aghast.

"You might have told me how much this pearl cost," seh said, with her fine teeth tightly closed.

"It was nothing—the cost."

"I did not know. I should have refused such a gift. Not only have you made yourself a fool, but you have made a fool of me. This is the thing you call love—this madness."

"It may have been madness," said Robbie, in a trembling voice. "But such madness I could afford. It is such madness as never comes a second time."

Dolores appeared a little shaken, but the fire of wrath, the blood of her father, was in her temples. She clenched her hands and her eyes lit with the lights in the eyes of a tigress about to spring.

"You did not tell your father you knew me—that it meant anything to you!" she burst forth. "That is enough—that in itself."

It was impossible now for him to tell her his reason. To have told the truth would have seemed to be framing a weak lie. He merely said: "I would have told him soon."

"Oh, well," she said, with a magnificent coldness. "I might have known. You are like the rest—bold as a lion in your self-indulgences, but a craven coward in facing the obligations of life. What is the expression? Oh, yes—you are a little yellow, Robinson Slade—like your father's letter to me—a little yellow. It is so fortunate that I have found out before it was more serious, and it is too bad that I did not find out sooner. Do you know what it means to be a girl without a single friendly hand—alone—eternally subject to the assault of men's conspiracies and women's poisoned tongues? Do you know what you have done to wrong me? So much. Well, it is over. I look upon you for the last time, I hope."

"You mean that without knowing more—without hearing me you would send me away after all our world we have made together—all our plans."

"You better go," she said, with a curling of her lip. The devil himself was putting the words in her mouth. "If you ever come here again I shall know better than ever that you are without self-respect or pride or decency."

The younger Slade was not without pride and passion of his own; he seized his straw hat, and with reddened face started toward the door.

"Wait," Dolores commanded. "You have forgotten something."

"What?"

"Your trinket."

He laughed in no pleasant tone.

"Then I shall send it to your father."

The threat fired him. He burst forth. "The things you have said to me I will never forget, nor will I ever come back to you unless you ask me; but if you send the pearl to my father I would never forgive you if we lived to be a thousand years old."

"Here—then!" she said, and tossed the Eye of Cleopatra across the table. It struck him on the mouth and fell clattering on to the hardwood floor between two Turkestan rugs. He turned away and passed out through the hangings at the door.

She stayed, motionless, breathing hard, her lips pressed tightly together until long after the door had closed. Then suddenly the realization of his going came to her, and she sank on to her knees and buried her face in the cushion of the wicker chair.

"Robbie! Come back!" she cried out. "Robbie, come back to me. I lied to you, Robbie. I love you. Come back to me!"

When she had caught her breath she listened and heard only the cough and purr of motors on the asphalt street below the window. She picked up the pearl and stared at it a long time. It was in a gay mood—this gem; it was filled with life and flash of rosy light.

"It is the only thing—the only thing he ever gave me," she said, holding it in her palm. "But I will send it back to him—tomorrow.

Then suddenly as she looked at it, she saw the lights in it fade out; it lapsed into a miserable gray. Perhaps it was saying to her that she should not so easily get rid of it. Two days later she learned that Robbie Slade had gone on one of his father's ships on a voyage to the West Coast of South America.

If with the ownership of the Cleopatra's Eye there went a strange and sinister influence, surely it had made a good beginning. Annette, to whom the story of the pearl had filtered, counselled the earliest riddance of it.

"Be still!" said Dolores. "Never speak of the pearl to me again. I do not wear it. It is gone—into a safe place. It is not mine, anyway. It is not mine. I'm not the owner. Besides, the superstition is nonsense—plain nonsense."

Annette was incorrigible. She replied, "Well, it came into our home over two months ago. Already the stock into which you put most of your savings of this winter has lost all its value because of that lawsuit. You have lost all your best gowns by burglary, have you not, mademoiselle? How is it that Mrs. Tremayor Collier turned her back upon you and went off to Europe? Do you have any more engagements offered to you—you who can sing like no other?"

"But it is spring, Annette. The musical season is over."

"Ha!" Over, eh? Did not Mme. Orzicka take your place at—"

"Hush!" commanded Dolores. "It is absurd."

"Absurd? I wonder," Annette persisted. "Even you—mademoiselle, you are not the same. So much of irritation. Ah! I tell you bad temper makes enemies, and enemies will gossip about a beautiful young girl who has no one to protect her. What have you? Your voice. That is your only true friend—just as my pretty face was once. But if bad luck comes even your voice you may lose. Perhaps a sneeze—a cold—a cough, mademoiselle and it might be gone forever. Better sell the wicked thing while there is yet time!"

"I love it," said Dolores, passionately.

"Then you love your ruin!" Annette mumbled, and went on with her dusting.

She was not present for long, to haunt the girl with her warnings and her imagery of evil. Before six weeks had gone, and when the hottest days of July had come, Dolores told the old woman that she could employ her no more.

"I love you, Annette," she said, wearily. "But I have had no engagements. There is no money with which to pay you."

The old woman stared at her young mistress resentfully. She said, without any sign of regret, and insolently:

"You never would listen to one older and wiser than you. Take care of your health. You are pale. You have come from the tropics. I knew a girl who came from Brazil—a dancer—a girl like you, meant for sunlight. The damp, cold air here struck into her chest, and she passed away. That is what happened to her. And she did not have that wicked pearl!"

Dolores spent her summer practicing her singing. No one came to see her. Her restraint, her aloofness, had made her no friends. The men she had known sooner or later had to be sent about their business; the women who had patronized her had done so a good deal as they would patronize a canary, and they always demanded subservience that her proud spirit could not give.

Because she was so lonely she allowed an apoplectic man, who lived on the same floor and whose hair was still red, and whose age was uncertain, to make her acquaintance. He said that she reminded him of his daughter, and he came and sat in the evenings droning on about his past in the dullest manner, until she felt like screaming at him to go away. Sometimes she prepared her own meals; sometimes she went out over the hot brick pavements to the cheapest restaurants she could find.

Early in September the agent of the apartment-house notified her that her lease had been ended.

"Already you owe us for two months," he said. "Besides, there is to be an increase in rent. You can go within a few days."

He paused.

"Who paid for all this?" he said, sweeping his fat hand around.

"I did," she said.

The man smiled. "Well, I will send a moving van around."

When he did he connived to take possession of her piano. It was sold for what it would bring. Dolores did not have any spirit for a controversy. Somehow an evil, subtle conviction had come to her that protest and battle were useless, and that an unchangeable fate was at her heels, driving its talons into her helplessness. There was tragedy in not having a piano; she could practice no more. She often sat for hours in the boarding-house room staring at the terrible wall paper.

At these times she would usually end her meditation by unbuttoning the front of her dress before the mirror, and there, upon the white expanse of her bosom, was the Eye of Cleopatra!

"I couldn't afford to keep you, dear, in the luxury of a safe deposit box," she would say. "But you do not mind? Why don't you brighten? You look so dull—as dull as you look when some one is ready to plunge a knife into their own white flesh."

A long rainy spell came in early October, and one morning Dolores awoke with a headache and a sore throat. As she lay staring at the ceiling, a little asway with fever, she thought of the words of Annette. She knew that if this cold were to last she would think of these words sooner or later, but it appeared to her extraordinary that she had thought of them at once as if they were interwoven with these swollen glands in her throat, and could not be untangled from the infection that had seized her. When she got up, however, she took off the Eye of Cleopatra, and hid it in the lower drawer of the hideous golden oak bureau. Then she laughed a little hysterically at herself. She had yielded to the superstition; she had definitely said to herself as she had put the pearl away:

"This was the beautiful thing they found in his clenched hand!"

November came. The season in which
